It is a malicious irony to talk about "peaceful unification," leaving intact the reality of South Korea where democratic freedom and rights are totally crushed and an augument for peaceful reunification and activities for it are a target of harsh penalty.

While getting frantic in the anti-communist smear campaign, zealously following the war and splitting manoeuvres of the U.S. imperialists, its master, the Chon Tu-hwan group is viciously inciting antagonism and confrontation within the nation and feverishly stepping up the provocation of a new war against fellow countrymen.

The Chon Tu-hwan military clique is now massively building up the military strength and equipment of the puppet army and expanding munitions industry, madly crying for "unification by prevailing over communism" and "unification by destroying communism" and ceaselessly committing military exerc ises and armed provocation against us.

For national reunification, the north and the south should seek great national unity and, at the same time, reject outside intereference in the internal affairs of our country and force the U.S. troops in particular, the main obstacle to reunification, out of South Korea.

But, traitor Chon Tu-hwan, as soon as he installed himself in "power", visited his U.S. master across the ocean and begged for the cancellation of the "troop pullout plan," continued presence of the U.S. troops in South Korea and his "protection" by armed forces, thus committing without hesitation a treacherous act for leaving South Korea to the U.S. imperialists as a permanent colony.

That traitor Chon Tu-hwan does not have the slightest intention to achieve national reunification and his twaddle about "peace" and "unification" is a sheer lie for misleading public opinion was once again fully disclosed in the course of his recent Southeast Asian tour.

Wherever he went the traitor opened up a propaganda barrage, claiming that the "admission of two Koreas into the United Nations" would "contribute to the relaxation of tension" and "help" create an "international climate" for "peaceful unification."

The loud cry of traitor Chon Tu-hwan for "simultaneous entry into the United Nations" is a ruse to create "two Koreas" by making the division of Korea fait accompli on the international scene.

He went the length of prattling that a unified state cannot be built because there are "differences in the ideological political system and in the economic and social system."

It is clear to everyone that to oppose the formation of a unified state on the pretext of "system" and so forth means destroying national harmony and unity and refusing reunification by bringing to the foreground the differences in ideology and system existing in the north and the south and absolutizing them and this is an act for fostering anti-communism and confrontation and maintaining the present division and, furthermore, leading it to an armed conflict.

Such criminal acts of the Chon Tu-hwan clique taking a stance of onfrontation against us, harshly suppressing the patriotic and democratic forces in South Korea and trying to create "two Koreas" in league with outside forces externally are intended to fix the division of the country, maintain the colonial rule of the U.S. imperialists in South Korea and prop up the military fascist "regime" with the backing of the U.S. imperialist aggressors.

Whatever thick veil of "unification" the Chon Tu-hwan group may put on, it cannot conceal its true colour as the traitor to the nation opposed to reunification and bent on the permanent division of the nation and still less can it be a party to a dialogue for reunification.

Traitor Chon Tu-hwan is an object to be punished in the name of the nation.

'NODONG SINMUN' ATTACKS CHON AS HUMAN BUTCHER

[Text] Pyongyang, 22 Aug (KCNA)--NODONG SINMUN Friday carried an article titled "Butcher of Nation Mad on Man-slaughter," an abridged version of which reads:

Chon Tu-hwan the gangster is a truculent fascist thug who does not hesitate to plunge the whole land of South Korea into a horrible sea of blood for gratifying his dirty greed for "power"; he is a butcher of fellow countrymen with whom the latter cannot live under the same sky.

The genocide operation in Kwangju well known to the world was the height of human butchery which could be committed only by Chon Tu-hwan the gangster, a blood-thirsty ogre, and a grave crime which cannot be erased by anything.

The brutal massacre in Kwangju was a premediated genocide operation staged by Chon Tu-hwan the gangster to grab the supreme power in South Korea and revive the "Yusin" fascist system.

To murder and exterminate the fellow countrymen of one city, the ferocious murderer launched an all-out attack, hurling tens of thousands of effectives with the paratroopers as their core plus over one hundred tanks, hundreds of armored cars, hundreds of heavy artillery pieces and even missiles.

The thugs on orders of murder wielded bayonets and poured bullets indiscriminately on defenceless students and citizens, mowing them down in sheaves, and murdered patriotic citizens by beastly methods beyond imagination.

They threw several dozen citizens into a tightly closed warehouse and subjected them to electric and water tortures and, in the end, murdered them by suffocating them with an unknown gas bomb. They tied straw ropes around the necks of 49 miners and peasants and made them lie side by side and killed them by bringing down stones weighing 10 kg each on their heads and, in the end, ran an armored car over them, causing their flesh to be caught in its caterpillars. The knavish paratroopers dragged about by an army truck a stall keeper and his young son and killed them in the end for the reason that they carried drinking water and bread to uprisers. They jumped into the operation room of a hospital and dragged out of it serious cases undergoing operations, labelling them as "prime movers in demonstrations," and killed them by stamping on them with the jackboots or burning them with flame throwers.

On orders of murder from Chon Tu-hwan the gangster, the ogrish paratroopers killed a two-year-old child by driving a bayonet into his abdomen under the very eyes of his mother when she refused to tell them the whereabouts of her husband, and fell upon a four-year-old child crying over the body of his father on the Kwangju riverside and an old man in his eighties and drove bayonets into their bellies, letting blood spurt in fountains.

Their brutal murder of a pregnant woman and shocking slaughter of girl students, which were widely known to the world to make people shake with rage, sternly indict the human butchery of the blood-thirsty beasts.

The fascist murderers arrested and imprisoned 20,000 people who survived the bloodbath in Kwangju and bestially tortured them, killing or crippling for life many of them. This was the second Kwandju massacre committed by them.

The people will never forget the slaughter of fellow countrymen by Chon Tu-hwan the human butcher, but will certainly punish the murderer and make him pay for their blood.

'NODONG SINMUN' HITS CHON AS DEMOCRACY STRANGLER

[Text] Pyongyang, 25 Aug (KCNA)--NODONG SINMUN August 23 printed an article titled "Vicious Strangler of Democracy and Civil Rights."

Noting that the scorched-earth operation of the traitor Chon Tu-hwan against democracy and civil rights started in full scale, while expanding an "emergency martial law" on May 17 last year, the paper continued:

The military rogues banned all the political activities, political speeches and demonstrations and assemblies and sealed up the press in South Korea. Even the criticism of the defunct ringleader of the "Yusin" dictatorship and the remnants of his forces were prohibited.

The fascist blackguards bound with the chains of fascism Kim Tae-chung and other democratic figures and thousands of, tens of thousands of students and people of all segments who called for democracy and held demonstrations every day in demand of it, and cast them into prison.

After the May 17 violent action the Chon Tu-hwan military gang ran with bloodshot eyes to obliterate even the last vestige of democracy in South Korea.

The massacre of Kwangju popular uprisers by the fascist butchers was a most brutal and cruel slaughter operation against fellow countrymen which cannot be found in any history of dictatorship.

They murdered in cold blood or maimed for life guiltless people for the mere reason that they did not yield to fascism at the bestial torture chambers.

Stifling of democracy was rampant at murderous court, too. Their "court" was virtually a burying ground of those who survived tortures.

A typical example of this was a murderous trial and penalisation of Kim Tae-chung and other persons who had connections with him. The fascist hangmen ignored even the elementary legal procedures and the rights of the "defendants" and inflicted capital punishment and heavy penalties upon them only on the basis of "indictments" fabricated through tortures without the presence of families and relatives of the "defendants," defence counsellors and witnesses.

Pointing to the fact that the traitor Chon Tu-hwan pushed away the incumbent "president" with the bayonet and seated himself in the "presidential" chair, trumped up a large number of evil laws and intensified suppression, the article continued:

On the strength of numerous evil laws replacing the bayonet, huge suppressive machines and forces, they trample underfoot and stamp out all the elements obstructive to their long-term office and negate even the peoples right to existence.

All the political parties and organisations calling for democracy have been dissolved, or brought under the "government" control, the sacred campus has been turned into military barracks, the right to learning has been trampled under jackboots and resourceful and talented, patriotic students are given warnings, suspended or expelled from campuses on the unreasonable pretext of "poor school records."

The press has been deprived of the right to report truth. In South Korea even the old politicians who were close associates of the former "Yusin" dictator are not allowed to make speeches or conduct activities with political coloring due to the "social purification" step of the fascist hangmen. Now they are weaving a plot to suppress those in exile abroad.

The Chon Tu-hwan fascist clique is the vicious strangler of democracy and the heinous enemy of the nation.

The fascist butcher Chon Tu-hwan can never be a party to a dialogue for reunification.

Entirely just is our proposal to exclude the Chon Tu-hwan group from a conference for the promotion or national reunification.

'NODONG SINMUN' ON PLIGHT OF STUDENTS IN SOUTH

SK220513 Pyongyang KCNA in English 0357 GMT 22 Aug 81

[Text] Pyongyang, 22 Aug (KCNA)--The Chon Tu-hwan clique on August 20 issued a "disciplinary order" and expelled from the campus or disciplined nearly 6,000 students at colleges and universities in Seoul and local areas on the pretext of "poor school records". Commenting on this, NODONG SINMUN today brands it as a deliberate political suppression aimed to remove conscientious students.

The author of the commentary titled "Harsh Political Suppression" says:

A large number of students have so far been expelled from the campus owing to the "disciplinary steps," but, none of the students of the privileged circle origin has ever been punished or expelled.

Those expelled from the campus in South Korea on the pretext of "poor school results" are conscientious and patriotic students who call for the democratisation of the campus and society.

The military fascist clique fears more than anyone else the students who play the role of pioneer in the movement for democracy.

The South Korean students demand the abolition of surveillance and watch over the campus, the resignation of reptile professors, the reinstatement of forcibly dismissed and expelled professors and students, the dissolution of the "student homeland defense corps" and the resignation of the Chon Tu-hwan group from "power".

Feaful of this, the Chon Tu-hwan clique is stretching the tentacles of harsh suppression to the campus. The recent disciplinary steps are part of this suppression.

But, suppression cannot put down the growing movement of the students against fascism and for democracy.

The Chon Tu-hwan cliques expulsion of a large number of students from the campus under "disciplinary steps" shows that its position is not stable.

DJP ASSEMBLYMEN EXCHANGE VIEWS IN CANADA

SK271001 Seoul YONHAP in English 0815 GMT 27 Aug 81

[Text] Ottawa, 26 Aug (YONHAP)--Jean Marchand, speaker of the Canadian Senate, today highly praised South Korean President Chon Tu-hwan's efforts toward dialogue with North Korea as manifested anew in his January 12 and June 5 proposals calling for an inter-Korean summit exchange.

In a luncheon speech welcoming a visiting Korean parliamentary delegation, Marchand said he fully endorsed Chon's view that given the national division, peaceful territorial unification should be pursued through such means as the reunion of separate Korean families.

He stressed that for the realization of such an objective North Korea should promptly (?go) to the conference table with Seoul.

Marchand also told his Korean guests that visits of parliamentarians between Seoul and Ottawa were most effective in the furtherance of friendship between the two countries, stressing that manifold exchanges are especially important between countries whose culture, tradition and history are different.

He said the Canadian-Korean relations have been historically close, adding that Prime Minister Pierre Trudeau's coming visit to Korea would be a milestone in furthering such close ties. Trudeau is scheduled to visit Korea from September 21 to 24.

The five-man National Assembly delegation led by Rep Pong Tu-wan of the ruling Democratic Justice Party is in Ottawa on a six-day official visit. The Korean delegation arrived in Toronto on August 24.

The Korean legislators, all members of the Korea-Canada parliamentarians group, have been invited by their Canadian counterparts as part of the groups' exchange program.

It is the first visit to Canada by the Korean members of the bilateral body since the organization was launched in 1979 for the purpose of promoting ties between the legislatures of the two countries.

Following their Ottawa visit, the Korean lawmakers will tour Montreal, before leaving for New York on Saturday.

OVERSEAS KOREAN PAPER ON POST-LIBERATION HISTORY DISCUSSED

SK251059 Pyongyang KCNA in English 1041 GMT 25 Aug 81

[Text] Pyongyang August 25 (KCNA)--A recent issue of SINHAN MINBO, a newspaper of Koreans published in the United States, carried an editorial headlined "August 15 Is Not Liberation Day" in South Korea.

The editorial says that since August 15, 1945, national sovereignty has been totally trampled underfoot and slavish submission imposed upon the people in South Korea under the domination of outside forces.

Noting that the responsibility for the disgraceful history of South Korea since liberation rests above all with the United States, the editorial says:

After establishing its domination over South Korea through the enforcement of a military administration and so on in violation of international commitments, the United States defended and fostered the pro-Japanese treacherous forces and pro-U.S. treacherous forces.

Furthermore, the United States brought to rupture the resolution of the Moscow three foreign ministers conference, placed the Korean question before the United Nations whose stand was in its favor and saw to it that the separate "election" was held in South Korea, and thereby put down the ardent desire of our nation for independence, reunification and sovereignty.

The United States supported the two dictatorial "regimes" of Syngman Rhee and Pak Chong-hui and is now supporting and fostering the Chon Tu-hwan military dictatorial "regime," a force massacring fellow countrymen.

The responsibility for the disgraceful history of South Korea rests next with the flunkeyist forces who have exercised power in league with the outside forces.

After liberation Syngman Rhee and other opportunists and the remnants of the pro-Japanese traitors played a duet with the United States in the establishment of a "separate regime" of South Korea, usurped "power" and then adopted a flunkeyist policy entirely relying upon the outside forces.

It will not be too much to say that the Chon Tu-hwan military dictatorial "regime" of today is the climax of this flunkeyist policy.

The 36 year history of the flunkeyist "regimes" was that they seized power in reliance upon the outside forces, negating and rejecting the national integrity.

The "national security" of these flunkeyist "regimes" was not a security for the nation and the people but a "security" for the flunkeyist "power" and outside forces.

These flunkeyist "regimes" have lost national sovereignty, the life and soul of the nation and the motive power of the creation of the national history, and caused a tragic counter-flow in the history of the nation for 36 years.

Thus, South Korea is now in a state of neo-colonialism for which no excuse can be found.

In this sense, August 15 is not the liberation day in South Korea.

Thirty six years since liberation is 36 years of neo-colonialist oppression.

The editorial stresses: The South Korean people must correct the counterflow in the history of the nation. The way to do this is to rise courageously for the realization of democracy, national independence and national unification.

DKP URGES SPECIAL BODY FOR ADMINISTRATION REFORM

[Text] The Democratic Korea Party (DKP) has urged the government to set up a "special committee for the reform of administration" under the direct control of the president to seek sweeping administrative reorganization.

The first minority party demanded in its tentative draft for the reform of the administration that the ad hoc panel be headed by a former president and composed of 40 to 50 people from all walks of life.

The DKP draft was worked out by its policy deliberation council chaired by Rep Han Yong-su, based on the outcome of party-sponsored seminars on the administrative reform on August 19 and 21.

In the tentative plan for administrative reform, the party also called for the institution of another vice premiership in charge of social welfare and the establishment of a council for the protection of low-income people's livelihood under direct presidential control.

Rep Han revealed yesterday that the draft to be confirmed through deliberation by the party executive council shortly would be the basic framework of the party amendment bill to the government organization law, which would be forwarded to the regular national assembly session to open September 20.

Other major contents of the draft include the fundamental enforcement of the local-government system by decentralizing administrative power.

Also included in the draft is the curtailment of the government budget through the reorganization of government setups and the computerization of administrative work.

The DKP, at the same time, claimed in the draft that the government should promote shifting to corporations its offices seeking profits through businesses such as the Office of Monopoly, the Korean National Railroad and the Communications Ministry.

ROK DAILY WELCOMES 'LESS GOVERNMENT' POLICY

SK270055 Seoul THE KOREA HERALD in English 27 Aug 81 p 4

[Editorial: "Steps for Less Government"]

[Text] The government plan to substantially reduce the number of high positions in national and local administration agencies is a right step toward "less government" compatible with a basic policy of the new fifth republic--to maximize private initiative and creativity by minimizing official intervention. To be sure, less government is a current trend in many countries, including the United States, as a means of coping with their troubled economy.

According to the basic guidelines announced Tuesday by the Ministry of Government Administration, at least 232 or 14 percent of the 1,648 positions now held by civil servants ranked grade four (section chief) or above are to be abolished in national administration agencies alone by October 20. They will include seven assistant ministers and 13 grade one officials. Their present duties are to be taken over by the remaining officials through mergers of offices.

The measure is the first major cutback of the government organization in two decades. During this period there have been as many as 35 readjustments of government structure, all for expansion. The expansion of government functions was necessary to effectively plan and administer the government-led fast economic growth in the 60s and 70s. Without strong government leadership the phenomenal industrial progress of the nation would not have been possible.

As Minister of Government Administration Kim Yong-hyu admitted, however, the continued government enlargement oriented toward rapid economic growth has brought about administrative inefficiency and budgetary waste. Problems include overlapping of functions among offices, disjointing of functions through too much subdivision, and inadequate coordination between offices.

Especially notable is the top-heavy structure of bureaucracy resulting from successive creation of new high posts as expedient means to promote officials, raise their salaries or assign political appointees. The tendency toward an inverted pyramid in government structure is clear when one looks at the figures that show a 241 percent increase in the number of officials of grade three or above during the last 20 years while lesser officials increased by 73 percent. This inevitably resulted in unnecessary red tape, due to so many steps to go through on the bureaucratic ladder to get official papers approved. It is therefore quite natural that there have lately been mounting calls for the elimination of excess fat in the high echelon of government.

There is no disputing that a fat government, though meritorious in the initial stage of national development, tends to hamper further progress when greater initiative and autonomous activities are required of the private sector in the face of changed economic and international conditions. It is therefore vital that the role of the government start changing from regulatory and controlling functions to those of guidance and assistance. Viewed in this sense, the planned retrenchment of government organization is a timely step.

We like to point out, however, that any major organizational overhaul of the government cannot be successfully accomplished in a one-shot deal and requires a continuing program. We trust that the government will consider follow-up moves, after the current first step, to realize its goal of clean, efficient and democratic administration.

ROK DAILY DETAILS MEASURES ON REDUCING BUDGET

[Text] The government has decided to eradicate factors wasting government budget funds in the compilation of next year's national budget bill.

According to measures designed to reduce budget spending, which were announced by the Economic Planning Board, the government will put restraint on the rental use of deluxe buildings as government offices, save expenses for officials' domestic and overseas travel, restrict increases in new official-use vehicles and merge less effective funds.

The budget saving steps also call for a ban on the making of charts for reports within the respective ministries and government agencies, the prohibition of excessive publication of government bulletins and periodicals, restraint on domestic travel by officials and a reduction in food allowances for officials on night duty and in fuel expenses.

Intelligence expenses for bureaus and offices will also be reduced except for international relations, while expense funds granted to high-ranking officials during their overseas trips will be limited to assistant ministers and higher officials.

To reduce the use of electric power, electric lights in government facilities will be encouraged to be turned off during the daytime.

Restrictions will also be put on government subsidies to various associations and private organizations.

In order to reduce expenses for operating a large number of government cars, all government offices have been told to auction off their cars to government officials except for those indispensable or the performance of official duty.

This was revealed by Health-Social Affairs Minister Chon Myong-ki in a briefing on his ministry's major projects for the coming 10 years for the Korea National Party yesterday.

According to him, all cars except those for urgent business use and those for the use of officials with the rank of vice ministers or higher will be disposed of in the coming three years.

According to instructions handed down in a cabinet meeting Tuesday, vice ministerial level officials and higher will be allowed to continue to use chauffeur-driven government cars.

Others will have to drive themselves or hire drivers at their own cost. But the bill for fuel consumed for the official's use will be paid by the government, according to the instructions.

But each government office will be allowed to have a certain number of cars with drivers which is deemed necessary for the performance of their business.

ROK REINFORCES BAN ON PRIVATE TUTORING OF STUDENTS

[Text] The Social Purification Committee warned yesterday that students who seek prohibited private lessons outside school would be disqualified from taking the state test for college entrance.

Students who are found to have had the out-of-school lessons in preparation for entrance to college will have their admission nullified or expelled from their schools, the committee said in an announcement.

The tough measures to prevent private lessons were decided in a joint meeting of officials from the Home Ministry, Education Ministry, National Police Headquarters and other government offices at the Social Purification Committee Wednesday afternoon.

The committee, which directs government efforts for the elimination of various social evils, noted that there was the possibility of revival of private lessons in secrecy as the college entrance test neared.

According to measures agreed on at the Wednesday meeting, any person found to have given private lessons to students will be arrested for violating the law of private institutes.

Parents of violating students will be removed from their positions or will be subjected to tax investigation, the committee said.

Secret inspectors will be sent to major cities for clandestine investigation of private tutoring, focusing on suspicious teachers and parents. Citizens are asked to help in the investigation by reporting any practices of private teaching to the authorities.

An Mu-hyok, chairman of the committee, said that there seemed to be parents of high-school senior class students who felt uneasy upon hearing rumors that private tutoring has been revived secretly these days.

"However, it is determined that secret out-of-school teachings are not so prevalent yet though there might be a small number of parents trying to elude the authorities' watch," he said.

BRIEFS

COLLEGE CLASS SUSPENSION--Seoul, 28 Aug (YONHAP)--Korea's Education Minister Yi Kyu-ho said Friday that the government would not condone the suspension of classes by the nation's universities and colleges under any circumstances, and warned that those institutions of higher learning incapable of controlling student unrest would have "their raison-d'etre questioned." Speaking at a convention of the presidents and deans of Korea's 100 universities and colleges at Seoul's Sejong Cultural Center, Korea's top education official underscored the need for the nation's universities and colleges to supervise their students (as the new semester begins on Korean campuses), and suggested that the government would take strong actions including permanent closure of those schools which allow student unrest to interfere with their normal academic activities. "The government is firmly determined to overcome the chronic problem of student unrest, and is doing its utmost to avoid making stereotyped instructions. But the nation's universities and colleges should also exert voluntary and creative efforts to successfully tackle the phenomenon which impedes their growth as academic institutions," Yi said. ROK FINALIZES FIFTH 5-YEAR ECONOMIC PLAN

SK220252 Seoul THE KOREA TIMES in English 22 Aug 81 pp 1-2

[Text] The government made public yesterday the final version of the nation's Fifth Five-Year Economic and Social Development Plan (1982-86), which envisages an average GNP growth of 7.6 percent and an average price increase of 10.1 percent.

Deputy Prime Minister and Minister of Economic Planning Sin Pyong-hyon told a press conference in the afternoon that the Fifth Five-Year Plan was fundamentally aimed at stabilization, efficiency and balanced development.

Sin stressed that top policy priority would be given to price stabilization to limit the annual price hike rate to an average of 10 percent, or 9 percent in the goal year of 1986.

To enhance the economic efficiency and productivity, Sin said economic and social policies would be directed to opening, internationalizing and fostering the national economy, coupled with a privately-led and autonomous system, and to decentralizing the government economic management function.

Emphasis, he said, would also be placed on social development and balanced development of the national land in pace with a steady economic growth of 708 percent per annum. [Sentence as published]

The top economic policy planner explained that the new Five-Year Plan was designed to arrest structural and chronic inflation and remove causes of inefficiency in the early part of the coming five years so as to enable the national economy to make "its second take-off" toward national development in the latter part.

He outlined five policy directions of the Fifth Five-Year Development Plan--first, to create a firm basis for economic stabilization and to improve efficiency to continue economic growth; second, to manage the international balance of payments in a sound manner and to secure "economic security" in cooperation with foreign countries; third, to shift toward an internationally superior and advantageous industrial structure; fourth, to develop the national land balancedly and to conserve the natural environment; and fifth, to expand social development.

The government, he said, would limit the unemployment rate to 4 percent in line with the average GNP growth of 7.6 percent by providing jobs to 2.3 million new economically active people during the coming five years.

During the plan period, 32.5 percent of the Gross National Product (GNP) will be invested in maximizing domestic savings, he said.

To limit annual price increase to one-digit figures by 1984, Sin said, the government finance, would be managed more healthily in view of the growing financial demand by reducing increases in ordinary government spending. However, he said the people's tax burden rate would have to be raised to 22 percent in 1986 from this year's 18.4 percent.

The tax reduction-exemption system will be overhauled while the tax system will be reformed to ease the tax burden on low-income and medium-income people.

The money supply will be operated stably at an annual increase rate of 18 percent while the current financing system will be improved to insure smooth supply of money.

Particular efforts will be made to stabilize the prices of foodstuffs and other daily necessities, housing expenses and various service charges, according to the plan.

Various steps to improve the financing system call for interest rates higher than price increase rates so as to attract more savings, a reduction of low-interest policy loans and for the gradual transfer of commercial banks into private ownership.

With the establishment of an industrial policy deliberation committee, the government will strengthen its support for facility investment in competitive industries, technical renovation and manpower development.

The plan also calls for an early settlement of the newly-enforced fair trade system and for liberalizing imports to a level similar to that of advanced countries.

As for the healthy management of the international balance of payments, the government has set the average annual commodity export and import increase targets during the 1982-86 period at 20 percent and 10 percent, respectively, at nominal prices to increase exports and imports in 1986 to $53 billion and $55.5 billion.

Sin forecast that the acquisition of $46.5 billion in foreign capital required during the coming five years would be attained smoothly as the foreign debt servicing amount was projected to be only 11 percent of the total foreign exchange revenue.

As for the shift of industries to relatively advantageous ones, priority in investment will be given to industries conductive to saving energy, technical renovation and man-power development.

Thus, the nation's dependence on petroleum will be reduced to 50 percent in 1986 from 61 percent last year.

Research and development funds will be raised to 2 percent of GNP in 1986 from 0.8 percent.

During the coming five years, the government plans to attain self-sufficiency in staple grains (rice) by disseminating new high-yield varieties and by providing 1.3 million farming machines.

To step up measures to increase farmers' non-farming incomes, a development planning group will be formed, according to the plan.

As for balanced development of regions, the national land will be developed, divided into 28 spheres of living with Taegu, Kwangju and Taejon as three initial base cities.

Other major policy measures included in the five-year plan are:

--to expand the development of provincial industrial complexes;

--to expand the pavement of local (municipal and county) roads;

--to strengthen the function of provincial governments;

--to increase telephone circuits by 6.3 million and to expand railroad and shipping transportation capacity;

--to increase investment in education substantially to 5 percent of the total fixed investment from 3.3 percent;

--to build 1,460,000 housing units including 570,000 in the public sector to raise the housing supply rate to 98.4 percent in 1986 from the present 74.5 percent;

--to expand the scope of medical insurance and medicare beneficiaries to 66 percent of the total population and to enforce a people's welfare pension system for aged persons;

--to complete the construction of Seoul's subways Nos 2, 3 and 4, and Pusan's first subway; and,

--to raise the piped water supply rate to 70 percent from the present 55 percent.

ROK ENVISIONS $53 BILLION EXPORT GOAL BY 1986

SK220409 Seoul THE KOREA TIMES in English 22 Aug 81 p 7

[Text] The government will lay stress on upgrading the export industrial structure, developing the heavy and chemical sectors particularly in the field of machinery during the Fifth Five-Year Economic and Social Development Plan Period (1982-86).

It envisions the export goal in 1986, the final year of the Fifth Five-Year Plan, at $53 billion with an annual average increase rate of 20.3 percent during the cited period.

According to the plan, the exports of heavy and chemical industrial products are projected to increase to $28.8 billion in 1986, which accounted for 54.3 percent of the total export volume, from this year's $9.2 billion, 43.7 percent in the component ratio of exports.

However, efforts will be steadily expedited to increase the exports of light industrail products including textiles, which have international competitiveness on the world markets.

The exports of light industrial products are planned to rise to $20.9 billion in 1986 from $9.9 billion this year.

In a policy to raise the international competitiveness of export commodities, the government will put emphasis on stabilizing the price, wages and foreign exchange rates, along with an improvement of productivity and quality of the products.

During the coming five years, the industrial competitiveness will be strengthened by introducing foreign competition, and expansion of facilities will be spurred in the field of industrial edges for increasing the supply capabilities.

The government will step up finanical assistance to exports of machinery and vessels.

Of the nation's total commodity export goal of $53 billion in 1986, the credit exports of vessels and plants will increase to $4 billion in 1986 from $900 million this year.

The required fund for credit exports is set at 792.8 billion won this year. But it will increase to 1,472 billion won in 1984 and to 2,450 billion won in 1986, respectively.

Meanwhile, import policy will be implemented with a focus on commodity price stabilization and the sound management of import demand.

The nation's total import scale is projected at $59,400 million on the CIF basis in 1986 which breaks down to $2,800 million for grains, $15,200 million for crude oil, $4 billion for consumer goods, $14,100 million for capital goods, and $23,300 million for raw materials.

The expansion of non-trade income is also eyed. To this end, overseas construction services will be encouraged, along with the internationalization of shipping business and development of tourism resources.

ROK PLANS DIVERSIFICATION OF ENERGY SOURCES

SK220536 Seoul THE KOREA TIMES in English 22 Aug 81 p 7

[Text] The government will do its best to push ahead efficiently and rationally with its energy policy during the Fifth Five-Year Socioeconomic Development Plan Period (1982-86), it was announced yesterday.

According to the announcement, the five-year plan will emphasize diversification of energy sources and their efficient use.

The diversification and increase in energy storage capacity will cope with ever-growing concern about expected shortages of energy resources and higher prices.

The government will also spur efforts to promote the development of mineral reserves both at home and abroad.

The on-going energy conservation drive will also be continued during the coming five years.

Under a prime policy of "laying a strong foundation for coal production," the government will make efforts to help the nation increase output from 18.5 million tons last year to 21.5 million tons in the target year of 1986.

Coal storage is expected to rise to 5.6 million tons in 1986 from 4.6 million tons last year.

The mechanization rate of coal mining equipment is projected at 35 percent in the target year from eight percent last year.

By the end of 1986, the government forecasts, all coal miners will own their houses. Last year, 84.7 percent of the nation's total coal miners as heads of families resided in their own houses.

To help secure stable supplies of oil, the government said, it will establish storage facilities capable of stockpiling 50 million barrles by the end of 1986 for 60-day emergency use.

The national's dependence on oil will be reduced to 50.2 percent from 613. percent last year. And oil imports will increase to 261 million barrels in 1986 from 183 million barrels last year.

At the same time, the government will step up oil exploration projects on the continental shelf between Korea and Japan and also in Indonesia.

Through rational materialization of electric power development, soucres of electricity will be diversified.

The total installed capacity is projected to increase to 17,570,000 kw in 1986 from 9,290,000 kw last year.

Especially, the rated capacity of nuclear power plants (one station in Kori at present) is planned to rise from 587,000 kw last year to 4,766,000 kw in a combined total of six plants.

ROK TO PROMOTE BALANCED LAND DEVELOPMENT

SK220532 Seoul THE KOREA TIMES in English 22 Aug 81 p 7

[Text] The government will emphasize balanced expansion of the infrastructure during the Fifth Five-Year Economic and Social Development (1982-1986) Plan period.

The basic policy has been designed to invigorate national physical land development, while enabling the nation to register continuous economic growth.

Forecasting a growing trade volume, the five-year plan provides that the nation will put stress on the expansion of facilities to handle and accommodate increasing trade cargo.

The government will start the construction of the Seoul-Taejon express electric railroad in 1986 in anticipation of increased cargo volume in the 1990's.

The five-year plan also indicates that the government aims to raise the nation's pavement rate to 72.1 percent by 1986 from the present 53.7 percent.

The East-West highway, linking Taegu, Kyongsang-Pukto, to Kwangju, Cholla-Namdo, will be completed by 1984, according to the five-year plan.

Kimpo international airport as well as Kimhae and Cheju airports, the play says, will be expanded gradually in order to meet ever-increasing tourists and cargo to and from these Korean airports.

The development programs, based on the principle of balanced and effective development of land, include the maintenance of big cities, the establishment of industrial complex and the development of large-unit, low-priced dwelling lots.

The government will implement the population decentralization policy by dispersing industrial facilities into local areas.

TRADE DEFICITS AGAINST U.S., JAPAN WORSEN

Korean Traders Association Report

SK280115 Seoul YONHAP in English 0105 GMT 28 Aug 81

[Text] Seoul, 28 Aug (YONHAP)--Korea's trade deficits were running deeper in recent years agains the United States, Japan and 16 other major Korean trade partners as the latter moved to strengthen their import restrictions against the country's products.

A Korean Traders Association(KTA) report released Friday said that Korea suffered a combined total deficit of 2.43 billion U.S. dollars last year in trade with those 18 countries, a considerable rise from the 136 million-dollar deficit in 1976.

The 1980 figure accounted for 77.8 percent of the country's total trade deficits for the year, a notable increase from the 12.9 percent recorded four years ago.

According to the report, Korea suffered its initial deficit in trade with the United States, its largest trade partner, in 1979. In trade with Canada, trade deficits began last year.

Despite the country's growing trade deficits, Korean exports to the 18 countries continued to increase, accounting for 21.6 percent of total exports in 1976, 24.3 percent in 1977, 25 percent in 1978, 26.7 percent in 1979 and 27.8 percent in 1980.

Urges Japan To Rectify Trade Imbalance

SK280301 Seoul YONHAP in English 0244 GMT 28 Aug 81

[Text] Seoul, 28 Aug (YONHAP)--Korea will urge Japan during the Korea-Japan ministerial conference to come up with a positive approach to rectify the chronic trade imbalance favoring Tokyo, government sources here said Friday.

At the meeting, slated for September 10-11 in Seoul, Korea will request Japan to include petrochemical products and heavy and chemical goods from Korea in its list of urgent imports.

Japan will be also asked to transfer to Korea sophisticated technical know-how involving VTR and other electronic fields, while reinforcing training in Japan of Korean technicians.

Korea will ask for Japanese cooperation in the production of machinery parts through Korea-Japan joint ventures and other avenues.

Data prepared specifically for the coming conference show that importation of machinery from Japan constitutes a major factor causing the trade imbalance, which has resulted in a trade deficit of 20.5 billion dollars since 1965, when the two nations established their formal relations.

Seoul is also expected to ask for the establishment in Korea of an office designed to expedite Japanese imports, citing a similar office in the U.S., the sources said.

'YONHAP' ANALYZES NO-SONODA MEETING

SK220351 Seoul YONHAP in English 0255 GMT 22 Aug 81

[Text] Tokyo, 22 Aug (YONHAP)--The two-day meeting of the Korean and Japanese foreign ministers, which ended here Friday, has reaffirmed the friendly and interdependent relations between the two neighboring nations, paving the way for new Seoul-Tokyo ties, which have been strained in recent years.

During their meeting, the first full-scale cabinet-level contact between the two nations in nearly three years, the two foreign ministers have narrowed the gap in their government's perception of Korea's security situation, and exchanged candid views on Korea's need for Japanese loans in financing the country's five-year development plan to be launched next year.

When the two rounds of talks held on Thursday and Friday afternoons were over, Korean Foreign Minister No Sin-yong told reporters, "Overall, this meeting has provided an opportunity to develop still closer relations between the two nations."

No and his Japanese host Sunao Sonoda have agreed to meet again as often as is necesary and hold the Seoul-Tokyo ministerial meeting in Seoul September 10 and 11 as scheduled.

The ministerial meeting, the annual event involving the foreign and economic-portfolio ministers of the two governments, was last held in Seoul in August 1978 and has not been resumed due to the domestic circumstances of Japan and Korea including the Kim Tae-chung affair.

Diplomatic observers agree that the greatest achievement for the Seoul side in the No-Sonoda talks is the change in Tokyo's official perception of the situation on the Korean peninsula.

The Korean side has won Japan's promise that it will refrain from making any moves which would heighten inter-Korea tension and jeopardize the equilibrium on the Korean peninsula.

Furthermore, Japan has pledged to consult with Seoul and Washington before undertaking any exchanges with North Korea.

Though it remains to be seen how good Japan will make on the promises, it was a significant concession for Tokyo to make such official pronouncements, because Japan has been over the years promoting private exchanges with North Korea with which it has no official ties.

Such exchanges between Japan and North Korea have been a major irritation for the Seoul government.

The pledge not to jeopardize equilibrium on the Korean peninsula is expected to forestall any future sale of Japanese-made military equipment to North Korea.

In addition, the promise to consult with Seoul and Washington before making any moves toward Pyongyang implies that Japan, South Korea and the United States are linked together by one ring.

As for Seoul's request for six billion U.S. dollars in loans to help finance its next five-year development plan, Japan responded with assurances of "all possible contribution and most sincere cooperation."

Korea's loan request, however, is expected to crop up again at the forthcoming ministerial meeting, but a final agreement might be left undecided pending an action by Korean President Chon Tu-hwan and Japanese Prime Minister Zenko Suzuki when they have a summit meeting yet to be determined.

One Korean official was optimistic, however, about Japan's assurances, and said he believed they were not equivocal promises, though a final picture depends on how much Japan finally would agree to lend to Korea.

AFRICAN OFFICIAL PRAISES KIM CHONG-IL ROLE

SK212304 Pyongyang KCNA in English 1502 GMT 21 Aug 81

[Text] Pyongyang August 21 (KCNA)--Bezandry Christophe, deputy speaker of the Peoples National Assembly of Madagascar and secretary general of the Malagasy Solidarity Committee for Supporting the Independent and Peaceful Reunification of Korea, made a report at the consultative meeting of leading members of organizations for friendship and solidarity with the Korean people in Africa held recently in Freetown, according to a report.

Referring to the development of the movement for friendship and solidarity with the Korean people in Africa, he said:

The movement of friendship and solidarity between the Korean people and African people has a long history.

The heroic anti-Japanese revolutionary struggle personally organized and led by the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song and its brilliant victory greatly encouraged the African people and elucidated their future road.

The historic victory of the Korean people in the fatherland liberation war against the U.S. imperialist invaders powerfully encouraged the national liberation struggle of the African people and gave the fighting people conviction that they could defeat any imperialist aggressors.

The Korean people has rendered constant sincere support to the struggle of the African people for national liberation and independence.

The DPRK, a genuine peoples country, was a first country to recognize newly independent African countries and extended unreserved support and encouragement to us.

The immortal chuche idea created by the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song elucidated brightly the future of newly independent countries taking the road of independence, and the DPRK, "the homeland of chuche," has become a beacon of hope for the African people.

The newly independent African countries taking the road of independence and the DPRK are all members of nonaligned movement and are firmly uniting politically and closely cooperating economically and culturally.

Over ten years have elapsed since the first friendship organization with the Korean people was formed in African continent. And now friendship and solidarity organizations are formed in most African countries.

The friendship and solidarity movement with the Korean people has powerfully developed on a world scale during this period and it became an irresistible trend of the times.

Now friendship and solidarity organizations in many African countries develop into great influential mass organizations.

The friendship and solidarity organizations in many African countries conduct their activities under the big concern and active support of the governments and government parties.

All the friendship organizations and committees for Korea's reunification in Africa are widely introducing and propagating the immortal chuche idea founded by the respected and beloved leader President Kim Il-song and the great successes and experiences gained by the Korean people under his able leadership.

Socio-political figures and people of all circles of Africa make deep study of the great President Kim Il-song's works, and take them as true textbooks for the revolution and construction and as a guide to their work and life.

These organizations proceeding from their mission conducted vigorous campaigns in support of Korea's reunification.

I think that we have made contribution through our campaign of friendship and solidarity with the Korean people to their cause of national reunification and to the cause of anti-imperialism and independence of the African peoples.

Touching upon the task to strengthen the movement for friendship and solidarity with the Korean people, he noted:

First of all, we should actively introduce and propagate the greatness of the great leader President Kim Il-song and brilliant achievements made by him and disseminate widely the immortal chuche idea.

By creating the chuche idea, a scientific theory on liberation of mankind, the great leader President Kim Il-song has made an immortal contribution to the development of the ideology of mankind and the peoples cause of independence.

Holding high the banner of anti-imperialism and independence, he is exerting all his efforts to the strengthening and development of the non-aligned movement and the victory of world revolution as a whole.

As is known, 1982 is a very auspicious year that marks the 70th birthday of the great leader President Kim Il-song, the author of the immortal chuche idea.

It is the unanimous desire of all the people who have found out a genuine way of life in the chuche idea to celebrate auspiciously the birthday of the respected and beloved President Kim Il-song.

From now on we should make full preparations to celebrate the 70th birthday of the great President Kim Il-song as the most auspicious international fete day.

Now the revolutionary cause of chuche started by the great leader President Kim Il-song is successfully taken over and developed by the dear leader Comrade Kim Chong-il.

The dear leader Comrade Kim Chong-il, who embodies the chuche idea of the great President Kim Il-song and personifies his lofty virtues and popular way of leadership, was elected to the high post of a member of the Presidium of the Political Bureau, and secretary, of the Central Committee of the Workers Party of Korea at its sixth congress in accordance with the unanimous will of the entire Korean people.

The dear Comrade Kim Chong-il is an outstanding thinker and theoretician who further develops and enriches the chuche idea with his energetic ideological and theoretical activities and a wise leader who leads the revolutionary cause of chuche to a brilliant victory with his seasoned leadership.

We should actively disseminate the greatness of the dear leader Comrade Kim Chong-il, his ideology, theory and valuable achievements.

We shall also widely propagate the successes and experiences gained by the Korean people by embodying the immortal chuche idea in all fields of revolution and construction under the sagacious leadership of the great leader President Kim Il-song and the dear leader Comrade Kim Chong-il.

It is necessary for us to let the broad African peoples know about the 10 long-term objectives of socialist economic construction the Korean people would achieve in the 1980s, he stressed.

Pointing out that a grave situation has now been created in Korea in which a war may break out at any time due to the war provocation manoeuvres of the U.S. imperialists and the Chon Tu-hwan clique, he said:

In face of such situation the peace- and justice-loving peoples of Africa and the rest of the world should conduct a more vigorous campaign in support of Korea's reunification.

He went on: First, we should give wide publicity of the proposal for founding the Democratic Confederal Republic of Koryo and the 10-point political programme of the unified state, and raise the international voices supporting them.

Second, we should make joint efforts to prepare favourable environments and conditions for the realization of the line for founding the DCRK.

We should conduct a mass movement in support of the South Korean people's struggle to smash the military fascist rule and achieve the democratization of society.

We should work hard to make the international community isolate and reject unanimously the South Korean "regime" which is ruthlessly trampling down the fundamental rights of existence and the human rights.

We should conduct a broad international campaign to ease tension in Korea and remove the danger of war there.

We have to put international pressure to bear upon the United States to stop new war provocation manoeuvres, withdraw its troops from South Korea at once and agree to replace the Korean armistice agreement with a peace agreement, for the reunification and peace in Korea.

We shall make efforts to keep the African countries from getting involved in the "two Koreas" plot of the United States and from doing anything favourable for their divisive acts.

As all know, the governments of Togo, Seychelles and Rwanda took a decisive measure of severing diplomatic relations with the South Korean puppet regime which brutally suppresses human rights with the backing of foreign forces.

It is a true expression of solidarity with the Korean people in their struggle for the reunification of the country.

We highly appreciate such righteous measures taken by them and shall do our utmost to make other countries follow this example.

We should always keep high vigilance over the crafty machinations of the South Korean rulers to harm the developing relations of friendship between the African countries and the DPRK, and should not be deceived by their trick to weaken our activities, he stressed.

PARTY CENTER ROLE PRAISED IN ACROBATIC ART

SK241550 Pyongyang KCNA in English 1532 GMT 24 Aug 81

[Text] Pyongyang August 24 (KCNA)--The actors and actresses of the Pyongyang Acrobatic Theatre produced and put on stage new acrobatic numbers of high ideological and artistic value.

The glorious party centre highly praised their successes, while directing the production of new acrobatic numbers.

Among the new acrobatic numbers produced under the wise guidance of the party centre in accordance with the chuche-based policy of the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song on the construction of national acrobatic art are "hand standing on a ball," "four square horizontal bars," "stunt on a ladder," "stunt on a running horse" and "trapeze flight in the air" and other successful works suited to the ideological sentiments of our people and requiring a highly skilled movement.

"Hand standing on a ball" shows an emotional rhythmic movement well combined with beautiful formative art. An actor stands on a hand on a ball supported by a seven metre high revolving globe.

"Four square horizontal bars" is a work showing a new and unique skill. Four actors, while doing a long swing on four horizontal bars to the accompaniment of light music, fly to other bars or into the air to land on the floor after making three turns, and two actors hanging on the same bar make swift swing while changing their hands and maintaining a definite distance from each other.

"Cycling on the rope" is a breath-taking acrobatic piece. An actress shows a highly skilled movement, maintaining a balance. With a long pole in hand she rides a cycle on a nine metre high rope, making various stunts.

An actor with a pole supporting two actresses on his brow rides a two-wheeled cycle, or rides a cycle with three actresses on his shoulders.

"Stunt on a ladder" is a piece exhibiting a highly skilled and agile rhythmic movement. An actress leans backward with her legs on the upper stair of a ladder with a dagger supporting a long knife with drinking cups laid on three stairs and a flower base at its end and maintains a balance, swinging the ladder right and left.

Also popular with spectators are the magic numbers "producing five-colour buntings and doves," "a paper hen laying eggs" and "silk cloth pours out" performed by peoples actor Kim Taek-song who won the "grand cup" and the title "Magic King of the World" at the 16th world modern magic festival held in Czechoslovakia some time ago.

In all numbers the actors and actresses show with their refined movement the revolutionary will and stamina of our people who are vigorously dashing along the road of carrying out the cause of modelling the whole society on the chuche idea and thereby help instilling a staunch fighting spirit, energy and courage in the working people.

INDEPENDENT NATIONAL INDUSTRY IMPROVING

SK211548 Pyongyang KCNA in English 1532 GMT 21 Aug 81

[Text] Pyongyang August 21 (KCNA)--Industry is racing ahead in seven-league boots in the Democratic Peoples Republic of Korea.

The industrial output in 1979 was 263.9 times that in 1946, the next year of the country's liberation.

Already in 1977, our industry turned out in a matter of five days what it had produced in the whole year of pre-liberation 1944.

A host of industrial establishments have made their appearance after the liberation. In recent three years alone, roughly 9,000 productive projects were completed to further round off the structure of industry.

Our country carried out the task of industrialisation in a short period of 14 years ending 1970, converting itself into mighty socialist industrial state long ago.

In the per capita output of major industrial goods, our country has reached the level of the developed industrial states and outstripped them in some items.

Our country owes all this to the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song who indicated the line of building an independent national economy and has wisely guided the development of industry in each stage and period of the revolution.

In developing the economy, the DPRK has firmly adhered to the stand of chuche, depending on its own abundant raw materials and fuel. Its self-supply rate of raw materials and fuel is well over 70 per cent.

The industry of Korea now forms a comprehensive system in which all the production domains, from the extraction of raw materials to the production of finished goods, are organically interlinked. It fully meets the demands for all the heavy and light industrial products needed for economic construction and peoples living. The nation's self-supply rate of machinery is 98 per cent.

Ever growing are the potentials of the chuche-based industry of Korea whose production is developing at fast pace, immune to "raw material crisis" and "power crisis."

Especially, upholding the lofty intention of the great leader, the glorious party centre created an exceptionally high speed of economic growth by fully applying the policy of speed campaign to socialist economic construction. As a result, in the 1970s, the industrial output recorded a high growth rate of 15.9 per cent on an annual average. This was much higher than that in the 1960s when industrialisation went on in full scale.

Entering the present seven-year plan (1978-1984) a constant high rate has been recorded in economic growth. Over the last three years, the gross industrial output value jumped 15-17 per cent, far higher than the 12.1 per cent, the average annual growth rate envisaged in the plan.

The independent national economy of Korea will develop at faster speed in the future.

At the end of the 1980s, the industrial output will have grown 3.1 times as against 1980 and 1,000 times as against 1946 and the industrial products of the whole year of 1946 will be turned out in 8 hours.

COUNTRY REPORTED TO BE SELF-SUFFICIENT IN FOOD

SK261520 Pyongyang KCNA in English 1501 GMT 26 Aug 81

[Text] Pyongyang August 26 (KCNA)--The Democratic Peoples Republic of Korea has long attained self-sufficiency in food and sets aside a certain amount of food grain, while supplying necessary food to the industry and stockbreeding.

Under the colonial rule of Japanese imperialism the agriculture of Korea was very backward and the northern half of the DPRK was greatly short of food.

Today, however, it has completely solved the food problem.

This is a brilliant fruition of the wise guidance of the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song who always directs deep attention to the solution of the agricultural problem.

The grain output of our country was 2,167,000 tons in 1944 at the time of the imperialist colonial rule.

The great leader opened a way for the rapid development of the rural economy.

The zeal of the peasants rose extraordinarily high and the grain output grew to 2,670,000 tons in 1948.

The rural economy was totally devastated during the three-year fatherland liberation war (1950-1953). After the war the great leader established an advanced socialist rural economy system and saw to it that the rural technical revolution whose main content is irrigation, mechanisation, electrification and chemicalisation was vigorously pushed ahead. This brought about a rapid upswing in agricultural production.

In 1958 the grain output increased nearly double the 1946 figure, boosting per capita output to 350 lilograms.

The great leader propounded the theses on the socialist rural question in 1964, thus opening a brighter way for the development of the agricultural productive forces. Under the rays of the great rural theses Koreas agriculture continuously advanced and as a result of the thorough application of the chuche methods of farming, our country created an unprecedented tempo by increasing grain output a year by more than 30 per cent in the 1970s, surmounting the severe influence of the cold front.

Thus, our country which needed 4,800,000 tons of grain to fully solve the problem of food for the people produced more than 8 million tons of grain already in 1976.

In 1977 the grain output rose to 8.5 million tons, or 4.5 times the figure of 1946 and 1.5 million tons greater than the total grain output in the whole area of North and South Korea before liberation.

The year 1979 witnessed the production of 9 million tons of grain.

In our country over 80 per cent of whose territory is covered by mountains, the density of the population is very high in comparison with the farming area.

Under such conditions our country took the direction of making agriculture highly intensive, while actively tapping land resources.

As a result, the per-hectare grain output steadily increased. In the past the per hectare output of main crops was 2-3 tons in rice, and less than one ton in maize. Today the per hectare output rose to 7.2 tons in rice and 6.3 tons in maize. Many cooperative farms in plain areas upped the per hectare output to 8-9 tons or above.

Our country has become one of the richest countries in the per capita consumption of grain.

This year's grain target is 9.5 million tons. Our country will raise the annual grain output to 15 million tons till the end of the 1980s by more thoroughly applying the chuche methods of farming, reclaiming 300,000 hectares of tide land and obtaining 200,000 hectares of farm land.

FARMING CARRIED OUT SCIENTIFICALLY IN COUNTRY

[Text] Pyongyang August 25 (KCNA)--All farmers have become full-fledged masters of scientific farming in Korea where the industrialisation of agriculture is progressing apace.

Almost all the farmers who had been illiterate before liberation, to say nothing of farmers of the new generation who have grown up after liberation, acquired general knowledge of the middle school graduate or above till 1975. Through vigorous work for raising the technical and cultural levels, all the farmers gained knowledge of the growth of crops and came to skilfully handle modern technical means.

Such success was achieved as tireless efforts were made in the countryside to raise the farmers level of knowledge of agricultural science and technique along with the work of adult education in the countryside.

Each workteam of the cooperative farm has a room for the dissemination of agricultural science and technique. There scientific and technical knowledge needed for agricultural production including pedology, biology, knowledge of fertilizer, farm machine and water control is disseminated.

Scientific and technical knowledge is disseminated also through scientific films and courses are organized every year on the chuche methods of farming.

Our farmers now tend rice beds and control watering, taking into consideration the influence of temperature and humidity on farm crops and tend crops, counting the number of clusters and plants and reckoning nutritive conditions in each stage of growth.

With the constant rising of the farmers levels of knowledge, modern technical means are operated better in the countryside.

In the countryside where the mechanisation of agriculture is nearing completion, farmers are becoming skilled workers handling tractors, rice transplanting machines, and other modern machines and technical means.

Through the vigorous "all-family-become-machine-drivers" movement the number of "tractor driver couples," "tractor driver families" and "machine operator families" is constantly increasing.

A large number of farmers are embraced in the study-while-working system of higher education.

In Korea where the policy of intellectualising the whole society has been put forward, efforts are made to raise all the farmers level of cultural knowledge to the college graduate. Farm colleges will be set up in the countryside to give education to the farmers.

MEDIUM, SMALL HYDRAULIC POWER STATIONS PROVE WORTH

SK201553 Pyongyang KCNA in English 1539 GMT 20 Aug 81

[Text] Pyongyang August 20 (KCNA)--The power output of the medium- and small-scale hydraulic power stations all over the country by a recent date entering this year was 50 per cent up on the same period last year.

This contributed to fully satisfying the demand for power in different domains of the national economy.

Under the grand plan of the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song, the 19th plemary meeting of the 5th Central Committee of the Workers Party of Korea held in December 1979 decided to build dams across rivers and extensively build hydraulic power stations, big and small. In accordance with this decision, the construction of medium- and small-scale hydraulic power stations was stepped up in all parts of the country through a mass movement.

Last year alone, three times as many power stations of this category as had been expected were built.

In the past, too, we had built power stations of medium- and small-scale along with large-scale power plants.

With the completion of many medium- and small-scale power stations last year and this year their number has sharply increased.

Complexes of medium- and small-scale power stations have been set up in provinces for unified guidance and management of these power stations.

These new power stations began full-scale production this year, proving their worth.

In the course of their construction, many more dams and reservoirs have taken shape in various areas to make better use of water and add beauty to the landscape of the country.

FACTORY COLLEGES CONTRIBUTE SOCIAL INTELLECTUALIZATION

SK221542 Pyongyang KCNA in English 1524 GMT 22 Aug 81

[Text] Pyongyang August 22 (KCNA)--The study-while-working system of higher education is greatly helping towards the acceleration of the intellectualisation of the whole society in the Democratic People's Republic of Korea.

There are now in Korea 85 factory colleges (11 of which are branch colleges) equipped with modern educational facilities and excellent educational conditions.

These factory colleges set up at large plants and enterprises in different domains of the national economy display their great advantages by combining education with production, and theory with practice, on a high level.

The factory colleges have main courses for workers and management personnel training courses for administrative and technical personnel in active service. They are divided into faculties of different domains for giving education suitable to the local characteristics of national economic branches. There are also preparatory courses giving preliminary education for higher education to working youth and demobilized soldiers who graduated from senior middle school.

The factory college students engage themselves in productive activities in daytime and acquire knowledge and technique of their special studies at the colleges in evenings.

The state guarantees all educational conditions to the factory college students and pays them the same amount of living allowances when they leave their work for writing treatises or taking state examinations.

Over the last 30 years since the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song founded the first factory college in July 1951 during the rigorous fatherland liberation war, the factory colleges reared many technicians and management personnel among the workers, thereby greatly helping toward improving the qualitative composition of the contingent of native cadres.

The factory college students are now playing the nuclear role in all domains and at the units of the national economy and they manage the modern factories and enterprises with good ability.

Hundreds of graduates of factory colleges now work as directors of chief engineers of the Kangson Steel Complex, the Ryongyang Mine and other industrial establishments, and thousands of others as management and technical personnel in different domains of the national economy.

The graduates of the factory colleges are successfully solving scientific and technical problems arising in making the national economy chuche-oriented, modern and scientifically-based. More than 11,000 valuable technical innovation proposals made by them have been applied to production to bear fine fruits in the past period. In this course, 26 associate doctors and assistant professors, 57 inventors and 47 labour heroes emerged from those graduates.

Labour hero Yi Hong-ku, workshop head of the Haeju trailing farm machine factory, who graduated from the Haeju Industrial College, has introduced 26 valuable technical innovation proposals in the recent period, making it possible to markedly increase the production of modern farm machines such as rice-transplanting machines and rice harvesters.

Pak Sang-kwon, a designer at the Nakwon machine plant, who designed a highly efficient oil-pressure excavator and a new-type oil-pressure traveling crane, is a graduate of the Nakwon Industrial College.

Under the policy of the intellectualization of the whole society indicated by the Sixth Congress of the Workers Party of Korea, many factory, farm and fishermen's colleges and higher specialized schools based on a study-while-working system will be built in greater number in cities and farm and fishing villages in the 1980s.

NATION'S COUNTRYSIDE TAKES ON LOOKS OF TOWN

SK241522 Pyongyang KCNA in English 1507 GMT 24 Aug 81

[Text] Pyongyang August 24 (KCNA)--Differences between the workers and farmers in the living standard and between town and country in the living conditions of people are being gradually diminished in Korea, with the result that the rural villages are taking on the looks of town.

Under the rays of the rural theses propounded by the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song, the idea, technique and culture of the working class are in full bloom in all parts of the countryside and the life of farmers is as affluent and civilized as that of urban dwellers.

Thanks to the wise guidance of the great leader and the glorious party centre the material and technical foundations of agriculture have been consolidated as never before and the grain output increased rapidly to further raise the living standards of the farmers.

The rural cultural construction progressed in a big way with state investment and new "rural towns" have made their appearance in many parts.

From 1964 to 1980 the state built modern houses for 957,000 families in the countryside.

Multi-storied modern houses have been built in large numbers in Yongnim-li of Mundok County, Oguk-li of Anak County and Wangjaesan village of Onsong County, where mud huts were crawling before liberation.

The bus service was opened, water laid on and li clinics turned into hospitals long ago in the countryside to markedly improve the living conditions of farmers.

People in the remote mountainous villages in Samsu, Kapsan and Nangnim who did not know what the hospital was like before liberation are given free medical treatment at the hospitals in their villages equipped with all specialized sections.

Modern houses of culture, bathrooms, barbers shops and other welfare facilities have been built in all rural villages. In the evening cooperative farmers enjoy a cultural life, playing musical instruments and seeing films.

The whole country has been covered with a telecast network and people in the out-of-the-way villages can see the clean T.V. screen like people in the capital, and publications including newspapers and magazines are distributed to all houses without exception.

A happy life is in full bloom in all the farm villages of Korea.

A foreigner who visited our country said, giving his impressions of our countryside:

In Korea there are no distinctions between town and country. Indeed, this is something wonderful and enviable. The countryside of Korea is an ideal we should strive to realize in the future.

SUPPORT ORGANIZATIONS FOR POLITICAL PARTIES EXAMINED

Seoul TONGA ILBO in Korean 29 Jul 81 p 3

[Article by Reporter Hwang Chae-hong: "Stirring Political Support Organizations"]

[Text] At its party officers meeting held on the 28th [of July 1981], the Democratic Justice party [DJP] confirmed its policy: of finishing on its own the organization of the party support organization by early August--the forming of this organization had been put off for some time; of immediately going through the registration procedures with the Central Election Management Committee; and of seeing to it that the organization will fully function. Thus the DJP, making the best of its position of being the government party, became capable of raising the political funds needed for the operation of the party, taking the lead ahead of the Democratic Korea Party [DKP], the Korean Citizen's Party [KCP], and other parties, which had failed so far to give shape to the formation of their support organizations. According to the explanations given by a [DJP] party affiliated personage, the support organization conceived by the DJP will be made up of nearly 1,000 members in compliance with the Political Funds Law and the Regulations Governing the Implementation of the Law; the support funds amounting to 2 billion won, the maximum legal ceiling, will be raised by the end of this year; and the members comprising the main force of the organization will be business enterprises with the status of corporate bodies.

Yun Sok-sun, Deputy Director of the DJP Secretariat, who is playing the role of a midwife in organizing the party's support organization, revealed on the 27th that "the DJP had been launching, since early July, an actual campaign for recruiting members of the support organization among the 2,000-odd business enterprises of four major economic organizations, including the Federation of Korean Industries and the Korean Chamber of Commerce"; and added that "the selection of the organization personnel would be wound up by the end of this month." "In particular," Deputy Director Yun went on, "giant businesses are being excluded from the selection of members in order to avoid the criticism over collusion between the government and the economic circle, while those healthy men of business enterprises who would have correct understanding of the fundamental ideology and objectives of the party are being selected as members of the support organization."

Furthermore, Yun emphasized the inevitability of organizing the support organization independently from other parties by saying: "the DJP has so far been putting off the organization of its support organization, because it wanted to keep pace with other parties on the basis of considerations over the stands of other parties. However, due to increasing financial pressure, the party is now faced with a critical situation in which it can no longer delay the organization of the support organization."

In fact, during the six months following its inauguration last January, the DJP Party spent, as indicated in its records, at least 4-odd billion won for its operational funds, exclusive of the electoral expenditures. This money was said to be raised from party membership fees, special donations, and subsidies from the national treasury.

A breakdown [of the money raised] shows: 600 million won collected from the 1.2 billion won party fund which became due during the past six months; 3 billion won from special party funds; and 200 million won from subsidies from the national treasury--thus approximately 4 billion won in total. The party's monthly expenditure is amounting to 500 to 600 million won (personnel expenditure: 170 million won; subsidies to local party organizations: 180 million won; expenditure for policy development: 30 million won; and the educational expenditure for the operation of the political research institute, public [relations] expenditures, party building maintenance, and other casual expenditures). These figures were given by a party affiliated person, who revealed that the balance of the party funds was now almost zero.

While the DJP established its firm policy of organizing its support organization, the DKP and KCP had heated debates within their parties regarding the issue of organizing their support organizations. Their arguments, centering around the issue of "cause" vs "practical necessity," have not been resolved so far and there is no progress in their efforts to organize support organizations.

The DKP, whose party consensus decided to reject the proposed "support organizations pool system," attempted to organize its independent support organization for the purpose of raising 50 to 60 million won monthly for the party. However, everyone whom this party solicited for membership in the support organization expressed reluctance to form a non-government party support organization because of the legal requirement that the membership roster of a party support organization be made public. Thus the party's attempts to organize its support organization is facing a deadlock, a person affiliated with the DKP revealed.

Under these difficulties developing in the course of soliciting support organizations, some party officers of the DKP are advocating "the practical necessity theory" which asserts that "the party must accept the support organization pool system proposal." However, party president Yu Ch'i-song and other party officers are contending that, since the party consensus decided to reject the support organization pool system, which runs counter to the cause and spirit of the law, the party cannot repeat the discussion of this matter again and again. They are holding fast to "the cause theory," which advocates "a cut in party expenses to meet the shortage of party funds." Thus the DKP has failed to coordinate opinions even within the party.

In the case of the KCP, meanwhile, it badly needs a support organization in order to raise its nearly 15 million won monthly expenditure. However, it virtually abandoned the idea of organizing its own support organization; and it is now seeking to establish a trust fund system.

Meanwhile, in the case of the New Political Party [NPP], which has only two national assemblymen among its members, it already organized its support organization at the end of last June; and the support organization, although its scale is small, had 44 small-and-medium businessmen as its members throughout the country as of the 29th of July. And it is planning to register the organization with the Central Election Management Committee early August.

In regard to these developments, the DJP is wondering "if the DKP and the KCP, which have many prominent businessmen among its members, have indeed made efforts to organize their support organizations": and it charged that those parties would have been able to organize their support organizations, if they really tried to."

To this charge, president Yu of the Minhan Party complained: "What can you do, if you are asked to do what you cannot do? It is just like to ask someone to bear a child not yet conceived." Vice President Yi Man-sop of the KCP grumbled: "Doesn't even a child of three feet high know that nobody likes to be a member of the support organizations of a non-government party?" and, "it is a rather hasty action on the part of the DJP, the government party, that it organized its own support organization independently from other parties.

However, some quarters of the political circles observe that if the DJP organizes its support organization, other parties, including the DKP and KCP, would have to organize their counterparts.

But the issues are that, even if opposition parties organize their support organizations, how much fund they can really raise from them; and that how long the opposition parties' support organizations can survive. Thus many people in opposition party circles wonder in unison about the necessity of organizing support organizations.

Furthermore, it is also pointed out that, even if the DJP organizes its support organization and raises two billion won support funds a year, it would still be difficult for it to raise enough money to pay for its 6 to 7 billion won political funds a year; therefore it would eventually have to resort to other means of raising political funds, including subsidies from the national treasury or the trust fund system.

A DJP affiliated person said: "The idea of support organization pool system has not yet been abandoned entirely. If other parties want it, we will consider it at any time." This remark being loaded with some suggestiveness, another DJP affiliated person ventured: "As for the issue of the support organization, subsidies from the national treasury are indispensable on account of opposition parties, but any idea of trust fund system is out of the question."

GOVERNMENT PLAN FOR ENERGY, RESOURCES DISCUSSED

Seoul SOKYU HYOPHOE PO in Korean Apr 81 pp 29-32

[Article: "The Energy and Resources Sector Plan (Draft) of the Fifth Five-Year Economic and Social Development Plan"]

[Text] The government, having prepared the (draft) Energy and Resources Sector Plan of the Fifth Five-Year Economic and Social Development Plan (see p 2), which consists of increasing the refining capacity of domestic oil refineries from 1981's 790,000 barrels per day to 1 million barrels per day in 1986 and building oil company storage facilities for 60 days by 1982, held a policy meeting on 9 April at KID.

The plan forecasts an average yearly growth of 7.7 percent in total energy consumption through the period (1982-1986) for a total increase of about 140 percent from the calculated 41 million tons in 1981 to 59 million tons in 1986.

Looking at the energy supply and demand structure, the supply and demand plan sees that, due to the shortage of domestic energy resources, the degree of reliance on foreign countries will be more severe, from 1981's 71.5 percent to 78.9 percent in 1986. With the active promotion of the freedom from oil policy, the degree of reliance on oil is planned to decrease from 62.1 percent to 48.4 percent.

In particular, for alternative energy, bituminous coal will increase an annual average of 47.5 percent, greatly raising its proportion of total energy from 2.2 to 10.4 percent, while gas (LPG, LNG) will increase an annual average of 38.5 percent, raising its proportion from 1.4 percent to 4.9 percent.

Also, with the completion and operation, through the pushing on of nuclear power plant construction, of a total of six plants with an electric power generating capacity of 4,776,000 kw, the proportion of nuclear power will expand from 1.9 percent of 11.1 percent of total energy.

On one hand, the demand for 50 some general ores such as iron and copper is projected to expand a yearly average of 12.1 percent during the period with expenditures increase from approximately one trillion won in 1979 monetary calculations to twice that at two trillion in 1986.

However, domestic production will only increase an average annual five percent so that the degree of dependence on imports is expected to increase from 1981's 65.7 percent to 75.3 percent in 1986.

During the plan period, the total investment in the Energy and Resources Sector is estimated in 1980 prices at fourteen trillion won.

Of this, the electric power sector, including the construction of generating plans and the expansion of facilities to transmit and distribute electricity, will account for 7.8 trillion won or approximately 54.6 percent; the petroleum sector, including the expansion of refining facilities and the construction of emergency storage facilities and oil pipelines, 18 percent; the coal sector, 8 percent; and investment for energy conservation and the development of foreign resources, 6.1 percent and 3.5 percent each.

During the plan period, the Power Resources Ministry plans for its major policy tasks to: (1) actively develop domestic resources; (2) safely secure import resources; (3) greatly reduce the degree of dependence on petroleum; while (4) actively developing energy conservation and the rationalization of energy usage.

In order to increase coal production from the 1981 level of 1.9 billion tons to 2.15 billion tons in 1986, it is planned to actively develop research and exploration activities while emphasizing the procurement of technical manpower, the improvement of management, and the conversion to large unit mining lots and expanding the production base by raising coal mining mechanization from 8 percent to 35 percent in order to promote the modernization of coal mining enterprises.

Also, in order to strengthen the improvement of the mining workers' environment and safety measures, it is planned to increase the percentage of provided housing to 100 percent, expand health and sanitary facilities, prepare measures against the closure of mines and comprehensively establish disaster measures.

In order to raise the degree of self-sufficiency in such major strategic minerals as iron and copper ore, it is planned to strengthen exploration activities along with both wide range ore deposit and precision searches while increasing processing of such promising minerals as tungsten and kaoline.

Also, in order to realize our dream as an oil producing country, a total of 11 test holes will be finished following the two of 1980 in area seven, a Korea-Japan joint development area while in area four the government will research a method of developing it alone, expecting to attract joint development with a foreign country before long.

In order to establish a secure supply system for petroleum, it is planned to diversify the lines of import so as to moderate the degree of dependence on any one area or state while encouraging oil companies to procure their own crude oil and vigorously encouraging joint investment with oil-producing countries. Also, it is planned to strengthen the system of economic cooperation between oil-producing countries and our government and private groups to further strengthen through mutual exchange of visits and such diplomacy a secure system of supply for the needed crude oil.

Furthermore, in order to ensure the smooth supply of domestic oil products, it is planned to increase refinery capacity from the current daily 790,000 barrels to 1,000,000 barrels by 1986 while making it possible for government emergency supply storage facilities to hold 60 days supply by 1986 as well as pushing on so that oil company storage facilities also will be able to store 60 days supply by 1982.

Note: Parentheses indicate increase in storage facilities for each year aside from the facility expansion occurring as a result of increased refining capacity.

In order to modernize the oil distribution system, it is planned to build a 466 km pipeline between Yosu and Seoul first, and a 276 km pipeline between Ulsan and Taejon second, while establishing terminals in five such locations as Seoul and Kwangju.

In order to alleviate the pollution problems resulting from the increased consumption of petroleum, the supply of low sulphur oil will be increased by 67 percent for bunker C oil and 100 percent for light oil while a plan for introducing cracking facilities in order to promote the conversion of heavy oil to light oil will be studied and pursued.

Low Sulphur Oil Supply Plan (Unit: 1,000 B/D)

B-C Oil	43	43	81	84	157

Percentage of Supply	32	33	50	80	100

Since the current petroleum generation proportion of the total electricity generation facilities of 9,836,000 kw is 74.2 percent, in order to reduce this to 35.0 percent of a 1986 17,591,000 kw capacity, and convert to an oil free system of generating electricity, it is planned to suppress any further construction of petroleum thermal power plants in addition to the 10,000 kw North Cheju Plant Number One now under construction while promoting the construction of nuclear power plants to increase nuclear power's proportion to 27 percent of the 1986 capacity of 17,591,000 kw and increasing the proportion of coal power plants from 7.6 percent to 16.9 percent, hydroelectricity from 12.2 percent to 13.1 percent and finishing and operating the first gas power plants to achieve 8 percent.

Plans will be studied to increase power generation efficiency from 35 percent to 38 percent and lower power distribution loss from 7.5 percent to under 7 percent through the rationalization of the management of electric power work, as well as to raise the high voltage transmission lines from the current 154 kv and 345 kv to 800 kv facilities.

Since we now rely on a simple purchasing method for most of our major resources and the tendency toward resource nationalism is expected to grow stronger, it is planned to promote the development import of foreign resources in order to secure safe, long range supplies.

In order to expand the institutional base for development import, it is planned to promote priority in domestic use of development import resources, strengthen the cooperative system between the developer and the actual domestic user, and promote joint development investment with foreign capital so as to increase our self-dependent supply proportion, i.e., the proportion of domestic production and development imports, of main strategic minerals.

Of the main minerals, it is planned to raise the percentage of self-dependent supply to 15 percent for bituminous coal and 88.6 percent for anthracite while raising iron and copper ores for 4.1 and 10.3 percent each.

Since the demand for gas is anticipated to increase with freedom from petroleum, pollution prevent-on and the rise in income levels, it is planned to establish an early base for the introduction of LPG and LNG while in order to convert the current major city fuel from coal to gas the supply of gas in the cities is planned to expand for 1981's 140,000 households to 800,000 in 1986; to achieve this, it is planned to expand the major city gas plant facilities from 1981's 250,000 m^3 to 1,000,000 m^3 in 1986 while building storage facilities which will increase the LPG storage capacity from 23,000 tons to 155,000 tons in 1986 and building a 220,000 m^3 storage capacity to allow for storing 1 million tons of LPG at receiving bases in 1982. Also, it is planned to build new receiving bases of a 3 million scale for LNG by 1987.

Although the development and utilization technology of such new energy as solar, wind and biomass is still at a low level, a comprehensive development system will be set up and strengthened and the development and utilization of new energy will be gradually expanded through the development of joint research with advanced institutes and the bold introduction of new technology.

In particular, in the utilization of solar heat, solar collector facilities are to be actively distributed to increase them from 1981's 200 locations to 120,000 locations in 1986; initial distribution will be for passive solar homes and continuous aid will be given so that the private sector can promote the free promotion of active solar homes.

For other energy such as solar power generation, wind power and agricultural and fishery product drying facilities, small scale hydropower, biomass, wave power or thermal power, continuous research and development will be carried out centered on the current test operation facilities while soon completing related basic investigations.

The goal of reducing energy demand by 5 percent by 1986 has been set; in order to achieve this, low energy industrial structure reorganization measures will be established and pursued. In particular, it is planned to promote the control of an energy utilization plan and the collecting of industrial areas into complexes while actively developing shoreline industrial areas and encouraging the location there of new plants, and pursuing the rational reorganization of the transportation division system to achieve an effective transportation system between the railroads, maritime transport, and the public highways.

Also, in order to promote the freedom from oil of industrial fuels, the coal substitution work of seven cement companies such as Ssangyong and Tongyang will be completed in 1983 and plans to expand coal utilization centered on shoreline industrial areas will be established and pursued while the LPG gas substitution work for Naptha as an industrial resource for such fields as methanol or fertilizer will be pursued.

In order to enhance the energy utilization efficiency of industrial entities, it is planned to promote the replacement of old and inefficient facilities for boilers and stoves while carrying out energy management diagnoses for 300 businesses each year and building an additional 63 thermal complex electric generation modes.

In order to achieve energy conservation in the housing and construction sector, heat resistant structuralization will be promoted to enhance the level of heat resistance in new structures and to expand the heat resistance of existing buildings and establish and enforce standard air conditioning and building standards while studying and pursuing plans to revamp the existing per p'yong standard for the attachment of automatic control devices and heating modules to an actual energy usage standard in order to promote the maintenance of proper room temperatures for buildings.

Also, for large city areas of dense population, a plan to introduce area heating systems will be studied and pursued while strengthening energy management diagnoses for large buildings and apartments.

In order to carry out this energy conservation and utilization reationalization work pan-nationally, educational and publicity work will be strengthened while the current energy utilization rationalization fund will be increased from 8 billion won to the scale of 500 billion and for other policy funds, a plan will be pursued for the early introduction of about 400 million won in long term low interest loans from the World Bank or the Asia Development Bank as well as in aid.

GIANT INDUSTRIES' ENTRY INTO SHIPPING BUSINESS REPORTED

Seoul MAEIL KYONGJAE SINMUN in Korean 17 Jul 81 p 5

[Text] As it is becoming increasingly important to secure one's own means of transportation for safe shipment of export-import cargoes, Taeu, Ku'mmun, Life Housing and other giant concerns are rushing to be the new participants in the maritime transportation business. According to the relevant business world's report on the 17th, the Taeu Group finally realized its entry into the overseas shipping business which it has been pushing since last year, by inaugurating its own shipping subsidiary, Haeu Shipping, this year.

Also remarkable is the moving into the shipping business of up-and-coming giants such as Ku'mmun which gained a foothold by acquiring an existing shipping business, thus attracting the attention of the business world.

Under a plan to build up its former shipping agency, Haeu Shipping, as an overseas shipping line, Taeu has already purchased a small, 3,000-ton-class ship and contracted for two medium, 15,000-ton-class ships. When the delivery of the ships is complete in September, it will have acquired an overseas shipping license, to begin full-scale operations.

While sending the small vessel, which had previously been secured, to Libya, where Taeu Construction is engaged, to transport construction materials from Europe and the Mediterranean, it is planned that the two medium-size vessels will be assigned to transporting import/export cargoes for the Taeu Group or for use in the nonscheduled world steamer market.

In the meantime, Taeu is known to have decided on the project of expanding the size of its future fleet using the entry of Haeu Shipping into the shipping field as a momentum and to be aiming at the parallel development of shipping operations and ship building.

On the other hand, Ku'mmun, an up-and-coming giant, having acquired 60 percent of the stock in the small shipping company known as An-jin Shipping, has laid the groundwork for moving into the shipping business.

An-jin Shipping, with capital of 500 million Won and a total tonnage of 10,200, plies the routes between Japan and Korea or Southeast Asia, and Ku'mmun has future plans to strengthen the scale of the fleet and use its own ships to transport the cement and other things which it exports to Southeast Asia.

Companies such as Life Housing and Hansin Management, both housing construction firms, are also in the midst of setting forth detailed plans to move into the shipping business for the timely shipment of construction materials to their overseas construction sites.

Life Housing, having formed a responsible team already, has specific plans to discuss, such as acquiring existing business or setting up new ones, and will probably start out in the shipping business before year's end, if all goes well.

Likewise Hansin Management plans to move into shipping, and is in the process of examining business plans.

Giant industries' move into shipping appears to be motivated by their desire to insure secure means of shipment by providing their own ships, as well as by the profitability of capital turnover due to the convenience of B/L issue.

In order to secure a permit to set up a new overseas shipping company, capital of 500 million Won and the total tonnage of 20,000 in ship-holding are required.

The following chart shows existing giant enterpries which have moved into shipping:

Business	Shipping Business	Ship-holding in total tonnage
Kukche Group	Kukche Shipping	12,213
Tonga Group	Taehan Forwarding & Shipping	21,613

REMOLDING MEMBERS OF SOCIETY INTO TRUE COMMUNISTS STRESSED

Pyongyang NODONG SINMUN in Korean 22 Jun 81 p 2

[Editorial Article: "Tested Leadership Guiding the Work of Nurturing Communist Revolutionaries Along the One Road of Victory"]

[Text] It is a very difficult and complex task arising in socialist, communist construction to revolutionarily indoctrinate and remold all members of society into genuine communists. But this sacred task is being most brilliantly realized in our country.

At present all of our party members and working people, with a high political awareness and fervor, are fighting devoting their all for the sake of the victory of the revolutionary cause, for the sake of the fatherland and the people, and are revolutionarily living as befits a people of the era of struggle.

It constitutes the greatest achievement our party has made on the road of victoriously advancing and attaining the chuche cause that it has brought about such a basic turnaround in people's ideo-mental features and fighting spirits.

Our party has set forth the revolutionary guidelines for comprehensively uplifting the task of bringing up communistic social beings based on the victories and achievements already scored, and is energetically leading this work at present. Thus the entire party and the whole society are pulsating with revolutionary vigor and a ceaseless upsurge is being generated in all areas of socialist construction.

Ours is a great revolutionary party hastening the communist future in the realm of human remolding under the slogan for conversion of the whole society to the chuche ideology.

The respected and beloved leader Comrade Kim Il-song taught as follows:

"Our party, the revolutionary vanguard of the Korean working class and working people, has laid down the militant program for dyeing the whole society in one color with our party's revolutionary thought, the chuche ideology, and is now struggling for its realization." ("Kim Il-song Selected Works," Vol 7, p 80)

The future communist society is a society where communized social beings will be living. An important stamp of the communist society lies in the fact that all members of society will possess the features of accomplished communist social beings, be it in politico-ideological terms or in moral terms. Therefore, the party of the working class, giving prominence to human remolding work as the most important historic task, comes to struggle for its solution throughout socialist, communist construction. The greatness and leadership capability of the party of the working class will come to be intensively manifested in how it will be solving the question of bringing up people as determined communist revolutionary fighters.

Our party, by setting forth the revolutionary slogan for conversion of the whole society to the chuche ideology, has unfolded a bright blueprint which will make it possible to advance on a high level and brilliantly attain the cause for remolding social beings the communist way.

The 1970's was a great decade in which miraculous victories and achievements were scored in the development of our party and revolution. In particular, the presentation of the slogan for the revolutionarization of the entire society with the chuche ideology by our party and its brilliant realization during this period was a historic event marking a great advancement in the course of remolding human beings into communist ways.

The slogan for conversion of the whole society to the chuche ideology represents the goal on a very high level of remolding social beings the communist way. Comprehensively enunciated in this slogan are the basic character and its demands of chuche-oriented communist revolutionaries and the ways of turning the entire people into such revolutionaries.

What is called the chuche-oriented communist revolutionaries is revolutionary fighters who hold the great guiding thought of our time, the chuche ideology, as their firm world view and faithfulness to the leader as their first and foremost life. History knows of no such party as ours that has set the goal to dye the whole society one color with one thought and turn all members of society without exception into genuine communists possessing ideo-mental features on such a lofty plane. With the guidelines containing such a high goal for the first time in history set forth by our party for remolding social beings the communist way, a new road has come to be illuminated to bringing up the entire people as revolutionaries possessing the loftiest features and qualifications not only for today but also for the future communist society. This has made it possible for our people, with optimism and faith in the future, to more energetically hasten along the march route to socialism and communism.

Today our party, holding aloft the slogan for conversion of the whole society to the chuche ideology, is ceaselessly deepening and developing and energetically leading the task to bring up the entire party members and working people as chuche-oriented revolutionaries.

Our party, above all with a tight grip on the task of remolding people's ideological consciousness as the basics of bringing up communist social beings, is aggressively pushing ahead with it.

The value and dignity of man are determined not by money or material things but by his thought. The role played by people's ideological consciousness grows incomparably big in the socialist society, and as the revolution deepens and socialist-communist construction progresses, it comes to grow even bigger. Therefore, in order to bring up people as genuine revolutionaries and attain the communist cause, it is imperative above all to energetically step up the task aimed at remolding people's ideological consciousness.

Our party, by founding the thought, based on the basic principle of the chuche philosophy elucidated by the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song, that the basics of the revolutionary struggle and construction tasks are people's thought and that everything is resolved by people's thought, is brilliantly embodying it. The thought set forth by our party is a powerful theoretical and practical weapon which makes it possible to most precisely carry out without the slightest tilting the task of bringing up communist revolutionaries and socialist construction.

Our party, starting from the idea that people's ideological consciousness plays the decisive role in socialist, communist construction, is always putting a firm priority to the work of indoctrinating and remolding party members and working people over all other tasks and concentrates great efforts on it. Thus in our country the task of enhancing people's ideological preparedness and revolutionary fervor is becoming the first and foremost process in organizing and launching all tasks such as the economic task, and the entire people are being revolutionized and working-classized by the method of indoctrinating one who in turns indoctrinates ten who in turn indoctrinate a hundred who in turn indoctrinate a thousand and so on.

The human remolding task is a profound ideological remolding task to liberate people once and for all from the constraints of all kinds of outmoded ideas such as individualism and egoism and to arm them with the revolutionary thought of the working class, the communist ideology. Outmoded ideas are persistent, not to be uprooted handily. Therefore, ideological remolding constitutes a task difficult and complex beyond comparison with remaking nature or society. From this, it has been considered as a matter of common sense that human remolding is a task whose success can be expected only if launched over a long period of time.

Our party, starting from the firm revolutionary stand to hasten the communist future and breaking all kinds of established custom and common belief, is pushing ahead with the task at a very fast pace to indoctrinate and remold people.

The ideological battle set forth by our party is a powerful method which makes the task of remolding people's thought accelerate extraordinarily fast, embodying the principle of speed battle in ideological work. This method, by organically combining ideological indoctrination and ideological struggle and making the ideological remolding task pushed lightning-quick, is becoming an energetic means of bringing about a great advance in the ideological viewpoint and mode of thinking, work attitude and work habit of the functionaries and working people.

With an orderly system for work with people established partywide and ideological remolding work deepened to suit the demands of conversion of the whole society to the chuche ideology by such precise guidelines and leadership of our party, the ideo-mental features and work trait of our party members and working people are changing day by day beyond recognition.

In order to bring up the entire people as chuche-oriented communist revolutionaries, our party is also most thoroughly carrying out the human remolding rask, ceaselessly improving the content and method of ideological indoctrination to suit the demands of the developing realities.

As revolution and construction advance, the work of remolding people's thought must be more thoroughly carried out, and to this end, it is imperative to ceaselessly perfect the content, form, and method of ideological indoctrination to suit the consciousness level of working people and demands of the developing revolution. This constitutes an important historic duty arising before the party of the working class responsible for the fate of the revolutionary cause and the future of the people.

In the socialist society there are no socioeconomic, material conditions for the resurrection of outmoded ideas, and the prevailing thought among working people is the revolutionary thought of the working class, the communist ideology. But should the task of uprooting the outmoded ideas still remaining in people's heads be neglected, people's vigilance against hostile elements can be paralyzed and the negative influence of capitalist thought intensified. In the human remolding task, formalism absolutely cannot be tolerated. Experience shows that when the ideological revolution, the ideological indoctrination task, is not conducted substantively and thoroughly, it can resurrect outmoded ideas, make it impossible to thoroughly defend gains of the revolution won with blood, such as the socialist system, and bring grave aftereffects to socialist-communist construction.

It is the invariable principle our party tightly maintains to thoroughly conduct the ideological indoctrination task, making still greater demands of people's ideological life as the revolution deepens and develops, and remold and bring up everyone without exception as a first-rate, resolute revolutionary. Thus in our country are always clearly set forth the principled questions in making it possible to brilliantly realize the task of remolding social beings the communist way, as well as the content, form, and method of ideological indoctrination, and they are being embodied without deflection.

Our party, setting it forth as the most important duty of party ideological work to bring up people as fervent chuche-oriented communist revolutionaries, is leading the way to launch in breadth, in depth, the ideological indoctrination task such as revolutionary indoctrination, class indoctrination, communist indoctrination while putting primary emphasis on indoctrination in faithfulness to the party and the leader, indoctrination in the unitary ideology. And our party is correctly leading the way to make all party members and working people properly hold an organizational sense, revolutionarily temper themselves through a strong organizational life, and hasten their revolutionization through the practical struggle of carrying out revolutionary tasks in a manner befitting the master. All these measures are becoming a powerful way of thoroughly preparing them politico-ideologically and making them discharge even better their heavy duties before the party and the revolution.

It is the precious fruition of the energetic struggle of our party which is thoroughly conducting ideological indoctrination work that today all of our party members and working people, deeply engraving faithfulness in their hearts as their revolutionary creed, as their revolutionary integrity, are growing up reliably as genuine communist revolutionaries who firmly believe and follow none but the party and the leader, unswerving whatever the environment, and that the unitary ideology system of the party has come to be firmly established partywide and societywide.

Another important thing in the leadership of our party which is energetically stepping up the task of bringing up social beings the communist way is that, giving prominence to the genuine chuche-oriented revolutionaries as living examples, it is leading the way to energetically launch the task of learning from them on a partywide, societywide basis.

The task of indoctrinating and remolding working people the communist way can be successfully realized only when the masses themselves accept it as a vital demand. It is a powerful human remolding method to give prominence to an admirable model striking deep chords among people and make them positively learn from it.

If a positive example is to positively serve in bringing up people as communist revolutionaries, it must have a great influencing power and traction force and dramatically tug at the heartstrings of the masses.

Korea's young communists who had firmly believed and followed none but the respected and beloved leader Comrade Kim Il-song in the dawning period of our revolution, and the unsung heroes who have loyally upheld the intent of the party and the leader, whatever the environment, are the shining mirror of chuche-oriented communist revolutionaries. It is our party's strategic plan for bringing up social beings the communist way to make the entire people live and fight on like them by making the people learn from their lofty ideo-mental features possessing boundless faithfulness to the party and the leader and their sacrificial service spirit for the sake of the fatherland and the people. Contained herein are the firm intent and stern will of our party to complete the Korean revolution to the end, whatever the environment, along the one road of chuche charted by the respected and beloved leader Comrade Kim Il-song.

The task to emulate the examples of Korea's genuine young communists and the movement to learn from the examples of unsung heroes are becoming ever more organized and deepened day after day because our party, by giving prominence to genuine revolutionaries as living examples for human remolding and making party organizations, with a direct grip on the task of learning from them, firmly turn it around as a party committee-wide task.

With the model of typical communists discovered and positively generalized by our party, the entire party members and working people have come to understand by a vivid presentation what kind of ideomental features the future communist social beings must possess, and are fighting on, devoting their all, in order to be forever loyal to the party and the leader like them.

Today the mental world of our people has reached a truly lofty plane, and the politico-ideological unity of the entire party and the whole society is being consolidated airtight that no force can break. It constitutes a great victory scored on the road of converting the whole society to the chuche ideology that a large unit of chuche-oriented communist revolutionaries who fight devoting their all solely for the sake of the party and the leader, the fatherland and the people, with a political creed unwavering whatever the environment, has come to be organized. This victory eloquently proves the precious truth that only under the leadership of a great party is it possible to brilliantly carry out this difficult historic task to turn the entire people into fervant communist revolutionaries, indoctrinating and remolding them.

It has immense significance in the attainment of our revolutionary cause that under the leadership of our party an unprecedented achievement has been scored in the task of remolding social beings the communist way through the historic march toward conversion of the whole society to the chuche ideology.

With the great achievement scored in the task of remolding social beings the communist way, above all our people's politico-ideological preparedness has been enhanced extraordinarily and the chuche revolutionary strength capable of brilliantly attaining the revolutionary cause has come to be thoroughly organized.

The respected and beloved leader Comrade Kim Il-song taught as follows:

"There is no such great party, no such great people in this world as in our country where all people, thoroughly armed with the unitary ideology of the party, are solidly united around the party and move in unison at the command of the party." ("Kim Il-song Selected Works," Vol 7, p 459)

If the party of the working class is to attain the leader's cause to the end, it must nurture the politico-ideological strength of the revolutionary ranks and firmly insure the purity and unity. This is the most crucial question bearing on the victorious advance of the communist movement and the destiny of the revolution.

To say to organize the political strength for scoring the victory of the revolutionary cause means to thoroughly unite the entire people around the party and the leader, turning them into fervent revolutionaries who resolutely protect and defend the party and the leader, whatever the storm and trial, and jump into fire and water in the struggle to carry through the plan and intent of the party. In the struggle to convert the whole society to the chuche ideology our revolutionary forces have come to be thoroughly organized into precisely such ranks of loyalty.

With the entire people coming to engrave faithfulness to the party and the leader in their hearts as an indeflectible creed through the task of remolding social beings the communist way, their firm unity and solidarity around the Party Central Committee headed by the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song has been consolidated even more airtight, and the trait of thinking and acting in accordance with the intent of the party is firmly prevailing partywide and society wide. The entire people of the whole country from the oldtime revolutionary fighters who have walked the long road of revolution to longstanding party members and the younger generation, are adding infinite luster to their precious political life amid the leadership and warm oversight of our party, solidly united in one political force.

Our people, firmly believing our glorious party as the great bosom of revolution to which they could completely entrust their own destiny and that of their children and children's children, are at present filled with an immutable creed to resolutely move forward forever along the one road of revolution the party teaches, breaking through whatever storms and trials. It is a precious achievement scored through the task of bringing up social beings the communist way, an achievement that could not be traded for anything, that with the chuche revolutionary strength thoroughly organized on the basis of the unitary ideology of the party, the organizational and ideological cornerstones of our party capable of attaining the chuche cause to the end have been consolidated like bedrock.

With the prideful victory scored in the task of remolding social beings the communist way under the leadership of our party, astounding innovations and miracles have also happened in all areas of socialist construction and a revolutionary ethos is dynamically prevailing societywide.

The struggle to attain the revolutionary cause of the working class absolutely cannot be conducted in a smooth environment alone. We are conducting socialist construction, resolving everything with our own strength especially in the tense situation that the machinations of the U.S. imperialists and their lackeys to perpetrate aggression and provoke war are becoming increasingly blatant. Such realities call upon the entire people to revolutionarily live and work always in a high communist revolutionary spirit with resolute vigor.

Our party has more aggressively launched politico-ideological indoctrination work among party members and working people as the situation became more difficult and more heavy and enormous tasks arose, and mounted boldly in a big way organizational political work aimed at setting the masses in motion. This became a firm guarantee which has enabled the entire people to dynamically race forward in the spirit of speed battle and bring about a ceaseless upsurge in socialist economic and cultural construction.

With our party leading the task of remolding social beings the communist way to victory with tireless energy, youthful vigor is pulsating at present throughout the country, and each and every one of the people is working with revolutionary optimism and enthusiasm, the entire party and the whole society brimming with the militant spirit fond of struggling, fond of fighting revolution.

Our people, through the basic transformation that has taken place in people's ideo-mental life and features and in the face of the fatherland, are experiencing with all their hearts the tested leadership of our party, and are firmly convinced that when they go forward following the party, they can victoriously hasten the communist future.

Through the struggle to convert the whole society to the chuche ideology under the leadership of our party a truly great victory and achievement have been scored in the task of remolding social beings the communist way. This energetically demonstrates the greatness of our party as a party forever loyal to the leader's cause.

The Korean Workers Party is a great revolutionary party which struggles, holding it as its greatest mission to brilliantly embody the revolutionary thought and leadership of the respected and beloved leader Comrade Kim Il-song. All the ideo-theoretical activities and revolutionary practice of our party are permeated with the effort to protect and defend the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song's revolutionary thought and achievements and further glorify them.

All the guidelines set forth by our party for remolding social beings the communist way are the chuche-oriented human remolding thought brilliantly carried forward, developed and enriched, the thoughts such as the revolutionization, working-classization of the whole society elucidated by the respected and beloved leader Comrade Kim Il-song.

The great leader Comrade Kim Il-song, early on founding a unique human remolding theory based on the chuche ideology, has brilliantly embodied it, and especially after the establishment of the socialist system setting forth the sagacious guidelines for revolutionizing, working-classizing the whole society, has victoriously led this awesome task. In the process, rich experiences have been gained in indoctrinating and remolding people the communist way.

Today with our party energetically stepping up the conversion of the whole society to the chuche ideology, the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song's human remolding thought and theory and immortal achievements have been resolutely defended and are radiating radiant rays, and the leader's far-sighted plan for bringing up social beings who will be living in the future communist society is being brilliantly realized. To our people it is an unsurpassed pride, great glory that they are dynamically moving forward toward the ultimate victory of the chuche cause, following the tested leadership of this great party.

Deeply engraving this pride in our hearts, we must go forward to forever loyally uphold our party which has bestowed on us the infinite glory and rewarding living as revolutionaries and share destiny with the party, whatever the environment. This is the lofty duty and glory of all of our party members and working people who are glorifying their precious title as chuche-oriented communist revolutionaries, enjoying political life in the bosom of the party.

The great achievements of our party leading the cause for remolding social beings the communist way to brilliant victory with the ever-victorious revolutionary banner, the banner of the chuche ideology held high, will be radiating ever more radiant rays together with the advance of the times and the revolution.

DPRK DAILY SCORES CHON'S FOREIGN POLICY

SK081535 Pyongyang KCNA in English 1459 GMT 8 Sep 81

[Text] Pyongyang, 8 Sep (KCNA)--NODONG SINMUN September 7 printed an article titled "Vicious Enemy of Reunification," branding the traitor Chon Tu-hwan not only as a fascist hangman without an equal but also as a butcher of the nation and a heinous splittist lunatic.

The paper says:

National reunification is the question of putting an end to the foreign domination and interference and completely realising the sovereignty of the Korean nation. Accordingly, anyone who is interested in the reunification should oppose the U.S. troops occupation of South Korea.

But the traitor Chon Tu-hwan is acting quite the contrary. He raved that the U.S. troops are not outside forces, but an "important existence" and their duty is "very heavy," looking up to them as if they were his "eternal guardian."

Early this year he went to the United States and begged for the U.S. troops permanent occupation of South Korea and, when his entreaty was accepted, he kowtowed to his masters, hat in hand, asking them to exercise their influence on South Korea.

As national reunification is the question of eliminating mistrust and confrontation between the North and the South and achieving national unity, its solution requires not anti-communism but alliance with communism and an end to the suppression of the patriotic movement in South Korea for democracy and the reunification.

The traitor Chon Tu-hwan, however, wantonly trampled and is trampling underfoot this elementary demand.

The fascist clique indiscriminately arrests, imprisons and penalises anyone, be it a democratic figure, man of the press, intellectual, religionist or student if he calls for democracy and desires reunification.

While spreading a lie about "threat of southward invasion," the Chon Tu-hwan clique cooked up bogus incidents one after another to "prove" them. It repeatedly held such "government"-sponsored functions as "meeting for security," "anti-communist exhibition" fostering mistrust in and confrontation with us among the people and is staging war exercises without letup to incite North-South confrontation in an undisguised way.

The nature of the traitor Chon Tu-hwan as an insane splittist was brought into bolder relief by the fact that he is persisting with increasing eagerness in the "two Koreas" plot, doggedly rejecting our reunification proposal supported by the whole nation and the world.

The splittist manoeuvres of the traitor Chon Tu-hwan became all the more unscrupulous after we advanced the new epochal proposal to reunify the country by means of founding the Democratic Confederal Republic of Koryo.

In an attempt to block the influence of our fair proposal for reunification upon the South Korean people and the world people and gain "support" to his splittist line, the traitor Chon Tu-hwan instructed on launching a fierce "diplomatic war" and, at the same time, sent such underlings as "minister of the unification board" to foreign countries to beg for active support to the "two Koreas" policy. Some time ago, the traitor himself made a foreign junket, peddling the splittist "stage theory," "simultaneous entry into the United Nations" and "cross recognition."

These days the puppet traitor brought forward such ridiculous stuff as "mutual visits" in an attempt to mislead public opinion. However, it is a mere propaganda aimed to veil his splittist nature.

Facts give a clear-cut conclusion that the traitor Chon Tu-hwan is a fanatic splittist who is not interested at all in the reunification of the nation.

All his speeches for reunification are a lie.

For reunification the traitor Chon Tu-hwan must be got rid of.

CHONDOIST URGES HOLDING CONFERENCE FOR REUNIFICATION

SK081610 Pyongyang KCNA in English 1544 GMT 8 Sep 81

[Text] Pyongyang, 8 Sep (KCNA)--Chong Sin-hyok, chairman of the Central Committee of the Chondoist Chongu Party, issued a talk on September 7 on the lapse of one month since the political parties and public organisations in the northern half of the DPRK proposed the convocation of a conference for the promotion of national reunification and published a joint statement on August 6.

In his talk he appealed to the South Korean Chondoists to turn out to the struggle for the convocation of a conference for the promotion of national reunification.

As an effective way to dynamically accelerate the cause of reunification and correctly solve the question of reunification under the present situation, there is no other way than arranging such a nation-wide negotiation for reunification as a conference for the promotion of national reunification, he noted.

Pointing out that it is entirely due to the obstructionist manoeuvres of the Chon Tu-hwan group that our fair proposal for convening the conference has not yet been carried into effect, he continued:

We ardently appeal to all people in South Korea who truly love the country and the nation and desire reunification to decisively break away from the Chon Tu-hwan group and accept our just proposal on convening the conference.

Our Chondoist Chongu Party and the entire Chondoists in the northern half will make every effort to terminate at an early date the tragedy of national division which has been continuing for 36 years and bring earlier the new day of national reunification.

For the early convocation of the conference for the promotion of national reunification we will send our representative at any time to bilateral and multilateral contact between representatives of parties, groupings and various strata and personages at home and abroad and will spare no efforts for its success.

Availing ourselves of this opportunity, we express our expectation that the Chondoists in South Korea will determinedly turn out in the sacred struggle for the convocation of the conference in firm unity with the people of all walks of life in South Korea to realize the idea of "defence of the country and security of the people."

FOREIGN MEDIA DENOUNCES U.S. FOR SR-71 INCIDENT

SK210341 Pyongyang KCNA In English 0331 GMT 21 Sep 81

[Text] Pyongyang, 21 Sep (KCNA)--Foreign papers and magazine denounced the aggressive act of the U.S. imperialists in infiltrating a high-speed, high-altitude reconnaissance plane "SR-71" into the airspace of the DPRK to commit espionage, according to reports.

The Bangladesh paper THE BANGLADESH TIMES September 13 said:

The "incident of missile attack by the North" is a sheer fabrication invented by the U.S. imperialists. They illegally sent a high-speed, high-altitude spy plane "SR-71" into the airspace of Korea for espionage purposes.

The U.S. imperialists must immediately discontinue their intrigues against the Democratic Peoples Republic of Korea.

Another Bangladesh paper DAILY MILLAT September 10 stressed:

The U.S. imperialists infiltrated a high-speed, high-altitude reconnaissance plane "SR-71" into the airspace of the DPRK on August 26 for espionage purposes. Such an espionage act on their part is a vicious challenge to the sovereignty of Korea and a beastly provocation against the Korean people.

It is also a dangerous and reckless act threatening peace and heightening tension in Korea.

The "incident of the North Korean missile attack of the U.S. plane" flying above the open sea faked up by the U.S. imperialists is nothing but a fraud for slandering the Democratic Peoples Republic of Korea and justifying their new war provocation manoeuvres.

A recent issue of the Kuwait paper KUWAIT TIMES said:

The report of the U.S. Defence Department that a U.S. high-altitude reconnaissance plane "SR-71" seemed to have been "attacked by a North Korean missile in the air above the high seas" is questionable from the objective point of view. This is intended to justify the intrusion of the U.S. spy plane into the airspace of Korea and expand the war provocation manoeuvres.

The weekly magazine of the Italian Federation of Trade Unions No 32 in a commentary pointed out that the U.S. imperialists are infiltrating spy planes into the airspace of the DPRK and aggravating the situation there.

A recent issue of the Swiss paper MATIN TRIBUNE said that the U.S. imperialists infiltrated a high-speed, high-altitude reconnaissance plane into the airspace of our country and fabricated the "incident of a missile attack by the North." It ridiculed the United States, saying that it behaves like a mere child.

WFDY URGES ACTION ON UN RESOLUTION ON KOREA

SK081303 Pyongyang KCNA in English 1100 GMT 8 Sep 81

[Text] Pyongyang, 8 Sep (KCNA)--The Bureau of the World Federation of Democratic Youth appealed to its affiliated members and national organisations to take an active part in the international campaign for the implementation of the U.S. resolution which will be waged from September 8 to November 18, the day marking the 6th anniversary of the adoption of the U.N. resolution on Korea. This appeal was made in a recent statement of the WFDY Bureau.

Noting that the United States has evaded the fulfilment of the resolution on Korea adopted at the 30th United Nations General Assembly demanding the dissolution of "the United Nations Command," withdrawal of all foreign troops from South Korea and the replacement of the Korean armistice agreement with a peace agreement, the statement said:

The WFDY Bureau sternly denounces the occupation of South Korea by the U.S. imperialists, their "two Koreas" scheme, arms buildup in South Korea and continued military provocations against the Democratic People's Republic of Korea and strongly demands that the U.S. troops unconditionally and immediately withdraw from South Korea taking along all the nuclear weapons and war materiel, that the Korean armistice agreement be replaced with a peace agreement and that all democratic liberties and human rights be guaranteed in South Korea.

We positively support the patriotic struggle of the South Korean youths and people for freedom, democracy and reunification of the country and the just cause of the entire Korean people and youths for ending the division and achieving the country's independent and peaceful reunification on the basis of the new reunification proposal put forward by the Government of the Democratic People's Republic of Korea.

'NODONG SINMUN' REVILES CHON POWER SEIZURE

SK-72335 Pyongyany KCNA in English 1514 GMT 7 Sep 81

[Text] Pyongyang, 7 Sep (KCNA)--NODONG SINMUN September 5 printed an article titled "Despicable and Heinous Robber of Power."

Recalling that right after the December 12 army purge coup, the traitor Chon Tu-hwan in an attempt to make it appear as if he had no political ambition, left no means untried, babbling about "non-involvement in politics," "acceleration of the political schedule" and the like, the article says:

His talk about the "non-involvement in politics" and "acceleration of the political schedule" was a trick to gain time for laying his foothold and an intrigue to prepare for a new coup like the May 17 violence.

The robbery of power by the traitor Chon Tu-hwan was a blood-thirsty fascist frenzy for removing the forces standing in the way of his assumption of power.

He brandished a bayonet, proclaiming not only people calling for democracy but also personages obstructive to his usurpation of power an "enemy."

Behind the facade of "political renovation," the traitor Chon Tu-hwan put the label of "old politician" on more than 500 "established politicians" and banned their political activity along with that of Kim Tae-chung, Kim Yong-sam and Kim Chong-pil. And, not feeling assured with this, he put pressure with a bayonet on Kim Chong-pil and Kim Yong-sam to retire from the political world, arrested Kim Tae-chung on a groundless charge and imposed life imprisonment upon him after harsh tortures.

The traitor Chon Tu-hwan not only got rid of leading political rivals but also successively attacked the puppet government and subordinate organs and public and press circles under the name of "purge" and "establishment of discipline," removing tens of thousands of officials and filling their posts with hooligans of the puppet army.

In this way he covered the whole land of South Korea with the blood and dead bodies of people who called for democracy and eliminated all the political rivals. In this political wilderness he called out the "deputies to the national congress for unification," a political corpse, whose activity had been banned by himself and rigged up his "election" as puppet "president" with the bayonet on August 27 last year.

The traitor Chon Tu-hwan, who had a taste of power after seating himself in the puppet presidential chair, wove a new plot for his long-term office.

He malrevised [as received] the "Yusin constitution" and the puppet "presidential election law," extending the term of the puppet president to seven years and trumping up the system of indirect election by an electoral college and thus fabricated his "reelection as puppet president" in February with deception and bayonet.

Indeed, the usurpation of "power" by the traitor Chon Tu-hwan is a bloody road covered by a beat, not a human being, and a dirty course of crafty schemes and despicable tricks followed by a political robber.

KSDP VICE-CHAIRMAN ISSUES 'TALK' ON 6 AUGUST STATEMENT

SK070352 Pyongyang KCNA in English 0336 GMT 7 Sep 81

[Text] Pyongyang, 7 Sep (KCNA)--Yom Kuk-yol, vice-chairman of the Central Committee of the Korean Social Democratic Party [KSDP], made public a talk on September 6 on the lapse of one month since the political parties and public organisations in the northern half of the republic on August 6 proposed the convocation of a conference for the promotion of national reunification and published a joint statement. In the talk he appealed to all the South Korean political parties, organisations and personages of all cricles to turn out as one for the convocation of a conference for the promotion of national reunification.

All the fellow countrymen consider that our proposal for the convocation of a conference for the promotion of national reunification, in view of its content and demand, indicates a most justifiable way of reunification for solving the country's reunification question in conformity with the will and interests of the nation, he declared.

Ones approach to the joint statement is a touchstone clearly showing to the people whether he wants the reunification of the country, or not, he noted, and stressed:

We believe that it is, indeed, a road of patriotism and a correct road of national reunification for our fellow countrymen to support the joint statement and come out for the convocation of a conference for the promotion of national reunification.

The "proposal for mutual visits" and "supplementary proposal" brought forward by traitor Chon Tu-hwan are nothing but a ruse for veiling his splittist colour, raise the price of his dirty body, mislead public opinion at home and abroad and extend the military fascist rule.

Anyone who does not want the split of the nation but wants the reunification of the country should oppose the splitting manoeuvres of the Chon Tu-hwan group and accept without hesitation our just proposal to convene a conference for the promotion of national reunification.

Our Korean Social Democratic Party will make every effort for an early convocation of the conference for the promotion of national reunification in conformity with the desire and expectation of the whole nation.

I express the hope that all the South Korean political parties, organisations and personages of all circles will actively respond to the patriotic proposal of the political parties and public organisations in the northern half of the republic and unanimously rise up in the struggle for the convocation of the conference.

FOREIGN MEDIA REPORT ON SR-71 INCIDENT

SK042325 Pyongyang KCNA in English 1524 GMT 4 Sep 81

[Text] Pyongyang, 4 Sep (KCNA)--Foreign mass media reported about the wanton infiltration of a U.S. spy plane into the airspace of the Democratic Peoples Republic of Korea, according to reports.

IZVESTIYA August 29 denounced the intrusion under the title "Outrageous Violation."

CETEKA reported that a U.S. spy plane "SR-71" intruded into the airpspace of the Democratic Peoples Republic of Korea on August 26, crudely infringing upon its sovereignty.

This espionage act, the report noted, is a link in the chain of imperialist machinations to aggravate tension and provoke another war on the Korean peninsula.

TOKYO SHIMBUN, YOMIURI SHIMBUN and MAINICHI SHIMBUN reported it under the titles "Stop Dangerous Provocation; Missile Incident. North Korean Paper Warns the United States," "Shock Remedy to Japan for Siphoning out aid to South Korea. Missile Incident. North Korean Paper Comments on It" and "North Korea Again Denies Missile Launching, Organ of Workers Party."

On August 31 Japanese evening papers conveyed the commentators article of NODONG SINMUN under the title "Fabrication Will Bring About Nothing," cabled by their correspondents from Pyongyang.

AP and AFP also reported the commentators article of NODONG SINMUN.

The Australian radio aired the report of the KOREAN CENTRAL NEWS AGENCY denouncing the United States for infiltrating its high-speed, high-altitude reconnaissance plane again into the airspace of the Democratic Peoples Republic of Korea to commit an espionage act.

'VRPR' SCORES CHON'S CALL FOR STRENGTHENED DEFENSE

SK050748 (Clandestine) Voice of the Revolutionary Party for Reunification in Korean to South Korea 0300 GMT 5 Sep 81

[Unattributed commentary]

[Text] Traitor Chon Tu-hwan delivered a speech on 4 September at the commencement ceremony for the 18th class of the 3d military academy. He babbled that all efforts should be directed toward having an overwhelming superiority of strength over the North, once again trumpeting about a fictitious threat of an invasion from the North.

This is an absurd remark revealing the traitor's desire to incite antagonism between the North and South, nurture strength and achieve the nation's reunification by defeating the communists.

The threat of an invasion talked about by traitor Chon Tu-hwan has never existed. Moreover, he tried to give credence to this fictitious threat of an invasion by mentioning such fabricated incidents as the North's firing of a missile at a U.S. Air Force reconnaissance aircraft and the North's incursion into airspace over Paengnyong Island. This is absurd.

As is widely known to the world, the allegation that the North fired a missile at a U.S. aircraft is a calculated and deliberate fraud by the U.S. imperialists to conceal their intrusion into the North's airspace in an act of espionage, to justify their policy of aggression and war and to make an excuse for their efforts to provoke a war on the Korean peninsula.

Nevertheless, traitor Chon Tu-hwan made a fuss about the so-called threat of an invasion from the North by citing such incidents as the North's firing of a missile and the North's intrusion into airspace over Paengnyon Island--chiming in with the U.S. imperialists. This is a foolish attempt to strain the situation on the Korean peninsula and kick off an atmosphere of war to divert the people's attention.

The danger on the Korean peninsula does not come from the North. It is a threat of a northward invasion created by the reckless war schemes of the U.S. aggressors and their stooge, the Chon Tu-hwan clique. As you know, babbling about the North's military superiority and citing the fictitious threat of an invasion from the North, the U.S. imperialists have been bringing into South Korea an assortment of aggressive armaments, including sophisticated F-16 fighters, and have been conducting war exercises with the Chon Tu-hwan clique which simulate a northward invasion. This has inevitably strained the situation on the Korean peninsula so much so that a war could flare up at any time.

This notwithstanding, traitor Chon Tu-hwan, like a thief crying: "Stop thief!" made a fuss about the threat of an invasion from the North. This is intolerable.

Traitor Chon Tu-hwan's talk about superiority and strength is part of his scheme to incite the people to antagonism and confrontation between the North and South to thwart their aspirations for reunification and democracy. It is a foolish attempt to speed up preparations for a war on the Korean peninsula and to realize his ambition for reuniting the country by defeating the communists.

Traitor Chon Tu-hwan should stop such useless exercises and step down from power--as is unanimously demanded by the people. Our people will not forgive his anti-national, antipopular and antidemocratic criminal acts. They will wage a more vigorous struggle to eliminate him and achieve social democracy and national reunification.

'MINJU CHOSON' CRITICIZES F-16 DEPLOYMENT IN KOREA

[Text] Pyongyang, 19 Sep (KCNA)--MINJU CHOSON today prints a signed commentary titled "Criminal Act Increasing Danger of War" lashing at the U.S. imperialists introduction of 8 "F-16" fighter-bombers into South Korea.

Noting that the U.S. imperialists advertised the deployment of these fighter-bombers in South Korea as a "drastic improvement of the defence posture," the commentary says: This is an unpardonable criminal act aimed to further aggravate tension in the Korean peninsula and threaten and blackmail us with "strength."

The deployment of fighter-bombers capable of delivering nuclear weapons shows that the U.S. imperialists, attaching great importance to the Korean peninsula in their aggressive global strategy, scheme to unleash without hesitation even a new nuclear war in this part for realising their wild ambition.

The recent introduction of fighter-bombers capable of carrying nuclear weapons is one more clear proof of the vicious scheme of the U.S. imperialists to start a nuclear war in Korea.

This time, too, they did not forget to bring forward the refuted "incident of missile attack" to sling mud at us and paint the deployment of "F-16" fighter-bombers in South Korea as one for "peace," "defence" and "security."

"Peace" and "security" on the lips of the U.S. imperialists are a slogan of war for seeking a test of "strength." This only shows how shameless they are.

The commentary stresses: Our people are closely watching the belligerent maneuvers of the U.S. imperialists against us and will not tolerate or overlook them.

The U.S. imperialists must renounce the anachronistic policy of "strength" and withdraw from South Korea, taking along all their armed forces of aggression and destructive weapons.

The Chon Tu-hwan clique staged a burlesque of welcoming the arrival of "F-16" fighter-bombers to fully reveal its dirty colours as a gang of never-to-be-condoned war-maniacs and traitors trying to impose the scourge of another war upon the fellow countrymen. The Chon Tu-hwan clique is bound to meet a stern judgment of history and the people for the treacherous acts it is committing, clinging to the sleeves of the outside forces.

DPRK DAILY SCORES CHON'S THREAT TO STUDENTS

SK111513 Pyongyang KCNA in English 1500 GMT 11 Sep 81

[Text] Pyongyang, 11 Sep (KCNA)--The South Korean puppet minister of education in his "interview" with the Seoul University Paper on September 7 shamelessly ranted that "control by force by the government" would be "justified for the realization of justice" and went so far as to threaten that if students "oppose power," the "government" would take "strong sanctions" including police "involvement," according to a report, earlier, at a so-called "meeting of university presidents and college rectors" he croaked that "no form of campus disturbances would be tolerated in the future."

In this connection MINJU CHOSON September 10 in a commentary says that students burning with a sense of justice are rising in struggle against the fascist rule of the Chon Tu-hwan clique because they cannot reconcile themselves to the present dark reality of South Korea.

The righteous action of students worthy of the praise of the whole nation can never be a "campus disturbance" or subjected to "sanctions," remarks the author of the commentary.

This notwithstanding, the commentary notes, they cracked down on the righteous struggle of students and made gangster-like utterances. This vividly shows that the Chon Tu-hwan fascist clique is a gang of vicious stranglers of the campus and heinous fascist thugs, it observes, and says:

The Chon Tu-hwan clique tries to prevent the struggle of students and take the edge off the movement for democracy, but this is a foolish attempt.

No fascist suppression will be a way out for the Chon Tu-hwan clique.

DPRK CONSERVATIONISTS SEND LETTER TO SOUTH

SK220926 Pyongyang KCNA in English 0808 GMT 22 Sep 81

[Text] Pyongyang, 22 Sep (KCNA)--A letter to the South Korean enthusiasts in nature protection was adopted at the second congress of the Korean Natural Conservation Union held in Pyongyang. The letter says:

Nature protection in the northern half of the republic has become a work for man, a most precious and powerful being in the world, and for the masses of the working people, the master of the country.

But, South Korea, linked with the North by the same vein, has been turned into a barren land, a land of calamities unfit for the life of any living thing.

Nature of South Korea can never be protected as long as the U.S. imperialists make a desperate bid to keep hold on South Korea permanently as their military base for aggression and gangster Chon Tu-hwan, the traitor for all ages who sells off the country and nation, fawning upon them, struts about.

The land and natural resources of our fatherland are a common wealth of our nation and are valuable assets for the development and grandeur of the country.

Lording it over in South Korea for a long period tantamount to the period of the Japanese imperialists occupation, the U.S. imperialists are taking away our resources and destroying our nature at random by their war exercises.

We cannot look on with folded arms at the danger that has befallen our nation and the rivers and mountains of our fatherland due to the criminal war racket and nuclear stockpile of the U.S. imperialists.

You must never allow our nature to be placed on the altar of war for the interests of the aggressors.

The military fascist clique of traitor Chon Tu-hwan has reduced the South Korean economy to a colonial dependent economy, clinging to the sleeves of foreign forces, to gratify its dirty greed for power, remaining indifferent to the destiny of the country and the nation. As a result, South Korea today has turned into a depot of foreign pollution industries and pollution directly threatens the lives of the people, now past the earlier stages of environmental contamination.

Looking straight into this hard fact, you should roundly expose and condemn before all the patriotic people of the South the treacheries of traitor Chon Tu-hwan, the military gangster, who talks about a "welfare society" after defiling our beautiful land of silk embroidery and depriving you even of the elementary vital right of humanity to breathe clean air and drink clean water, and rise up daringly, shoulder to shoulder with each other, to knock down this gangster and achieve the democracy of society for defense of our land.

The letter further says:

It is the real way of regaining nature of the country and truly defending it to force the U.S. imperialist aggressors to get out of our territory, sweep away the Chon Tu-hwan military fascist clique, their stooge, and realise the independent reunification of the country.

The reunificaton of the country—it is the urgent greatest task of the nation which brooks no further delay.

Before accomplishing the cause of national reunification, no enthusiast in nature protection with national conscience can say that he fulfilled his duty to the fellow countrymen and the country.

To frustrate the "two Koreas" scheme of the Chon Tu-hwan military fascist clique and reunify the country by founding the Democratic Confederal Republic of Koryo--this is the road on which our entire fellow countrymen can fulfill their duty to the fatherland and the nation and the glorious road of patriotism on which you can give full scope to your resourcefulness and talent in regaining the lost nature of South Korea and building beautifully again the destroyed and overrun land of the South.

Let us establish the DCRK through the great unity of the nation, transcending the differences in ideology and system and in religion, so that we all may live together and bring beautiful flowers into bloom all over the country.

CPRF DENOUNCES FLESH TRAFFICKING IN SOUTH

SK021042 Pyongyang KCNA in English 0959 GMT 2 Sep 81

[Text] Pyongyang, (KCNA)--The secretariat of the Committee for the Peaceful Reunification of the Fatherland [CPRF] issued information No 203 in connection with the fact that the disgraceful flesh traffic of selling off women to unlicensed houses of prostitution is widely prevalent in South Korea these days.

It was reported in mid-August that three girls residing in Tobong District, Seoul, who came to an employment office after seeing an employment advertisement, were sold to an unlicensed house of prostitution for 150,000 won in South Korean currency, the information notes, and says:

Such flesh traffic was openly committed against scores of girls in Seoul alone from the end of July to early August.

Pointing out that the flesh traffic is all the prevalent in South Korea after the traitor Chon Tu-hwan seized power, it continued:

The Chon Tu-hwan clique not only bartered away South Korea wholly to foreign imperialists as their colony and military base, but also set up Kisaeng girl sightseeing centres for foreigners, forcing girls to sell their chastity.

At present there are more than 4,000 Kisaeng girls in Cheju Island alone, and at sightseeing centres, tourist hotels and pleasure resorts hundreds of thousands of girls are forced to gratify lewd foreigners carnal desire.

The traitor Chon Tu-hwan's talk about "social purification" and "eradication of corruption" is a sheer lie to veil his true colour as the chieftain of injustice and corruption and ringleader of immorality and mislead public opinion.

'MINJU CHOSON' RAPS CHON CLIQUE WAR EXERCISES

SK200859 Pyongyang KCNA in English 0847 GMT 20 Sep 81

[Text] Pyongyang, 20 Sep (KCNA)--MINJU CHOSON on September 20 carries a signed commentary headlined "Reckless War Din" denouncing the frantic war exercise codenamed "81-Ssangyong" held by the Chon Tu-hwan clique with the mobilization of a large number of young and middle-aged people. The commentary says:

The reckless war exercise of the puppets is an intolerance criminal act for training the South Korean young and middle-aged people in preparation to drive them out to a fratricidal war.

Noting that the Chon Tu-hwan fascist clique tries to justify its war moves by inventing the deceptive pretext "forestalling attack of the North" for propaganda, the commentary stresses:

The "forestalling attack of the North" clamoured about by the puppets is a belligerent slogan designed to justify their war moves and incite North-South confrontation. It only reveals their shameless and bellicose nature.

We are closely watching the war manoeuvres stepped up by the Chon Tu-hwan military fascist clique against the northern half of the DPRK at the wirepulling of the U.S. imperialists.

The pupper clique must not miscalculate our sincere efforts for peace in Korea and her peaceful reunification but ponder over the consequence to be entailed by their indiscreet war manoeuvres.

DANES PROTEST S.KOREAN MINISTER--Pyongyang, 5 Sep (KCNA)--The South Korean puppet prime minister's visit was vehemently denounced in Denmark, according to a report. A demonstration was staged in front of a hotel in Copenhagen in protest against the South Korean puppet prime minister's visit to Denmark. Twenty political organizations of Denmark announced that they would demonstrate simultaneously to protest against his visit. Almost all the Danish newspapers ignored or denounced his tour and castigated the brutalities of the Chon Tu-hwan military fascist clique. The August 29 issue of the paper LAND OG FOLK carried a commentary exposing the usurpation of power, the brutal suppression of the people and the new war provocation manoeuvres committed by the Chon Tu-hwan puppet clique under the manipulation of the U.S. imperialists. It stressed that the puppet prime minister cannot escape the responsibility for the criminal brutalities in South Korea. ALLEGED U.S. DEPLOYMENT MISSILES--Pyongyang, 4 Sep (KCNA)--The paper of the German Democratic Republic BERLINER ZEITUNG August 25 denounced the U.S. imperialists scheme to introduce new weapons into South Korea, according to a report from Berlin. Pointing out that the United States plans to deploy medium-range "Pershing-2" and cruise missiles equipped with nuclear warheads in South Korea, the paper bitterly denounced this. It said: South Korea has long played a special role in the strategic plan of the U.S. Defence Department. South Korea, within the sphere of influence of Washington, has turned into a U.S. base packed with arms to overflowing. U.S. troops over 40,000 strong armed with atomic weapons have turned this region of the world into an area of constant tension. Noting that the number of the U.S. troops present in South Korea is on the increase, the paper said: Washington grants to the Seoul "regime" an unrestricted right to maintain the shameful political system in South Korea in accordance with the U.S. global strategy of confrontation. SOVIET'S SCORE U.S. F-16 DEPLOYMENT--Pyongyang, 19 Sep (KCNA)—The Soviet paper KRASNAYA ZVEZDA September 16 carried an article under the headline "Presence Strengthened," according to a report. It says: A formation of 8 "F-16" fighter-bombers of the United States arrived at a U.S. airbase in Kunsan, one of numerous strongpoints of the U.S. Defense Department in South Korea. Washington is strengthening its military presence in the southern half of the Korean peninsula for the purpose of executing its policy of extremely heightening the tension in Asia and the Far East. According to Wickham, commander of the U.S.-South Korea Combined Forces, the number of U.S. occupationist troops in South Korea, more than 40,000 at present, will be increased by 1,000 this year. The U.S. Air Force units in South Korea are supplemented by a large unit of "A-10" close support planes. It was decided to allot 1,000 million dollars as expenses for the maintenance of the U.S. troops in South Korea in 1982-83. It is not an exception that a plan for deploying neutron bombs in South Korea is being worked out at the U.S. Defense Department. The U.S. military "aid" to the dictator Chon Tu-hwan this year will be double the figure of last year. Another Soviet paper IZVESTIA carried an article headlined "Additional Fodder to the Dictators" on September 15, exposing the deployment of "F-16" fighter-bombers of the United States in South Korea. FORMER PRESIDENT YUN'S COMMENT ON KOREAN-JAPANESE RELATIONS REPORTED

Seoul CHOSON ILBO in Korean 10 Sep 81 p 3

[Article by Reporter Chu Ton-sik: "Former President Yun Speaks In Sickbed."]

[Text] Former President YUN Po-son would not like to talk at first because, he said, he is not only in an advanced age of 86, but also in no position to elaborately mention realistic issues. When this reporter explained that the topic concerned Japan, he began to reveal his views clearly.

"According to recent newspaper reports, the question of Japan such as regarding Korea-Japan cooperation and the Korea-Japan ministerial conference have been highlighted greatly. Unfortunately, we have asked for a Japanese loan. What we must never forget in dealing with the Japanese is that we must keep up our fair and square posture, whether we can borrow money or grain from Japan, and that there is no reason for us to bow our heads and beg it before Japan. The biggest mistake committed by the former regime was related just to this point. It had only abetted the Japanese narrowmindedness and superiority complex."

He has been hospitalized at Rm 12116 of the SNU Annex Hospital for treatment of his hip hurt by a shock. Because of his age and physical weakness of a patient, he spoke in a feeble voice. But details of his logic were full of vigor.

"Let's study the matter historically. In old times, Koreans had transferred culture to the Japanese and had not hesitated to guide and teach them. Japan, on the other hand, had been engrossed in pirating and plundering in the southern coasts of Korea. Their brutal acts perpetrated during the Hideyoshi invasion and their atrocities in the 36 years of Japanese rule still remain vividly in history, don't they? In Suwon, they had confined all residents of a village in a church and set fire on it to kill them. Their economic interests and their discrimination against Koreans--all these cannot be easily compensated for with politics or with money alone.

"Had Japan repented on all such brutal acts in Korea, it is its moral duty to endeavor to cooperate with Korea as a good neighbor. Has Japan, indeed, shown such a posture yet? They do not want Korea to be prosperous economically and to live independently without depending on others. Nor do they want Korea to nourish its own strength and safeguard our own national land by ourselves.

"Neither do they hope in their hearts for an early end to Korea's tragedy--the division of our land. Their intention is to seek suitable profit both from the south and from the north. No one in the world can say that this is an act of a good neighbor. They have yet to discard their complex of governing others. We should practice our diplomacy fairly and squarely, whether we can borrow $6 billion or not even a penny from Japan.

"Taking this opportunity, we should clear away our mistakes in dealing with the Japanese to date. And the Japanese should clear all mistakes and wrong-doings they themselves committed since the Annexation of Korea for starting new relations. The new relationship between our two nations must begin with such a mental posture. In this respect, our government's relationship with Japan can provide a good chance and can be so much of a significant meaning to our people.

"The Japanese still have great barriers erected against the schooling and employment of Koreans residing in their country. Even so, Japan has been saying this and that about Korea, in the name of humanitarianism and democracy. We often feel that they are such brazen and double-faced ones."

At the time of the normalization of diplomatic relations between Korea and Japan, YUN had stood in the van of opposing it. He even resigned from his parliamentarianship and created the former New Korea Party, once a super-hardline opposition party.

"Japan seems to say that it is difficult to provide economic cooperation for security of Korea, but for the Korean people's livelihood. What is security to us who are engaged in the life-or-death struggle against the Communist regime in the north? What is the people's livelihood to us? Both are just for our survival.

"Security and livelihood are not only inseparable, but to us a people's livelihood devoid of security does not make sense at all. It is just a Japanese trick employed to shelve the security issue of Korea so as not to displease the Soviet Union, the PRC, and north Korea. But is the Soviet Union or the PRC that foolish? Would they be goaded if Japan's loan were for security or would they welcome it if the cooperation were for the Korean livelihood? Preposterous. It is now time for Japan to be honest and restore its position as Korea's good neighbor.

"It is also the time for us to establish our own stance firmly. We are now indebted with a sizable amount of foreign debts; and the people experience hardships because of inflation. Even so, we must not place any great expectation on what is called Japan's economic cooperation. It will be all right if that economic cooperation can be realized fairly and squarely. But otherwise, we must tide ourselves over economic difficulties by tightening up our belts with a firm determination."

FAR-REACHING TAX REFORMS PROPOSED

SK190040 Seoul THE KOREA TIMES in English 19 Sep 81 p 1

[Text] The government has worked out far-reaching tax reforms, unprecedented in recent years, in order to achieve the sought-after "second economic takeoff" in the 1980s.

Under the proposed tax reform measure, direct tax credits will be replaced by indirect tax benefits to help companies and firms improve their financial abilities enough to stand on their own feet.

The government will introduce a minimum tax system designed to collect at least some taxes from companies which otherwise avoid income taxes by using "preferences" in the form of tax-free income or very large deductions.

The other main feature of the new tax package is an alleviation of income tax burdens on wage earners, especially in middle and low income brackets.

The government has also proposed a drop in inheritance tax rates to help prevent possible tax evasion.

The proposals were disclosed yesterday when Finance Minister Yi Song-yun announced draft amendments to the tax-related laws. The drafts are scheduled to go to the National Assembly for approval.

The nine laws concern tax exemption and reduction control, income taxes, corporation taxes, special excise taxes, inheritance taxes, telephone taxes, defense taxes, basic national taxes and tax accountants.

Apart from these, a new education tax law will be sent to the assembly. Minister Yi said a revision to the value-added tax law was under serious consideration.

Announcing the proposed amendments, Yi said, "Next year will be the first year of the Fifth Five-Year Economic and Social Development Plan. We are required to prepare ourselves without failure for the goal of the second economic leap forward.

"Therefore, the tax system should be improved and developed to meet the new era's demands."

Yi went on to stress that the government would establish a fair and reasonable tax burden level and help the people keep the level under the prime policy of realizing a just society.

According to the draft revision to the tax exemption and reduction control law, the number of important industrial classifications now under strong tax shelters will be reduced to six from the present 10. The six surviving categories of industries will be electronics, machinery, iron and steel, aviation, shipbuilding and naptha cracking.

Excluded from the list of great tax beneficiaries will be the power development, chemical fertilizer, nonferrous metal refining and pollution-controlling materials industreis.

However, the government will cancel the system under which the 10 strategic industries enjoy direct tax cuts including 100-percent corporation tax exemption.

Under the planned shift of policy, business interests engaging in the six industries will get tax relief through indirect taxation.

By the indirect method the companies will get special tax favors in the form of 100-percent accelerated depreciation as in the past.

In addition, they will be allowed to deduct as business expenses the amounts of money in the new form of tax-free reserves for investment.

They will also receive tax benefits equivalent to 15 percent of their fixed asset value in three years.

In proposing the introduction of the minimum tax system, the ministry emphasized that all businessmen should bear the least tax burden with national agreement on the idea that all income earners are fairly taxed and are required to pay taxes.

Under the system, all corporations must take a minimum 5 percent tax rate burden plus the defense surtax.

Especially, 81 government-invested corporations and special banking institutions including the Bank of Korea and the Pohang Iron and Steel Co. (POSCO) will be placed in the category of companies paying the 5-percent tax rate.

Getting similar or relatively small tax benefits will be industries engaging in overseas construction, industrial plant exports, overseas harbor engineering and other projects in foreign countries.

They will get a 30 percent high-speed depreciation rate on all equipment used overseas and will be permitted to establish tax-free reserves.

Ocean-going projects will receive tax reductions including a 100 percent accelerated depreciation rate and tax-free reserves.

However, penalty taxes will be imposed on tax beneficiaries who divert tax reductions outside their companies.

The aim of the penalty tax system is to have the tax credit receivers plough back their tax reductions into their businesses.

The readjustment of tax exemption and reduction will have the same effect as collecting 26 percent of last year's total tax tally of 413.7 billion won, the ministry said.

Some 200 billion won more in direct taxes will be collected after 1983, according to ministry estimates.

COMPOSITION OF BUREAUCRATIC ELITE ANALYZED

Seoul WOLGAN CHOSON in Korean Apr 81 pp 88-95

[Article by No Chong-hyon, professor of public administration, College of Public Administration, Yonsei University: "Mobility of the Bureaucratic Elite"]

[Excerpt] Forward

The author thought he should, to some extent, treat mobility between organizations and between jobs while dealing with the regional and social mobility of the bureaucratic elite in the Republic of Korea when these given themes differ.

Background on the Origins of the Bureaucratic Elite of the Republic of Korea

The author investigated the origins and value systems of high-level public officials of the Republic of Korea in 1979.

The author wished to point out beforehand that this article was written with considerable reference to "The Modernization of the Republic of Korea and the Bureaucratic Elite" which comprised a chapter of his book Essays on the Modernization of the Republic of Korea. Pointing out that precise details are included in the work just mentioned, the author decided here to just introduce several salient points.

(1) Family Background

When we look at the family backgrounds and the areas of origin of the bureaucratic elite of the Republic of Korea, there are great contrasts with other countries such as the United States, and it appears that there are many differences in these features today when compared with the early period of the founding of the Republic, just after liberation and even up to the fifties.

First of all, in the early period of the founding of the Republic, just after liberation, most of our nation's high-level bureaucrats originated in the Seoul area, followed by those who came from North Korea. This seems to have been due to the influence of the social structure which formed under Japanese colonial rule, as well as to that of the educational background possessed by public officials--even those in subordinate positions--at the beginning of the Republic. In addition, this is also felt to be due to the educated manpower which come south from North Korea and obtained positions in Seoul.

However, we see great differences in the mobility of public officials starting in 1960 when the processes of urbanization and industrialization of the Republic of Korea started in earnest.

When we look at the family background of the high-level public officials of South Korea, we see that the public officials who responded that their fathers had experience in public positions amounted to 18.4 percent of those surveyed by the author in 1979.

As to their fathers' present occupations (in cases where the fathers were deceased, principal occupation when living), they were in the following order: farming was first with 20.1 percent; commerce 12.6 percent; public officials next at 8.0 percent. However, 36.8 percent of all the respondees did not reveal their fathers' occupations and we cannot determine their precise reasons, but if we consider that the majority of these may have been farming, we reach the conclusion that the absolute majority of our nation's high-level public officials probably come from a family which was involved in farming.

When we look at the cases of Great Britain, France or the United States, the backgrounds of origin of our nation's bureaucratic elite are conspicuously different.

In the case of Great Britain, the occupations of the fathers of high-level public officials amounted to 46 percent common professionals and administrators, but 67 percent were those involved in higher professional and administrative positions. When we look at the family backgrounds of students who were enrolled in the ENA (Ecole National d'Administration)--the national administrative graduate school which is the training organ for high-level French public officials--in 1953, 17 out of 53 were the offspring of administrative bureaucrats and all of the 17 were high-level public officials. In addition, 6 were the progeny of artists, 3 were the children of entrepreneurs, 11 were the offspring of managers, and 10 were the children of independent professionals; only 1 was the child of a lower level laborer or worker and just 2 were the children of those involved in farming. There were only two children of proprietors of real estate, and only one who was the child of a person involved in a technical field. In 1969, there were 25 persons (among them 18 children of high-level public officials) out of 62 who were the children of administrative bureaucrats, 15 who were the offspring of independent professionals, and 6 each who were the children of entrepreneurs, technicians and commercial laborers, and there were 3 children of artists and 1 child of a farmer.

When we compare the professions of the fathers of British and French high-level public officials with those of our country, there is an extremely noticeable difference that, on the one hand, most of the British and French high-level public officials are the progeny of high-level professionals, administrators, or high-level public officials, while, on the other hand, in our country they are most often the offspring of farmers.

The advancement of the children of farmers and merchants into many high public offices can be said to be a better state than the advanced countries of Europe and America in respect to social mobility, particularly upward mobility, in terms of representative bureaucracy. However, a society of high-level public officials derived from the working class possesses the shortcoming of being readily lacking in stable continuity and being weak in the formation of social background.

(2) Regional Background

The majority of our country's high-level public officials were born in farming areas and, after spending their childhoods there, passed the latter half of their teens in medium and small cities or in major cities. In other words, they received their primary school educations in farming areas, their middle school educations in medium and small cities or major cities, and then received their college training in major cities. Such facts can readily be learned if we look carefully at the regional birth backgrounds, breaking them down into birth regions and their patterns.

Kyongsang Province, including Pusan, has the most with 31.6 percent, Cholla and Cheju Provinces next with 17.2 percent, Ch'ungch'ong Province with 16.1 percent, Kyonggi and Kangwon Provinces with 13.2 percent, Seoul and North Korea with 6.3 percent, overseas with 3.4 percent and 5.7 percent with no response.

Birth Places of High-Level Public Officials

Place of Birth	Individuals	Percentage
Seoul	11	6.3
Kyongi/Kangwon	23	13.2
Ch'ungch'ong	28	16.1
Cholla/Cheju	30	17.2
Pusan/Kyongsang	55	31.6
North Korea	11	6.3
Overseas	6	3.4
No Response	10	5.7
Total	174	100.0

If we look at the birthplace as a pattern of regions, cities with pouulations over 1 million, i.e. Seoul, Pusan, and major cities abroad, represent 11.5 percent; cities with less than 1 million are 13.2 percent; areas of county size and smaller are 67.8 percent; and no responses were 7.5 percent; and, to reiterate, these county size areas are overwhelmingly agricultural.

When we compare this with Great Britain and France, we can ascertain that origins in major cities are markedly fewer compared to both Britain and France. As for the high-level public officials of Great Britain, those born in London District (London and South East) amount to 41 percent, the Midland District (rest of South and Midland) 14 percent, the Scotland North District (North) 24 percent, the Scotland District (Wales, Scotland, Northern Ireland) 13 percent, overseas 8 percent; the London District is the area of most births. In the case of France, when we look at the elements of the ENA, in 1959 71.4 percent of the aspirants for the ENA were born in Paris and 84.9 percent of those admitted were born in Paris. In 1969, because 72.2 percent of the aspirants and 91.4 percent of those admitted were born in Paris, Paris is the most predominant source and its ratio shows an upward tendency.

However, as to the region in which they grew up in the latter part of their teens, Pusan/Kyongsang Province constitutes 30.5 percent; Seoul 14.1 percent; Cholla and Cheju 16.1 percent; Ch'ungch'ong 12.6 percent; Kyonggi and Kangwon 9.8 percent;

North Korea 4.6 percent; overseas 1.1 percent; and no response 1.1 percent. Compared to the areas of birth, Seoul, on the one hand, increased 17.2 percent, while on the other hand, in the case of the other areas, they each diminished somewhat.

Region of Residence: Late Teens

Place	Individuals	Percentage
Seoul	42	24.1
Kyongi/Kangwon	17	9.8
Ch'ungch'ong	22	12.6
Cholla/Cheju	28	16.1
Pusan/Kyongsang	53	30.5
North Korea	8	4.6
Overseas	2	1.1
Total	174	100.0

Also, in the pattern of area of growing up in the latter half of the teens, with the areas of major cities of over 1 million at 32.8 percent, city areas of less than 1 million population at 42.5 percent county areas at 22.4 percent, and no response at 2.3 percent, compared to the pattern of area of birth, the medium and small city areas and the major cities showed the very greatest increase and the county areas showed a marked decrease.

The magnitude of this change demonstrated an even more prominent rise in the areas of growing up in the first half of the twenties. The area of growing up in the first half of the twenties was highest for Seoul with 63.2 percent, followed by Pusan/Kyongsang Province 17.8 percent, Cholla and Cheju Provinces 5.7 percent, Ch'ungch'ong, Kyonggi and Kangwon 4.6 percent each, overseas 1.1 percent, North Korea .6 percent, and no response 2.3 percent.

Region of Residence: Early Twenties

Place	Individuals	Percentage
Seoul	110	63.2
Kyonggi/Kangwon	8	4.6
Ch'ungch'ong	8	4.6
Cholla/Cheju	10	5.7
Pusan/Kyongsang	31	17.8
North Korea	1	.6
Overseas	2	1.1
Total	174	100.0

When we look at these as regional patterns, on one hand we see a considerable increase of 71.8 percent for major cities of over 1 million population, while on the other hand, a large decrease in other city areas of 19.0 percent, and in all other county areas, medium and small cities, and farming villages of 7.5 percent.

The results of the author's survey as to what sort of organization was desired as a work place were: if not in policy formulating agencies or economic agencies higher than their own, then they would wish to work in government agencies which are organs of power or in government agencies with the potential for their own duties to permit them to exercise influence directly over people.

If we look at this in a bit greater detail, the organizations in which the bureaucratic elite of the Republic of Korea desire to work are, in order, the Blue House, most desirable with 20.1 percent; next, the Ministry of Home Affairs, Headquarters, 12.1 percent; the Ministry of Foreign Affairs; Ministry of Commerce and Industry; Ministry of Finance; and then the Economic Planning Board.

When we look at this, we can understand that in the period of the founding of the Republic, at a time when the top priorities were political doctrine and establishment of structure, that the Ministry of Home Affairs would have been the most desirable organization in which to work, and that after that, economic agencies which took the lead in economic development would have held the highest order of priority for the young, successful applicants in the civil service examinations. However, even just up to 1979 when this author conducted his survey, because of the gradual growth of the influence of the Blue House at the end of the Fourth Republic, it is not clear whether this tendency of the bureaucratic elite to desire connection with the center of power might not be a product of our times.

Even beyond this, we can cite mobility from central agency offices to the provinces or from the provinces to the center as mobility between organizations, or we can also consider mobility between job groups, too. However, in our country such things as going from national level official to regional level official or a regional official becoming a national official are still in the realm of exchanges, and, in actuality, not very frequent. But in special cases, such as the Ministry of Home Affairs, instances of national public officials going from Headquarters to Province Office, or as mayors and county magistrates, are common occurrences. However, while it may appear that they are being dispatched somewhere as national officials, such movement is never in the form of a national official to a regional official in order to research work in that area.

The mobility of public officials can be thought of as mobility from lower sections to higher sections, and as such the majority of cases are upward mobility within agencies of an organization rather than mobility between organizations. Instances of upward mobility through promotion are the major trend. Even up to recent times, cases of upward mobility through promotion are the absolute majority. However, coming to the present, for high-level public officials, particularly in the case of Level 3B, new acceptances through examination are becoming very numerous compared to previous numbers and, moreover, because 100 or so military company-grade officers or first-level command-grade officers are being newly accepted as administrative officials [Level 3B] every year, instances of Level 4 public officials becoming administrative officers, that is to say cases of upward mobility within organizations, are gradually diminishing.

Mobility Between Occupations

As has already been stated, there are few examples of mobility between occupations in our country. Especially, instances of men of ability in private enterprise

(3) Educational Background

The majority of the high-level public officials of the Republic of Korea received a high school education and there were many who studied in the area of social sciences in colleges which were located mainly in Seoul. There was even a significant number who had received graduate school educations, and over half of these studied in special graduate sdhools in the fields of government administration or jurisprudence. Their technical backgrounds were comparatively weak, and, except for those who possess instructor certifications, few were certified.

As for the highest levels of education completed, there were 52.3 percent who received college educations including professional schools; next, there were 31 percent with graduate school or higher; graduates of high school 2.3 percent; graduates of middle school 10.3 percent; among these there were almost none below middle school, and the majority of these were no responses.

When we look at their colleges, Seoul University, Yonsei University and Koryo University graduates constituted over half of all respondees and there were a significant number of graduates of other colleges located in Seoul, and the number of graduates of national colleges located in the provinces continues to increase.

As for the many graduates of these three so-called top rank colleges, in the case of Great Britain as well there were, among those public officials who graduated from universities of the same calibre, 64 percent who were graduates of Oxford and Cambridge Universities. However, as regards Oxford and Cambridge, both are private universities while Seoul University is our country's national university and its graduates differ in many points from the graduates of Yonsei and Koryo Universities.

France shows a bias also toward the colleges of high-level public officials being located in one area, and, in much the same way, the majority of the high-level public officials are graduates of colleges located in Paris.

Moreover, when viewed in light of the fact that even in the United States high-level public officials above the level of bureau chief, who participate in policy formation, are graduates of the three first-rank universities, the so-called big three (Harvard, Yale, Princeton), we can say that the Republic of Korea displays a tendency similar to the advanced nations mentioned above, with its high-level public officials graduates of big name universities, but we must judge the role of the big name private universities as being considerably less.

Mobility Between Organizations

The mobility of our country's bureaucratic elite within their organizations can be said to be comparatively active, but mobility is extremely rare between one organization and another or between government agencies.

We can see that in the early period of the founding of the Republic, except for the mobility of the police and the Ministry of Communications, mobility between government agencies was extremely rare. However, coming up to most recent times, mobility between organizations, in comparison with earlier times, is demonstrating a little higher frequency and the desirability of mobility seems to be rising gradually.

entering public positions are extremely rare. But, most recently, there have been instances of several thousands having to leave public office at one time because of general administrative reform or questions of the ethics of public office. This may be said to be a temporary phenomenon and to be happening at a time of special political and social change.

However, now, in a plural society, public offices are not the sole guarantors of employment opportunity; when we think about the persons who had been in public office who are being assimilated into the enterprise system and educational organs, which are expanding daily and increasing in scale, the significance of mobility between organizations seems to be growing continuously every day. What is more, those among the capable bureaucrats who have resigned from public office are putting their capabilities and vast experience, within healthy limits, into storage and this has to be a major loss, both socially and nationally. But there is the question of whether it might be the will of able persons who have resigned because of age to continue to be able to work in a different agency with a different type of job.

For reference, in the United States, in response to the question "Do you wish to continue to work after you retire, presupposing that you have sufficient financial means so that money does not represent a problem in your life?" in the case of laborers, 81 percent said that they wished to continue to work and only 19 percent said that they did not wish to continue working. Moreover, 89 percent of main-line administrators said that they wished to continue to work and barely 11 percent responded that they did not want to continue working.

In the case of Japan, when looking at the results of a 1978 survey, under the same given conditions, 70 percent said that they wanted to continue working, 25 percent said that they wished to quit, and the others made no response.

Looking again at the United States, when asked whether "If you were to leave your job, would you want to live on Social Security, or would you prefer to work and live by our own efforts?" 9 percent of laborers said that they wanted to live on Social Security and 91 percent responded that they wanted to work and live on their earnings. Also, in the main-line administrative levels, similar percentages resulted. It is accepted that we as yet have been unable to study how many persons in our country there may be who will be able to continue working in another occupation when they resign from a public position or from private enterprise, or under any circumstances whatever.

However, in the case of high-level public officials, when they retire for reasons of age, at 65, the capabilities and vast experience which they have amassed must be sorely missed.

Accordingly, even in our country for the bureaucratic elite and, of course, capable persons such as professors or other professionals, mobility between occupation is opening up more after retirement because of age and we can say that their being able to continue to offer their abilities to society is extremely important.

Conclusion

Above we have attempted to examine mobility in several types of arenas, focusing on our country's high-level public officials and bureaucratic elite. We feel that if a nation's society intends to develop actively and dynamically, the mobility of bureaucrats, not to mention all specialists, will have to open up. When such mobility is lacking, stagnation appears within the organization and this is due to the lack of representative bureaucracy. Even when there is no new blood circulation just within organizations, they become complacent and unable to avoid stagnation. However, when mobility is high then, to that extent, fierce competitive power results and the efficient development attributable to this competitive power can magnify the strengths which can exist only in free nations and open societies where they can be autonomous and heteronomous.

In government also, if mobility is lacking, the bureaucratic elite, especially high-level public officials who participate in policy formulation, are unable to obtain the very broad-based experience which they need early on and, consequently, their views of things are too fragmentary and their inability to grasp comprehensive policy making seems to be diminishing their ability to coordinate with other organizations and to control policy. Therefore, in countries such as Great Britain, in which high-level public officials are intentionally forced to move laterally between organizations and within organizations in their early years, the broad-based experience received in this manner serves as an aid to them, providing them with a broad field of vision and a capacity for comprehensive policy formulation when they reach high-level positions in the future, such as administrative viceminister or deputy viceminister, and it also gives them the capacity to coordinate with other agencies more fully and felicitously.

Accordingly, in our country, too, we need to eliminate closed-mindedness and contentiousness between agencies; we need broad-based understanding and policies which will foster openness and mobility. But what we will have to watch out for is that we do not permit expertise and continuity to be sacrificed even while facilitating mobility to the greatest extent possible.

This point, as has already been noted, is also true between generations and is also true in each organization in the government. Consequently, in the society of the future, which will be industrialized to a high degree, at the same time that there will be a need for deep technical know-how, we will have to understand how to unify all of the areas of specialization; the control of this unification will be the primary function of the bureaucratic elite, especially the high-level administrators.

Since they will require broad-based experience in their early careers in order to facilitate this kind of control and unification, the importance of bureaucratic mobility should be emphasized once more.

ROK MINISTRY TO REDUCE EDUCATION SURTAX RATE

[Text] The Finance Ministry has decided to lower the education surtax rate to 30 percent of property taxes from the original 50 percent for residential houses and land sites.

The ministry originally planned to levy the unified education surtax on such property as dwelling and non-dwelling houses and land regardless of the kinds of real estate and their scale.

The tax rate reduction is intended to help low-income earners who have their own dwelling houses.

The ministry said it would exempt from the education tax those who have small-scale houses worth less than 5 million won, based on the standard price calculated by the Home Affairs Ministry.

However, the 30 percent education surtax will be imposed on the land sites portion, though the houses are small scale and worth less than 5 million won.

The property taxes on houses and land sites have been levied twice a year respectively and the education surtax will be levied on real estate in six major cities across the nation.

Of the total 1980 property taxes amounting to 75.9 billion won in six major cities including Seoul, Pusan and Taegu, the property tax levied on dwelling houses and land reached 46.5 percent, according to the ministry.

In addition to a 50 percent education surtax on non-dwelling houses and land, the education tax will also be collected from other sources--5 percent of income from bank interest, 10 percent of liquor tax amounts excluding soju and rice wine, and 10 percent on cigarettes priced at more than 300 won.

Through the realignment of tax imposition rates, national revenue from the education surtax will be reduced by 10 billion won from next year's original goal of 250 billion won.

The readjustment of the education tax was decided on in a meeting presided over by Prime Minister Nam Tok-u at the capitol yesterday. The meeting was attended by Deputy Premier-Economic Planning Minister Sin Pyong-hyon, Finance Minister Yi Sung-yun, and the home affairs minister.

POPULATION CONTROL MEASURES PLANNED--Seoul, 19 Sep (YONHAP)--The Korean Government is devising a series of population control measures, including imposing heavy tax burdens upon families of three children and more, Seoul's CHUNGANG DAILY NEWS reported Saturday. According to the paper, the government is considering applying a discrimitive tax system to households having three children and more. These measures also include allowing women workers only two maternity leaves and restricting medical insurance benefits to the first and the second birth. According to Health-Social Affairs Ministry statistics, the paper said the country's fertile female population (ages: 15-44) increased from 6.6 million in 1970 to 7.79 million in 1975 and to 9.25 million in 1981. Thus, considering the present population growth rate of 1.79 percent, Korea's population will grow from the present 38 million to some 51 million by the year 1990. The planned population control measures will be designed to forestall this expected growth. [Text] [SK191003 Seoul YONHAP in English 0744 GMT 19 Sep 81]

GOVERNMENT PROVIDES DETAILS OF NEXT 5-YEAR PLAN

[Text] A total of 19 projects in seven industrial sectors including semi-conductor plants and a large-scale plant for passenger cars will be expedited during the Fifth Five-Year Economic and Social Development Plan period (1982-86).

The required fund is estimated at 4,993.3 billion won ($7,982 million). But it is scaled at 3,200 billion won ($5.3 billion) as the project for the nation's No. 2 integrated steel mill, which is scheduled to be constructed after 1986.

The third petrochemical complex project has been shelved during the cited period, but construction of unit plants will be made in accordance with the demand-supply plan.

A new automobile plant, of which the annual production capacity is 300,000 units, is to be built during the five-year plan period.

The Ministry of Commerce and Industry will lay stress on sustained export growth and upgrading the industrial structures for machinery and electronic sectors during the fifth five-year plan period.

The ministry will pursue balanced development by regions and industrial sectors focusing on an open market economy featured by the initiative of the private enterprises.

Commerce-industry Minister So Sok-chon, revealing his basic policy during the coming five years, said investment choices would be left to the private entrepreneurs and the government will only provide the general framework in which such choices will be made by private companies.

So said yesterday the forthcoming industrial policy will be launched so that it will contribute to defending the nation's international balance of payments and the government will make every effort to strengthen the competitiveness of Korean export industries.

The ministry will step up fostering small business manufacturing and various industrial components and will reinforce the export support by keeping up balance development between exports and the foundation of home consumption, he said.

As to the trade policy, he said the government will emphasize export industrialization of heavy and chemical sectors, along with raising the quality and technical competitiveness.

To the end, the government will expose domestic producers to foreign competition through import liberalization, encourage the inflow of foreign technology and upgrade technical manpower.

As the result of all these efforts, he predicts that Korean industries in the middle of the 1980s will be reorganized into "competitive" industries, and the competitive conditions of Korea will be internationalized.

He said Korea will emerge as a big trading country scaled at $100 billion in the future and new commerce and industry order, invigorated by private enterprises, will be created.

The plans which will be put into practice by the ministry during the fifth five-year economic development period are as follows:

The share of heavy and chemical industrial products in total exports will increase from 40.4 percent this year to 51.6 percent ($27.4 billion) in 1986, while priority will be set for expansion of credit export aimed at increasing the export of heavy industrial products.

The development of the components in the sectors of electronics, automobiles, ships and construction of heavy equipment will be emphasized for export, and financing for those purchasing locally-made machinery will be accented in a move to help domestic machinery firms.

The ministry will also scrutinize the industries of various raw materials, seeking less-expensive ways in the form of overseas joint ventures and long-term supply contracts.

The improvement of productivity will be encouraged and price control over commodities made by enterprises will not be made.

GOVERNMENT TO FOSTER ELECTRONICS INDUSTRY

SK060143 Seoul THE KOREA TIMES in English 6 Sep 8 p 1

[Text] The Ministry of Commerce and Industry will foster the electronics industry as a core strategic industry during the 1980s, upgrading its industrial structure and promoting technical renovation.

In a report to a monthly trade promotion meeting, presided over yesterday by President Chon Tu-hwan, Commerce-Industry Minister So Sok-chon said efforts would be made to raise the ratio of such electronics industry sectors as computers, electronic switching systems (ESS) and facsimiles up to 20 percent by 1986 from the present 12 percent.

Technical-intensive home appliances such as video tape recorders (VTRs), electronic ranges and color TV sets will be intensively fostered, and the technical capacility for producing precision components and materials will be pushed by the ministry, So said.

In the meeting, held at the Kumi electronic industrial complex, he chartered a long-range program to develop the semi-conductor industry.

He said the number of plants manufacturing wafers, the raw material for semiconductors, would be increased to six from the current three plants.

Next year, the plants, set up in a joint venture between Monsanto of the United States and Samchok Industrial Co, will produce 500,000 wafers a year, he explained.

An organic cooperative system for research and development will be established between the government and private companies in a move to spur technical innovation and development of new technology.

The technical development of computers and semi-conductors, as well as the training of highly-skilled technicians will be pushed by government initiative, he said.

For expanding domestic markets, the minister said the excise tax, now excessively imposed on various electronic products, would be lowered and the government agencies would be urged to purchase locally-made electronic products.

He said priority in financial and tax assistance should be provided to the electronics products.

He emphasized that the ministry would push ahead the steady export increase of electronic products with the expansion of overseas investments, and study the characteristics of regions targeted for exports.

Home appliances will be encouraged as export goods, while the industrial-use electronics sector will be developed for import substitution. The components will be developed with focus on a self-supply goal.

During the fifth five-year economic and social development plan period (1982-86), So said a total of 726 billion won would be mobilized for the development of computers and semi-conductors.

The fund for the two sectors accounted for about 30 percent of 2,300 billion won, set aside for investment in the electronics industry.

The minister also said that the taxes on black and white TV sets and small-sized tape recorders would be eliminated or lowered drastically for the low-income people, and the excise taxes for newly-developed items such as VTRs and electronic ranges would be scratched or reduced within a time period yet to be designated.

CHON SAYS CITY BANKS TO BECOME PRIVATELY RUN

[Excerpt] President Chon Tu-hwan revealed yesterday that the government would convert city banks into private-led ones on a gradual basis in a bid to avoid the government-initiated economic performance and method of economic growth.

"When the initial project to put a city bank under private management becomes successful, all city banks will be privately operated banks," he said.

He made the remarks during a luncheon with 150 representatives of companies and workers at the Kumi electronic industrial complex after he presided over a monthly trade promotion meeting.

He said that the government was exerting its efforts to control the price of commodities at a level of 20 percent by the end of this year and 14 percent next year, asking for positive cooperation on the part of enterprises for price stabilization.

"If we succeed in stabilizing prices with this project, our country will see a sweeping economic renovation in our history," he said.

During the trade promotion conference, he stressed that efforts should be doubled to develop new electronic products, technical know-how and introduce advanced technology as the electronic industry is the most appropriate strategic project for priority in view of the country's industrial circumstances.

"With regard to the promotion of the electonic industry, the government will place a strong emphasis on development of the semi-conductor industry," he revealed.

Chairing a monthly trade promotion conference at the auditorium of the Kumi city women's welfare center in the Kumi electronic industrial complex, the chief executive called for perfect unity between the government and enterprises in the development of technology, thereby exchanging new information to make the most of them and boldly introducing technical know-how from industrially advanced countries.

When private business firms take the initiative in developing technology, the government will support them to the maximum possible extent," he said.

Referring to the cooperation between big industrial companies and small business firms, he noted that there were tendencies for the former to issue long-dated bills to the latter.

The president then demanded issuance of short-dated bills, if possible, to help small enterprises operate their businesses without the added financial difficulty.

PERFORMANCE OF KOREAN HEAVY INDUSTRY COMPANY REVIEWED

Seoul TONGA ILBO in Korean 14 Sep 81 p 3, Seoul U.S. Embassy translation [summary]

[Article by reporter Pyon Sang-kun: "The Korean Heavy Industry Company: Is It Normalized One Year After Its Merger?"]

[Text]

The Korea Heavy Industry Corporation is now entering normal operation after having tidied up its messy surroundings just one year after the merger. Both domestic and foreign capital invested in it since 1977 now amounts to a total of W381 billion.

Construction of its plant has progressed 90 percent so far, and is expected to be completed by the end of November this year. At the forging plant, 10,000-ton-capacity furnaces and 100-ton electrical converters are scheduled to be installed by April next year. Then, there will remain only the port construction work for berthing 20,000-ton-class vessels.

It now has a total of 9,400 employees in the seven major plants including those for electric power generating equipment, heavy equipment, and steel. Korea Heavy Industry is expected to be inaugurated soon as a state-run corporation with a government investment of W360 billion.

Its construction cost has been estimated at about $500 million. If its construction should be started now, it might cost far more than $1 billion. The plant has barely come to the stage of completion, but the problem lies in how to secure enough work orders.

In view of its production capacity of power generating equipment, the corporation has to secure all power plant construction project contracts at home and overseas construction contracts for more than the domestic contract amount. To do so, its product quality and performance must be assured. In this respect, the question is raised as to a possibility for a joint venture with a foreign firm for advanced technology.

At the time of adjusting capital investment on Aug. 20 last year, "a resolute plan for a joint venture" was sought, without regard to a share ratio, with foreign technology. But the situation has changed since.

"Now that the government has invested as much as W360 billion in this corporation, will it agree to entering into a joint venture only for several hundreds of million dollars?" "In the event of establishing a joint venture, at least a 10-year contract has to be concluded. If things go this way, the foreign partner will come to get all the profit out of the joint venture." "Since an aspirant for a joint venture is only interested in power plant construction projects such as nuclear projects, the corporation will most likely be expoited by the foreign partner."

Therefore, if it were for technology needed, it might be better to establish an engineering firm as its subsidiary. And depending on the characteristic of technology from each foreign country, technical tie-ups can be materialized by forming a technology "consortium."

Even before completion of its project, Korea Heavy Industry had to experience the financial pinch for paying some W100 million in interest alone daily. This financial predicament has been alleviated much, with the government's investments. With that investment, a large part of bank loans it owed has been converted into its capital. In particular, as much as W256.6 billion in bank loans provided under unfavorable terms have been repaid with cash investments by the Korea Development Bank (KDB) and the Korea Electric Company (KECO).

Korea Heavy Industry's current indebtedness amounts to some W240 billion. It breaks down into $215 million in foreign loans including the $80-million World Bank loan and W86.1 billion in domestic borrowings. Its debts have been reduced by more than a half by the government investment.

Still, its fund requirements until the scheduled time of completion are estimated at about W50 billion. Recently, the KDB investment of W33 billion, which had been withheld, was paid in. Its receipt of work orders both from abroad and at home is growing more than expected.

As of the end of August, the outstanding contract orders received amounted to W301 billion, or more than three times an annual total of orders which amounted to W92.6 billion last year. As of the end of August, the actual delivery of its goods amounted to W89.8 billion.

Its supply breaks down into W28.2 billion of power generating equipment and machinery to KECO, W31.5 billion of construction heavy equipment, W16 billion of cement manufacturing equipment exported to Saudi Arabia, W4 billion of "air regulators," and W100 million of textile machines.

Its plants are located in three different sites -- Ch'angwon and Kunp'o (heavy equipment, textile machines, and tractors) and Saudi Arabia (cement). Its employees number 5,000 at Ch'angwon, 2,200 at Kunp'o, and 1,700 in Saudi Arabia.

A total of 1,012 technicians, who once had to be assigned to Hyundai Heavy Industry during the past confusion of a merger, have now returned to the Ch'angwon plant. And some 540 staff and newcomers have been employed for the first time. The remaining balance of $26 million in the World Bank loan, which had been suspended of disbursement, has been made available to the corporation.

Construction of the Sohae and Samch'onp'o thermal power plants, undertaken by Halla Construction, has been naturally turned over to the Hyundai Group because the latter has taken over the management of Halla Construction. Korea Heavy Industry will supply only the necessary equipment and machines for those plants.

The nation's heavy industry has yet to be restructured of the construction heavy equipment field. Together with the merger of power generating equipment manufacturers, those makers of construction heavy equipment were supposed to be consolidated into one. Daewoo Heavy Industry, however, is still attached to this project; and is now even more enthusiastically pursuing this business with recent orders received from Libya. Daewoo Heavy Industry's production capacity now stands at 300 to 400 excavato s a year. It has already won a government approval for entering into a technical tie-up contract with P&H for manufacture of cranes.

Korea Heavy Industry's plants at Ch'angwon are still in partial operation -- 30 percent at the heavy equipment plant and 17 percent at the power generating equipment plant. The operating rate of its Kunp'o plant (excluding the recently expanded portion) is currently estimated at 60 percent.

The construction heavy equipment field, therefore, is the only sector where income accrues now. For an early normalization of its operation, the merger of construction equipment manufacturing firms must be realized, according to Korea Heavy Industry. .

The target of its gross sales this year is set at ₩25.4 billion. Even when total sales reach the goal, its deficits are still estimated at ₩55.4 billion. Korea Heavy Industry's plan and what the government expects is to fill the deficit and turn its business records into the black by 1984.

With the government's decision to invest in the corporation and with its business ties with KECO, the end-user of power generating equipment, the image of Korea Heavy Industry has been improved considerably.

Six overseas projects are now under negotiations, including the cement plant project in Malaysia; they are valued at a total of $550 million. The Malaysian project is for building a cement plant with an annual production capacity of 1.2 million tons, at a contract amount of $171 million. As soon as its construction work in Saudi Arabia is finished toward the end of this year, all its manpower and equipment will be transferred to Malaysia.

Orders received for cotton spinning machines have amounted to ₩1.1 billion this year, in spite of objection raised by domestic industries sometime ago because of poor performance in its early days.

This signifies the stability of its business management realized for the first time since a severe contest waged among the four major heavy industry enterprises. The "main game," however, begins now. It will be necessary for Korea Heavy Industry to enter into substantive technical tie-ups and secure work orders on that basis, establish its independent realm as an integrated machinery works, and discard its past character of being just like a KECO subsidiary. The future task ahead of Korea Heavy Industry might be to secure its managerial autonomy.

FOREIGN INVESTMENT--With the recent relaxation of foreign investment conditions for Korea's electronic industry, foreign capital investment in Korea, which remained sluggish since 1978, began to be reinvigorated. The government recently announced a set of measures to improve conditions for foreign investment, allowing foreign capital investment up to 100 percent for develoment of semiconductors. At the same time, foreign investment in the capital-intensive material and precision machine parts sectors is being spread, according to the recent analysis. In particular, Motorola and Fairchild Semiconductor, the two foreign firms which previously hastened to move their facilities to Southeast Asia, have come back to Korea again. They are now reportedly working on their reinvestment of capital or on increasing their investments. This year, Westinghouse Electric of the U.S. has invested $79 million in a 50-50 joint venture with Gold Star Semiconductor, for the manufacture of semiconductors, computers, and switchboards. Monsanto of the U.S. also invested $8 million in a joint venture with Samch'ok Industry at a 50 : 50 ratio, for the manufacture of silicon wafers. Monsanto plans to gradually increase its investments up to $21 million. Corning International Service of the U.S. has reportedly decided to newly invest $87 million jointly with Samsung-Corning. OAK of the U.S., which has been producing PCB plates jointly with OAK Korea, plans to additionally invest $1,220,000 in the joint venture. Nippon Denki Garasu (Japan Electrical Glass) and Ownes of the U.S., which have been producing B&W TV cathode-ray tube glasses jointly with Korea Electrical Glass, have decided to increase their investment by $1 million. Tonghwa Electronic, which has been producing condensers with 45 percent of its capital invested by Towa Condenser and Fujitusu of Japan, is also negotiating on its capital increase. [Text] [Seoul MAEIL KYONGJE SINMUN in Korean 10 Sept 81 p 1]

KHI JOINT VENTURE--Korea Heavy Industry has finalized its plan to seek a joint venture with foreign business interests with a focus on confining its joint venture project only to power generating sector. According to KHI 14 September, the Korean firm is currently studying the possible joint venture with one of nine foreign business concerns, including Westinghouse Electric (WH), General Electric (GE) and Combustion Engineering (CE) of the U.S., Mitsubishi Heavy Industry of Japan, Framtome and Alstom of France, GEC of Britain, Atomic Energy of Canada Ltd. of Canada and Brown Boveri & Co. (BBC) of Switzerland. The final proposal presented by KHI to the authorities concerned includes the establishment of a separate corporation with money invested by KHI and its foreign counterpart. The joint venture will be promoted in the form of leasing facilities from KHI for the manufacture by the new corporation of turbine generators and atomic reactors. The joint investment ratio will be a 50:50 but if necessary the capital investment will be set at 49-51. The government is expected to hold an economic ministers' meeting to finalize a plan for the normalization of business management of KHI as soon as a plan is worked out by the Commerce-Industry Ministry for the similar purpose. [Text] [Seoul CHUNGANG ILBO in Korean 14 Sept 81 p 4]

EXCHANGE RATE--The government plans to set the Won-Dollar exchange rate at an annual average 4-percent margin if the price rise can be held down to 14 percent next year. It plans to stabilize the Won-Dollar exchange rate at a level of W714 to the dollar at the end of the next year. The projected rate shows an increase of 3 percent from the projected year-end level of W693 to the dollar this year. On the annual average, the Won-Dollar rate is projected to Stand at W704 to the dollar next year, up 4 percent from this year's average of W677. According to the government estimate, next year's foreign capital requirements are projected at $8.2 billion or $300 million more than this year's demand. The foreign capital requirements include $4.9 billion to fill deficits in the current account and $2.1 billion for repayment of foreign loan principal and interest. The government plans to meet the foreign exchange requirements with $5.6 billion in banks and foreign loans, $200 million in financial bonds floated in foreign currency, and $2.3 billion in short-term foreign capital and other methods. Due to the high interest rates on the international money market, the government projects invisble trade payments to increase to a total of $9.4 billion. It plans to reduce deficit figures in invisible trade next year to $1.4 billion from this year's $1.7 billion, by boosting foreign exchange receipts to $8 billion through overseas construction service and tourism. Since receipts in the current account are expected to grow, the government expects that the foreign debt servicing burden next year will be brought down from this year's 12.8 percent to 12.3 percent. OIL PRICING STRUCTURE--Seoul, 18 Sep (YONHAP)--A senior official of Korea's Energy-Resources Ministry said Thursday that the government would not raise domestic oil prices for the time being despite the accumulating losses of refinery companies in the country. In an interview with the state-run KBS-TV, Ho Nam-hun, chief of the ministry's resources policy bureau, said that the oil-price increase should be made in consideration of its effect on the people rather than in consideration of the interests of refinery firms. Ho maintained, however, that the worsened financial situation of the refinery companies would affect oil prices in the country in the long run, and indicated that the oil price would be adjusted in due course. The oil policy maker also disclosed that the imports of crude oil would not decrease to enable the country to accumulate a long-term supply of foreign oil, but added that the government is negotiating with oil exporting countries to delay shipments of oil to Korea. Such a government measure is designed to cope with the decrease in domestic oil consumption and the fall of the operating rates of local refinery factories. FUTURE URANIUM REQUIREMENTS PROJECTED

Seoul JOURNAL OF THE KOREAN NUCLEAR SOCIETY in English Vol 13 No 1, Mar 81 pp 22-35

[Article by Han To-hui and Chong Ch'ang-hyon of Seoul National University: "Estimation of Uranium Requirements Based on Future Reactor Strategies"]

[Text] Abstract

The U_3O_8 requirements are estimated for the high, intermediate, and low growth projections of nuclear power in Korea. To each projection, four illustrative reactor-mix strategies and four fuel cycle options are applied for estimating the requirements. The reactor types considered are PWR, PHWR, and FBR. The fuel cycles considered are once-through cycle, U/Pu recycle, and improved once-through cycle. Also the amount of Pu-fissile recovered from U recycle is estimated. The maximum cumulative (to the year 2000) requirements of U_3O_8 occupy about 4 to 5 percent of the WOCA requirements and are about 23 times larger than the U_3O_8 resources in Korea. For the high nuclear power growth projection, the cumulative amount of Pu-fissile recovered from U recycle is sufficient for the startup of 2 units of 1200 MWe fast reactors by the year 2000.

1. Introduction

From a nuclear power program perspective, the choice of reactor types and fuel cycles would be affected by the overall demand for U_3O_8 and other fuel cycle services, as well as the economics, technical feasibility and other factors. If the once-through fuel cycle were extensively deployed, for example, a substantially large capacity of spent fuel storage and waste disposal facilities would be necessary.

Three reactor types, i.e., the PWR, PHWR and FBR, are considered in this thesis. The PHWR has advantage in that it uses natural uranium, providing a simple, low-cost fuel cycle independent from foreign U-235 enrichment requirements. Also this reactor type has better neutron economy, thus better uranium utilization than the PWR. However, these advantages are somewhat offset by the availability of heavy water, operating and maintenance complexities, and high capital cost. The PWR, on the other hand, has been operating commercially much longer and in greater numbers than the PHWR. This reactor type has demonstrated its operability. Although it requires enriched uranium, the PWR has greater potential for future development than the PHWR. It's near-future development potential lies in the U and/or Pu recycle area, which not only minimizes enrichment requirements but also utilizes the available Pu-resources from operating PWRs. Moreover these fuel cycle alternatives have better resource utilization than the once-through cycle, and so these alternatives have the effect of uranium saving. However, U and/or Pu recycle requires reprocessing of discharged fuel.

The nuclear fuel cycle represents about 15% of the bus-bar cost of electricity. Of this 15% the cost of uranium ore concentrate and the U-235 isotopic enrichment represent the major cost components of the PWR once-through cycle. The PHWR, since it does not require separative work, has a somewhat different distribution of costs. However, for both the PWR and PHWR, the yellowcake cost represents more than one-half of the nuclear fuel cycle cost. The long-range projections for yellowcake supply indicate that shortages of high-grade ore will continue to drive the price upward and that the avilability of the yellowake is concerned.

In this regard, only U_3O_8 requirements are considered in this study. The U_3O_8 requirements depend on many factors, in particular, reactor types, fuel cycle options, plant capacity factor, tails assay in the enrichment plant, etc. The growth projections of nuclear power, of course, influence the requirements, too. Thus, high, intermediate and low growth projections are first established, and then four reactormix strategies and four fuel cycle options are considered to estimate the requirements. As a parametric sensitivity study, changes in the plant capacity factor and the time delay of fuel cycle alternatives are made to find how much variations in the requirements occur.

The most distinctive characteristic of the fast reactor is its potential impact on strategic aspects of nuclear energy, such as availability, accessibility and sufficiency of resources and independence of energy supply. Thus, finally the cumulative amount of Pu-fissile is carefully looked into in order to investigate when the introduction of fast reactors is feasible in view of the startup Pu-fissile.

2. Selection of Reactor Types and Fuel Cycles

2.1 Nuclear Power Development Plans in Korea

There have been several reports[1-7] on growth projections of nuclear power covering the period up to the year 2000, and these are summarized in Table 1.

There is a wide range in predicting the number of nuclear power plant units to be introduced by the year 2000.

Table 1. Proposed Number of Nuclear Power Plant Units to Be Introduced by the Year 2000

These projections, however, have a common point of view that nuclear power generation will play a leading role during the next 20 years, and that approximately 45 to 65 percent of the electric power in Korea will be generated by nuclear power plants in the year 2000.

Due to the uncertainties in projecting nuclear growth over a span of 20 years, a wide range of nuclear projections, rather than a single most probable level, is used to estimate the requirements for nuclear fuel. Three different projections are adopted for nuclear reactor-mix strategies and fuel cycle analyis.

That is, the high and low cases of KAERI REPORT[6-7] (1980) and the low case of KAISER REPORT[1] (1974) are chosen for the high, intermediate and low power growth projections, respectively. Modifications of these projections are made by incorporating the nuclear power plant program already committed for the period of 1978 through 1989 (Table 2), and the new nuclear power plant program models A, B, and C are shown in Table 3.

2.2 Reactor-Mix Strategies

The projections A, B, and C do not specify reactor types except for the committed ones. The requirements of nuclear fuel depend, however, not only on the nuclear growth projections but also on the types of reactors to be constructed.

Therefore, a series of reactor-mix strategies are considered to give a broad range of requirements.

For the period of 1978 through 1989, the reactor-mix is already fixed with eight PWRs and one PHWR. For the period of 1989 through 2000, four illustrative strategies are postulated and applied to the nuclear power growth projections A, B, and C.

In establishing reactor-mix strategies, only three reactor types, namely, PWR, PHWR and FBR are considered.

The four illustrative reactor-mix strategies for the period of 1989 through 2000 are as follows:

Strategy 1 PWR 100%
Strategy 2 PWR 75%, PHWR 25%
Strategy 3 PWR 50%, PHWR 50%
Strategy 4 PWR 75%, PHWR 20%
FBR 5%

The above figures for each reactor type represent the portion of the installed generating capacity occupied by that reactor type relative to the total installed nuclear capacity.

The reactor-mix strategies established above apply to each of the nuclear power growth projections A,B, and C for the period of 1989 through 2000. Projections A, B, and C for each reactor-mix strategy are given in Tables 4 through 7.

2.3 Fuel Cycles

The fuel requirements also depend on the fuel cycle options available for the selected reactor types.

At prsent, a PWR operating in once-through mode with slightly enriched uranium has a 30 year gross requirement of between 4347 and 4610t/GWe of natural uranium[8] (assuming 70% capacity factor and enrichment tails assay of 0.2w/o).

The PHWRs based on natural uranium, of the type now commercially available, have a better neutron economy and therefore better resource utilization than PWRs when used in once-through mode.

A PHWR operating on a 70% capacity factor would have a 30 years gross requirement of between 3608 and 3716 tons of natural uranium per GWe[9].

There have been a number of fuel cycle alternatives proposed to improve the resource utilization: the improved once-through cycle, the U/Pu recycle, the introduction of fast reactors, the improved U/Pu recycle, and the utilization of thorium in either the once-through or the recycle mode.

The estimates of INFCE/WG.8[9] indicate that, the reactor system itself with thorium-bearing fuels could be available earlier, but the commercial deployment of thorium cycles probably could not be available until the year 2000.

Thus, the introduction of thorium cycles is not considered in this study. The PHWRs with slightly enriched uranium fuel and the PWRs with improved U/Pu recycle are not considered, either, since considerable development work and consequently a heavy investment of time and effort would be required before they could be introduced on a industrial scale.

Therefore, four fuel cycle options; namely the once-through cycle, the improved once-through cycle, the U recycle, and the U-Pu recycle are considered for PWRs.

There are, however, various approaches[9, 10)-13)] to improve uranium utilization in the improved once-through mode.

One of these approaches is the improvement by increasing the burnup, which is considered to be one of the most attractive means.

If the batch-average burnup of fuel could be increased by 50 percent up to the range between 40,000 and 50,000 MWD/MTU, and the refuelling intervals were kept at one year, an uranium saving of between 8 and 12 percent would be obtained.

The recent report[9] of the U.S.A. submitted to INFCE says that the increased burnup of 50,600 MWD/MTU for PWRs could be demonstrated by 1988. In Table 8 is summarized the information available from the report about the PWR fuel cycle with the increased burnup.

No improvement in the once-through cycle, on the other hand, is considered for PHWRs.

3. Estimation of U_3O_8 Requirements

The reactor-mixes and fuel cycle strategies are applied to the nuclear power growth projections to identify a wide range of the demand for U_3O_8 requirements.

3.1 Fuel Cycle Parameters

In order to determine the U_3O_8 requirements, the base values must be assumed for the fuel cycle parameters, e.g., enrichment tails assay, fuel cycle lead and lag times, reactor capacity factor, etc.

The tails assay of the enrichment plant is assumed 0.2w/o and the plant capacity factors are assumed 70 percent for PWRs (unless specified otherwise) and 80 percent for PHWRs. The assumed lead and lag times and fractional recoveries of each fuel cycle step are summarized in Table 9.

2.2 Material Flowsheet

Based on the assumed fuel cycle parameters and data available, the fuel mass flow diagrams of the once-through and the selfgenerated uranium recycle are made by using the NUMICE-2 code[13] and hand calculations. In Figs. 1 and 2 are shown the fuel material flowsheets for a 587 MWe PWR in the once-through and the self-generated uranium recycle mode.

The material flowsheet for a 1000 MWe PWR with the selfgenerated U-Pu recycle is made by modifying the data given by Figford[14], and is shown in Fig. 3. In Fig. 4 is shown the annual mass flow for a 679 MWe CANDU-PHWR. For PWRs with increased burnup, the mass data given in Table 8 are used to estimate the U_3O_8 requirements.

2.3 Classification of Cases

With the assumed fuel cycle parameter values and the mass flow data for each fuel cycle option, the cumulative U_3O_8 requirements are calculated in broadly-grouped four cases. In other words, the parameteric sensitivity study is performed in estimating the requirements.

The four cases are summarized as follows:

4. Introduction of Fast Reactors

The future growth in energy consumption cannot be provided completely from traditional energy resources-the fossil organic fuels-because of their scarcity. Of the proposals for alternative energy sources which could appreciably extend the presently available fuel resources, nuclear power based on the fission of heavy nuclei is by far the most important and is already a practical reality. However, the supply of uranium at economic prices is limited and the fullest utilization of the potential of this energy source can be achieved only by the use of breeder reactors. At present, the U-Pu fuelled, sodium cooled FBR (LMFBR) is the most developed type of fast power reactors.

Now there are several demonstration and experimental fast reactors in operation. The first commercial power reactor, Super Phenix 1 (LMFBR), is under construction and it will generate electricity from 1983. Thus there will be a gradual penetration of the LMFBR as a system for nuclear energy production over the next 20 years.

A unique characteristic of fast reactors is their ability of providing energy whilst, at the same time, producing more fuel than the amount consumed. However, for the startup of fast reactors, some fissile material[18)-20)] must be supplied. The startup of an 1200 MWe LMFBR requires 3876kg fissile Pu for the initial core plus 7764kg fissile Pu for four replacement loadings before the discharged fuels are recycled[18)] (with the capacity factor of 70% and the external cycle length of 2 years). This startup plutonium must be obtained from the PWRs operating in the U recycle mode, since the present day cost of uranium and of fuel cycle operations do not justify the reprocessing to recover the plutonium from the fuel discharged from PHWRs, and the open Pu-market is not expected. Thus, the cumulative amount of the Pu-fissile recovered from PWRs in the U recycle mode is estimated in order to find when the startup Pu-fissile is prepared.

5. Results

The estimated U_3O_8 requirementsare summarized in Tables 10 through 12 and Figs. 5 through 7 for projections A, B, and C.

The results of CASE 1 (Section 3.3) indicate that a change of 10% from the 70% base value of the capacity factor results in 11% (in the opposite direction) change in the cumulative (to 2000) U_3O_8 requirements (See Fig. 5).

The case of high nuclear growth projection A, all PWR strategy, the once-through cycle, and the capacity factor of 80%, requires the cumulative (to 2000) requirements of 172.24×10^3 lb-U_3O_8, and this amount occupies about 4 to 5 percent of the WOCA cumulative requirements.[3] This maximum requirements are about 23 times larger than the Korean uranium resources[2] of which the grade is 0.015%.

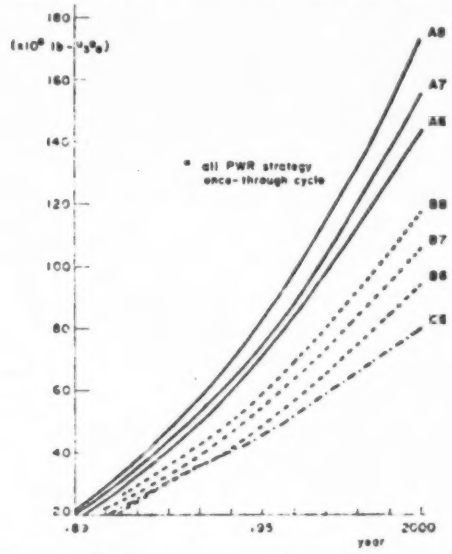

Fig. 5. CUMULATIVE URANIUM REQUIREMENTS Key to the Figure: A8 model A.C.F=80% A7 model A.C.F=70% A6 model A.C.F=60% B8 model B.C.F=80% B7 model B.C.F=70% B6 model B.C.F=60% C6 model C.E.F=60%

The types of reactors employed in future projects change the projection of U_3O_8 requirements considerably in the once-through cycle. The U_3O_8 requirements for the six different reactor-mix strategies are calculated for CASE 2.

The variations of the portion of the portion of the installed capacity occupied by PWRs and PHWRs to the total installed nuclear capacity, namely, the changes from the reactor strategy 1 (PWR 100%) to the reactor strategy 3 (PWR 50%, PHWR 50%), result in the maximum U_3O_8 saving of

In CASE 3, the emphasis is on fuel options.

The fuel cycle alternatives to increase the utilization of uranium resources are to be introduced sooner or later.

It is assumed that the PWRs would begin recycling U and/or Pu from 1990. However, considering the lead and lag times of each fuel cycle component, no uranium saving effects are assumed until the U and/or Pu of the fuel discharged, that is, the self-generated U/Pu recycle is considered.

About 5%, 9% and 17% reduction in the cumulative (to 2000) U_3O_8 requirements occurs for the improved once-through cycle, the U recycle, and the U-Pu recycle strategies, respectively, in the intermediate nuclear power growth projection B (See Table 11 and)

It is assumed that the PWRs would begin recycling from 1990 in CASE 3. In order to investigate the sensitivity of U_3O_8 requirements due to the time delay, another case (CASE 4) is considered in which the recycle would initiate from 1995.

This 5-year delay in initiating the recycle increases about 6-10% of the cumulative (to 2000) requirements for the U recycle and about 3-6% for the U-Pu recycle mode of uranium ore, only the U_3O_8 requirements are considered in this work.

The 5-year delay in the introduction of the improved once-through cycle also increases about 5-8% of the requirements (See Table 12 and Fig. 7).

Considering only the startup Pu-fissile, as shown in Table 13 and Fig. 8, a fast reactor of 1,200 MWe capacity can be introduced starting the years 1966, 1997 and 1998 for the nuclear power growth projections A,C, and B, respectively, with the U recycle from 1990 assumed. However, if the Pu-fissile of the fuel discharged from PWRs in the 1980's (estimated to be 2481 kg Pu-fissile) is taken into consideration, the first fast reactor can be introduced from 1995 for the high nuclear power growth projection A. An additional fast reactor of 1200 MWe can be introduced in the year 1999 for the projection A.

If the U recycle starts for 1995, the cumulative (to 2000) amount of the recovered Pu-fissile decreases by 25-30%, and the introduction of the fast reactor is delayed by 2 to 3 years (Table 14).

If only the thermal reactor recycle is considered, the U-Pu recycle has a strong incentive in U_3O_8 saving. However, if the introduction of fast reactors is consible by the late nineties, this incentive of the U-Pu recycle decreases, and only the U recycle is recommended for the accumulation of the fissile Pu for the fast reactor startup. If any form of recycles or introduction of fast reactors is not considered feasible in the near future, the PHWRs and PWRS in the improved once-through cycle mode have advantages in reducing the U_3O_8 requirements.

Meanwhile, the option of fast reactors must be kept open or established, since it is anticipated that i) the price of uranium will not remain low and the availability will be uncertain, and

ii) the present high capital and fuel cycle costs of fast reactors could be made to decrease due to future technical developments.

POLL TAKEN ON DOMESTIC, FOREIGN ISSUES

SK221404 [Editorial Report] Seoul CHUNGANG ILBO in Korean on 22 September on pages 1, 12 13 publishes the extensive results of an opinion poll of 1,232 people, male and female over the age of 18. It says the random sampling was taken throughout the country from 30 July to 11 August and is being published on the 16th anniversary of the paper's founding.

The key findings of the poll, highlighted on page 1, reveal that 84.2 percent of all respondents want the government to give top priority to stabilizing commodity prices.

On attitudes toward the United States, the paper notes: "Although the people's feelings toward the United States were aggravated in 1977 and 1978 because of former President Carter's policy to withdraw U.S. troops from the ROK and the Pak Tong-son case, the people's anti-U.S. sentiments had improved a little by 1980. This recent 1981 survey shows that 63.6 percent of the respondents said that their sentiments turned for the better compared with 1980, while 4 percent responded that anti-U.S. sentiments have, on the contrary, turned for the worse."

On attitudes toward Japan, the paper notes: "As for the people's anti-Japan sentiments, the 1980 survey showed sentiments against Japan considerably aggravated in comparison with the year before. Likewise, according to this recent poll, the unfavorable impression of Japan still exists without any drastic change. To be specific, 23.7 percent of the respondents said they think sentiments against Japan have turned for the better, while 23.1 percent think the sentiments have turned for the worse."

On domestic issues, the paper notes that "48.9 percent of the respondents expressed the view that in 10 years from now they can see a peaceful change of power and that there will be good progress in rooting democracy on our soil." It reveals that "42.3 percent express their approval of a tripartisan system comprising the Democratic Justice Party, the Democratic Korea Party and the Korea National Party. And 53.1 percent of all respondents favor the multiparty system, while as many as 34.8 percent of this group still favor a bipartisan system."

On the north-south question, it reveals "15.7 percent of all respondents think unification is totally impossible, while 62.5 percent regard it as totally unpredictable. This notion prevails among people in their 30's, who were born after the Korean War, while 86.9 percent of people in their 20's or younger regard unification as something for the future which is beyond their reach. As for the method of achieving unification, 39.9 percent of all respondents favor peaceful unification through dialogue, while 36 percent favor unification by achieving economic superiority. However, all indicate their preference for a solution by peaceful means."

The paper also notes: "A total of 15.3 percent of all respondents believe that the militarization of Japan will be helpful to the security of the ROK, while 37.6 percent regard the rearmament of Japan as dangerous and 37.5 percent adopt a wait-and-see attitude toward Japanese military power. It also is noteworthy that people in their 50's and 60's, who experienced colonial rule under the Japanese, keep a wary eye on Japan."

DIPLOMATIC STRATEGY SHIFT URGED--Seoul, 23 Sep (YONHAP)--The Korean National Assembly should place more emphasis on inviting foreign lawmakers rather than sending its lawmakers to conduct the so-called parliamentary diplomacy, leaders of the National Assembly said Wednesday. Assembly speaker Chung Nae-hyok and Rep. Pong Tu-hwan who each headed parliamentary delegations recently, said Korea's parliamentary diplomacy would be more effective if foreign parliamentarians were invited to the country. Chung and his party toured the United States and Colombia July 22-Aug. 7, while Pong and his colleagues visited Canada Aug. 20-Sept. 8. Chung in a report to the assembly also said that parliamentary diplomacy toward the United States should complement the government's diplomatic activities from the sidelines. He added that his visit to America had helped renew American congressional leaders' opinions on the fifth republic, and that his visit to Bogota further strengthened the traditionally friendly relations between the two countries. Rep. Yi Tae-ku, who visited Latin America at the head of another parliamentary group, stressed that it was time to shift Seoul's diplomatic emphasis to the Middle East to Latin America. The congratulatory message said that the second congress of the Korean Natural Conservation Union carried weighty significance in brilliantly embodying the chuche-based idea of nature conservation of the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song and further enhancing the mission and role of the union in keeping with the new requirement of our developing revolution.

The congress took up the questions of thoroughly implementing the teachings given by the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song on nature conservation and the programmatic task set forth at the sixth party congress.

Comrade Chong Chun-ki, vice-premier of the Administration Council and chairman of the Central Committee of the Korean Natural Conservation Union, made a report.

Then speeches were made.

The reporter and speakers pointed to the successes and experiences gained in the work of nature conservation in the past under the wise guidance of the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song and the glorious party centre and proposed measures to thoroughly carry into effect the programmatic tasks set forth by the sixth congress of the party in the field of nature protection.

They stressed that the great leader's idea on nature conservation is an original idea which defined the purpose and mission of the work of nature conservation in conformity with the basic demand of the chuche idea to place man, the most valuable being in the world, in the centre of all thinking and make everything serve him.

They said that the chuche-based idea of nature conservation founded by him has been further developed and enriched by the glorious party centre.

According to the report and speeches, a great progress has been made in nature conservation in the past period.

Thick forests have been created and animal and plant resources have constantly increased.

Consequent upon the energetic efforts for implementing the policy of creating forests of economic value which took a form of a nation-wide movement, a lot of forests of economic value including forests of oil bearing trees and bamboo thickets have been created and pheasants, water-deer and other beneficial wild animals and birds are better protected and propagated.

In the period under review, land and water resources have been well protected and utilized.

With the brilliant fulfillment of the historic task of irrigation involving the construction of a large number of reservoirs, big and small, and channels extending hundreds of thousands of ri, it has become possible to better protect water resources and utilize them more rationally. River construction, the main thing in afforestation and water conservancy, particularly the construction of river-dykes and coastal breakwaters has been carried out and shelter belts, anti-erosion forests and bank-protecting forests have been created everywhere to firmly protect arable land and crops.

The Kaema and Paekmu plateaus, once forsaken as useless for many centuries, have been turned into agricultural production bases and tideland extending tens of thousands of hectares has been turned into fertile ricefields and producer of raw materials of silk.

A big success has been made also in developing and exploiting the inexhaustible underground and aquatic resources in our country.

One of the important successed made in nature protection in the past is the creation of hygienic and cultured conditions of living for the working people, free from pollution.

Though factories are densely distributed all over the country, there is no pollution. Scenic spots have been built into spots of culture and rest for the working people, parks and recreation grounds have been laid out in all cities to give to the whole land a living environment free from pollution.

Great successes have been registered in scientific researches for nature conservation.

The congress underlined detailed tasks to protect land, forests, sea and underground resources, increase land and beneficial animal and plant resources, take more thorough steps for preventing pollution and create excellent conditions of culture and rest and nice conditions of emotional life for the working people.

A new leading body of the Central Committee of the union was elected at the congress.

Comrade Chong Chun-ki was elected chairman of the Central Committee of the union.

A letter of pledge was adopted at the congress.

Also adopted were letters to the South Korean and world enthusiasts in nature conservation.

DAILY MARKS KIM IL-SONG WORK ANNIVERSARY

SK181537 Pyongyang KCNA in English 1525 GMT 18 Sep 81

[Text] Pyongyang September 18 (KCNA)--NODONG SINMUN today carries an article headlined "Programmatic Document That Set Forth Tasks for Building Fully Sovereign and Independent State" on the occasion of the 35th anniversary of the publication of the historic work of the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song "Let Us Expose and Smash the Reactionary Manoeuvres of the U.S. Imperialists" (September 18, 1946).

The article says: In his work, the great leader roundly exposed to begin with the fact that the U.S. imperialists who had occupied South Korea declared military government, dissolved people's committees and manoeuvred to totally obliterate the elementary democratic freedom and rights of the South Korean people.

Then he indicated programmatic tasks to fight against the U.S. imperialist aggressors.

He underlined detailed tasks to strengthen the work of exposing and denouncing the aggressive nature of U.S. imperialism and bestialities committed by the U.S. imperialist aggression troops in South Korea, for the South Korean people to fight more courageously against the reactionary scheme of the U.S. imperialists, and to strengthen the democratic national united front for increasing the democratic forces in the northern half of the republic and lay a solid revolutionary democratic base there.

His historic work was a powerful inspiring banner in well informing the entire Korean people of the aggressive nature of the U.S. imperialists who crawled into South Korea right after liberation under the mask of "helper" and their barbarities and rousing our people in the struggle against the U.S. imperialists and for attaining the full sovereignty and independence of the country.

Noting that 35 years have passed since the great leader set forth programmatic tasks to expose and smash the reactionary scheme of the U.S. imperialists, the article goes on:

Due to the South Korean occupation of the U.S. imperialist aggression troops, the ardent desire of our nation for reunification has not yet been realized.

Now the Chon Tu-hwan military fascist clique is making desperate efforts to perpetuate the division of the country in accordance with a script of the U.S. imperialists for national division

The U.S. imperialists are now reinforcing their armed forces in South Korea and continue to turn over modern destructive weapons and combat equipment to the puppets. They even intend to deploy medium-range nuclear missiles and neutron bombs.

Declaring that the danger of war cannot be removed in Korea as long as South Korea remains under the occupation of the U.S. imperialist aggression forces, the article stressed: The most correct path of achieving the reunification of the country at present is to realise the proposal for founding the Democratic Confederal Republic of Koryo.

For its early realisation, we should, first of all, achieve a great unity of the whole nation. To this end, it is important to convene at an early date a conference for the promotion of national reunification which would be a sacred site of consultation of the people who desire reunification for discussing problems to carry the reunification proposal into practice.

The U.S. imperialists should stop running about recklessly and get out of South Korea at once with all their destructive weapons, looking straight into the trend of the times.

We strongly hold that the U.S. authorities must immediately withdraw their aggression forces and lethal weapons from South Korea according to the resolution of the 30th U.N. General Assembly and accept the just proposal of the DPRK to replace the armistice agreement with a peace agreement.

The article says: Comrade Choe Yong-kon was a communist revolutionary who devoted his whole life to the revolution for successfully carrying out the Korean revolution, upholding the chuche-based revolutionary line and policies advanced by the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song and one of the competent activists of our party and state.

In the darkest period of the Japanese imperialist rule, he joined in the glorious anti-Japanese armed struggle organised and guided by the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song and worked at an important post discharging his military and political assignments with a sense of responsibility.

After liberation he held important posts of the party and the state and devotedly struggled for the strengthening and development of the revolutionary power and the revolutionary armed forces and for the rock-firm unity and cohesion of the revolutionary ranks based on the chuche idea.

The whole life of Comrade Choe Yong-kon was the worthwhile life of a genuine revolutionary who firmly grasped with his heart the decisive role of a leader in the revolutionary struggle and the greatness of the respected and beloved leader Comrade Kim Il-song through his experience in life and discharged his revolutionary duties as a soldier of the leader at any time and any place.

For Comrade Choe Yong-kon who, experiencing the sorrows of national ruin, craved for the appearance of an outstanding leader, unable to find a right way of struggle, the respected and beloved leader Comrade Kim Il-song was a benefactor of his political life and a great teacher who brightly illumined the road of the revolution with the radiant rays of chuche.

MINERS CELEBRATE 'DAY OF MINERS'

SK211542 Pyongyang KCNA in English 1510 GMT 21 Sep 81

[Text] Pyongyang September 21 (KCNA)--The coal miners of the Democratic People's Republic of Korea celebrated the Day of Colliers, their red-letter day (September 20).

The great leader Comrade Kim Il-song instituted the Day of Colliers (now Day of Miners), the first holiday of workers in our country, so that they might be highly respected in society and have pride, and showed all sorts of solicitude for them.

Our colliers are leading a happy and worthwhile life under the deep care of the great leader and the glorious party centre.

In the coal miners settlements there are now modern dwelling houses and well-built cultural and welfare facilities as in urban districts.

They are treated like airman. Nutritive dining rooms have been built at coal mines, where the colliers are provided with food free of charge and given sufficient between-meals.

A direct commodity transport system has been established to supply daily necessaries and foodstuffs to them quickly and in large quantity. The state preferentially provides them with TV sets and other cultural appliances.

Their monetary income is very high. The state pays more expenses for their living allowances and various kinds of subsidy than in other domains. Today our colliers are among those whose life is most affluent in our country. The amount of savings of collier families is comparably larger. The pits, once a site of drudgery, have now turned into an underground "paradise." The concreted pits, cutting faces improved by mechanized stope supports, mechanisation and automation of tunnelling, cutting and carrying operations are to be seen in all coal mines.

The colliers only watch the operation of machines or operate them. They are working pleasantly in pits lit by fluorescent lamp and cooled with fresh air.

They enjoy special benefits for their health, receiving ultra-violet treatment both inside and outside pits.

A number of colliers are taking an active part in state affairs as deputies to the Supreme People Assembly and various other levels of people's assemblies. Labour heroes and merited colliers are numerous.

Our colliers who are faithful to the great leader and the glorious party centre are now increasing production to fully meet the growing demand of the national economy for coal.

LSWY MEMBERS ACCOMPLISH FEATS IN PRODUCTION

SK171510 Pyongyang KCNA in English 1501 GMT 17 Sep 81

[Text] Pyongyang September 17 (KCNA)--The Korean young men and women are performing new feats in production and construction with the seventh congress of the League of Socialist Working Youth near at hand.

The LSWY members and youths in the field of mining industry who undertook the task to make the main breach in the fulfillment of the Second Seven-Year Plan (1978-1984) have reported sizable successed in their efforts to increase coal and ore production.

The young miners of the Yongdung Coal Mine built five new "youth cutting faces" and have already produced 20 thousand tons of coal in their drive to beat the 30 thousand ton goal before the seventh congress of the LSWY.

The young miners of the Tokhyon Mine are accelerating in the last stage the building of a large-scale youth cutting site which will produce ore of high content equivalent to the output of a whole pit by applying bold innovation proposals to production.

The youth of the August 8 Factory, a powerful machine production base, nearly doubled the output of ordered equipment in August as against the monthly average in the first half of the year.

The youth of the Songchongang Electric Appliance Plant has increased the output of castings 2.5 times as compared with that early this year by introducing a new method of casting.

Innovative successes are registered by the young workers of other industrial domains including building materials, chemical and textile industries.

INDUSTRY MAKES RAPID DEVELOPMENT

SK191538 Pyongyang KCNA in English 1526 GMT 19 Sep 81

[Text] Pyongyang, September 19 (KCNA)--Korean industry has made rapid progress over the last 33 years since the founding of the Democratic People's Republic of Korea.

Under the wise leadership of the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song the power of the republic from its very inception waged a vigorous struggle for laying the foundation of an independent national economy while preparing the socialist transformation of the relations of production, on the basis of the successes of the democratic revolution.

As a result, the nation's industry far surpassed the preliberation level of production in the period of peaceful construction after the liberation. The industrial output in 1949 was 3.5 times that in 1946.

In the period of the Three-Year Plan after the war the power of the republic rehabilitated the national economy severely destroyed in the war and lifted industrial output 2.8 times.

In the decade-long period from 1961 to 1970 when the all-round industrialisation of the country made headway the industrial output jumped at an annual average rate of 12.8 per cent.

In the 1970s in particular, the glorious party centre, upholding the lofty intention of the great leader, applied the policy of speed campaign to socialist economic construction on an overall scale, creating an immensely high growth rate of economy. During the decade the industrial output recorded an average annual growth rate of 15.9 per cent.

In the current Seven-Year Plan (1978-1984), the gross industrial output jumped by 15-17 per cent during the last three years, much higher than the 12.1 per cent envisaged in the plan.

The industrial output in 1979 was 263.9 times the 1946 figure.

Already in 1977, our industry turned out in 5 days what it produced in the whole year of preliberation 1944.

The self-supply rate of our independent national industry has gone beyond 70 per cent in raw material and fuel and 98 per cent in machinery and equipment.

During the last few years some 3,000 factories, enterprises and other objects of productive construction were completed every year to round off the industrial structure and remarkably increase its potential.

As a result, the Korean industry forms today one comprehensive industrial system in which all the domains of production are organically interlinked from the extraction of raw materials to the production of finished goods.

The Korean industry continues to race ahead at full speed, unaffected by any economic fluctuation.

Many factories and enterprises are energetically waging a drive to fulfill the current Seven-Year Plan far ahead of schedule and successfully attain the grand prospective goals for the 1980s.

At the end of the 1980s the industrial output will be 1,000 times the 1946 figure and our industry will produce in 8 hours what it produced in the whole year of 1946.

PROSPECTS FOR ACHIEVING GRAIN TARGET 'BRIGHT'

SK041134 Pyongyang KCNA in English 1028 GMT 4 Sep 81

[Text] Pyongyang September 4 (KCNA)--The Democratic People's Republic of Korea set herself the goal of raising the annual grain output to 15 million tons in the 1980s.

Fifteen million tons of grain--this is over 8 million tons greater than the total grain output of the North and the South of Korea before liberation or 13.1 million tons more than the total grain output of the northern half of the republic in 1946.

To produce 15 million tons of grain in our country with a limited area of arable land means raising the country's agriculture to the level of the most advanced countries in the world.

When this goal is attained, our country will have considerable food reserves for our people, while supplying a sufficient amount of raw materials and feed to the light industry and stockbreeding.

Today the foundation of agricultural production in our country opens a bright vista for the successful attainment of the grain target in the new long-range objectives.

Electrification and irrigation have already been completed in the countryside and mechanization and chemicalization of agriculture reached a high level. Almost all farm work is done with the help of machines and chemicals.

In particular, we have the great chuche method of farming and competent agro-technicians and agricultural working people armed with modern science and technique to apply the method.

In Korea many efforts are directed to the comprehensive mechanization and chemicalization of agriculture to increase grain output, while a vigorous struggle is going on to expand the area of cultivated land and further improve the seed production and the methods of crop cultivation.

Consequently, 10-12 tractors will be alloted to every 100 hectares of arable land and all the paddy and non-paddy fields be standardized in the near future. And more chemical means of various kinds including chemical fertilizers and agricultural medicines will be produced and sent to the countryside. [as printed]

Then, all farm work will be done by machines and chemicals in the countryside of Korea and the cooperative farms will introduce the 8 hour working-day just as at factories, while producing more grain.

Along with this, 300,000 hectares of tideland will be reclaimed on the western coast of the country till the end of the 1980s and a drive for obtaining more land will be conducted throughout the country to bring 200,000 hectares of more land under cultivation for increasing the grain output by far.

Besides, the production of seed and the method of crop cultivation will be markedly improved to substantially increase per-unit-area yields.

The countryside of Korea will be turned into a better, more abundant people's paradise.

BRIEFS

TRAINING AGROTECHNICIANS--Pyongyang September 4 (KCNA)—Signal successes have been made in the work of training agro-technicians in the Democratic People's Republic of Korea. Our country had a few technicians and specialists in the past. But now each cooperative farm has an average of 57 of them. The number of the technicians and specialists for each cooperative farm has reached 76.4 in South Kwanghae Province, 68 in Nampo Municipality and 67 in North Pyongan Province, main agricultural zones. One of every five agricultural working people is a technician at the Taehongdan County combined farm where comprehensive mechanization is near completion. Under the wise leadership of the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song Korea has directed much efforts to the work of increasing the number of the competent rural technicians in keeping with agriculture being industrialized and becoming highly intensified. In this course, many technicians and specialists armed with modern agro-science and technology were trained in a short time to bring their number for each cooperative farm to 17.5 in 1969 and to 55 in 1976. Today, in our country, the demands for agro-technicians are met locally with one agricultural college operating in each province and one higher agricultural school in each county. REED HARVEST--Pyongyang September 4 (KCNA)—A rich harvest previously unknown is foreseen in the reed fields of "Bidansom" (silk island), one of the nations bases of chemical fibre raw material. An increase of more than 12,000 tons above last years peak is expected there. "Bidansom" which has been created at the estuary of the River Amnok-Gang under a far-reaching plan of the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song is a vast man-made island which has been brought into shape by linking Sindo and several other islands, Mumyongpyong and other tidelands by a dyke stretching more than 100 ri. It has been upturned into reed fields extending thousands of hectares created in this island. The combined farm district committee has developed a strain of reed suitable to the geographical conditions and the climate and soil and introduced scientific methods of cultivation, while raising the proportion of mechanized work and increasing the area of reed fields. Reed output per hectare has gone up systematically. This year it is expected to be 9.6 tons above 15 years ago. A valuable raw material of artificial silk, reed is sent to the Sinuiju chemical fibre mill with an annual production capacity of tens of thousands of tons of chemical fibre. GRAIN STOREHOUSES--Pyongyang September 18 (KCNA)--Many storehouses of rice and maize are now being built in all parts of Korea. Our country has built a great number of those stores in keeping with the increase of grain production thanks to a good harvest every year. Another bumper crop visiting socialist cooperative fields this year, a shortage is felt in rice and maize stores. North Hwanghae Province is repairing 2,400 stores among the existing maize stores and building 1,190 new ones, while building many rice stores. Two hundred new rice and maize storehouses are taking shape in Singye County of the province, in Hwangju County, 439 maize stores are cropping up. In South Hwanghae Province, they are accelerating the building of rice and maize stores to complete them before harvesting. In Haeju, a large-size modern rice storehouse was built to be followed by the construction of another big one. In North Pyongan Province many rice storehouses are under construction in its counties while all the cooperative farms are building makeshift rice and maize stores at the thrashing ground of each workteam by their own efforts. Extensive construction of rice and maize stores is under way in other provinces, too. [Text] [SK181525 Pyongyang KCNA in English 1521 GMT 18 Sep 81]

The publication of the theses on socialist education provided a revolutionary educational doctrine of the working class to bring up revolutionaries successfully not only for today but also for the future communist society.

Indeed, the educational theses is a firm guiding principle for successfully training the reserves of revolution who will shoulder the future of the country and thereby accomplishing the cause of modelling the whole society on the chuche idea.

The truth of the theses on socialist education and its invincible vitality have been fully proved through practice and are given fuller scope as days go by.

In the course of the struggle to implement the method of education has been markedly improved in accordance with the basic principle of socialist pedagogy, with the result that our education has developed as a more revolutionary and chuche-based education and its scientific and theoretical level risen higher.

Along with the increase of social concern and help for education, the material and technical foundations of schools have been further consolidated and educational conditions remarkably bettered. In consequence of the firm establishment of a revolutionary habit of study throughout the country, the quality of teachers and school records of students, the level of general knowledge and technical and cultural level of the working people have markedly risen. A big stride forward has been made also in the struggle for the intellectualization of the whole society.

All these successes gained in the struggle to implement the theses are a brilliant fruition of the energetic guidance of our party to thoroughly materialize the grand plan of the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song.

Our party indicated a clear-cut direction and ways to carry through the theses and leads our people to correctly solve all problems arising in education, from the building up of ranks of educational workers to the improvement of the content of education and the construction of schools.

Recently our party raised problems of principle in improving work with youth and children and improving the quality of education and took epochal steps for this, thus opening a broad vista for making a new advance in the training of the rising generation and in education.

Noting that it is necessary to bring about constant changes in education by continuously and thoroughly implementing the theses on socialist education on the basis of the already achieved successes, the editorial points to tasks for this.

MALTA SEMINAR CALLS KIM CHONG-IL BENEVOLENT LEADER

SK191527 Pyongyang KCNA in English 1518 GMT 19 Sep 81

[Text] Pyongyang, September 19 (KCNA)—C. Farrugia, vice-president of the Women's Socialist League of Malta, made a speech under the title "Political Independence Is the Life and Soul of an Independent and Sovereign State" at the national seminar of Malta on the chuche idea and the question of Korea's reunification which was held in Valetta.

Noting that respected and beloved President Kim Il-song illumined the only right way of building an independent, sovereign state, which poses itself as the universal demand of our time, the age of independence, by defining political independence as the life and soul of an independent, sovereign state, she said:

The chuche idea, a guiding ideology of revolution and construction, finds its embodiment in the principle of independence in political area.

Political independence has two meanings. The first one is to independently formulate and implement lines and policies in the interests of the people of country, and the second one is to exercise the rights to equality and sovereignty in foreign relations.

Political independence presents the fundamental condition for defending the dignity of a country and nation.

It does not accept the privilege of any country.

It is the basic guarantee to energetically push ahead with the building of a new society and thus build an independent and sovereign state.

It is also the prerequisite for successfully realising economic independence and self-reliance in national defence.

Independence in politics, self-support in economy and self-reliance in national defence are the essential criterion and sign of an independent and sovereign state.

The decisive one of the three factors that define the sign of an independent and sovereign state is political independence.

Respected and beloved President Kim Il-song gave a scientific elucidation to the problems confronting an independent and sovereign state in maintaining political independence.

To maintain political independence, it is necessary to have ones own guiding ideology and firmly build up an independent political force.

The Democratic People's Republic of Korea, the homeland of the chuche idea, is firmly maintaining political independence both in its external and internal political activities.

The political independence of the Democratic People's Republic of Korea, founded and led by respected and beloved President Kim Il-song, is defended in succession and brilliantly inherited and developed by the dear leader his excellency Kim Chong-il.

The future of the Democratic People's Republic of Korea blessed with the leadership of his excellency Kim Chong-il, the benevolent leader of the people, is brilliant and the cause of the Korean people is just.

'MINJU CHOSON' CRITICIZES JAPAN DIETMEN'S SEOUL VISIT

SK200923 Pyongyang KCNA in English 0900 GMT 20 Sep 81

[Text] Pyongyang, September 20 (KCNA)--MINJU CHOSON today, commenting on the "ninth general meeting of the South Korea-Japan Parliamentarians League" held in Seoul, brands it as a dangerous compact of treachery and aggression between the South Korean puppets and the Japanese reactionaries.

The author of the commentary headed "Dangerous Compact of Treachery and Aggression" says: At the meeting the puppets again demanded "economic aid for security" of Japan, crying about the fictitious "arms buildup of the North" and "threat from the North," and the Japanese side promised "active cooperation," backing the puppets assertion, and made this clear in a "joint statement."

As shown by the course of the meeting and the "joint statement," the "ninth general meeting of the South Korea-Japan Parliamentarians League" was a dangerous bargain of treachery and aggression for further tightening the dark fusion between the South Korean puppets and the Japanese reactionaries on the basis of the hostile attitude towards us and openly disclosing this.

In the "joint statement" they attempted to shift the responsibility for the heightened tension in the Korean peninsula on to us. This reminds one of a thief calling others thief.

The puppets ranted that "South Korea and Japan are one in security" and begged Japan for a collosal amount of "aid for security" from the "stand of regional security," saying that South Korea is an "anti-communist bastion" and "breakwater for Japan's security." This is a wicked intention to further intensify preparations for war against us on the strength of Japan and prop up the power under Japan's patronage by selling off South Korea to outside forces.

At the "general meeting" the Japanese Dietmen, chiming in with the preposterous jargon of the puppets about "southward invasion," promised their active "cooperation for security."

They "highly appraised" the puppets "efforts for defence," expressed "sympathy with the situation" of South Korea caused by "heavy military spendings" and manifested their readiness to make "all sincere efforts for cooperation for security" and went the length of supporting the Chon Tu-hwan clique's splittist "mutual visit proposal." This strips naked the wild desire of the Japanese reactionaries to step up the political, economic and military infiltration into South Korea under the cloak of "cooperation" as well as their real color as an accomplice of the Chon Tu-hwan clique in the splittist and belligerent manoeuvres.

The agenda item of the "general meeting of the South Korea-Japan Parliamentarians League" held in Seoul, the course of the meeting and the "joint statement" issued at the end of it prove that the tieup between the Chon Tu-hwan fascist clique and the Japanese reactionary forces is being stepped up at an accelerated tempo in all domains, political, economic and military.

Noting that the new "fusion" and criminal collusion and tieup between the South Korean puppets and the Japanese reactionaries proceed from the U.S. imperialists' Korean strategy aimed to keep hold on South Korea, the commentary stressed:

This cannot be tolerated for peace in Korea and her peaceful reunification and peace and security in Asia.

We are vigilantly following the tieup between the South Korean puppets and the Japanese reactionaries and will not overlook the criminal manoeuvres of treachery and aggression.

JSP DIETMAN'S IMPRESSIONS OF DPRK CITED

SK211036 Pyongyang KCNA in English 1000 GMT 21 Sep 81

[Text] Tokyo, September 19 (KNS-KCNA)--Kanejiro Tate, socialist member of the House of Representatives of Japan, who visited our country from July 21 to 28 gave his impressions of Korea, according to CHOSON SINBO.

He said: Narita, former chairman of the Japan Socialist Party, would say: "Go and see Korea, if you want to follow socialism. Don't talk about socialism before seeing her." Therefore, I visited the DPRK, together with young men in Gifu Prefecture, to show them real socialism. It was six years since I had visited there last.

I was astonished when I found that the surroundings or Pyongyang had changed beyond recognition and the modernisation of the city was progressing rapidly. I enjoyed a bird's-eye view of Pyongyang on the Pyongyang Students' and Children's Palace. Cranes, big and small, were moving here and there. They told me clearly that the construction of the country was going on without interruption.

These days the United States and South Korea are crying over the "military superiority of the North" and "threat from the North." But the reality of the DPRK convinced me that all efforts are directed to the modernisation of the country and improvement of the people's living. The young men who accompanied me say in unison that they saw true socialism in the DPRK. The young men lay great hopes and expectation on the DPRK.

He went on to say: I saw the wall afar off from Panmunjom. The South Korean authorities claim that it is to "prevent" the "threat from the North." But there can be no "threat from the North." Visiting Panmunjom, I keenly felt that the U.S. troops must be withdrawn because it is the prerequisite to the reunification of Korea.

President Kim Il-song put forward the proposal for founding the Democratic Confederal Republic of Koryo, a new reunification proposal in October last year. As it is a realistic and just one acceptable to all, it is evoking warm support and sympathy among the world progressive people.

I could feel the will of the DPRK to achieve the reunification of the country at any cost through the realization of the new reunification proposal. While visiting Panmunjom I also felt that Korea must be reunified at an early date.

Noting that shining successes have been made in nature protection in Korea owing to energetic efforts of the whole people for implementing the government of republics popular policy of nature protection through an all-people movement under the wise guidance of the great leader President Kim Il-song, the letter stresses:

Full credit of the brilliant successed made in nature protection must go to respected and beloved President Kim Il-song of our people who founded the chuche-based idea of nature protection and leads this work under a far-reaching plan of the country along the road of victory.

Our experiences show that a country can develop constantly and rapidly its independent economy by relying on its own resources when it undertakes nature protection as an all-people work in a united context by combining protection of nature with natural reconstruction on the principle of organically linking development and protection by firmly adhering to the chuche-based viewpoint that nature must be protected and controlled in the interest of the masses of working people.

The letter goes on: The problem of nature protection is not a local and regional problem, but a problem to be solved on a global scale amid the concern of whole mankind.

Therefore, all the world enthusiasts in nature protection must bend joint efforts to have the idea of nature conservation for the happiness and prosperity of mankind realized in all countries and all regions on the globe.

If the new-emerging countries which advocate independence want to successfully build an independent economy, they must maintain an independent and principled stand toward nature conservation.

The nature of the new-emerging countries is destroyed because the imperialists harshly robbed them of natural resources for a long historical period and are now still plundering the developing countries of their natural resources in reliance upon the old international economic order.

The new-emerging countries should wage an energetic struggle to eradicate the source of international plunder of resources and defend the permanent sovereignty over the home natural resources so that they may be exploited for the promotion of the well-being of their people.

If the new-emerging countries which occupy the greater part of the raw material resources of the world fight jointly, they will not be plundered of resources in bondage to unequal economic relations, but realize the demand of their peoples.

When the new-emerging countries establish a new economic order to put an end to all forms of arbitrariness of the imperialists and closely like the development of natural resources with their conservation, nature of the country will be a true source of material wealth for the promotion of the well-being of the popular masses.

Pointing out that the U.S. imperialists occupying South Korea and the puppet clique are destroying natural resources in their frenzied preparations to provoke a war of aggression for massacring our people, the letter continues:

Still today nature of South Korea is being utterly destroyed by the Chon Tu-hwan military fascist clique and the whole land of South Korea has turned into a hell on the earth, a grave of all lives, unfit not only for man's life but also for the habitation of all living things.

We can never leave the beautiful nature and rich resources of the fatherland on the altar of the United States and the Chon Tu-hwan fascist group.

We consider that the only way of retaking nature of the country and protecting it is to reunify the country.

We must reunify the country at the earliest date possible in accordance with the proposal for founding the Democratic Confederal Republic of Koryo, a reunification proposal which the great leader of our people President Kim Il-song put forward, vividly reflecting the reality of our country divided into north and south and fully taking into consideration the interests of north and south and even the interests of the neighbouring countries.

We are convinced that you, all the enthusiasts in the protection of nature, will always actively support and encourage the struggle for realizing the desire of the Korean enthusiasts in the protection of nature to build a happy paradise of our people on this land by reunifying the country and protecting its nature in a unified way.

We will devote all efforts together with you to the noble work for protecting nature on the globe for the prosperity and happiness of mankind, in the future, too.

YUGOSLAV ARTICLE ON KOREA CITED

SK230836 Pyongyang KCNA in English 0810 GMT 23 Sep 81

[Text] Pyongyang September 23 (KCNA)--The Yugoslav journal FRONT September 4 carried an article titled "Artificial Division," according to a report.

The journal says: The Korean people who lived a homogeneous nation have been divided into north and south by the military demarcation line.

The puppet regime of South Korea where U.S. troops are stationed is heightening the wall of Korean division, making much ado about fictitious "threat of southward invasion."

The puppet regime stretched barbed wire entanglements and even built a concrete wall along the demarcation line. Military setups of the U.S. troops and the South Korean puppet army are distributed along the military demarcation line.

Almost every day South Korea is a theatre of military exercises. In recent three years alone, "Team Spirit-81" and other joint exercises of U.S. troops and the South Korean puppet army have been staged on countless occasions.

Innumerable likewise are the provocations committed by the South Korean puppet army in the demilitarized zone.

Noting that the Democratic People's Republic of Korea, a member nation of the non-aligned movement, which is building a socialism, has made consistent efforts for the reunification of the country, it notes:

The Democratic People's Republic of Korea put forward new proposals for the reunification of the country on more than 150 occasions.

At the sixth congress of the Workers Party of Korea held some time ago, President Kim Il-song advanced a proposal to found the Democratic Confederal Republic of Koryo, a new initiative for reunifying the divided fatherland.

It is underlined in the ten-point policy of the unified state that the U.S. troops must be withdrawn from South Korea, the military demarcation line be removed and all the military setups be destroyed.

All the efforts of the DPRK to reunify the country enjoy an active support of the non-aligned movement. Yugoslavia expressed many a time its stand supporting the reunification of Korea. All the documents of the non-aligned countries note that Korea must be reunified and the situation on the Korean peninsula is a constant threat to peace and security in the world.

In conclusion, the journal says that the Korean people will pull down the artificial wall of division with the support of all the revolutionary and progressive forces of the world.

'NODONG SINMUN' SCORES S. AFRICA'S 'AGGRESSIVE' ACTS

SK060904 Pyongyang KCNA in English 0850 GMT 6 Sep 81

[Text] Pyongyang, September 6 (KCNA)--NODONG SINMUN today carries a commentary titled "We Denounce Racist Aggression Against Angola" in connection with the even more wanton aggressive manoeuvres of the South African racists against Angola. The author of the commentary says:

The aggressive acts of the South African racists against Angola render the situation in this region strained and gravely threaten peace and security in southern Africa.

The Korean people bitterly denounce the aggressive acts of the South African racists and strongly demand the discontinuation of aggression on Angola.

The terrorist attack of the South African racists on Angola, a sovereign state, is a grave infringement upon the sovereignty of Angola and its territorial integrity. It shows that they are a band of robbers who ignore international law and take no notice of others' boundary.

Botha, boss of the South African racists, is trying to justify the aggressive acts against Angola, claiming that these acts are to "chase and mop up" the Namibian guerrillas. This vividly reveals the heinous nature of the racists who stoop to any infamy without hesitation, for their aggressive purpose.

Exposing that the racists are trying to obliterate the liberation struggle of the people in Namibia and intensify aggressive manoeuvres against the neighbouring countries in order to keep them from supporting Namibia, the commentary continues: By their ceaseless acts of military aggression, the South African racists are trying to undermine the building of a new society by the young Angolan people, create confusion and cow them with military threat and blackmail so they may not support and encourage the struggle of the Namibian people. It is for this very aim that the racists are intensifying their military attack these days. But, it does not frighten the Angolan people.

Recently, the Angolan president denounced the aggressive manoeuvres of the racists and declared that in the future, too, the Angolan people will support the Namibian and South African people's struggle against racism, this showed the invariable, resolute stand of the Angolan people.

It is with the zealous encouragement and support of the imperialists that the South African racists are running about arrogantly today. No matter how desperately the imperialists and racists may attempt, however, they cannot maintain the racist rule which has outlived its days.

The southern African people's struggle to liquidate the South African racists, a part of the struggle to achieve a complete liberation of the African continent, will surely end in victory.

[Text] Pyongyang September 8 (KCNA)--The Central Committee of the Workers Party of Korea arranged a banquet in honour of the Finnish solidarity delegation for Korea's Reunification composed of parliamentarians from different political parties at the People's Palace of Culture on the evening of September 7.

Invited to the banquet were the members of the delegation headed by Matti Ahde, parliamentarian from the Finnish Social Democratic Party, chairman of the parliamentary group of the party and member of the executive committee of the Central Committee of the party.

The banquet was attended by Comrade Kim Yong-nam, member of the Political Bureau, and secretary, of the Central Committee of the Workers Party of Korea, and Kim Yong-sun and other personages concerned.

At the banquet Comrade Kim Yong-nam spoke first.

He said: The energetic activities the members of the delegation have conducted, warmly supporting the national reunification policy of our party put forward by the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song, demanding the U.S. troops withdrawal from South Korea and denouncing the South Korean military fascist dictatorship were a great help and encouragement to our cause.

Our just cause has enlisted support and encouragement from friends of many countries all over the world.

The United States and the Chon Tu-hwan fascist clique of South Korea persist in the "two Koreas" plot and has of late brought the tension to the highest pitch in our country by faking up the "incident" of the high-altitude reconnaissance plane "SR-71." If tension is to be removed in Korea and peace and security are to be guaranteed in Asia and the world, it is necessary to frustrate the manoeuvres of the splittists within and without and achieve the reunification of Korea.

Head of the delegation Matti Ahde spoke next.

He said: The Finnish president and people make every effort possible for world peace and security. The Finns know well that President Kim Il-song, the great leader of the Korean people, is making energetic efforts for world peace and security.

We know well how ardently your people desire the reunification of the country. This desire of your people is in a way the desire of the world people.

The members of my delegation, he said, will discuss various problems for solidarity with the Korean people during this visit.

The attendants raised glasses to the good health and long life of the great leader of our people Comrade Kim Il-song and to the good health and long life of his excellency Urho Kekkonen, president of the Republic of Finland.

DIVORCE RATE DOUBLES

Seoul THE KOREA TIMES in English 25 Jul 81 p 5

[Text]

The divorce rate in Korea has doubled, in the past ten years ('67-'76) marking 0.66 percent, compared to 0.31 percent in the previous decade ('57-'66), a study conducted by the Korea Family Legal Affairs Center shows.

The study includes a comparison of data among the nine major cities in the nation. Cheju Island had the highest divorce rate of 1.04 percent, and Pusan marked second with 0.74 percent, Seoul and Taejon both scored 0.72 percent, Chongju 0.71 percent, Chonju 0.67 percent, Taegu 0.59 percent, Kwangju 0.56 percent, and Chunchon had the lowest rate of 0.49 percent.

The study points to the fact that the woman of Cheju Island are known for their economic leadership in the family. This characteristic, according to the researchers, could account for the high divorce rate on the island. Considering the fact that Pusan is a port city a majority of whose people are engaged in occupations that require much traveling, it is no surprise that the city stands second in the national divorce rate.

On the contrary, it took many people by surprise that Seoul had a considerably low divorce rate despite the fact that it is the most developed and the major urban center of the country, for it is generally believed that civilization and urban life are the main causes of divorce.

The research also compares the divorce rate of Korea to those of foreign countries. The U.S. had the highest divorce rate in the world at 4.8 percent, Sweden the second highest with 3.14 percent, and Rhodesia 2.98 percent. The countries with low divorce rates include El Salvador (0.32 percent), Northern Ireland (0.28 percent), and Mexico marked the lowest in the world with a rate of 0.27 percent.

Compared to the general tendency of increasing divorce rate in the world, divorce in Korea is not that big an issue of yet.

It should be further noted that Korea has not been under strong Catholic influence, but has been one of the few countries allowing divorce on a mutual agreement basis. Considering this historic background which could have resulted in a rapid increase in the divorce rate, the experts pointed to the fact that Korean cultural norms and its traditional value system have prevented such a mishap.

'NODONG SINMUN' MARKS 'AUTUMN STRUGGLE' VICTORY

SK231049 Pyongyang KCNA in English 1033 GMT 23 Sep 81

[Text] Pyongyang, 23 Sep (KCNA)--NODONG SINMUN today dedicates an article to the 50th anniversary of the victory in the autumn struggle organized and led by the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song in Jiandao adjoining the northern border area of Korea.

The massive autumn struggle from September to December 1931 waged with the participation of more than 100,000 Korean peasants in the whole area of Jiandao was an event worthy of special mention in the history of our people's anti-Japanese revolutionary struggle and an epochal event which marked a milestone in the training of hardcore and building of mass foundation for the preparation of an anti-Japanese revolutionary war.

In its article titled "Great Guidance That Led Korean Revolution To an Upsurge in Rigorous Ordeal" NODONG SINMUN says: The great leader Comrade Kim Il-song, with his sharp penetration into the socio-economic conditions of Jiandao created around the Japanese imperialists invasion of Manchuria in September 1931 and the situation rendered acute by the counterrevolutionary offensive of the Japanese imperialists, aroused the peasants in the vast area of Jiandao to an autumn struggle from September 1931.

Under his wise guidance, the struggle committee developed their struggle to cut the farm lent to a political struggle against the Japanese imperialists, reactionary warlords and reactionary landlords in keeping with a higher upsurge of the fighting spirit of the peasants. [Sentence as received]

As a result, more than 100,000 peasants all over Jiandao including Yanji, Wangqing, and Holung counties fought it out till victory, not yileding to the sanguinary suppression by the Japanese imperialist police and reactionary warlords.

The autumn struggle, which holds a shining place in the anti-Japanese revolutionary struggle of our people, could end in a great victory under the wise guidance of the respected and beloved leader.

The time when he organised and led the autumn struggle was a period when the Korean revolution was going through great ordeals in consequent upon the "left" adventurist blind 30 May uprising masterminded by sectarian flunkeys.

The great leader Comrade Kim Il-song, with a heavy sense of duty to lead the Korean revolution to victory, assuming the responsibility for it to the end, and determination to save the Korean revolution from the crisis and develop it, went round towns and villages under a strict watch of the Japanese imperialist police and secret agents, rehabilitated the destroyed revolutionary organisations and rallied the masses around them by educating them.

For this energetic struggle of the great leader, the Korean revolution overcame the test and resumed the course to upswing in a little more than 1 year after the 30 May uprising which had entailed so devastating consequences and there broke out at last the massive autumn struggle that sent a storm of revolution all over East Manchuria.

The autumn struggle organized and led by him carried enormous significance in pushing through the revolutionary organisational line indicated at the meeting of party and young communist league cadres held at Mingyuegou in May 1931, and dealt a serious blow to the implementation of the Japanese imperialists policy of continential aggression.

COUNTRY MARKS 24 SEPTEMBER DAY OF POWER WORKERS

[Text] Pyongyang, 24 Sep (KCNA)--September 24 is marked as day of power workers every year in Korea. On this day 1945 right after liberation the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song visited workers in the domain of the power industry and brightly indicated the road to be followed by them.

The working people in this domain are significantly marking their red-letter day with a fuller supply of electricity to different domains of the national economy. Entering September, the power workers throughout the country are surpassing the daily power production quotas by an average of 760,000 kwh.

The Ministry of Power Industry carried out the August plan of power production at 104 percent. In August power output showed an increase of 53.1 percent at the Tongnogang power station, 22.9 percent at the Sodusu power station and 10.8 percent at the Hochongang power station above the same month of last year.

The workers of the Pukchang thermal power plant and the Pyongyang thermal power plant are normalizing the production on a high level by renewing technical regulations and introducing a new method of operation.

A vigorous drive for increasing generating capacity is going on in Korea to fully satisfy the demand for power which is sharply growing along with the high tempo of development in production and construction.

The construction of the Chongjin thermal power plant is progressing apace and one more generator is on the eve of commissioning at the large-scale Pukchang thermal power plant. A large number of medium- and small-scale power stations and lockgate power stations are under construction in different parts of the country.

Nearly 60 medium- and small-scale power stations were commissioned after the 19th plenary meeting of the Fifth Central Committee of the Workers Party of Korea (December 1979) which put forward the policy of building dikes on rivers and constructing many hydropower stations. And the construction of more power stations of this type has already begun.

The Workers Party of Korea and the government of the DPRK have laid a reliable self-supporting power production base knowing no power crisis, by consistently pursuing the policy of properly combining the building of hydropower stations and that of thermal power plants and keeping the construction of large-scale power stations and medium- and small-scale ones in parallel to develop the power industry.

The annual production of 100,000 million kwh of electricity is a target to be attained till the last year of the 1980's in Korea. When this goal is attained, per capita power output will reach 5,200 kwp.

He said: We in Zambia have noted with deep sense of appreciation, the commitment of your revolutionary party under the respected and great leader, President Kim Il-song, to raise the living standards of the people of Korea and also your declaration to uphold the importance of this principle, as one of the party's activities and most important task. He said that the successes achieved by the Korean people after the war were a source of great inspiration to them.

He continued: I have confidence that this country, with its determined and wise leadership is poised even for greater successes. We in Zambia support your three principles of independence, peaceful reunification and great national unity as a basic programme of reunification of Korea. We firmly believe that as a matter of principle, the people of one nation should not be divided by outside imperialist forces. We do not approve of foreign troops on the soil of other countries, in the context of great power conflicts and rivalries. We are also opposed to the use of force in international relations and strongly propagate the necessity to refrain from interfering in the internal affairs of other states. It is from the foregoing, therefore, that we sympathise with your genuine and anxious desire for assurance of peace in the Korea region.

You may rest assured that the people of Zambia, the party-UNIP and the government, are ready to support and encourage initiatives that are aimed at creating a world where there will prevail peace, where humanity shall be united through faith in democracy, in the rule of law and the dignity or equality of man. We in Zambia and indeed Third World at large have a lot to learn from this great country.

The wise decision of the leadership of this great country to commit your national economy to the chuche-orientated idea with a modern scientific basis is in itself a great testimony of your commitment to the betterment of the living standards not only of the peoples of Korea, but even of that of the outside world.

Referring to the situation in southern Africa, he went on: Korea under the wise and respected leadership of the great leader, his excellency the president, Kim Il-song, has supported, and continues to support the cause of the liberation movements in southern Africa. For this, Zambia and other frontline states appreciate greatly. As southern Africa continues to be a hot spot and a threat to international peace and security, we humbly urge all friends of Africa like the Korean people to double their political, economic, material and diplomatic support of the frontline states and liberation movements in southern Africa in order to bring to an end the rule by the racist regime.

We in Zambia consider this great country as a faithful partner in the common struggle against poverty, hunger, ignorance, and exploitation of man by man. We also hope that our joint efforts in this direction will become a model of cooperation between developing countries.

In conclusion he said: It is my sincere hope that our visit to this remarkable land will achieve yet another step forward on the path of strengthening the existing relationship between our two countries on the basis of understanding and cooperation in all fields of human endeavour, namely; political, economic, cultural, scientific and technological developments.

Hwang Chang-yop Addresses Party

SK290439 Pyongyang KCNA in English 0404 GMT 29 Sep 81

[Text] Pyongyang, 29 Sep (KCNA)--Hwang Chang-yop, chairman of the Standing Committee of the Supreme People's Assembly, made a speech at a party the Standing Committee of the Supreme People's Assembly of the Democratic People's Republic of Korea arranged on 28 September in honour of the delegation of the National Assembly of the Republic of Zambia headed by Robinson Mwaakwe Nabulyato, chairman of the National Assembly of Zambia.

Noting that the friendly and cooperative relations between the Korean and Zambian peoples have daily consolidated and developed since a historic meeting between the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song and his excellency esteemed President Kenneth David Kaunda in Pyongyang in April last year and along the road indicated by a new milestone marked on that occasion, he said: Since the country's independence and the resourceful Zambian people have been vigorously struggling to build a new society free from exploitation and oppression in accordance with the program for the construction of a socialist society. They are making a big advance in the struggle to build a national economy on the principle of self-reliance and do away with the aftermaths of the colonial rule, decisively repulsing the provocative attacks and subversive manoeuvres and sabotages of the South African racists backed by the imperialists.

We sincerely rejoice over all the successes achieved by the friendly Zambian people in the building of a new society and express the conviction that they will win great victory in the future struggle for the development and prosperity of the country, firmly rallied under the United National Independence Party of Zambia headed by President Kenneth David Kaunda, their outstanding leader. We are convinced that the day is not far off when accursed colonialism and racism will be totally liquidated in Africa.

He continued: Our people's struggle for reunifying the divided country is one of the main links in the anti-imperialist national-liberation struggle which is going on throughout the world.

At the Sixth Congress of the Workers Party of Korea Comrade Kim Il-song, the great leader of our people, put forward the new proposal for reunifying the country by means of founding the Democratic Confederal Republic of Koryo. To carry this proposal into effect, the political parties and social organizations in the northern half of the DPRK made public in August last a joint statement calling for convening a conference for the promotion of national reunification to be represented by all the parties, groupings and personages of all strata at home and abroad desirous of reunification. This proposal we put forward is a very fair and reasonable step for national salvation in view of the character of the question of national reunification, of the present situation of our country and of the desires and aspirations of the nation and enjoys the active support and approval of the people of broad segments throughout the world.

Availing myself of this opportunity, I express deep thanks to the Zambian Government and people for their active support to and solidarity with the just struggle of our people to force the U.S. troops out of South Korea and achieve the independent and peaceful reunification of the country.

In conclusion, he declared: The Korean people value the friendship and solidarity with the Zambian people and will make every effort to further consolidate and develop them.

PAPERS HAIL ZAMBIAN PARLIAMENTARIANS' VISIT

SK280451 Pyongyang KCNA in English 0419 GMT 28 Sep 81

[Text] Pyongyang, 28 Sep (KCNA)--Papers here today print editorial articles welcoming the visit to Korea by a delegation of the National Assembly of the Republic of Zambia headed by Robinson Mwaakwe Nabulyato, chairman of the National Assembly of Zambia.

A NODONG SINMUN article headlined "Warm Welcome to Guests From Zambia" says: The Korean people warmly welcome the goodwill envoys of the Zambian people who are fighting to liquidate the rule of colonialism and racism in southern Africa and achieve the complete liberation of the African continent.

It goes on: The visit of the National Assembly delegation of the Republic of Zambia to our country will mark an important occasion in further strengthening and developing the relations of friendship and cooperation between the peoples of Korea and Zambia forged in the common struggle against imperialism and for independence. It will also contribute to consolidating the bonds of friendship between our people and the African people who are closely linked with each other for the common goal and ideal and to strengthening the solidarity of the Nonaligned Movement.

Nonaligned countries, both Korea and Zambia are advancing shoulder to shoulder on the same front for the common goal of opposing imperialism, colonialism and racism and building an independent, new life.

The visit of His Excellency President Kenneth David Kaunda, the outstanding leader of the Zambian people, to our country last year was a historic event of epochal significance in developing the friendly and cooperative relations between our two countries.

The government and people of the Republic of Zambia consistently adhere to the principled stand of recognizing only the Democratic People's Republic of Korea as the sole legitimate state of the Korean nation and actively support the struggle of our people for the withdrawal of all foreign troops from South Korea and the independent and peaceful reunification of the country. The Korean people are deeply grateful for this. Our people are happy to have the Zambian people as their close friend and comrade-in-arms on the African continent.

The Zambian people are a courageous people who won their national independence through a protracted and persistent struggle for freedom and liberation and have embarked upon the road of building a worthy new life. After the independence they put up the policy of building "a socialist humanitarian society" and vigorously forged ahead along the road of building a new society free from exploitation and oppression. The struggle of the Zambian people for the building of a new life is being waged under difficult conditions created by the ceaseless provocative attacks, subversive manoeuvres and sabotages of the imperialists and racists. But the Zambian people are successfully struggling to build an independent national economy on the principle of self-reliance and liquidate poverty, a leftover of the colonial rule, and all its consequences.

Pursuing the foreign policy of nonalignment, the government and people of the Republic of Zambia actively support the liberation struggle of the oppressed nations of the world and extend material and moral support particularly to the struggle of the peoples of southern Africa to sweep away the barbarous racial system. As a result, Zambia now enjoys support and sympathy from many friends of the world.

Our people hope that the friendly Zambian people, rallied close around the Zambian United National Independence Party, will make greater advance in their future struggle for the development and prosperity of the country.

MINJU CHOSON in an article says that the Korean people will continue to make all efforts to further develop and strengthen the friendly and cooperative relations with the Zambian people.

General Secretary Om Prakash Mantri spoke next. He said that he was happy to visit Korea where there are Marshal Kim Il-song, respected, beloved and great leader of the entire Korean nation and the most outstanding leader of the international communist and working-class movement, and national liberation and nonaligned movements in the world, and the dear leader Comrade Kim Chong-il who is in charge of the whole work of the party and state and is making immortal exploits for the country and people with his outstanding leadership and noble virtues as genuine and wise leader of the party and people.

After giving his impressions of Korea which he had visited twice, he said: I have come to this great country again. This time my visit is more significant, because I have come here to write a book on the occasion of the 70th birthday of the great leader, genius of revolution of our times and great thinker and theoretician, and make my humble contribution to his 70th birthday, the auspicious holiday of the Korean people and the world peace-loving people. I have come here also to see the latest achievements and successes of the Korean people under the wise leadership of the great leader and the dear leader.

Giving his impressions of Mangyongdae, he noted: There are many leaders and revolutionaries in the world. But history never knows such a patriotic and revolutionary family as that of the great leader who fought against all kinds of oppression and injustice for the freedom and liberation of the people through generations. Indeed, the birth of the great leader in Mangyongdae was the appearance of the lodestar, the sun of the nation, which would save the destiny of the country and the nation and lead the Korean revolution along the road of victory and glory.

He continued: The great leader Comrade Kim Il-song is truly the benevolent father of the people who was born among the people. He has shared joys and sorrows with the people and devoted his all for the independent and creative life of the people.

Sincerely speaking, you, the Korean people who make revolution holding the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song in high esteem, are the happiest and most glorious people in the world.

The problem of taking over the revolutionary cause of a leader, the solution of which the world people have been longing for, has been brilliantly solved in Korea today by holding in high esteem dear Comrade Kim Chong-il as wise leader, who is the perfect personifier of Kimilsongism and genious of creation and construction. Looking up to the image of the dear leader who is possessed of bright wisdom and unusual perspicacity and give profound and full answers to all problems arising in all fields including politics, economy, military affairs, education, literature and art, publication and information, etc, I had a firm conviction that he is just the wise leader who will take over and complete the revolutionary cuase of chuche started by the great leader.

The dear leader Comrade Kim Chong-il has fully embodies the revolutionary idea of the great leader with his brilliant wisdom and dynamic study and developed and enriched the treasure-house of Kimilsongism through his unique ideological and theoretical activities.

The idea and theory put forward by the dear leader are the profound and all-round idea and theory which he has fully taken over the idea and theories of the great leader and enriched and developed them in accordance with the requirement of modelling the whole party and the whole society on the chuche idea.

The dear leader who clarifies the correct fighting policy and the fighting slogan on the basis of the great idea and theory has shown unusual leading ability and wisdom in leading the revolutionary struggle and construction.

The dear leader Comrade Kim Chong-il is the benevolent leader of the people who has the noble character of ardent love for the people. Indeed, the dear leader is the wise leader who leads the people along the road to victory with continuous thinking and research, and dynamic guidance in order to complete the revolutionary cause of chuche started by the great leader. Glorious and bright is the future of Korea holding in high esteem dear Comrade Kim Chong-il as a great leader. Holding the great leader and the dear leader in high esteem is not only the pleasure of the entire Korean people but also the great pleasure and glory of all of us genuine friends of the Korean people.

Noting that national reunification, the national desire and urgent desire of the Korean people, has not yet been achieved, he said: The three principles and five-point policy for the peaceful and independent reunification of Korea are well known to the world. In particular, the proposal for founding a Democratic Confederal Republic of Koryo and the 10-point policy of a reunified state newly clarified by the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song at the Sixth Congress of the Workers Party of Korea is the reunification programme which is based on the successes achieved in the long-drawn struggle for national reunification and most correctly reflects the actual conditions of Korea.

The proposal to found a confederal republic set forth by the great leader is the most realistic and reasonable national salvation programme to realize the independent and peaceful reunification of the country on the three principles of independence, peaceful reunification and great national unity.

I have no doubt that the U.S. aggressors will be driven out from South Korea without fail and Korea will be surely reunified in the near future under the wise leadership of the great leader and the dear leader.

Together with the Korean people, the Indian people and the peace-loving people of the world are making preparations to celebrate the great leader's 70th birthday on a grand scale because he is the outstanding leader of the world revolution, he said.

India and Korea are both nonaligned Asian countries. We have traditional bonds of friendship from olden days.

The meeting between the great President Kim Il-song and Prime Minister of India Mrs Indira Gandhi in Belgrade, the capital of Yugoslavia, made great contribution to further strengthening this friendship. The Workers Party of Korea has already established fraternal relations with the Congress Party headed by Mrs Indira Gandhi.

I will continue to introduce and propagate the immortal chuche idea widely to the world and work wholeheartedly for the cause of the Korean revolution and reunification of Korea.

TASS CITED ON TRIANGULAR ALLIANCE--Pyongyang, 28 Sep (KCNA)--TASS recently published an article exposing the scheme of the U.S. and Japanese ruling quarters to knock into shape a triangular military alliance with South Korea. TASS said: Japanese and United States ruling circles are trying to fasten South Korea more firmly to the aggressive foreign policy of imperialism in the Far East. The newspaper YOMIURI reported that the talks between U.S. deputy defence secretary and leaders of Japan's foreign policy and military departments will be held in Tokyo late in September. The aim of the talks is to study means of intensifying cooperation in the military sphere with the South Korean regime and to widen the framework of the operation of the Japanese-U.S. security treaty through spreading it to the south of the Korean peninsula. The newspaper expressed the opinion that it is intended to seal legally the tripartite military alliance of the United States, Japan and South Korea. According to the plan of American and Japanese military strategists, not only U.S. military units but also units of the Japanese "self-defence forces" will be sent to the south of the Korean peninsula in case of "emergency." But this contradicts the statement of the Japanese Government that its policy envisages only "passive" defence, the newspaper writes. [Text] [SK281100 Pyongyang KCNA in English 1053 GMT 28 Sep 81]

DFRF LEADER REVILES KOREA-U.S. TREATY CENTENNIAL

SK260428 Pyongyang KCNA in English 0341 GMT 26 Sep 81

[Text] Pyongyang September 26 (KCNA)--Ho Chong-suk, director of the Secretariat of the Central Committee of the Democratic Front for the Reunification of the Fatherland [DFRF], on September 25 published a talk denouncing the scheme of the Chon Tu-hwan group to "commemorate" the centenary of the signing of the "Korea-U.S. friendship and trade treaty."

She sharply denounced with bitter national resentment the criminal scheme of the Chon Tu-hwan group which has of late framed up a "government"-sponsored tool called "civilian promotion committee for the commemoration of the centenary of the Korea-U.S. amity" and decided to grandly "commemorate" under its sponsorship the centenary of the signing of the so-called "Korea-U.S. friendship and trade treaty" in May next year.

She said:

As for the "Korea-U.S. friendship and trade treaty," it was, to all intents and purposes, an aggressive and predatory unequal treaty in view of the background of its signing and of its content.

It is a shackling treaty which the U.S. imperialists signed unilaterally with the corrupt and incompetent feudal rulers of Korea in May 1882 through swindle with hypocritic honeyed words to protect them from Japan's aggression, after suffering repeated shameful setbacks in their armed invasion of Korea for laying a springboard for Asian aggression.

The treaty granted to the U.S. imperialists unrestricted "rights" to freely commit aggression and plunder in Korea, while imposing upon the then Korean Government only the obligation to guarantee conditions for the exercise of all these "rights" by the U.S. imperialists.

The "Korea-U.S. friendship and trade treaty" was a criminal document which opened a broad way of aggression on Korea to the U.S. imperialists in all the political, economic, cultural and military fields.

Therefore, the day when this aggressive treaty was signed is a disgraceful day evoking national resentment from our Korean people.

Nevertheless, the Chon Tu-hwan group is today scheming to grandly "commemorate" this disgraceful day, the day of the U.S. imperialists crime. This makes it self-evident that it is the most despicable traitor and ridiculous pro-U.S. flunkeyist without a shred of national conscience and dignity.

In the business of "commemoration of the centenary of South Korea-U.S. amity," the Chon Tu-hwan traitor group pursues the sinister aim of leaving South Korea as the permanent colony and military base of the U.S. imperialists and gratifying its desire of long-term office under their patronage.

The Korean people will never be a calm onlooker to this unpardonable treacherous scheme of the Chon Tu-hwan group.

The treacherous business of "commemoration of the centenary of South Korea-U.S. amity" in South Korea must be immediately brought to an end.

The South Korean people who desire the sovereignty of the nation and the reunification and independence of the country should come out against the treacherous "commemoration" business of the traitors.

Availing myself of this opportunity I earnestly appeal to anyone in South Korea who truly loves the country and the nation to rise up determinedly in the anti-U.S., anti-fascist struggle for democracy and national salvation to terminate the colonial fascist rule of the U.S. imperialists and their stooges and accelerate the independent and peaceful reunification of the country.

DPRK PAPER FLAYS CHON'S ADDRESS ON CIVIL DEFENSE CORPS

SK251524 Pyongyang KCNA in English 1500 GMT 25 Sep 81

[Text] Pyongyang September 25 (KCNA)--The traitor Chon Tu-hwan, in his "address" at "celebrations of the sixth anniversary of the founding of the civilian defence corps" held in Seoul on September 22, raised a frantic row against us. Denouncing this, MINJU CHOSON today prints a signed commentary titled "Feverish Provocative Blast of War Hysteric."

The traitor Chon Tu-hwan maliciously described our sincere efforts for the independent and peaceful reunification of the country as "unification through communisation" and "adventurist strategy" and feverishly cried for "increasing the fighting capacity" of the puppet army and "developing munitions industry" and strengthening "the reserve forces and the civilian defence corps" under the pretext of "independent defence," the commentary notes, and says:

The utterances of the puppet traitor are a treacherous jargon openly revealing his criminal intention to incite the consciousness of north-south confrontation and war and intensify the fascist suppression and war moves.

His talk about "unification through communisation" and "adventurist strategy" is a sheer lie for slandering us and fostering antagonism and confrontation between the north and the south.

Pointing out that that day the traitor Chon Tu-hwan waxed quite eloquent about "efforts for the resumption of the dialogue" and "fixation of peace," the commentary remarks: His talk is a mere jugglery of words to shift the responsibility for the rupture of the dialogue onto others and camouflage his splittist and bellicose nature.

"Independent defence" on the lips of this traitor is part of the U.S. imperialists policy of aggression and war towards Korea. It seeks the aim of introducing U.S. destructive weapons and combat equipment into South Korea, increasing local military potential to mobilize all the human and material resources of South Korea in an attempt to realise their aggressive design on the northern half of the DPRK without much difficulty. Through this the U.S. imperialists undergoing a serious economic crisis also intend to lessen their war burdens. This time, too, the puppet traitor cried that "all efforts" should be bent for "the establishment of a defence posture." In the final analysis, this is meant to step up war preparations more frantically against the northern half of the DPRK. This shows with increasing clarity what a heinous warmaniac and a despicable war servant of the U.S. imperialists he is.

Noting that the traitor Chon Tu-hwan never opens his mouth without letting loose a bellicose jargon speaking ill of us, the commentary says: This is a sinister design to render the situation of the country strained, intensify the fascist suppression and war moves and thereby keep the nation divided and remain in power indefinitely at any cost.

In conclusion the commentary stresses:

The traitor Chon Tu-hwan must give up the reckless anti-communist war moves and step down from "power," as unanimously demanded by the South Korean people.

CHONG CHUN-KI ATTENDS PARTY FOR TAEGWONDO OFFICIAL

SK290455 Pyongyang KCNA in English 0426 GMT 29 Sep 81

[Text] Pyongyang September 29 (KCNA)--The committee for the peaceful reunification of the fatherland arranged a party on the evening of September 28 at the Ongnyugwan Restaurant for Choe Hong-hui, publisher of "PAEDAL SINBO" and president of the International Federation of Taegwondo, on a visit to the socialist homeland.

Invited to the party were Mr Choe Hong-hui and his wife and their party.

Present there were Vice-Premier Chong Chun-ki, and director of the Secretariat of the Central Committee of the Democratic Front for the Reunification of the Fatherland Ho Chong-suk, chairman of the Pyongyang Municipal Peoples Committee Kim Man-kum, vice-chairman of the Committee for the Peaceful Reunification of the Fatherland Hong Ki-mun, vice-chairman of the Korean Committee for Aiding Overseas Compatriots Yo Yon-ku, vice-chairman of the Korean Physical Culture and Sports Guidance Committee Yi Chang-son, and other personages concerned.

Vice-Premier Chong Chun-ki spoke first at the party.

He said that after visiting the homeland last year Mr Choe Hong-hui conducted energetic patriotic activities for the democratization of South Korean society and the independent and peaceful reunification of the country, pulling through all the difficulties with a fighting spirit for national salvation, not yielding to vicious challenge and persecution by the South Korean fascist clique under arduous conditions abroad.

In particular, Mr Choe Hong-hui supported the new proposal for founding the Democratic Confederal Republic of Koryo put forward by the great leader President Kim Il-song, the peerless patriot, and carried on brisk activities for its realization, he noted.

Vice-Premier Chong Chun-ki said that all his courageous and just patriotic activities dealt a heavy blow at the Chon Tu-hwan clique seeking fascism and division and rendered powerful encouragement to the Koreans at home and abroad fighting for democracy and reunification.

To bring earlier the national reunification, he stressed, we should carry into effect the proposal for founding the DCRK advanced by President Kim Il-song, the great sun of the nation.

For the realization of this new reunification proposal, all the Koreans at home and abroad should firmly unite irrespective of ideology and idea, he said, and declared:

The current visit of Mr Choe Hong-hui will be a significant one in putting an end to the history of division and promoting the cause of reunification with the concerted efforts of the nation.

Wherever Mr Choe Hong-hui goes during his stay in the homeland, he will see with his own eyes the spendid features of the socialist homeland which is changing its looks day by day under the wise guidance of the great leader and the energetic leadership of the glorious party centre, and the successes made by our people in construction by relying on their own efforts and through a hard struggle and feel once again the warm kindred sentiments cherished for him by the compatriots in the homeland.

Mr Choe Hong-hui spoke next.

Noting that in September last year, he, together with his dear followers, visited the north, his country and native place, which he had longed for in his life, he said:

After visiting the homeland last year, I spoke lots of things. Particularly, an American instructor, a foreigner in our party, wrote an article describing the north as an earthly paradise and contributed it to a publication to be widely introduced.

One of my followers, giving his impressions of the north at a meeting of the International Federation of Taegwondo held in Britain, proudly spoke before many fellow countrymen that our nation had undergone ordeals in the past because it had not a great leader but today as our compatriots have the great leader in the person of respected and beloved President Kim Il-song, they have greeted in a new era of national prosperity.

If there is a paradise in the world as people in olden times said, I can say with confidence that it is the north where there is no tax but plenty of food and people love and respect each other.

Therefore, each time I was asked about the reality of the north by many compatriots, I told them what I saw and felt and advised them to visit the north.

The situation has changed much. People in South Korea and abroad correctly understand the north and long for it.

However hard such a rascal as Chon Tu-hwan of South Korea may try to block this tendency, it is in vain. Chon Tu-hwan is a murderer. So he is as good as a corpse. Now the south is not tranquil and the inside is very uproarious.

The day is not far off when Chon Tu-hwan will be overthrown and the country be reunified. In the south 99 percent of the population want reunification and Chon Tu-hwan and Co. accounting for only one percent of it seek division.

Convinced of reunification, we should unite as one and bring earlier the day of reunification.

At this grand place today I propose a toast, wishing good health and a long life to respected and beloved President Kim Il-song, the great leader of our nation, who provided me with an opportunity to revisit the homeland and accorded such a warm hospitality and to the dear leader Mr Kim Chong-il who is upholding his lofty intentions.

A member of the party of Mr Choe Hong-hui recited his poem "Korea is One" reflecting his feelings.

The poem said in part:

Korea is one. Sure to come is the day of glory when the entire Korean people in the north and south will lead a happy life under the loving care of the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song and the dear leader Comrade Kim Chong-il, the successor to his cause.

Long live the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song!

Long live the dear leader Comrade Kim Chong-il, the successor to his cause!

Long live national reunification!

The party passed in an atmosphere overflowing with compatriotic sentiments.

At around eight in the evening the fishermen stopped fishing all at once and sailed 150 fishing boats to the Soguipo Port, Cheju-do Island, from the fishing ground. They protested to the fisheries companies for failing to fairly set the wages for the ordinary crewmen and paying deplorably low wages to rationalize exploitation and strongly demanded that the wages be raised to enable them to make ends meet. The fishermen denounced the companies unwarranted act in arbitrarily revising the norms of application of allowances to make it hard to get them paid and demanded that they be corrected and the allowances be lifted. While the demonstration was going on, some students scatterd anti-"government" leaflets from the roof of a building of the university and encouraged the demonstration of the fellow students with big bugles. This fact had been kept in the dark for the news blackout clamped by the puppets till it was disclosed by the puppet cliques announcement of the arrest of five students who had participated in the demonstration. ROK PARTIES DEBATE ASSEMBLY LAW REVISION

SK260844 Seoul THE KOREA TIMES in English 26 Sep 81

[Text] Rival parties were in a bitter tug-of-war yesterday over the procedures for the deliberation of an amendment bill to the National Assembly law, laid before the steering committee four months after being proposed to the assembly by the 1st minority Democratic Korea Party (DKP), in a meeting of the house panel.

The majority Democratic Justice Party (DJP), which has set a policy not to revise the house law during the incumbent 108th regular session, and the DKP confronted with each other especially over the deadline for the deliberation of the revision bill by a subcommittee of the panel.

They also disputed over whether to conduct a free debate on the bill before the formation of the subcommittee, as demanded by the DKP.

The second minority Korea National Party (KNP), which has expressed their support of the DKP's proposed revision bill in principle, maintained a neutral attitude between the DJP and DKP in the meeting, which lasted until 10:03 p.m.

The bipartisan conflict adjourned the panel meeting, which opened at 4:00 p.m., three times for the "behind-the scene negotiations" on the disputed issues.

But the rival parties failed to reach any agreement on setting the deadline for the deliberation of the bill and the number of the subcommittee members, and only decided to hold another meeting at 2:00 p.m. Monday.

After the marathon meeting, Rep. Yi Chong-chan, floor leader of the DJP, and chairman of the steering committee, said flatly, "It is too premature for us to rewrite the assembly law. The amendment bill should be deliberated until the end of the current regular house sitting."

The revision bill was formally introduced with 82 proponents of the DKP calling for revision in such a way as to ensure the role of the assembly in maintaining balance among the branches of the government.

Proponent Rep. Mok Yo-sang said the law should be revised, especially the provisions concerning preliminary review of the government budget, lengthening the time for lawmakers' interpellation, and the alleviation of the restrictions on the invocation of parliamentary inspection rights.

In a speech introducing the amendment bill to the steering committee, Rep. Mok pointed out that the present law was one of the many laws milled out without proper or adequate deliberation by the legislative assembly.

As to the argument of the DJP that it was premature to talk about revision since it was written only nine months ago and if there were any defects they could be made up for by "operational" skill, Rep. Mok said this was only a manifestation that the law had defects.

He elaborated with regard to revision that all sessions of the Parliament, be they committee sessions or plenary ones, should be held in the morning instead of in the afternoon as stipulated by the current law.

Holding sessions in the afternoon was not efficient and at the same time, it amounted to breach of duty, he said.

As to the restoration of preliminary review of the government budget by the standing committees, it should be viewed from the standpoint of the restoration of parliamentary authority.

An Yong-hwa, a policy specialist on the steering committee, said he thought it was not easy for him to make a full review of the law at the present moment when its efficacy had yet to be tested at length.

FINANCE MINISTRY TO AMEND EXCISE TAX LAW

[Text] The Finance Ministry has drafted an amendment to the excise tax law to lower excise tax rates for some electronic products.

According to the draft amendment bill, which will be referred to the National Assembly, the basic tax rate for color TV sets (less than 18 inches) will be reduced to 30 percent from the present 40 percent.

The ministry said the adjustment of the excise tax was necessary due to changing consumption patterns and industrial policy.

The tax rates on popular items are to be lowered, and the rates on luxurious consumer items to be increased, the ministry said.

In case of black-and-white TV sets, the excise tax rate will be cut to 10 percent from the present 30 percent, while the rate for refrigerators of less than 250 liters will be lowered to 30 percent from 40 percent.

The basic tax rate on small-sized tape recorders will be brought down to 10 percent from the current 30 percent, and the tax rate for electric appliances will be cut to 30 percent from 40 percent.

However, the tax rate for pianos (grand type) will rise to 30 percent from 20 percent, and the taxes on motorboats and yachts (large size) will be raised to 40 percent from 30 percent.

The tax rates for textiles (wool products) will rise to 40 percent from 30 percent.

The ministry also decided to levy taxes on items such as fructose (10 percent), crystal products (20 percent) and skiing supplies (40 percent).

So far, only the value added tax has been levied on such entertainment places as night clubs, cabarets, kisaeng houses, restaurants for foreign tourists and skiing resorts. But a 10 percent tax on amusements, food, and drink will be additionally imposed on such "luxurious" places.

The elastic tax rates, presently being applied to some electronic items, will expire at the end of this year, and the new basic tax rates will be put into force next year.

In addition to the basic tax readjustments, the ministry has also decided to introduce a provisional tax rate system under which newly-developed products will enjoy lower tax rates.

Such strategic items which require a solid foundation for domestic supply, will get tax favors for a certain period. This measure is aimed at fostering and encouraging the development of new products.

Meanwhile, informed sources said the excise tax on gasoline would be lowered to 130 percent from the present 160 percent.

POSTS, PARTY ASSIGNMENTS ROTATED--The Democratic Justice Party's [DJP] plan to rotate government officials between government posts and party assignments is opposed by the Democratic Korea Party [DKP] and the Korea National Party [KNP], as well as by some of its own members, who cried out: "Does the party want us all to resign?" DJP deputy secretary general Yun Sok-sun said that the plan calls for recruiting talented people from the government without creating hardships for them. He added that the plan will not harm the government--no matter what opposition parties may say. Yi Chae-hyong, leader of the DJP, said there is no reason to make a fuss about it because the party intends to recruit only a few each year from the government. According to the DJP, the plan appears to be a minor problem. To party members, experts on issues be dealt with by these rotating officials, the system is dangerous and a serious problem. Admitting that the experts in the party are demoralized, Pak Hyon-tae, chief of the DJP policy coordination office, said he is trying to convince them that system will involve only a few officials. FINANCIAL AID TO DKP--The Democratic Korea Party, which failed to pay activity funds to 52 executive members of the party central committee for 2 months, received from 20 party members consent to participate in a financial supporters' association as of 20 September. Since this May, when the party began to discuss the matter of forming a financial supporters' association, no party members have shown much interest in this regard. When the party's financial difficulties persisted, party president Yu Chi-song took charge of forming this association. By maintaining contacts with businessmen lawmakers within the party, he has obtained consent from about 20 persons. Deputy party president Yi Tae-ku said the deputy party presidential body and three leading party executive members are assisting the party president in forming a financial supporters' association. He went on to say that while striving to rally some 100 persons, the party will inaugurate a financial supporters' association by the end of October with the participation of 50 to 60 members. Deputy party president Yi said he has obtained consent from several friends and that other party executive members seem to be making efforts in this regard. He added that lawmakers other than party executive members should assist in the work to form the supporters' association. [Text] [SK271035 Seoul HANGUK ILBO in Korean 27 Sep 81 p 2]

ROTATION SYSTEM OPPOSED--Kwon Chong-tal, secretary general of the Democratic Justice Party [DJP], said on 26 September that he opposes the plan to rotate government officials between government posts and party assignments. He asked how can one serve the party and the government on a rotating basis. He said the party's recent employment of two government officials on its special committees to fill a need for talented persons from the government and broad social segments to formulate party policies has caused a misunderstanding. On 25 September, Yim Tok-kyu, deputy spokesman of the Korea National Party, issued a statement criticizing this party-government rotation system. On 26 September, Kim Chin-pae, spokesman of the Democratic Korea Party, issued a statement saying it was difficult to understand the idea of subverting government officials' neutrality and calling for an end to further discussions on the rotational system. LNG IMPORT ASSESSED

Seoul JOURNAL OF ENERGY RESEARCH in English Sep 81 pp 27-33

[Article by Hahm Hyo-chun and Chong Chae-hyon, Korea Institute of Energy and Resources: "Economic Analysis of LNG Import in Korea"]

[Text]

Abstract

Recently the Government has made the major decision to import LNG and LPG on a large scale in order to diversify its sources of energy imports.

According to this government decision, KECO & Tae Sung Energy Co., Ltd. are known to prepare for the import of LNG and LPG respectively. This study analyses economic feasibility of investment project concerned with LNG import and estimates delivered prices of LNG to power and estimates delivered prices of LNG to power plants and private sector (residential & commercial) by the cost price build-up method in accordance with vertical integration of distribution channels. In addition, this paper provides whether or not LNG is economically competitive among the existing domestic residential sources.

The results of comprehensive analysis and review of economic analysis are as follows:

1) Assuming that consumers in residential and commercial sectors pay a premium for higher utility of LNG and to compensate for the loss incurred in the LNG supply company due to its LNG supply to power plants at lower prices, the more the LNG supply, the cheaper the delivered price of LNG town gas would be.
   Accordingly it is suggested to meet the increasing demand for LNG town gas by curtaling LNG consumption in power plants.
2) The research shows that LNG price is estimated to be considerally higher than the existing energy sources. But it is expected that LNG will come to substitute oil and coal as a result of increased income, convenience in use, cleanliness itself, and government supporting poilcy for LNG.
3) In order to stably secure the long-term supply of fuel, it is necessary to expand gas supply and to utilize LNG & LPG as town gas to the utmost. We therefore suggest that the Government establish "5-YEAR DEVELOPING PLAN FOR GAS" including LNG demand creation, optimal supply of gas sources, and so on.

ROK REVEALS 5-YEAR AGRICULTURE DEVELOPMENT PLAN

SK290302 Seoul YONHAP in English 0243 GMT 29 Sep 81

[Text] Seoul, Sep 29 (YONHAP)--The Korean Government plans to invest 2.2 trillion won (some 3.2 billion U.S. dollars) at 1981 current prices in agriculture-fisheries development projects over the next five years, to boost the average annual growth rate from the current 2.6 percent to 3.3 percent by 1986.

The total accounted for an increase of 600 billion won (one U.S. dollar is worth about 687 won) over the amount invested in the same sector during the 1977-81 period.

A finalized fifth five-year agriculture-fisheries development plan (1981-86), announced Tuesday by the Agriculture-Fisheries Ministry, contains an ambitious 10-year agricultural water development program, which calls for a nearly 3.7 trillion-won investment in irrigation works to supply water to 76 percent of the country's paddy fields by 1986, and again to 90 percent by 1991, thus boosting rice production up to five million soms (one som is equivalent to 5.12 U.S. bushels).

The country's self-sufficiency in the production of rice, the staple food of the Korean people, is projected to increase from the present 63 percent to 99.4 percent by 1986 and again to 100.5 percent by 1987, one year after the target of the five-year plan.

During the five-year period, the country's land will be divided into 10 major farming areas in consideration of weather conditions and geographical features, to establish an effective crop planting system which will encourage the growing of crops suitable for each farming area.

In order to develop new sources for additional incomes, the plan selected malting barley, peanut, garlic, sesame seed and six other crops as 10 major strategic crops to be raised intensively during the plan period.

It also called for the breeding of 50,000 head of cattle and the importation of 20,000 heads of cattle annually to meet the growing meat demand and to stabilize beef prices.

Other highlights of the five-year plan include the modernization of the distribution channels of farm and marine products, the introduction of an insurance system to reduce flood and drought damages, the diversification of import sources for feed grains and the boosting of fish catch to three million tons and fish exports to 1.5 billion dollars annually.

NEW ARAB POLICY THREATENS ROK CONSTRUCTION WORK

SK170137 Seoul YONHAP in English 0103 GMT 17 Sep 81

[Text] Manama, Bahrain, Sep 15 (YONHAP)--Korea's overseas construction works, especially in the Middle East, are entering a new phase, as Saudi Arabia and other major Arab oil-rich countries employ a "get-tough" approach to foreign contractors.

The Arab protectionist policy, aimed at awarding as many contracts as possible to local companies, has recently been strengthened, a move causing alarm in Korean construction firms in the Middle East, which now number about 80 with a total work force of more than 100,000 persons.

"We have thus far managed to overcome tough competition with major Western companies and have made remarkable inroads into this area since the early 1970's. The situation has changed, however, in recent days, because of the new Arab policy. Now we have to tackle dual competition: one with advanced Westerners and another with rapidly growing Arab contractors fully supported by their respective governments," Korean constructors said in unison.

The seriousness of the Arab get-tough policy was well illustrated last month when Saudi Arabia, the largest market for Korean constructors, implemented its official policy of giving local companies the opportunity to undertake government projects, even if their prices are less competitive than those quoted by foreigners.

The Saudi measures were given weight by Deputy Premier Crown Prince Fahd's approval of a set of recommendations that called for utmost efforts in the promotion of local capabilities to implement government projects.

The recommendations, submitted by a ministerial committee formed on orders of Prince Fahd to study ways of promoting local contracting firms, was circulated among Saudi Government departments in mid-August, according to a spokesman of the Ministry of Finance and National Economy.

They stipulated that large projects should be subdivided, if possible, to make more local contractors eligible for the work.

The recommendations also called for closer check on the abidance of foreign contractors to an article usually included in the contracts, which commited the contractor to obtaining approval from the contracting party for subcontracting parts of the contract. The foreigners will be encouraged to subcontract to local firms.

The recommendations also restricted nonconstruction contracts such as catering, maintenance, employment, transportation and importation of raw materials only to Saudi contractors, since they have already achieved the necessary skill to undertake such work.

The recommendations supplement, a previous royal decree issued last December which demanded, among other things, that government departments award all ordinary road, bridges, and small and medium building contracts to local contractors. The royal decree also called on government departments not to restrict their dealings to a limited number of contractors and importers who frequently win contracts, and to send invitations to as many companies as possible. Under these measures, a 10 percent price advantage for local contractors in competitive bidding has already become normal in some government ministries, it was learned.

The trend toward local dominance in construction and other development projects is common to other oil-producing Arab countries, such as Kuwait and the United Arab Emirates. The UAE, a Gulf country in which Korean constructors are active, has also adopted a similar policy under which more and more civil contracts from the government and state-owned companies are going to go local.

UAE Government officials concerned have admitted that foreign expertise will still be needed in the service sector and in subcontracting but added that fewer signboards with big international names will be seen in the near future.

In addition, some Korean constructors have already experienced setbacks in Kuwait and Bahrain over the past few years because the Gulf states were the first among the Arab world to adopt the localization move.

Some Koreans are also expressing anxiety that Iran and Libya, two other big construction export markets for Korea, might soon follow Saudi Arabia and the Gulf states in exercising the "local first policy."

As a matter of course, the Arab commitment to local firms has drawn a warm welcome from the native people.

"All Saudi contractors had a tough time coping with foreign competition, especially from the Koreans. I hope our government departments will strongly execute that policy," said Abdullah al-Daban, a leading Saudi businessman involved in banking, commerce and industry. "It will really give us more opportunities to participate in the huge construction programme that is going on during the current third five-year development plan through 1985."

Another leading Arab enterpreneur, Khalaj al-Habtur, who owns a big engineering company in the UAE, was reported this week to have said in an interview with a daily: "UAE companies are not against foreign companies having a share of the business, but fair and honest competition should be the rule. I personally feel that all sectors, if possible, should be dominated by local firms."

The growing Arab protectionist move does not mean that there is little room for constant advance by the Koreans. Despite the encouragement for local firms in recent years foreign companies, in fact, have not yet been seriously affected. Relatively small projects are going to local concerns.

However, it also does not necessarily mean that Korean constructors can survive in the future by holding on to their previous business style based on cheap labour in the 1970's.

One of the best ways to meet the gradually tightening protectionist policy is to form joint ventures with local firms, Korean contractors said, pointing out that foreign companies setting up joint ventures are considered local. Forming consortia with Western and Japanese firms is another way to survive, and improvement in management capabilities, coupled with high technology, is also desirable, they added.

In this context, Saudi Arabia's Deputy Commerce Minister 'Abd ar-Rahman az-Zamil has offered this meaningful suggestion:

"The future shape of foreign company involvement in Saudi development is through joint ventures with local firms. There is no particular rule that you must give work to Saudis, but in practice, if you look, you will find a lot of jobs are now open by limited invitation only to Saudis or joint ventures."

BRIEFS

ECONOMY REPORTED 'RECOVERING STEADILY'--Seoul, Sep 25 (YONHAP)--Korean Deputy Premier and Economic Planning Board Minister Sin Pyong-hyon said Friday that the country's economy is recovering steadily. During a monthly briefing session for President Chon Tu-hwan, the top economic planner said that the production and the delivery of commodities in August increased by 2.0 percent and 1.7 percent, respectively, over the previous month, and the inventory of products dwindled. Sin reported that the country's exports as of the end of August amounted to 13.82 billion U.S. dollars, up 26.4 percent over exports for the same period last year, while imports stood at 14.76 billion dollars, up 17.6 percent over imports during the same period a year earlier, thus improving the country's trade deficits. Wholesale and consumer prices went up 0.9 percent and 1.4 percent during the month, and total price increases as of the month of August were 11.7 percent and 13.0 percent, respectively. Sin said that government finances however, grew worse with 393.7 billion won (one U.S. dollar is worth about 685 won) of deficits vs. 161.3 billion won of surplus during the same period last year. The premier attributed the worsened government finance situation partially to decreased internal tax revenues. [Text] [SK250255 Seoul YONHAP in English 0244 GMT 25 Sep 81]

SWISS TIES PROMOTED--Seoul, Sep 26 (YONHAP)--Korean Commerce-Industry Minister So Sok-chun, who is currently visiting Switzerland, met with Friz Honegger, Swiss minister of economics, Friday, to discuss the promotion of bilateral economic cooperation and trade, the Commerce-Industry Ministry said Saturday. At the meeting, So called upon Switzerland to relax the restraint on the generalized scheme of preferences (GSP) against Korean commodities, and asked for Switzerland's participation in Korea's fifth five-year economic development plan starting next year. So also asked that Switzerland invest capital and technology in small businesses in Korea. Responding to So's requests, Honegger proposed a joint investment in power-generating equipment for heavy industries and construction companies in Korea. So also attended the third joint meeting of the Korean-Swiss economic cooperation committees held Friday at the Atlantis Sheraton Hotel in Berne. SEABED OIL DRILLING--Seoul, 25 Sep (YONHAP)--Korea will resume drilling in the seventh sub-mining zone, along the Korean-Japanese joint continental shelf development area from the second week of October, in search of seabed oil resources. Energy-Resources Ministry officials said Friday that the drilling would be conducted at latitude 23"30' north and longitude 27"126' east, some 330 km south of Korea's Cheju Island. With its many well-developed anticlinal structures, the seventh sub-mining zone has the highest oil potential, the officials said. The Korean-American Oil Co., concessionaire for the seventh zone, will be in charge of the drilling, but practical drilling projects will be undertaken by a Japanese oil rig called the "Hyakuryo" (White Dragon) No 5. The oil rig is scheduled to reach the drilling spot around October 5 and drill a 4,160-meter-long shaft for about 90 days until early next year, according to the officials. Korea drilled two holes in the fifth and seventh sub-mining zones last year, but failed to hit commercially feasible oil deposits. Korea conducted another seismic survey of the seventh subzone last April, covering some 1.692 meters in the area. Survey results were computerized by Hamilton International of the United States, which determined the drilling spot for the resumption of Korea's black gold hunting operation. The plan calls for the drilling of eleven holes during the 1979-87 period along the continental shelf lying between Korea and Japan, under a 1974 bilateral joint continental shelf development agreement. COAL PRODUCTION TARGET--Seoul, 28 Sep (YONHAP)--Korea's coal production is expected to reach 19.7 million tons by the end of this year, 700,000 tons or 3.7 percent more than the original target set for the year, the Energy-Resources Ministry said Monday. Last year, Korea produced 18.5 million tons of coal. Contributing to the favorable coal output were the coal price hikes implemented twice so far this year and the government's financial support for the coal industry, ministry officials explained. The country's coal consumption for this year is estimated at 22.24 million tons, up 6.6 percent over the previous year's. But the figure is falling short of the 2.1 percent the expected increase. Meanwhile, Korea plans to import 3.84 million tons of coal, and 5.08 million tons of coal were carried forward to this year's account. Thus, Korea's coal inventory is expected to reach 6.38 million tons by the end of this year, up 31.4 percent over the original plan, and up 25.7 percent over last year's inventory. SEOUL DAILY COMMENTS ON IMPENDING TRUDEAU VISIT

[Article by Yi To-song]

[Excerpts] Canadian Prime Minister Pierre Elliot Trudeau will pay a 3-day official visit to the ROK 27-29 September. This visit will afford an opportunity to broaden the sphere of diplomatic activities, which have tilted too much to the United States.

It has been a long time since the ROK Government extended a formal invitation to the Canadian prime minister. Trudeau had earlier expressed his intention to visit the ROK this July. One of the factors prompting this visit is the Canadian Government's appreciation of the ROK's national strength and its important role in Asia.

Since 1976 when the Canadian Government signed an agreement with the ROK Government on developing and using atomic energy for peaceful purposes, Canada has shown interest in the ROK as a market for atomic power. The Canadian prime minister has also shown interest in exporting atomic furnaces to the ROK, including sales of the (Kandu) atomic furnace, which are now being discussed between the two countries. Canadian officials have predicted that the ROK-Canada summit talks will concentrate on international issues, such as East-West tension, political issues concerning the Korean Peninsula and trade and investment matters. They predict that an economic agreement will be signed during Trudeau's visit. In its "Diplomacy" column the 29 July edition of "THE CITIZEN," a daily published in Ottawa, said that exports of atomic furnaces will be discussed during the Canadian prime minister's visit.

Desiring to sell atomic furnaces, communications equipment, planes and many other goods, Canada has shown interest in the ROK, the third-ranking export market in Asia.

Trade between the ROK and Canada has increased 18 times in the past decade. In 1980 trade between the two countries totaled $720 million. The ROK's exports amounted to $340 million. Canada exported $380 million of goods. Government officials of the two countries predict that trade between the two countries will exceed $1 billion this year.

Our country is striving to resolve pending issues with Canada, such as participation in the exploitation of marine and forestry resources in Canada, signing contracts to purchase natural gas from Canada and a fishery agreement on fish quotas for staple fish and liberalization and expansion of Canadian assistance in the machinery, ship-building, electric, metallurgical, electronic, chemical and textile fields.

Although it is difficult for us to expect a solution to all such issues, officials predict that these ROK-Canadian talks will afford an opportunity to develop mutual understanding and consolidate cooperative relations in various sectors, including the political and economic fields, through frank discussions.

ROK, COLOMBIA SEEK TO IMPROVE RESOURCES TIES

SK290307 Seoul THE KOREA HERALD in English 29 Sep 81 p 3

[Text] The second Korea-Colombia resources cooperation committee meeting opened yesterday in Seoul for a three-day run to discuss ways of further promoting bilateral cooperation in resources areas.

For the Seoul meeting, Korea is represented by an 11-man delegation, led by Vice Minister of Energy and Resources Choe Dong-kyu, while Colombia is headed by an eight-member delegation led by Carlos Zambrano Ulloa.

Among the major issues to be brought forth for discussion at the meeting are possible joint ventures in mineral resources development including petroleum resources.

Colombia, endowed with a wide variety of mineral resources, holds promise for Korea as a possible major supplier of key mineral resources, particularly crude oil, hard coal and uranium, ministry officials said.

The South American country is thought to have some 800 million barrels of proven crude oil reserve plus 10.056 million tons of hard coal deposit.

Coal production came to 4,300,000 tons in 1979, of which one million tons were exported.

There is much room for Korean firms to participate in Colombia's immense mineral resources development projects in collaboration with their Colombian business counterparts, they said.

Colombia has set a long-term crude oil development program calling for drilling a total of 712 exploratory wells between 1980 and 1989. It has also set aside $1,166 million for hard coal development projects.

It encourages foreign firms to team up with Colombian interests for exploitation of its rich uranium resources.

The first bilateral committee meeting was held last November in Bogota. The major agreements reached at the Bogota meeting were technical cooperation in resources development and Korean firms participation in Colombia's resources development.

The visiting Colombian delegation is scheduled to observe the major industrial establishments in the southern part of the country after the meeting.

DJP OFFICIAL FAVORS PUBLIC HEARINGS IN ASSEMBLY

SK040238 Seoul THE KOREA TIMES in English 4 Oct 81 p 1

[Text] Majority Democratic Justice Party floor leader Rep. Yi Chong-chan has said that he will make the public hearing system an indispensable institution in the legislative activities of the National Assembly.

In an article published in the National Assembly journal, the majority party floor leader said it was part of his effort to make the activities of the standing committees the centerpiece of the National Assembly.

He said that it was desirable to vitalize the investigative function of the House as provided for in the current national assembly law.

Utilization of the investigative rights should be studied from the viewpoint of vitalizing Standing Committee activities, Rep Yi said.

He said, "Under the present law, the National Assembly is to be in session for 150 days in total, including the 90-day regular session."

In order to make the most of the recess period totalling 215 days, Rep. Yi said vitalization of Standing Committee activities was necessary in order to make the National Assembly more dedicated to its parliamentary duty and function.

Rep Yi's remarks favoring utilization of the investigative right draw special attention since the majority party has always been reluctant to invoke that right.

Under the current National Assembly law, the National Assembly on a decision in a plenary session can order the formation of a special investigation committee.

PERSONNEL TURNOVER IN POLITICS EXAMINED

Seoul CHUNGANG ILBO in Korean 22 Sep 81 p 5

[Article by Kim Ok-cho: "Emerging New Faces After a Year of New Politics"]

[Text]

Since July last year, a total of 5,699 public officials including 20 former government ministers and vice ministers as well as 84 in Grade 1 have resigned from office, in line with the "purification" drive.

Following the Oct. 26th incident of 1979, the Presidency has been changed from former President CH'OE Kyu-ha to President CHUN Doo-hwan; and the Prime Minister's office has been shifted four times, from CH'OE Kyu-ha to SIN Hyon-hwak, PAK Ch'ung-hun (acting), and NAM Tok-u. At the cabinet members' level, all 29 seats but CHANG Tok-chin, member of the Economic and Scientific Council, have been shifted since the Oct. 26th incident.

Those ranking officials appointed government ministers or above during that period break down into 31 career bureaucrats, 10 scholars and former generals, three politicians, two of the bank and diplomatic circles, one clergyman, one businessman, and one other. Those at the rank of vice ministers break down into 78 career bureaucrats, 12 military officers, and two former journalists.

Since October 1979, major cabinet reshuffles have taken place three times. In the cabinet reshuffle carried out by President CH'OE, some out-of-office or opposition personages were included, such as former Minister of Economic Planning YI Han-pin, former Minister of Justice PAEK Sang-ki, former Minister of Education KIM Ok-kil, former Minister of Health and Social Affairs CHIN I-chong, and former Minister of National Unification Board YI Kyu-ho. Three former generals joined the cabinet; they were former Minister of Home Affairs KIM Chong-hwan, Defense Minister CHU Yong-pok, and Minister of Government Administration KIM Yong-hyu.

In the cabinet reshuffle carried out on May 22, 1980, following the May 17th action through the so-called "era of three KIM's," former Prime Minister PAK Ch'ung-hun succeeded former Prime Minister SIN Hyon-hwak. New faces at that time were Minister of Finance YI Sung-yun, a college professor, and former Minister of Communications YUN Hung-chong, former Army general.

In the cabinet reshuffle carried out Sept. 2, 1980 following the inauguration of President CHUN, there were new faces such as Chairman of the Board of Audit and Inspection YI Han-ki, Deputy Prime Minister SIN Pyong-hyon, Minister of Health and Social Affairs CH'ON Myong-ki, Minister of Communications KIM Ki-ch'ol, and Minister of Science and Technology YI Chong-o (graduate of 13th class of KMA). But seven former vice ministers were promoted to the minister's offices; they are Minister of Foreign Affairs NO Sin-yong, Minister of Home Affairs SO Chong-hwa, Minister of Commerce and Industry SO Sok-chun, Minister of Energy and Resources PAK Pong-hwan, Minister of Construction KIM Chu-nam, former Minister of Transportation KO Kon, and Minister of National Unification Board YI Pom-sok.

In the case of those of the vice minister's level, the ratio of career officials is even higher. Among 71 such officials including the four newly-established posts, 53 are career bureaucrats, 13 former military officers, and five others. Korean ambassadors to the U.S., Japan, England, West Germany, and Canada have all been shifted.

Following the resignation of former Chief Justice YI Yong-sop of the Supreme Court, YU T'ae-hung assumed his new post as the Chief Justice. Five Supreme Court Justices resigned from their office in August 1980 and seven more in April 1981, totaling 15. And two were newly appointed Supreme Court Justices in September 1980 and 10 in April 1981. In April this year, seven senior judges at the court president's level failed to get reappointment. KNP REAFFIRMS OPPOSITION TO EDUCATION TAX

[Text] Rep. Yi Man-sop, vice president of the Korea National Party (KNP), called for the compilation of an "austerity" budget for next year in view of the current "difficult" business situation yesterday, making it clear that the party was opposed to the imposition of a new education tax.

He also demanded complete abolition of the value-added tax now in force.

In a statement on his party's stand on overall national affairs in a plenary session of the National Assembly, Rep. Yi asked the government to give chances to join politics in the new era to former politicians now banned from politics.

He also asked for an overhaul of the current tax system to ease the tax burden on the people while ensuring incentives for private businessmen to enable them to develop their enterprise potential to the fullest.

In the 30-minute speech, Rep. Yi lashed out at the proposed government budget, arguing that it was overblown by 22.2 percent over the current year in defiance of the state of the nation's business.

He said it should be reduced to the current year's level at least by slashing administrative expenditures drastically.

According to him, the proposed education tax would not be necessary if administrative expenditures amounting to about 1,000 billion won earmarked in next year's budget bill were cut by only 3 percent.

According to him, the gargantuan organizations of the administration should be radically trimmed together with the denationalization of numerous state-run firms, and thus a cut in next year's budget could be achieved with ease.

Because of the overlarge budget, he said, the tax burden rate would rise from 18.7 percent this year to 18.9 percent. To be more specific, he said, each person would have to pay 264,000 won in taxes, a rise of about 25 percent over 212,000 won this year.

As to the value-added tax, the KNP vice president said as much as 80 percent of the cases subject to the tax were classified as "exceptional." This was reason enough for the government to get along without it he said.

Rep. Yi, however, said the government rice purchase price should be raised to a level which would compensate for price hikes and production costs plus due profits to encourage farmers.

And the government should also buy the whole amount offered by farmers despite a rice glut resulting from massive imports of 16 million sok to make up for reduced rice crops next year. One sok weighs about 144 kilograms.

Touching on domestic politics, Rep. Yi said the current national assembly law should be amended for the restoration of the right to preliminary review of the government budget by the Standing Committees.

He also said those banned from politics by law should be given chances of joining in the new era. At the same time, healthy development of opposition parties should be guaranteed, otherwise no genuine development of democracy could be thought of.

In this context, he said due consideration should be given to the system of raising political funds through a supporters' group for each political party. Political funds should in no way be channeled lopsidedly to the party in power, he said.

GOVERNMENT TO EXPAND TRANSPORTATION FUNDING

SK070235 Seoul YONHAP in English 0221 GMT 7 Oct 81

[Text] Seoul, Oct. 7 (YONHAP)--The Korean Government will invest more than 10 trillion won (some 14.6 billion U.S. dollars) in the expansion of the country's transportation facilities over the next five years.

According to the country's Fifth Five-Year Economic Development Plan (1982-86) for the transportation sector, released by the Transportation Ministry Wednesday, the total length of the country's railroad lines will be extended from the current 6,007 km to 6,599 km by the target year 1986, and that of subway lines from the present 22.1 km to 143.2 km.

The five-year transportation program also calls for increasing the number of automobiles from the current 528,000 to 1,148,000 by 1986; that of ocean-going vessels from the present 5.2 million tons to 9.4 million tons, and that of guest rooms of tourist motels across the country from 19,104 to 30,000.

Under the program, the daily passenger transportation capacity will rise from 23 million to 37 million, and the daily cargo transportation capacity from 470,000 tons to 710,000 tons; while the annual international passenger transportation capacity will increase from 2.8 million to 6.6 million, and the annual international cargo transportation capacity from 93.2 million tons to 165.4 million tons.

The subway construction in Seoul, which will attain an additional length of 121.1 km, will be completed by 1985, and the two separate subway constructions in Pusan, the country's second largest city, will be finished by 1985 and 1989, respectively. Thus, the subway and the electrified railroad will meet 40 percent and 17 percent of the total traffic volume in Seoul and Pusan, respectively, by 1986, according to the program.

The country will possess 28 container ships and conclude shipping agreements with 12 coastal countries by 1986.

Other highlights of the five-year transportation development plan include: increases in the annual passenger and cargo handling capacity of Kimpo International Airport, the country's gateway, to nearly nine million persons and 280,000 tons; the conclusion of aviation agreements with Italy and six other countries, and establishment of the round-about-the-world flight routes; and the development of Cheju Island into an international tourist resort.

[Text] Seoul, Sep 24 (YONHAP)--Since 1954, Korea has induced on a commitment basis a total of 25.6 billion U.S. dollars as of the end of June this year. An Economic Planning Board (EPB) report released Thursday breaks down the total to 24.4 billion dollars in foreign loans and 1.2 billion dollars in foreign investment in the country.

Of the total foreign loans, which accounted for 95.2 percent of the foreign capital so far brought into the country on an approval basis, 12.6 billion dollars were public loans and 11.8 billion dollars were commercial loans. Of the approved foreign loans, 19.4 billion dollars have already arrived.

Repayment of foreign loans amounted to nearly six billion dollars, thus leaving 13.5 billion dollars in outstanding foreign loans. Aggregated interests paid so far totaled more than 4.9 billion dollars.

The United States appeared to be the largest lender, having supplied Korea with 7.3 billion dollars (29.7 percent) of the total foreign loans, followed by Japan with nearly four billion dollars (16.3 percent).

The biggest portion (59.4 percent) of the loans went to social overhead capital projects, followed by the manufacturing sector (31 percent) and the agriculture-fisheries sector (9.6 percent).

As of the end of June this year, foreign investments totaled 1.2 billion dollars in 822 projects on a commitment basis. Of these, only 57 million dollars have not arrived yet.

Meanwhile, the repatriation of investment returns amounted to 372 million dollars during the cited period, according to the report. Foreign technology was induced in a total of 1,828 projects from 1962 through the end of June this year, 58.1 percent (1,062 projects) of which was under-taken by Japan and 23.1 percent (422 projects) by the United States.

ROK-JAPAN OIL DRILLING PROJECT DISCUSSED

SK070130 Seoul YONHAP in English 0122 GMT 7 Oct 81

[Text] Seoul, Oct. 7 (YONHAP)--The drilling in the seventh submining zone of the Korean-Japanese joint continental shelf development area in search of seabed oil resources, began Monday on waters some 330 km south of Korea's Cheju Island.

According to the report of the concessionaire Korean-American Oil Co. (KOAM) to the Energy-Resources Ministry, the Japanese oil rig, the "White Dragon No 5," arrived at the drilling site as scheduled and determined its drilling spot at latitude 23"30' north and longitude 27"126' east.

It will drill down to some 4,160 meters under the seabed over a period of around 90 days.

According to officials from KOAM's American partner, Hamilton International, the seventh sub-mining zone has high oil potential with its many well-developed anticlinal structures.

KOAM officials said that the results of the drilling would be made public early next year.

Korea drilled two holes in the fifth and seventh sub-mining zones last year, but failed to hit commercially feasible oil deposits.

Korea conducted another seismic survey of the seventh subzone last April. The survey results were computerized by Hamilton International, which determined the drilling spot for the resumption of Korea's oil hunting venture.

Korea plans to drill a total of eleven holes during the 1979-1987 period along the continental shelf between Korea and Japan, under a 1974 bilateral joint continental shelf development agreement.

UPGRADING OF NATION'S COMMUNICATIONS SYSTEM REPORTED

SK030538 Seoul THE KOREA HERALD in English 3 Oct 81 pp 1, 3

[Text] The Ministry of Communications said yesterday it is studying a plan to build a supermodern telecommunication facility by 1986 to ensure the fast worldwide coverage of the 1988 summer olympics in Seoul.

The ministry said it is considering building the international facsimile network that will enable world families to watch the Seoul olympics simultaneously with the Korean people.

Saying the channels for communication through international telecommunication satellites (Intelsat) IV and V will be increased annually to reach 1,172 channels in 1987 from the present 328, the ministry said the satellite communications will be greatly improved.

The ministry said it will build the No. 4 earth station, adding to the existing Nos. 1, 2, 3 earth stations, for operation from 1985 at a total cost of 6,600 million won (about $10 million).

Presently, the No. 1 station is linked with the Pacific Ocean satellite and the No. 2 station is connected with the Indian Ocean satellite.

Both stations are enabling the global satellite telecommunication and live TV coverage from around the world.

The No. 3 station, which has existed but was not known to the public, is for standby just in case of trouble with either of the other stations.

The No. 4 earth station, to be built, will be linked with the Intelsat V floating above the Pacific Ocean. It is to provide about 3,000 fully automatic electronic switching method overseas telephone lines.

Presently, a total of 549 overseas telephone lines are operated by semiautomatic method.

A total of 4,200 million won (about $6 million) would be used to build the nationwide DDD (direct distance dialing) network by 1987.

The international telex lines will be increased to 1,508 circuits in 1986 from the present 485 lines. The ministry said it estimates the demand by about 5,000 journalists for the telex lines will be great for reporting on the Seoul olympic games.

The international facsimile lines will be more than 40 circuits from the present one circuit used with Japan. The facsimile will enable the Seoul olympics to be seen live around the world, the ministry said.

The ministry said that it has not decided on the necessity of its own separate communications satellite for the Seoul olympics, adding that it should await consultation with the yet-to-be-formed cabinet-level Olympic Organizing Committee (OCOG).

The ministry said that in general the implementation of the communication modernization project laid down in the government's Fifth Five-Year Economic Development Plan will be enough for the communication needs for the Seoul olympics.

ROK PAPER HAILS SEOUL'S HOSTING 1988 OLYMPIAD

SK020624 Seoul THE KOREA TIMES in English 2 Oct 81 p 2

[Editorial: "Olympics in Seoul"]

[Text] A national dream has finally come true--a long-held aspiration that the Koreans would host a world Olympiad on their own soil.

And that stunning decision by the International Olympic Committee (IOC), awarding Seoul the right to host the 24th summer olympic games in 1988, has aroused added excitement and a sense of achievement among Koreans as the choice of their capital city had unexpectedly overwhelming international support.

In fact, until the very last moment of the crucial IOC voting on the olympic site, uncertainty prevailed both here and abroad about Seoul's chance of winning the title since its rival candidate city, Nagoya in Japan, had been largely rated as the more likely choice.

But the final IOC decision ended all this worry and uncertainty--a ruling which eloquently displayed the lofty olympic principle of universality, providing fair opportunities for world nations to participate in and host the olympic games.

The IOC members, meeting in a congress at Baden-Baden in West Germany, must have voted for Seoul taking full account of the Korean's fervent eagerness for the olympics as well as their remarkable accomplishments and potential in nation-building, which underline the capability of rendering satisfactory venue and other facilities for an Olympiad.

Thus Korea has become the second Asian nation, after Japan, and the second developing country, after Mexico, to host a summer olympics, a most gigantic and festive international sports event taking place every four years.

One of the biggest hitches which Koreans faced during their campaign for the olympics was the division of national territory, a legacy of the cold war, and the consequent existence of tension on the Korean Peninsula.

Yet, an absolute majority of the IOC members rightly took a positive and forward-looking stand at the time of voting for Seoul--as they had done for the 1972 Olympics in Munich, West Germany--that holding the world sports festival would not only dissipate tension but facilitate the settlement of inter-Korea questions, ultimately contributing to the early achievement of territorial unification.

As a matter of fact, hosting an Olympiad in Seoul is an epoch-making event for the entire Korean people, who should make concerted efforts to the end.

In this regard, Seoul has repeatedly made it clear that the door would be wide open to all participating nations, regardless of their political ideologies or social systems.

An Olympiad in Seoul will give great impetus to Korea's national life in a wide range--from an enhanced image and role in the world community and improved business prospects, especially for tourism, to innovation in infrastructures and urban development.

It is thus expected to expedite the process of boosting Korea, now a newly industrializing country, to the rank of an advanced nation--as the Tokyo Olympics in 1964 did for Japan.

On the other hand, the task will place on the nation with unprecedented burden and a challenge to perfect a broad spectrum of preparatory work for the success of the Seoul Olympics--a task which is impending and compelling.

The cost, estimated at more than $2 billion, is one thing. Probably more intricate and demanding is how to provide a suitable olympic venue and related facilities, ranging from accommodation to transportation and communications, so that the world festival will be internationally applauded.

A suggestion in this regard is that the Seoul Olympics be organized as to become an affordable model for all nations, both developed and developing, in view of Korea's own national capacity and moreover the fact that many a country--even advanced nations--are reluctant to host the olympics because of their massive expenses. That is, while a full range of convenience and comfort is assured, the undertaking should refrain from extravagance.

After all, involved in the olympic hosting--gigantic in scale yet requiring subtlety and sophistication--will be not only astute preparation by the government authorities and those directly concerned to the event but also spontaneous cooperation and concerted efforts by the people as a whole.

SUZUKI RESCHEDULES TRIP—Tokyo, Oct 3 (YONHAP)—Japanese Prime Minister Zenko Suzuki has rescheduled his Korea trip, originally planned for next January, and is expected to visit Seoul in May, a senior official of the Japanese Foreign Ministry has said. Speaking at a lecture meeting at a Tokyo hotel Friday, Kazuo Aichi, parliamentary vice minister for foreign affairs, said it would be difficult for the Japanese leader to visit Korea in January "in light of the circumstances" and added that Suzuki would be able to make the visit during his annual vacation in early May or after the regular parliamentary session in late May. Commenting on the International Olympic Committee's decision to award the 1988 summer games to Seoul, Aichi said it would be "important for Japan to render full cooperation" to the Koreans. MORE UK PARTICIPATION IN ROK PROJECTS URGED

[Text] London (special)--Korea and the United Kingdom have agreed that restoration of trade equilibrium will be further accelerated as British firms expand their participation in Korean development projects.

According to a joint statement issued here Wednesday after the conclusion of the Korea-United Kingdom trade ministers' meeting, Korean Commerce-Industry Minister So Sok-chun proposed that the two sides work together to achieve a situation during the 1980's in which trade with Korea would account for 1 percent of Britain's total overseas trade volume.

The statement said Minister So drew particular attention to the anti-dumping suit recently filed by the European Association of Consumer Electronics Manufacturers and to moves to restrict imports of Korean-made footwear into the European Community (EC). He expressed the hope that these additional restrictive actions would not be taken by the European Community on Korean exports.

British Secretary of State for Trade John Biffen agreed to convey this matter to the appropriate EC authorities for favorable consideration, it said.

The two ministers discussed the future of the multi-fiber arrangement and the safeguard clause and they agreed to work together to explore solutions to these difficult problems. They welcomed the GATT ministerial meeting proposed for 1982.

Minister So commented on difficulties encountered by Korean businessmen in connection with the GSP scheme of the European Community. In this connection, he suggested eliminating tariff quotas on some items coupled with substantial increases in tariff quotas on others.

The joint statement said Minister So urged the United Kingdom's businessmen, financiers and government to increase their participation in Korea's Fifth Five-Year Economic and Social Development Plan, during which Korea will require $46.5 billion in foreign capital.

Minister So said Korea welcomed investment and technology transfers from the small and medium sector of British industry. To further such cooperation, Minister So suggested that an appropriate agreement be negotiated and signed between the Small and Medium Industry Promotion Corporation of Korea and the British counterpart organization.

Secretary Biffen noted with approval Minister So's proposal as well as the steps taken by the Korean Government to liberalize trade and investment flows. He agreed to convey Minister So's proposal, with a favorable recommendation, to the pertinent British authorities and to encourage British businessmen to increase their participation in Korean development projects.

So requested that the British electrotechnical approval board delegate inspection rights to the Korea Electric Institute for the purpose of inspecting Korean electrical exports bound for the British market. Secretary Biffen agreed to refer this matter to the appropriate British authorities for favorable consideration.

SK040939 Pyongyang KCNA in English 0835 GMT 4 Oct 81

[Text] Pyongyang, October 4 (KCNA)--A story was in vogue among those who made an excursion to the Lake Chonji on Mt. Paektu that they saw a strange animal as big as an ox in the Lake Chonji.

Chonji is a lake created in a volcanic crater. Till 1702 the volcano had been spouting flames and water was very chilly. So it had been considered that there was no living thing in the lake.

A story that there is a big animal in the lake aroused interest among scientists and personages concerned.

An organ concerned sent an investigation team to the lake to conduct observation.

In the course of observation the members of the team saw an animal on 12 July.

At 5 hours 5 minutes that morning, a strange animal came down to the Lake Chonji from the top of Piru-bong.

The animal swam nearly 1.8 kilometres from the foot of Piru-bong to the foot of a cliff on the opposite side across the lake in one hour and 20 minutes and sat there for nearly 2 hours and 30 minutes.

Then the animal climbed over 60 metres up the cliff and stayed there for 20 minutes and went 2-3 kilometres to the west and disappeared into a valley at around 10 hours 20 minutes in the morning.

A photographing and observation of the animal outside the lake proved that it was a black bear with many white spots in the breast.

[Text] Beijing, October 1 (KCNA)--Chinese Premier Zhao Ziyang gave a reception on the evening of 30 September in the Great Hall of the People in Beijing to celebrate the 32nd anniversary of the founding of the Peoples Republic of China, according to a XINHUA report.

Attending the reception were Liao Chengzhi, vice-chairman of the Standing Committee of the National Peoples Congress, Vice-Premiers Wan Li, Gu Mu, Chen Muhua, Ji Pengfei and Huang Hua, leading members of the party, government and army departments and prominent figures from various walks of life and foreign guests.

He said:

This year we have further readjusted our national economy and solved a number of rather complicated problems and the situation is better than expected. In agricultural production, despite the abnormal weather such as floods resulting from torrential rain and severe droughts in many areas, the grain output is expected to be close to that of the record year of 1979 and the output of various cash crops will register an all-round increase thanks to the high enthusiasm of the peasants for production brought about by the correct policies.

In the industry, as its various sectors are progressing towards balance, a certain growth rate has been maintained.

There are still quite a number of difficulties before us, and they are being overcome by us one after another under the leadership of the Chinese Communist Party and with the united efforts of the cadres and the masses as well as the army and the people.

China's socialist construction promises high hopes of success.

Referring to the fact that Chairman Ye Jianying put forward the policy of return of Taiwan to the motherland for the realization of peaceful reunification, he hoped that all of the compatriots in Taiwan will, in a spirit of patriotism, make contribution to the earlier realisation of the great unity of the whole nation.

On the basis of the five principles of peaceful coexistence, China will actively develop multiform cooperation and friendship with various countries, he said.

SK021600 Pyongyang KCNA in English 1515 GMT 2 Oct 81

[Text] Pyongyang, October 2 (KCNA)--Papers here today dedicate articles to the 23rd anniversary of the independence of Guinea and the proclamation of the republic, which declare that the Korean people extend warm felicitations and greetings to the friendly Guinean people.

The author of NODONG SINMUN article says:

The independence of Guinea and the proclamation of the republic were a historic event opening a broad road of building an independent new life to her people and a powerful demonstration announcing a new era of liberation on the African continent which had been shrouded in darkness.

After independence, the Guinean people, along the revolutionary line indicated by the Democratic Party of Guinea, have vigorously advanced towards the goal of building a genuinely independent and sovereign state, a prosperous socialist society free from exploitation, repulsing the incessant subversive activities and sabotage of the imperialists and colonialists. Over the last 23 years great socio-economic changes have taken place on the soil of Guinea. Pursuing a non-aligned policy, the Guinean government is struggling against imperialism, colonialism and racism and for the complete liberation of the African continent.

Guinea is a friendly country which was the first to open diplomatic relations with our country among the African countries.

The peoples of our two countries have incessantly strengthened bonds of friendship on the road of the common struggle for independence, sovereignty and socialism.

The visits of His Excellency President Ahmed Sekou Toure to our country on two occasions in recent years were events decorating the history of Korea-Guinea friendship.

The government and people of the Guinean Revolutionary Peoples Republic always express firm support to and solidarity with the just cause of our people for socialist construction and the independent and peaceful reunification of the country.

Our people remember this.

The friendly and cooperative relations between the peoples of our two countries will be further strengthened and developed in the future through the common struggle against imperialism and for independence.

A signed article of MINJU CHOSEN says:

Believing that the friendly relations between Korea and Guinea will further develop on one road of anti-imperialism and independence, our people wish the Guinean people greater success in their struggle for the building of a new society and complete liberation of Africa.

In June the Zambian government took the decisive step of expelling a yankee who had been engaged in espionage acts in Zambia, wearing the mask of diplomat. This was a manifestation of the determination of the Zambian people to resolutely oppose all forms of imperialist interference and defend the dignity and security of the country.

The Korean people who have watched with joy all the successes made by Zambia in the struggle to realize the national unity, develop the national economy and national culture on the principle of self-reliance, and build a new society, heartily wish the fraternal Zambian people greater success in the future.

He said that His Excellency President Kim Il-song, a close friend of Zambia, directed particular care to their visit to Korea.

He went on: We express sincere thanks to you for your hospitality accorded us everywhere.

I can not find proper words to report upon our return home to our president about hospitality accorded us in your country.

I hope that the Korean people will make every effort to thoroughly embody the idea of the great leader throughout the country, holding him in high esteem.

Everywhere I went I saw the Korean people working hard and enjoying a bountiful life.

This is a result of the idea of the great leader Comrade President Kim Il-song.

These facts cannot be seen in other countries.

We are well aware of your efforts to reunify the divided country.

Therefore, we Zambian people have directed deep attention to the question of Korean reunification.

Though ours is a small country, we do not want to have any relation with those occupying other countries, when we see sufferings of our brothers.

We stand by you. We will always be on your side at international meetings.

We Zambian people oppose any outside rule. We wish to advance together with you in the future, too.

Such purpose is realized precisely by intercourse between our two countries.

FORMER S. KOREAN SCORES CENTENARY OF KOREA-U.S. TREATY

SK301600 Pyongyang KCNA in English 1506 GMT 30 Sep 81

[Text] Pyongyang, September 30 (KCNA)--Cho Hon-Yong, director of the Secretariat of the Consultative Council of Former South Korean Politicians in the North for the Promotion of Peaceful Reunification, on September 29 published a talk denouncing the scheme of the Chon Tu-hwan military fascist clique to "commemorate" the centenary of the signing of the "Korea-U.S. friendship and trade treaty."

He said that the "Korea-U.S. friendship and trade treaty" was, to all intents and purposes, an aggressive and unequal shackling treaty which granted to the United States the privilege to freely commit aggression and plunder in Korea, while imposing upon Korea only the humiliating obligation to suffer the U.S. aggression.

Noting that the Chon Tu-hwan group intends to "commemorate" the day of signing of the "treaty," attaching some "significance" to it which the U.S. imperialists concluded by swindle to invade Korea and repealed after they attained their purpose, he said: This shows that the Chon Tu-hwan group is wretches steeped in pro-American flunkeyist treacheries.

The U.S. imperialists are the sworn enemy of the Korean people and, accordingly, the South Korean people cannot realise any desire with them left in South Korea, he said, and continued:

Today the Chon Tu-hwan group describes the United States as a "friendly nation" and serves it like God, while distorting and forging even history. This is a high treason that can be committed only by the special-class stooges of the United States, the vicious traitors to the nation.

In its pro-American treacheries which evoke national indignation, the Chon Tu-hwan group seeks to leave South Korea permanently under the colonial yoke of the U.S. imperialists, gratify its sinister desire of long-term office by fawning upon U.S. master and block the independent and peaceful reunification of the country.

In South Korea the criminal business of "commemoration of the centenary of Korea-U.S. amity" must be checked at once and the traitorous Chon Tu-hwan group punished in the name of the nation.

We appeal to the parties, groupings and figures of all circles and people of South Korea to wage in firm unity a daring struggle against fascism and for democratisation in order to frustrate the Chon Tu-hwan groups business of "commemoration of the centenary of Korea-U.S. amity" and overthrow the military fascists, the rare traitors.

ROMANIAN, HUNGARIAN PAPERS MARK DPRK FOUNDING DAY

SK301113 Pyongyang KCNA in English 1025 GMT 30 Sep 81

[Text] Pyongyang, September 30 (KCNA)--Romanian and Hungarian papers published articles on the occasion of the 33rd anniversary of the founding of the Democratic Peoples Republic of Korea, according to reports.

The September 8 issue of the Romanian paper "SCINTEIA" in an editorial article headlined "Auspicious Holiday of the Friendly Korean People" says that since the founding of the DPRK the working people of Korea have attained big successes in the struggle to do away with the aftermaths of the colonial rule and build socialism under the leadership of the Workers Party of Korea headed by Comrade Kim Il-song.

It continues:

The DPRK now greeting its 33rd birthday has turned into a developing and prospering socialist state.

The new bases of the mining, metal, machine-building, chemical, light and power industries have made their appearance on the map of Korea.

Referring to the friendly and cooperative relations between Korea and Romania, the paper notes:

The Romanian Socialist Republic firmly supports the constructive proposals of the DPRK for realizing the independent and peaceful reunification of the country by the efforts of the Koreans themselves without any interference of foreign forces.

The proposal for the founding of the Democratic Confederal Republic of Koryo put forward at the sixth congress of the Workers Party of Korea is enjoying great support in the world.

Its meetings and talks between Comrade Nicolae Ceausescu and Comrade Kim Il-song that played a decisive role in developing the relations between the countries, parties and peoples of Romania and Korea.

The Hungarian paper "ESTI HIRLAP" on September 8 in an editorial article captioned "On the Birthday of Peoples Korea," says: The possibility of democratic development was created in the north of the Korean peninsula after the Japanese fascist occupationists were defeated. But the U.S. imperialists landed in the south of Korea to replace the Japanese occupationists. Today the Reagan administration is trying to keep hold on South Korea, attaching greater importance to the military bases there.

The paper notes that the Korean people have made successes in socialist construction, smashing the aggressive manoeuvres of the imperialists, and wishes the Korean people greater successes in the future.

CHOE HONG-HUI TOURS MANGYONGDAE

SK301540 Pyongyang KCNA in English 1501 GMT 30 Sep 81

[Text] Pyongyang, September 30 (KCNA)--Mr Choe Hong-hui, publisher of "PAEKDAL SINBO" and president of the Internationl Federation of Taekwondo, and his party visited Mangyongdae on September 29.

Leaving Mangyongdae, Mr Choe Hong-hui wrote in the visitors book: Historic Mangyongdae where one is inspired with solemnity whenever he comes, is a holy land of revolution where the peerless hero was born.

Saying that, through their visit to Mangyongdae, they felt a fresh national pride and honour, Mr Choe Hong-hui and his party renewed their determination to firmly defend our fatherland so that it may not be invaded by foreign forces again, by following the revolutionary spirit of Mangyongdae.

Mr Choe Hong-hui and his party saw the Pyongyang metro on September 29.

After going round metro stations they said that the great leader President Kim Il-song has built such fascinating modern metro for the people to provide them with a more bountiful and happy life.

They said that the course of the construction of the Pyongyang metro alone well told them the sagacity of the leadership and lofty virtures of the respected and beloved leader.

Respected and beloved President Kim Il-song is the genuine great leader of the people, they stressed.

PAPER NOTES CRITICISM OF DPRK DELEGATION

PA022334 Panama City LA PRENSA in Spanish 1 Oct 81 p 1

[Article by Jose Montano]

[Text] According to charges later confirmed by LA PRENSA, a Korean communist mission has "strangely and abnormally" entered Panamanian territory. It maintains a center of operations in a downtown hotel under the title of the "Delegation of the DPRK" and is even conducting diplomatic functions.

According to one charge, for the past several months "the delegation" has maintained direct contact with local DPRK sympathizers discussing with President Aristides Royo the possibilities of establishing bilateral trade relations.

Diplomatic sources said yesterday that this DPRK action has become traditional in those countries where President Kim Il-song is interested in blocking trade relations with South Korea. The Panamanian Government evidently has been having good trade relations with South Korea in the past few years.

However, LA PRENSA could not confirm one accusation that "DPRK communist agents" are engaged in subversive international activities: training Mexican guerrillas, infiltrating Costa Rican university sectors, and "smuggling opium and liquor in European countries, among others."

The complaint was made: "We fail to understand how the DPRK communists have been able to establish themselves in Panama and act as if they are a diplomatic mission without our government's official approval."

NODONG SINMUN DENOUNCES CHON'S STUDENT SUPPRESSION

SK011042 Pyongyang KCNA in English 1028 GMT 1 Oct 81

[Text] Pyongyang, October 1 (KCNA)--The Chon Tu-hwan military fascist clique on September 29 committed the fascist outrage of brutally suppressing with the mobilization of riot police students of the University of Foreign Studies in Seoul who staged an anti-"government" demonstration and closing down the university.

Earlier, on September 17, the Chon Tu-hwan military fascist clique harshly suppressed an anti-"government" demonstration of students of the Seoul University and arrested five of them who participated in the demonstration and is now trying to penalize them on charges of violating "the law on assembly and demonstration."

Commenting on this, NODONG SINMUN today says:

This is an unpardonable criminal act trampling down the sacred campus with military jackboots and suppressing with the bayonet the ardent desire of the students for freedom and democracy.

The commentary headlined "Campus Suppression Must Be Terminated in South Korea" notes:

The struggle of the South Korean students against fascism and for democracy is an entirely just one.

Today the elementary democratic liberties and rights of the South Korean people and students are ruthlessly violated under the dark rule of the Chon Tu-hwan military fascist clique. The South Korean people and students unanimously desire freedom, not absence of rights, democracy, not suppression, and a worthwhile life as the master of their destinies, not submission as slaves to fascism.

To realize their ardent desire the South Korean students are rising in struggle against the Chon Tu-hwan military fascist rule suppressing their desire.

The South Korean students anti-"government" struggle for freedom of campus and democratization of society is a just action which is worthy of praise in view of the desire of the nation and the demand of the times. It is as clear as noonday that this struggle cannot be a crime. It is a fascist tyranny to regard as a crime an action which cannot be a crime and suppress it. The real criminal in South Korea is the Chon Tu-hwan clique which is putting down the just struggle of the students in cold blood and those who must be punished are Chon Tu-hwan and his clique.

The frantic suppression of the students by the Chon Tu-hwan military fascist clique shows that its position is not stable.

The bayonet cannot stamp out the desire of the South Korean students for freedom and democracy.

DPRK DAILY SCORES ANTICOMMUNIST CAMPAIGN IN S. KOREA

SK021636 Pyongyang KCNA in English 1601 GMT 2 Oct 81

[Text] Pyongyang, October 2 (KCNA)--MINJU CHOSON today comments on the frantic anti-communist row kicked up by the Chon Tu-hwan puppet clique in all parts of South Korea under the slogan of "unification by destroying communism."

This is another extremely reckless act for inciting North-South antagonism and confrontation among the South Korean people and imbuing them with the anti-communist idea, the author of the commentary says, and continues: "Unification by destroying communism" trumpeted by the Chon Tu-hwan clique is a treacherous slogan of a fratricidal war; it means to destroy communism by means of war and force the reactionary colonial rule of South Korea upon the whole of Korea. It is an intolerable challenge to our people and the world peaceloving people who desire peace in Korea and her peaceful reunification to set up this criminal treacherous slogan even in the playgrounds of schools and foster North-South antagonism and confrontation.

The South Korean puppets who had cried for "prevailing over communism" are now openly raising a "destroy-communism" racket. This clearly proves that the Chon Tu-hwan clique is a vicious anti-communist fanatic, warmaniac and nation-splittist not interested in the least in the peaceful reunification of the country.

Not much penetration is needed to see through the aim of the feverish anti-communist row of the Chon Tu-hwan clique. By carrying on the frantic anti-communist propaganda under the slogan of "unification by destroying communism," they seek to lull the anti-"government" sentiments of the South Korean people against them, mislead public opinion at home and abroad and maintain power which they seized at the point of the bayonet. They also seek the sinister aim of justifying their fascist repression and new war preparations.

But the anti-communist racket is nothing but the last-ditch efforts of those at the deaths door. The "unification by destroying communism" is an infeasible dream and it can never be a way out. Even if traitor Chon Tu-hwan, driven to the wall, isolated and rejected within and without, runs riot in an attempt to realise his foolish dream of destroying communism, it will only precipitate his own self-destruction.

CHOE HONG-HUI TOURS CHILDREN'S PALACE IN PYONGYANG

SK031610 Pyongyang KCNA in English 1540 GMT 3 Oct 81

[Text] Pyongyang October 3 (KCNA)--Mr Choe Hong-hui, publisher of "PAEDAL SINBO" and president of the International Federation of Taekwondo, and his party staying in the socialist homeland inspected educational and cultural institutions in Pyongyang.

They were guests at the Pyongyang students and childrens palace on October 1.

Saying that the homeland has successfully solved the problem of educating children, Mr Choe Hong-hui gave his impressions of the palace in the following words:

Our inspection of the Pyongyang students and childrens palace helped us foresee the bright future of the fatherland.

The great president has solved the problem of educating the younger generation with success.

The children in the homeland are studying to their hearts content free of charge and bringing their talent into bloom.

One of the party of Mr Choe Hong-hui said: The children in the homeland are really happy and the educational system here has been perfected most brilliantly. This palace alone is enough to convince me of the rosy future of our country.

Another member of the party said after inspecting the palace: I had never been so deeply moved as today in my lifetime.

I am convinced that the north is the only land in the world where the children study to their hearts content without the cost of a penny and develop their talent as they wish.

Happy, indeed, are the children in the homeland who have the great general and the dear leader as their father.

While going round the palace, Mr Choe Hong-hui and his party said that they deeply felt the greatness of President Kim Il-song. The general is not only an outstanding statesman but also a prominent educator, they stressed.

Earlier, they inspected the Korean Art Gallery.

Seeing the fine art works on display in the gallery, Mr Choe Hong-hui said: Under the wise leadership of the great President Kim Il-song and the dear leader Kim Chong-il a marked progress has been made in fine art as in all other spheres in the homeland.

That day, some members of his party were guided to the Pyongyang September 15 weekly nursery.

On October 2, Mr Choe Hong-hui and his party appreciated the music and dance tale "Song of Paradise."

VISITOR NOTES SUCCESSION PLANS IN NORTH

SK051037 Pyongyang KCNA in English 1023 GMT 5 Oct 81

[Text] Pyongyang October 5 (KCNA)--Mr Choe Hong-hui, publisher of "PAEDAL SINBO" and president of the International Federation of Taekwondo, and his party staying in the socialist homeland called at the Changgwangwon health complex on October 2.

Going round the modern inner and outer facilities of the complex, they expressed deep emotion at the fact that the bathrooms, the wading pool, the swimming pool and the fountains are all well built to be convenient for the cultural life of our people and the promotion of their health.

Noting that the great President Kim Il-song had the Changgwangwon health complex built with such wonderful facilities for the people, Mr Choe Hong-hui said: It is only too natural that the entire people praise the great President Kim Il-song as their father and hold him in high esteem.

A member of Mr Choe Hong-hui's party said:

I feel honoured to have an opportunity of seeing this beautiful and grand Changgwangwon health complex.

Through my inspection today, I have learned well that the dear leader gave detailed guidance and teachings on the construction of the complex from the inner facilities to the fountains outside.

He is, indeed, a true leader of the people.

As they have such a sagacious leader, all the people lead a cultured life in good health.

But, in the South the wonderful and brilliant realities of the North are known in a too distorted way. Our country should be reunified at an early date.

On the same day, Mr Choe Hong-hui and his party appreciated the grand mass gymnastic display "under the banner of independence" given by 50,000 school children and students of Pyongyang at the Moranbong stadium.

Saying that he felt fresh strength surging within him watching the mass gymnastic display, Mr Choe Hong-hui stressed:

Such wonderful mass gymnastic display can be seen nowhere else in the world. The young performers all were organised and their technical skill has reached a high level.

This is not only a mass gymnastic display but also an art and a praise of unity.

The mass gymnastic display not only shows the high physical and artistic skill of the students but also gives a vivid review of the history of the unity and cohesion of our people.

Thanks to the great general, our nation once forsaken is firmly united and has become a powerful nation which no one dare provoke.

People everywhere in the world highly praise the great general. This is a great pride of our nation.

It is really a good luck to have the dear leader as the successor to the cause of the great president, because only the dear leader can carry into practice the noble intention of the great president most brilliantly, upholding it.

Mr Choe Hong-hui and his party also went round the Mirim lock-gate.

JAPANESE JOURNAL BARES S. KOREAN TORTURE

SK050855 Pyongyang KCNA in English 0830 GMT 5 Oct 81

[Text] Pyongyang October 5 (KCNA)--"SEKAI," politico-theoretical magazine published in Japan, in its September issue carried an article stripping bare the shocking tortures committed by the Chon Tu-hwan military fascist clique in South Korea.

The magazine said:

Poet Ko Un, who had been arrested in the "Kim Tae-chung case," was temporarily released in his critical condition for worsening tympanitis only to be taken back to the Taegu prison around July 10. Now his fate is utterly unknown, even his family are not allowed to see him.

Writer Han Su-san was also walked off and savagely tortured recently.

In the shuddering torture inflicted on him for his serial novel in which he ridiculed Chon Tu-hwan, his heels were cut off and blood flowed from his eyes with an electric torture on the back of his head. His six friends were also walked off and put to the same brutalities.

The magazine further said:

Ultra-modern torturing machines were introduced recently from the United States.

And it is said that electric clubs each of which can knock down over ten people at a time are to be used.

Already long ago, a special prison with an accommodation of 7,000 was built in an island. The exact location of the prison is not known, as the prisoners are blindfolded when they are taken there. Most of its prisoners die or contract schizophrenia. Those detained in the prison are mostly political prisoners.

The era of violence, the season of tortures, continue.

The tortures are not for questioning but for intimidation.

We hope that those rumours will get widely afloat among the people to rouse the people of all strata, the students in particular.

CHONG CHUN-KI ATTENDS TAEKWONDO PERFORMANCE

SK060423 Pyongyang KCNA in English 0350 GMT 6 Oct 81

[Text] Pyongyang, October 6 (KCNA)--An exhibition performance of Taekwondo players of our country was given at the Pyongyang indoor stadium on October 4.

Vice-Premier Chong Chun-ki, chairman of the Pyongyang municipal peoples committee; Kim Man-kum, vice-chairman of the committee for the peaceful reunification of the fatherland; Hong Ki-mun and other personages concerned and working people in the city watched the performance.

Mr Choe Hong-Hui, publisher of "PAEDAL SINBO" and president of the International Federation of Taekwondo, and his party were also present.

Speaking first there, Yi Chang-son, vice-chairman of the Korean Physical Culture and Sports Guidance Committee, said:

Upholding the lofty intention of the respected and beloved leader Comrade Kim Il-song and the glorious party centre, the Taekwondo players of our country have achieved a great success by cultivating the Taekwondo technique and training their bodies and have now reached a high level.

He said that Taekwondo which Mr Choe Hong-hui and instructors are developing conforms with the Chuche idea which defends most thoroughly the independence of the nation and of the popular massea.

The speaker expressed thanks for the efforts of Mr Choe Hong-hui and instructors to make a contribution to the cause of national reunification through Taekwondo and referred to the need to further strengthen the national unity and bonds between compatriots at home and abroad and bring earlier the independent and peaceful reunification of the country through sports activity, too, in the future.

Speaking next Mr Choe Hong-hui said:

Taekwondo is underlain with aspiration and will of reunification and todays exhibition performance means that the day of reunification has come nearer that much.

Our Taekwondo is aimed at building up the strength and spirit of patriotism to defend the dignity of the nation and achieve the countrys reunification, prevent the aggression of outside forces and promote peace of the country and world peace.

It is, needless to say, thanks to the care and love of the great President Kim Il-song, the sun of the nation, and the dear leader Mr Kim Chong-il, the successor to his cause, that such Taekwondo is performed in the homeland.

I take this opportunity to extend my wholehearted thanks to the great leader President Kim Il-song and the dear leader Mr Kim Chong-il.

Noting that the speech made by the president of the Republic of Togo at the Pyongyang mass meeting welcoming the president on an official visit to our republic carries very excellent and deep content, Mr Choe Hong-hui stressed:

In his speech the Togolese president recalled the axiom that it is not a great country that produces a great man, but, on the contrary, it is a great man that produces a great nation, and said that the reality of Korea confirms this.

He paid high tribute and praises to the great President Kim Il-song for his undying feats.

Such thing, I think, is unusual for the president of a state.

This is proof that President Kim Il-song is a great man worthy of that.

Our nation could become a great nation which differs from what it was in the period of the Japanese colonial rule in the past, because it has now such a great man as President Kim Il-song in the homeland.

I am convinced that reunification will certainly be achieved as there is the leadership of the great President Kim Il-song and the might of the homeland is immense as we see it today.

All of us will redouble our efforts to bring earlier the glorious day.

Instructor Yi Ki-ha, chairman of the European Federation of Taekwondo, recited his poem "My Homeland Where I Revisit" telling about his impressions of the homeland.

Then followed the exhibition performance of Taekwondo players.

PROBLEMS IN STRUGGLE FOR DEMOCRATIZATION ANALYZED

Tokyo GEKKAN SHAKAITO in Japanese Aug 81 pp 173-181

[Article by Nakagawa Nobuo: "Problems Confronting the Struggle for Democratization in Korea"]

[Text] More than a year has elapsed since the shocking Kwangju incident took place and the Kim Tae-jung trial ended. It is now being publicized that the foundation of the Chon Tu-hwan regime is being consolidated rapidly in terms of internal and external affairs.

It cannot be denied that some progress has been made in strengthening the foothold of the Chon Tu-hwan regime in light of the following events: the holding of the national referendum for constitutional revision and the establishment of a new constitution of the ROK (23 October 1980); the Reagan-Chon Tu-hwan talks (2 February 1981; Washington); the holding of a presidential election in compliance with the new constitution and the election of Chon Tu-hwan (25 February 1981); and the holding of a National Assembly election in compliance with the new constitution and the emergency of the Minju Chongui Party or Democratic Justice Party as the number one party (25 March 1981).

However, one must admit that the following criticisms point out the fundamental weaknesses of the Chon Tu-hwan regime:

"Was the national referendum for a constitutional revision, in which voters were compulsorily mobilized by means of various violent forces in a terrorist atmosphere in which massive massacres took place under an emergency martial law, really a reflection of the people's will?

"How is it that the political system which was cooked up in conformity with the taste of the Chon Tu-hwan fascist group, in which all political activities are banned, is 'a new democracy'?

"Chon was able to become president by ignoring the wishes of the absolute majority of the people for a direct election and simply having an electoral group, which was a tricky copy of the Unification Chuch'e National Council of the Yusin dictatorship regime, elect him president. Wasn't this because he was afraid of the judgment of the people?"

This was part of "the antifascist democratic declaration on the current situation" issued at an antigovernment rally staged by approximately 1,000 Seoul National University students on 19 March 1981.

The national referendum for a constitutional revision was held by means of a terrorist atmosphere and the compulsory mobilization gears which were set up by the emergency martial law, and the election of Chon Tu-hwan as president came about by means of the indirect election method designed by Chon himself only to benefit himself. These facts alone are enough to expose clearly the essential weaknesses of the Chon Tu-hwan regime.

The fact itself that the students unceasingly carry out an antigovernment struggle offers forceful evidence exposing the instability of the Chon Tu-hwan regime.

According to reports of the Education Ministry authorities submitted to the Korean Government on 3 June 1981, from 17 May 1980, when the Chon Tu-hwan coup d'etat was launched, up to the present, a total of 10 demonstrations have been staged at seven universities, including Seoul National University, Koryo University, Yonse University, Ihwa Women's University, and Songgyun'gwan University; there have been a total of 23 instances of handbills containing declarations or statements being distributed at 16 universities and a total of 52 instances of propaganda handbills being distributed at 36 universities and colleges.

However, these figures are conservative. The actual figures are greater. As for Seoul National University, on 11 December 1980 some 400 students launched an antigovernment demonstration; they shouted "Down with President Chon Tu-hwan!" and issued an "antifascist student comrades struggle declaration." In 1981 there has been the above-mentioned 19 March demonstration and a three-day demonstration held 27-29 May (each of these demonstrations was on the scale of about 1,000 participants). On 27 May 1981, a Seoul National University student (Kim T'ae-hun) who shouted for the ouster of the Chon Tu-hwan regime, committed suicide by jumping from a school building; this gave rise to the three-day demonstration.

In his reply at the National Assembly session held on 3 June, Education Minister Yi Kyu-ho pointed out: "The recent student incidents have been characterized by the fact that the grievance factors on the part of students are more complex than before, that resistance and distrust have become inherent in their movement, and that assertions of some of the students are becoming leftish. Whereas student disturbances in the past were based on concrete political issues, recent ones have been characterized by a clear ideological posture manipulated by behind-the-scenes forces." (TONGA ILBO, 5 June)

The main grounds for such observations are: 1) such words as antifascist and compradore capitalists are being used; 2) the incumbent government is regarded as their enemy, and they are trying to overthrow it by means of violence; and 3) the main forces of revolution are workers, farmers, students, and intellectuals, and the objective of struggle is the current regime. These seem to be the factors that appear when the demands and assertions of the student struggle are analyzed. (TONG ILBO, 4 June)

Such a sustained evolvement of the student struggle is based on the following fundamental understanding of the situation:

"After all, what traitorous group emerged from among the bayonets after mercilessly trampling upon all the passionate zeal for democratization following the 26 October incident (incident in which Pak was shot to death)? It was the incumbent fascist political group headed by Chon Tu-hway. The Chon Tu-hwan group, succeeding the fascist dictatorship of Pak Chong-hui, instigated the 12 December coup d'etat, installed a more vicious dictatorial regime, and thereby safeguarded their existing rights with bayonets. Furthermore, they carried out the 17 May coup d'etat to trample to the ground the nationwide democratic resistance--the nationwide democratic struggle launched by conscientious intellectuals, men of the press, men of religion, politicians, and students--along with a great number of labor disputes, including the Sabuk struggle.

"Alas! How can we forget the dark crimson blood shed by many Kwangju citizens along Kumnam Street?" (above-mentioned Seoul National University students' "anti-fascist democratic declaration on the current situation").

Retrogressive Revision of Labor Laws and Workers Struggle

Furthermore, students were driven to resist the Chon Tu-hwan regime's various measures designed to suppress the student movement. Typical of such measures was "the graduation quota system."

This unheard of system is to work as follows: the college admission quota will be increased by 30 percent in the 1981 college admissions and thereafter, for the professed reason of "eliminating the examination hell"; however, a number of students equal to the increase will be dropped by the time of graduation. In other words, the entrance is widened but the outlet is narrowed to what it has been. Thus, those students who take part in activities critical of the government will not be able to graduate. This system is clearly designed to seal off the student movement by intimidation. However, this system has, on the contrary, contributed greatly to an increase in backlash student resistance, it is observed by the writer.

It may be in dealing with workers that the real nature of the Chon Tu-hwan regime has been shown in a clear-cut form.

On 30 December 1980 the Chon Tu-hwan regime announced that five labor laws would be put into effect on 1 January 1981. The four existing labor laws--the Labor Standard Law, the Labor Union Law, the Labor Dispute Settlement Law and the Labor Committee Law--were revised in a retrogressive way. And a new law, called the Labor-Employer Council Law, was enacted.

The central aim of the revision of the labor laws was as follows: labor-employer relations, which were previously dealt with mainly by means of the labor union mechanism, including the Federation of Korean Labor Unions and the Industrial Labor Unions in one way or another, will from now on be handled mainly by means of labor-employer councils which are to be organized at every business enterprise; and thereby the basic rights of labor unions and the workers directly related to the unions and their activities will be thoroughly suppressed.

A labor-employer council, regardless of the activities of labor unions, will be established at every business enterprise with an equal representation ratio for labor and for management. It will be designed to improve productivity, promote the welfare of workers, carry out the education and training of workers, prevent labor disputes, and handle the grievances of workers.

Thus the labor union system has been changed from the previous industrial labor union system to a business enterprise labor union system; and on the pretext that problems arising in labor-employer relations are now to be settled by means of those parties concerned within the business enterprise, that is, the labor-employee council, a unified bargaining channel and the exclusion of outsider, third-party intervention in the bargaining have been laid down by law.

Furthermore, the requirements for the establishment of a labor union have become complicated. Previously, a labor union could be established by as few as two persons, but, now, after the recent revision of the law, a labor union may be established only when more than 30 workers of the business enterprise or more than one-fifth of the total number of workers agree to its establishment.

Another point which draws attention is that the government agencies' intervening power has been strengthened. Now it is legally possible for a government agency to issue an order to repeal or change regarding illegal or improper articles in the agreement reached as a result of collective bargaining.

Finally, the restrictions on labor disputes have been made tighter: a wholesale ban has been imposed on labor disputes in the state, local self-governing communities, and state-operated business enterprises and defense industry business enterprises. Furthermore, even in the case of ordinary business enterprises, labor disputes launched in places other than the business enterprise concerned are now banned.

To summarize: 1) thoroughgoing attempts to weaken labor unions and the labor movement in terms of functions, requirements for establishment of a union, a union's solidarity with outside supporting forces, or a union's activities in places other than the business enterprise concerned; and 2) attempts to strengthen the power of capitalists and a government agency to influence labor.

In the days of the Pak Chong-hui regime, more than two workers could establish a labor union if they wished; labor unions played an important role in settling labor-management problems, though in form only; labor unions could launch labor disputes outside their own business enterprise--the struggle of the workers of YH Trading in the summer of 1979 was an example. Comparing today's situation with that of the era of the Pak regime, one can see easily how the labor law has been revised in a retrogressive way.

A disbandment order was served to the Ch'onggye Clothing Workers Labor Union in the name of the mayor of the city of Seoul, and on 22 January the office of the union and its workers' classroom were closed down by force. This incident was nothing but part of the Chon Tu-hwan regime's policy of suppressing the labor movement.

The Ch'onggye Clothing Workers Labor Union was organized in November 1970 as a union of the small business enterprises in the P'yonghwa market. It succeeded as a result of the will of the late Chon T'ae-il, who burned himself to death in an appeal for the guarantee of the legitimate rights of workers. Its history is part of the history of the Korean labor union movement of the 1970's. The Chon Tu-hwan regime disbanded such a union with a single administrative order of disbandment, despite the fact that it had made tremendous achievements while representing over 2,000 clothing workers.

The workers of this labor union launched a struggle to protest against such a disbandment order on the evening of 30 January at the office of the Korean brance of the Asian-American Free Labor Union Organization in Seoul in the form of a sit-in. An appeal made public at the sit-in said in its final paragraph: "The first step toward democratization is to guarantee the rights of workers who represent the absolute majority of the people. National construction can only be based on humane treatment of workers. The Seoul city authorities must immediately withdraw their disbandment order and restore the original status of the Ch'onggye Clothing Workers Labor Union. The bad labor law must be abolished, and the rights of labor must be guaranteed."

All of the 21 men and women workers who took part in the sit-in were arrested. One of them was Chon T'ae-sam, brother of Chon T'ae-il. The workers' sit-in was the first since the Chon Tu-hwan coup d'etat of May 1980. It must be regarded as very significant in that it was the first open counterattack by the workers against the Chon Tu-hwan regime's policy of suppressing the labor movement.

Confusion in Democratization Movement and Its Cause

These struggles by the students and workers point to a development in which the fundamental weaknesses of the Chon Tu-hwan regime are bringing about a further stepping up of the strong power rule.

Nevertheless, a development that is drawing attention is that some of those who were heretofore taking part in the democratization camp are now saying that "the Chon Tu-hwan regime is in any case better than the Pak Chong-hui regime" and have begun to openly take a stand in support of the Chon Tu-hwan regime.

For example, the case of former president Yun Po-son, points to this. On 18 March he visited the office of a candidate of the Democratic Justice Party, who was running for a National Assembly seat and who was formerly the chief secretary to Yun, in order to give support to the candidate's campaign. Yun told reporters during his visit: "What we need most urgently now is stabilization"; "In order to meet the current situation, when we are suffering from rising prices internally, while externally we face the difficulty of coping with the North's military superiority, we the people must overcome such domestic and foreign troubles by achieving cohesion and unity"; "Since its inauguration, the Democratic Justice Party has committed some mistakes but these were not motivated by any vicious or deliberate intentions"; "In the past the Pak Chong-hui regime closed the path of dialogue with the people, so the opposing forces could not help launching a struggle against it. However, if the Chon regime opens an avenue of dialogue with the people to listen to their voices, the opposing forces do not need to launch a struggle or become opposition parties." (TONG ILBO, 20 March 1981)

Nevertheless, assertions like these will not be effective in persuading those who are well versed in the aggravated situation of the Korean workers under the Chon Tu-hwan regime. Such conversion phenomena have shown some gains against the democratization movement at home and abroad, in which, it is said, some confusion is being generated. Why is it then that such a phenomenon has emerged? The 1 May 1981 editorial of the HAEOE HANMINBO OF OVERSEAS KOREANS NEWS, a paper published by an overseas Korean, provides us with some hints regarding this; it points out:

"As we see it, following the 26 October incident the year before last, there was some change in the Korean democratization movement in the United States--to be precise, some confusion. One must frankly admit that there have been some drawbacks (in the movement) since the 17 May coup d'etat last year.

The causes of this, first of all, are: a miscalculated view of the development that was loaded with optimism and expectations toward "the Korean spring" during the period from 26 October to 17 May; and frustration caused by the 17 May suppression-to-death of the democratization movement.

"Second, the division and disintegration, which had continued to develop even before the current conversion trend, became even worse from the time of the 17 May development on, and some people have been drawn into that trend.

"Third, one may think, as another cause, of a weariness caused by the protractedness of the movement and the failure in achieving a clear-cut effect and fruition despite a long struggle."

This is a brief analysis of the recent confusion and drawbacks in the Korean democratization movement abroad, and in particular, in the United States. However, it does give an important clue to understanding the complicated phenomena which have developed recently in the overall Korean democratization movement.

Among the three causes cited above, the first and second may also be applied to the democratization movement in Korea.

In the face of the incident of the shooting to death of Pak Chong-hui, the announcement of the schedule for a correction of the strong power rule in the name of political development--namely a definite democratization, and the implementation of the schedule--some people in the camp of the Korean democratization movement came to entertain exaggerated expectations and optimism regarding "the Seoul spring." These people failed to understand the reality that those who took charge of the transformation of the situation were not the popular masses but the forces of the existing regime, and that even "the political development" was nothing but a framed one called forth by the leadership of the military, the actual holder of political power, although the main background motives of the incident of the shooting to death of Pak were the exposure of contradictions within the Yusin dictatorship regime in all fields of politics, government and economy; and the enhancement of the antigovernment struggle of the people. Therefore, it is not surprising that such a miscalculated optimism was driven to frustration by means of the Chon Tu-hwan coup d'etat, and the Kwangju major suppression and the Kim Tae-jung trial that followed the coup d'etat.

As for the second cause, the Chon Tu-hwan regime's policy of disintegrating the democratization movement became more and more sophisticated while the regime was selecting as its central elements some of those who were estranged during the Pak regime era as well as personages of mass communications circles.

Furthermore, it may be necessary that one cite here the impacts of the changes of policies in the United States.

It was obvious that the moves of the United States, which realized the limits of the Pak Chong-hui regime, were largely projected on "the political development" that followed the incident in which Pak was shot to death. However, in late December 1979, when the Afghanistan problem emerged, U.S. policy under the Carter administration already came to revise its major direction. In other words, the United States, which had its hands full with the Iran problem which had been developing for a while, now came to be faced directly with two major international disputes and so it turned to take a stand of averting by all means developments that might turn Korea into "a third area of dispute." Thus the United States came to attempt to stabilize the situation in Korea by supporting Chon Tu-hwan and others who became new power holders in Korea; and such policy revisions as this became more and more obvious when the Reagan administration emerged. Thus it happened that attempts were now being made to strengthen and bolster the Chon Tu-hwan regime openly.

It is obvious that such a change in U.S. policy had a great impact on some people who had joined the camp that was engaged in criticism of the government, and who were proud of being no less, if not more, pro-U.S. and anticommunist than the government side.

Attempts by the Student Movement To Review the Struggle

The leaders and major activists, including Kim Tae-jung, of the democratization movement, who were arrested at the time of the Chon Tu-hwan coup d'etat and were tried at courts-martial, were sentenced to live imprisonment or other penal punishment and are now in prison. Judging from this fact and the phenomena of conversion cited above, one can understand that the Korean democratization struggle is now faced with a grim situation.

How is it that such a grim situation was brought about? What measures will have to be taken to break through the deadlock the Korean democratization movement is now facing?

Attempts to review fundamental problems and tackle new problems are now being made by the student movement in order to map out these measures. The "antifascist student comrades struggle declaration" announced at the campus demonstration staged by the Seoul National University students on 11 December 1980 may be regarded as typical of these attempts.

The declaration is made up of four parts: 1) "Who are our enemies and what is their essential nature?; 2) "What are the reorganized enemies conspiring to defend their existing rights?; 3) "What should we learn from the May struggle? and 4) "How should we launch struggle?"

Our attention is drawn above all to a summation review of the struggle launched in May 1980 when the fight between the proregime group and the antiregime group reached its climax in "post-Pak" Korea:

"What is the ultimate task of our movement? In a nutshell, it is to establish a unified nation in which the masses are sovereign.

"In concrete terms, it is to score a great victory in the struggle of the masses in which the workers, other working masses including farmers, and progressive and vanguard-oriented intellectuals, whose fundamental rights even to life are being denied by the exploitation system, will organize themselves into a single group; the foreign forces and domestic compradore ruling forces will be exterminated; all conditions of division will be eliminated; and ultimately the unification of the masses of the nation will be effected. This is a process of long and difficult struggle assigned to our nation.

"The period of commotion ranging from the second half of 1979 to early 1980 should also be reviewed calmly as part of the means of carrying out such a great task. The beginning of the year 1980 meant: to the ruling forces, the building up of a more solid ruling power system; to the forces which were estranged during the Yusin administration, the grasping of ruling power; and to us, the establishment of a democratic system and a constitutional foundation which would guarantee the struggle of the masses. However, we failed to keep our eyes on these fundamental objectives in the process of the actual development of the struggle."

First, we failed to understand clearly the enemies' essential nature and conditions. Second, we failed to overcome the formal democracy in its substance and thereby alienated ourselves decisively from the masses. Third, the masses of students failed to display effectively their total strength. Thus the struggle resulted in nothing but the limitations experienced by the 1970's student movement in its ideology and fighting capacity.

"The factors of not being oriented toward the masses and irresponsibility which characterized the whole movement of the 1970's revealed themselves as lessons to be learned in the failure in the Kwangju resistance struggle and the success scored in the 17 May coup d'etat. The Kwangju resistance struggle is our masses' declaration of blood, a proposition regarding the whole movement of the 1970's that the current enemies could not be annihilated without the organized forces of the masses participating with those in charge of the struggle who accepted the rapid development of the content of the struggle and who held the main leadership."

The ultimate task of the Korean democratization struggle, including the student movement, is the establishment of a unified nation in which the masses are sovereign; even during the period of commotion after the incident in which Pak was shot to death, it was necessary that such a stand be firmly maintained. However, in the process of actual development of the struggle, such a fundamental objective was lost sight of; the essential nature and conditions of the enemies were not grasped; and the mistake of decisively alienating the masses was made. The failure of the Kwangju resistance struggle and the success in the 17 May coup d'etat are related to these mistakes. The Kwangju incident clearly showed us the decisive importance of the organized forces of the masses. This is a brief review. What draws attention is that this review covers the whole movement of the 1970's. In other words, this literature represents an attempt to make an overall review of the Korean Administration of the 1970's.

The declaration goes on to set forth the direction and tasks of the struggle to be launched from now on.

As for the direction of the struggle, "it is a full-fledged antifascist struggle in which the broad federation of the masses of the people are to annihilate the compradore fascist ruling group." The main force of the antifascist struggle must be the working masses, who would become the core of the unified nation. However, under the present conditions in Korea, such conditions are not maturing. Thus the role of the immediate propelling force must be played by the student movement, it is asserted. And the declaration goes on to say that the student movement, charged with such a role, must be expanded quantitatively and enhanced qualitatively. It sets forth the following tasks:

Prospects of the Struggle in the 1980's

1. The strengthening of the capability to understand the working masses correctly, of the capability to launch a struggle together with them, and of the fighting capability. This must be implemented by means of analysis and actual examination of the social and economic contradictory structure in Korea.

2. The quantitative expansion and qualitative deepening of the student movement.

3. Unceasing struggle.

4. Renunciation of the struggle outlook advocating the demonstrations are supreme. Demonstrations must be used most effectively from the overall [two characters indistinct] of all the tactical factors, including the demonstration itself. Therefore, there must be concentration on the task of developing all kinds of tactical factors that would serve these purposes.

Meanwhile, the declaration, in a chapter dealing with "who are our enemies and what is their essential nature?," sets forth "our obvious enemies" as follows: "The compradore ruling power at home which is desperately defending the system of fundamental exploitation against the enveloping attack of the masses; the compradore monopoly capitalists, compradore bureaucratic group, and compradore military." Furthermore, it states clearly: "Can the United States, which is supporting the new fascist regime, be an eternal friend of ours?"; "If Japan simply acts as an agent of the United States and does not take a stand of trying to understand correctly the demands of the Korean people, it will not be able to avoid the arrows of our struggle."

Such a review and setting forth of the problems by student movement circles will contribute greatly to shoring up the Korean democratization struggle from its current temporary difficulty and enhancing it anew.

What should be regarded as significant above all is the fact that the review points out that there has been no extablishment of a sufficiently clear unified masses' outlook or no firm holding of such an outlook; and that there has been an alienation of the masses and materialization of the bases on the part of the current regime. This is of significance in that the review points out the fundamental problems arising in the Korean democratization struggle. It should also be of significance that the review emphasizes the serious lack of a clear-cut understanding of "the enemies' essential nature and their conditions." Furthermore, it is of significance that the review sets forth the first task that should be implemented from now on as follows: "To strengthen the capability of correctly understanding the working masses and of launching struggle together with them, to strengthen the fighting capability," and to reinforce the struggle with analyses of the social and economic contradictory structure of Korea.

These issues are very closely interrelated. In other words, the lack of understanding of "the enemies' essential nature and their conditions" will invariably allow one to lose sight of the fundamental objective: "The establishment of a unified nation in which the masses are sovereign." One can perhaps understand this clearly simply by seeing that the idea and attitude "of supporting the Chon Tu-hwan regime because it is better than the Pak Chong-hui regime" is not compatible with the stand advocating the establishment of a unified nation in which the masses are sovereign.

One can understand easily why the review sets forth the first concrete task to be carried out to overcome the current deadlocked situation--a correct understanding of the working masses by means of analyses of the structural contradiction of Korean society, and the strengthening of the capability of launching struggle together with the working masses--when one understands the following propositions: "One of the causes of the still insufficient achievement in the human liberation movement in our society is, I believe, that our efforts still are not being made logically enough. This is tantamount to saying that our efforts are not masses-oriented enough." (Paek Nak-chong, "Seeking the Logics of Human Liberation")

This has been a brief review of the conditions and tasks with which the Korean democratization struggle is currently faced.

One can safely say that, if various efforts are stepped up on the basis of the unified masses-oriented outlook, which has not been firm heretofore, and which may now be firmly established by means of taking advantage of the steadily deepening economic crisis and the aggravation of the structural contradictions of Korean society, the Korean democratization struggle will undoubtedly be freshly enhanced in the 1980's.

PROBLEM OF ASSEMBLYMEN'S ELECTION DEBTS EXAMINED

Seoul CHUNGANG ILBO in Korean 15 Aug 81 p 3

[Article by staff reporters Kim Yong-pae and Kim Hyon-ik: "The Real Stories of Election Debts Among Assemblymen"]

[Text] The "proper relationship between politics and money" is an old issue in the political world, but of late the search by assemblymen for an "escape from monetary devastation" has become more serious in several ways. Examples include fund raising events for party members, talk of raising the annual allowance, and the taking of second jobs. Many assemblymen are hard pressed, and it is obvious that the many assemblymen who incurred election debts are in the most pain. It has been almost 5 months since the election and the assemblymen have not yet recovered financially; the fact that this is one of the factors behind their dissatisfaction cannot be hidden. What is the actual situation of election debts and prospects for recovery?

Assemblymen are reluctant to talk about debts. Besides being embarrassed, they are also concerned about prestige and credibility; there is also the point that their debts will not tally with the election expenses reported to the election committee, so there is a tendency to hush-hush debts.

While it is inevitable to have indebted assemblymen no matter which party, it is a fact that there are more in the minority parties.

In the case of the Minjon-dang, there are few with election debts, but since neither the party nor the individuals say anything, it is impossible to determine the number; political circles estimate that 30 to 40, or about half of the Hanmin-dang assemblymen, 7 or 8 from the Kungmin-dang, and 5 to 8 from Uijongtongu-dang are surely in debt.

There are few indebted Minjon-dang assemblymen, because it chose, on the basis of potential for being elected, wealthy local entrepreneurs for its candidates and because it received aid from all sides by virtue of being the party in power. Assemblyman L. of Seoul, who had been the secretary of a powerful person, received greater "contributions" than expected and had money left over after the elections.

Right after the elections there were some assemblymen who admitted to debts ranging from 20-30 million to hundreds of millions of won, but now they say that over time they have in some way or another resolved their problems so that for most only a few-million-won debts remain, hardly a major problem.

Those assemblymen who still say that debts are affecting their lives are mostly old politicians, former journalists and former bureaucrats. Assemblymen J., who sold his home to provide election funds, is still moving from one rented house to another, while Assemblyman P., who said he had about 40 million won in debts, has plans to sell his single family home and move down to an apartment.

Assemblyman L. of South Ch'ungch'ong says that although he owes a lot for printing and gasoline, his creditors, mostly his friends, have not pressured him so that his main burden is that of the heart; he also says that the 2 million in local party aid was a big help. Assemblyman K. says that besides 5 million in interest-free loans, all that is left is a bill for food eaten by some unknown persons. Assemblymen P. of North Kyongsang, who distributed books to every family and home in his district, has the books as his biggest debt, and he held a publishing commemoration after the election in hopes of raising funds, but he is unable to take care of all his debts.

After Assemblyman H. drew heavy criticism with his appeal that "parties should pay election debts" in the May General Assembly, the Minjon-dang assemblymen have rarely spoken openly about election debts; especially in relation to the stated line of realizing a clean government, when the actions of certain assemblymen became a problem, discussion of debts ceased within the party.

The most depressing topic of discussion for assemblymen belonging to the Minhan-dang is election debts.

This is because about 70 percent of the 58 district representatives have debts of from 5 million to 50 million won.

In the case of Assemblyman A., 10 million of his 32 million debt is in bak lo loans while the remainder is private debt. Therefore his monthly interest alone is over 600,000 won. The interest is no greater only due to the fact that part of his debt is a no-interest loan from a friend.

He laments that after deducting the interest from his salary, there is little left to spend and explains that he could not make it without the help of a few friends.

There is also the story of Assemblyman S., who put off paying for meals during the election, so that the restaurant owner sent a statement of the situation to an opposition party.

The case of Assemblyman K., whose interest alone is 1.5 million and whose salary is not enough to cover it, is typical.

Even his 14 P'yong modern home is collateral for 5 million won.

He says that even in the case of the passenger car bought for him by his friends, he paid only the down payment and used the rest to pay interest.

Assemblyman J. is living in a two-room rental for 2.5 million won in key money; he states that his debts are 20 million won, his interest payments are 400,000 won per month, and even his mortgaged land belongs in fact to his wife's family.

Assemblyman K. of Seoul, who states that he has 70 million won in election debts, says that the phone calls which come at 5 in the morning or at midnight are the most worrisome.

Reelected assemblyman are said not to have election debts, but Assemblyman L. of South Ch'ungch'ong has debts of 17 million, Assemblymen L. of South Cholla 20 million, and Assemblyman K. of North Cholla 1 million won.

Even among the nationwide assemblymen who were not up for election, Assemblyman L. is busy paying 90,000 won in interest on the 30 million he put into election contributions.

Also, even though they suffer from debts, those who won the election are much better off than those who lost.

Committee chairman A. of North Ch'ungch'ong said that after selling his home he was left with 35 million of an original 52 million in debts, while the election debts of committee chairman S. of South Ch'ungch'ong are over 100 million.

In addition, the situation of the losers is such that we cannot give them all as examples.

Assemblymen with debts often live in rented homes. Ten of them, such as S. of Seoul, C. of Kyonggi, H. of Kangwon, K. of North Cholla, L. of South Cholla and K. of North Kyongsang, all must rely on rented homes, while five or six men like S. & H. of Seoul are planning to dispose of their current homes and move to rentals.

The Kungmin-dang has comparatively few assemblymen suffering on "a pile of unbearable debt."

For this party, only Assemblyman Kim Won T'ae is rumored to be suffering from debt, and while a few other assemblymen have debts ranging from 40 million to 100 million, it is said that it is only a problem of time as they sell their assets to pay off their debts.

Assemblyman K., who has only a party post, has a debt of nearly 100 million, with interest of over 2 million per month; in order to pay this, he has put up for sale his apartment and his Kangnam land (valued at 150 million).

Also, Assemblyman L., who has 50 million in debts, said that since all his creditors are his wife's friends, he merely turns his 1.5 million salary over to his wife as interest money and that he has put up for sale the apartment he had prepared for his son.

Assemblyman L. publicly stated that the money he borrowed from relatives and friends in his district 2-3 million at a time totalled 20 million, and that as in the saying "Dunning grows more severe when there is no hope for reelection" it is difficult to both pay off the debts and take care of the district.

With the manifestation on all sides of the difficulties of not only the indebted assemblymen but also of those assemblymen running in the red, the argument for improved treatment has surfaced and is attracting attention.

First, the argument for a salary increase has reappeared, as have various debts such as gasoline assistance, increased secretarial staffs, exemption from postage and communications fees, health insurance and resurrection of temporary salary increases.

The assemblymen hoping for improved treatment are of course nearly all those without other sources of income.

Those assemblymen holding concurrent posts who can be regarded as having other sources of income total 107, but those with positions providing real financial support account for only 80, or less than one-third of all assemblymen.

Therefore, the most reliable plan to surface is that of providing concurrent jobs for assemblymen.

The Minjong-dang line on concurrent position activation which would provide or encourage positions for assemblymen with no sources of income outside their assemblyman posts a plan for killing two birds with one stone, is that it agrees with the basic line for operation of the National Assembly and it could prevent the degradation of the assemblymen's prestige. In anticipation of the possibility of criticism of the "secondary job transformation of assemblymen" in this case, the Minjong-dang seems to be thinking of showing by actions the principle of "assemblymen first, concurrent post second."

The Minjong-dang also says it is "prepared to provide jobs" even for opposition party assemblymen, and in such a case there is no doubt that the money problem would be improved.

An assemblyman such as L. spoke frankly: "Rather than being an assemblyman as I am now, wouldn't it be better for my sister and her husband if somebody just gave me a job?"

The big problem is the opposition parties' response to this. Since the opposition parties have already rejected a proposal for joint management of an assistance group on the grounds that it would compromise their integrity as the opposition, it is difficult to conjecture how they might accept this.

KWP CONGRATULATES PYONGYANG THERMAL POWER PLANT

SK031042 Pyongyang Domestic Service in Korean 2300 GMT 2 Oct 81

[Text] The KWP Central Committee sent a message of congratulations to workers, technicians, office workers and three-revolution team members of the Pyongyang thermal power plant. In the message of congratulations, the party central committee said that on the occasion of the 20th anniversary of the great leader's historic on-the-spot guidance to the Pyongyang thermal power plant, it extends warm congratulations to workers, technicians, office workers and three-revolution team members of the plant for their great contribution to the development of the electric power industry of the country.

In the message the party central committee pointed out: Under a far-sighted plan to build a self-reliant power base based on the raw material resources available in our country, the leader personally established the site of the Pyongyang thermal power plant on 21 September 1961 and had built a large-scale, modern power plant in our country for the first time. Since then, the leader has wisely led the operation of the power plant through constant and detailed guidance.

In the message the party central committee said: For the past 20 years, while gallantly surmounting all sorts of difficulties and trials, the working class of the Pyongyang thermal power plant, infinitely loyal to the party and the leader, has firmly developed the power plant into a powerful power base of the country and has overfulfilled the electric power production plan by thoroughly implementing the Chuche-based electric power policy of the party. Thus, it has greatly contributed to smoothly ensuring the increasing electric power demands of the country.

In the message the party central committee said: Functionaries and three-revolution team members of the Pyongyang thermal power plant have actively contributed to making the life of the citizens of the capital city more convenient and modernized by increasing the rate of utilization of heating facilities and supplying more hot water, upholding and following the leader's instructions on placing Pyongyang under a centralized heating system.

In the message the party central committee expressed satisfaction with the fact that the workers, technicians, office workers and three-revolution team members of the Pyongyang thermal power plant have reliably defended the power front of the country and have outstandingly fulfilled their assigned revolutionary missions through their devoted struggle by faithfully following the leadership of the party and the leader, and it highly evaluated their brilliant labor exploits.

Stressing that the electric power industry field is now faced with a heavy but honorable mission in implementing the grand socialist economic construction program set forth at the historic sixth party congress, the party central committee said in the message that it firmly believes that the working class and three-revolution team members of the Pyongyang thermal power plant will continue to vigorously wage the struggle to achieve the goal of 100,000 million kwh of electricity ahead of schedule by thoroughly implementing the party policy of giving priority to the electric power industry and by responsibly fulfilling their assigned revolutionary missions, thus faithfully repaying the trust and expectation of the party.

A meeting to convey the congratulatory message of the party central committee was held on the spot on 2 October. Respectfully placed at the front of the meeting was a portrait of Comrade Kim Il-song, the great leader of our party and people. Slogans reading "long live the great leader comrade Kim Il-song" and "long live the glorious KWP" were placed in the meeting site. The meeting was attended by comrade So Yun-sok and functionaries concerned together with the workers, technicians, office workers and three-revolution team members of the power plant.

The meeting began with the singing "The Song of General Kim Il-song." The congratulatory message of the party central committee was delivered amid the enthusiastic applause of the attendants. Next, there were discussions. Those who participated in the discussions, saying that the congratulatory message of the party central committee on the occasion of the 20th anniversary of the great leader's first on-the-spot guidance to the Pyongyang thermal power plant is an expression of the great political trust extended to them, extended the greatest honor and the warmest thanks to the glorious party center. Those who participated in the discussions said that they will guarantee full operation of the plant to brilliantly implement the militant task indicated in the congratulatory message of the party central committee by properly carrying out the technical management of the generating facilities, strictly observing the technical specifications and the standard factory procedure and establishing the preplanned preventive maintenance system.

Those who participated in the discussions said that they will firmly arm themselves with the Chuche idea of our party and enhance technical and cultural standards by vigorously waging the movement to win the red flag of the three revolutions and the movement to follow and emulate the examples set by the unherald heroes and increase production of electricity by normalizing the management and operation of the power plant at a high level, thus repaying the political trust and expectation of the party.

The meeting adopted a pledge to the party central committee.

AAPSO DENOUNCES U.S. FOR INCREASING ARMS IN S. KOREA

SK081541 Pyongyang KCNA in English 1511 GMT 8 Oct 81

[Text] Pyongyang, 8 Oct (KCNA)--The Afro-Asian Peoples Solidarity Organization appeals to all the peaceloving people, national organizations and their affiliated organizations to denounce the large-scale arms buildup of the U.S. imperialists in South Korea and launch a big campaign for expressing firm solidarity with the Korean people in their just struggle for the independent and peaceful reunification of Korea.

So says a statement issued by the permanent secretariat of the Afro-Asian Peoples Solidarity Organization on 28 September.

Pointing out that the bellicose Reagan administration has recently disclosed its criminal plan to deploy even neutron bombs in South Korea, the statement says: The U.S. imperialists have already stockpiled a large number of nuclear warheads in South Korea. Their destructive power is far greater than 1,000 times that of the atomic bombs which the U.S. imperialists dropped over Hiroshima and Nagasaki of Japan during the Second World War.

The total "military sales loan" of the U.S. imperialists to South Korea in the fiscal 1981 amounts to $176 million and this accounts for one-third of the total amount of "aid" of the U.S. imperialists to Asian and Pacific countries in the fiscal year.

The U.S. imperialists arms buildup has become all the more undisguised since the Chon Tu-hwan fascist clique seized "power."

The Afro-Asian Peoples Solidarity Organization bitterly denounces the U.S. imperialists for deploying large quantities of mass destruction weapons including nuclear weapons as a wanton violation of the resolution of the United Nations and the Korean armistice agreement and strongly demands them to put an immediate end to all war preparations.

The U.S. imperialists must renounce the anachronistic policy towards Korea and withdraw their aggressive troops and all destructive weapons including nuclear weapons from South Korea without delay.

'NODONG SINMUN' HITS CHON'S ANTI-CORRUPTION MOVE AS DRAMA

SK151534 Pyongyang KCNA in English 1514 GMT 15 Oct 81

[Text] Pyongyang, 15 Oct (KCNA)--The Chon Tu-hwan group, under the slogan of combating corruption, detained or "transferred" "government officials" including the coal section chief of the puppet ministry of power resources on charges of "involvement in a low-quality briquette scandal."

This is the topic of a signed article of NODONG SINMUN today headlined "Like Master, Like Man," which says: Making public this "case," the Chon Tu-hwan group kicked up a row to create the impression that they were going to uproot the practices of corruption between the "government" officials concerned and the briquette makers and "protect" the life of the common people through the "anti-solicitation campaign." But, this is one more third-rate drama for fooling public opinion and winning the favour of the people.

The "low-quality briquette scandal" in which the puppet power structure and the briquette dealers conspired with each other is but the visible tip of the submerged iceberg of the scandals in vogue within the Chon Tu-hwan military fascist group and the puppet ruling machines.

Traitor Chon Tu-hwan himself, after he climbed to the seat of "supreme power" by "soliciting favours" of his American patron, misappropriated 100 and several dozen thousand million won through two times of "roundup of illicit fortune-makers backed by power" and embezzled a fabulous amount of 300,000 million won through a series of raise of bank rates and exchange rate and the lift of oil prices. This is no secret to anyone. It is not fortuitous that the coal section chief of the puppet ministry of power resources, who was branded as the mastermind of the "low-quality briquette scandal," failed to account for 50 million won out of the total 400 million won he took from the "coal association" during the last 1 year, clarifying only the outlay of 350 million won. Why did the puppet prosecution leave the whereabouts of the 50 million won in obscurity, failing to clarify it, if it had not fallen into the pocket of traitor Chon Tu-hwan?

Branding the Chon Tu-hwan group as the chieftain and mastermind of corruption in South Korea, the commentary says: Like master, like man.

The punishment of a few "government officials" involved in the "low-quality briquette scandal" by the Chon Tu-hwan group this time was a trick to evade its responsibility for the crime and quell the growing voice of protest by shifting it onto the fries when discontent at the low quality and high price of the briquette burst forth among the people.

If corruption is to be eradicated in South Korea, Chon Tu-hwan, the despicable traitor and mastermind of scandals, must be removed first of all and the military fascist rule be brought to an end.

CHOE HONG-HUI, PARTY TOUR CHONGJIN

SK130503 Pyongyang KCNA in English 0422 GMT 13 Oct 81

[Text] Pyongyang, 13 Oct (KCNA)--Mr Choe Hong-hui, publisher of PAEDAL SINBO and president of the International Federation of Taekwondo, and his party now staying in the homeland visited Chongjin.

They went first with deep reverence to a statue of the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song erected in the city. Then they visited the Kim Chaek iron and steel works.

I have never imagined that the city, a small town in the past, has changed its looks beyond recognition, Mr Choe Hong-hui noted, and said: In the past Chongjin was a military base of the Japanese imperialists for the invasion of the Asian mainland. But today the city has turned into a developed industrial district under the wise leadership of the great President Kim Il-song.

While inspecting this iron and steel works alone, I have clearly realised that the economic power of the country is very great and the national strength is tremendous.

The rise of a nation depends upon a great leader, I think.

All these amazing changes in the homeland are attributable entirely to the correct leadership of the great President Kim Il-song.

Expressing the firm determination to make their contribution, though humble, to the cause of putting an early end to the tragedy of the territorial division, the members of Mr Choe Hong-hui's party wholeheartedly wished good health and a long life to the great President Kim Il-song and to the dear leader Kim Chong-il for the day of glory.

Mr Choe Hong-hui and his party watched an exhibition performance of our Taekwondo players in Chongjin.

CHOE HONG-HUI, PARTY CALL KIM CHONG-IL, KIM IL-SONG BRILLIANT LEADER

SK101557 Pyongyang KCNA in English 1525 GMT 10 Oct 81

[Text] Pyongyang, 10 Oct (KCNA)--Mr Choe Hong-hui, publisher of PAEDAL SINBO and president of the International Federation of Taegwondo, and his party now staying in the socialist homeland visited revolutionary battle sites in Yanggang Province from 5 to 7 October.

They first saw with reverence a statue of the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song and large groups of sculptures erected by the Lake Samji, while hearing about the immortal revolutionary feats performed by the great leader, the legendary hero of the anti-Japanese struggle.

Noting that the statue of the great leader has been built grandiousely against the background of Mt Paektu, they said with deep admiration that the grand monument is a masterpiece of the world.

Through our inspection we clearly realized that the dear leader initiated and guided the construction of the battle sites and erection of such a wonderful grand monument, they said, and stressed: Mr Kim Chong-il is indeed a brilliant leader.

Then, they went to the Samjiyon revolutionary museum and the Chongbong camp.

Mr Choe Hong-hui and his party climbed Mt Paektu, the holy mountain of revolution, after inspecting the revolutionary battle sites in Pochonbo and Taehongdan.

While inspecting the Pochonbo revolutionary battle sites, one of them said that he deepened his knowledge of the history of the revolutionary struggle of the great president. He continued: General Kim Il-song was possessed of extra-ordinary intelligence and art of command already in the young age of 20 and organised and commanded the Pochonbo battle widely known to the world.

This was why overseas compatriots praised him as a young general and General Kim Il-song already at that time.

General Kim Il-song is indeed the outstanding military strategist and most ardent patriot who turned a large army of the enemy to play in his hands with his clairvoyance.

People can get a better knowledge of the greatness of the general when they come and see this historic place, a beacon of hope for the small nations in their liberation struggle.

On the top of Mt Paektu, Mr Choe Hong-hui and his party said that they could not repress deep emotions, while looking down the clear water of the Lake Chonji and beautiful mountains and rivers of the homeland. They shouted at the top of their voices "long live the great President Kim Il-song!" and "long live the national reunification!" expressing due reverence for the respected and beloved leader.

Noting that their life-long desire to come and see Mt Paektu was realised, they extended thanks to the great leader President Kim Il-song for bestowing the honour upon them. Mr Choe Hong-hui said: Mt Paektu is always cherished dear in my heart. I most deeply respect and revere the great president. Because General Kim Il-song is a great man of the nation who waged an anti-Japanese war for many years in Mt Paektu and in the Manchurian plain and eventually liberated the fatherland, at the time of the 1919 movement representatives of the nation shouted "long live independence." But independence was not achieved.

In the trying period of the Japanese imperialist rule it was only General Kim Il-song who waged the anti-Japanese war for many years in Mt Paektu, overcoming all sorts of difficulties.

General Kim Il-song is the peerless patriot in the world.

Saying that when they commanded a view of mountains and rivers of the homeland from the top of Mt Paektu, they felt a more ardent desire for the country's reunification, Mr Choe Hong-hui and his party stressed: Our fatherland of the same land should be reunified at the earliest date.

TAEKWONDO DELEGATION VISITS NAMPO

SK191024 Pyongyang KCNA in English 1006 GMT 19 Oct 81

[Text] Pyongyang, 19 Oct (KCNA)--Mr Choe Hong-hui, publisher of PAEDAL SINBO and president of the International Federation of Taekwondo, and his party staying in the homeland visited the Kumsong tractor plant on 13 October.

It is a miracle that this plant which could not make properly even a hoe or a sickle in the past has now developed into a modern factory producing tens of thousands of tractors annually, they said. This plant, they added, makes us feel strength and national pride and honour.

A member of the party said: Through the inspection of this plant alone, we could immediately perceive the fatherly love and outstanding leadership of President Kim Il-song for freeing the working people from backbreaking toil.

Mr Choe Hong-hui and his party went round Nampo. Saying that Nampo which was insignificant in the past has undergone a tremendous change, leaving no trace of its old look, Mr Choe Hong-hui stressed: Everywhere in the north construction has progressed successfully, there is no gulf between the rich and the poor and everyone enjoys a happy life.

The compatriots in the homeland owe this welfare state good to live in entirely to the correct leadership of President Kim Il-song.

Another member of the party said that such inexhaustible resource and strength displayed today by our once forsaken nation are a product of the man-centred policy for bringing up people into a most powerful beings. He added that the chuche idea discovered by President Kim Il-song is, indeed, a great idea.

The party also inspected the Nampo glassware factory.

On the same day, they watched an exhibition performance of Taekwondo players of our country in Nampo.

CARAZO VOICES SUPPORT FOR ROK PEACE EFFORTS

SK140322 Seoul YONHAP in English 0310 GMT 14 Oct 81

[Text] Seoul, 14 Oct (YONHAP)--Costa Rican President Rodrigo Carzo Odio Wednesday said the Korean question, like all other disputes, should be resolved by dialogue, and declared that North Korea's refusal to comply with Seoul's initiatives calling for an inter-Korean dialogue indicated that the communist country was not desirous of peace.

Speaking at a news conference prior to his departure following a three-day state visit here, Carazo described the recent increase in the two-way trade between South Korea and Costa Rica as a "good sign" for future economic cooperation between the two countries, and called for more bilateral cooperation in the private sector to accelerate such cooperation.

He said the Costa Rican people appreciate the role South Korea plays as a bulwark against not only North Korean communism but world communism, and added that, for this, the freedom-loving nations of the world should be grateful.

Carazo, proponent of the United Nations peace university yet to be established, said in answer to a reporter's question that he would appreicate South Korea's support in materializing the plan, which, he said, aims at "establishing a lasting peace in the world."

In a joint communique issued by Carazo and his host President Chon Tu-hwan, the Costa Rican president expressed his "full support" for Chon's standing proposal calling for an inter-Korean summit meeting and Seoul's efforts aimed at an "early admission" of both South and North Korea into the United Nations. The admission of the two Koreas into the world body is opposed by North Korea, on the ground that it would perpetuate the division of the Korean peninsula.

The communique said that the Korean president expressed his "understanding and support" for the Costa Rican leader's proposal calling for the establishment of a UN peace university.

On bilateral economic and technical cooperation, it said, the two presidents have agreed to "promote mutually beneficial cooperation in all practical areas" and expand the scope of bilateral cooperation in accordance with a South Korean-Costa Rican agreement on scientific and technical cooperation.

SK140530 Pyongyang Domestic Service in Korean 2200 GMT 11 Oct 81

[Text] According to the Voice of the Revolutionary Party for Reunification, members of a chuche idea study association at a university in Seoul held a meeting in August 1981 and adopted a resolution to commemorate the 70th birthday of the great leader Marshal Kim Il-song, the sun of the people, as a grand national holiday. The resolution is as follows:

April 15, 1982, is the most significant birthday of General Kim Il-song, the matchless patriot, the hero of the people, the ever-victorious iron-willed commander and the sun of national salvation. Commemorating this day as a supreme national holiday is the unanimous desire and duty of our people who hold in high esteem General Kim Il-song as their leader and entrust their destiny to him. Ardently believing in the chuche idea, we adopt the following resolution to commemorate the 70th birthday of General Kim Il-song as a most felicitous, supreme national holiday:

First, we will more firmly arm ourselves spiritually with Kimilsongism. Thus, we will become the general's loyal sons and daughters who, being proud of holding in high esteem General Kim Il-song as a leader, respect and admire him forever and display loyalty to him generation after generation.

Second, we will become evangelists of Kimilsongism who spread the immortal chuche idea invented by General Kim Il-song among the people of all walks of life. We will rapidly increase the ranks of those who believe in Kimilsongism and show loyalty to the general to the end, firmly believing that the great General Kim Il-song alone can save our people and help them lead a happy life.

Third, we will become the flagbearers of the struggle to thoroughly materialize Kimilsongism in South Korea. To hasten the day when we will respectfully guide General Kim Il-song to the rostrum of reunification, we will exert all our energy and efforts to vigorously call the people of all walks of life to implement the plan for founding the Democratic Confederal Republic of Koryo put forward by him.

Fourth, we will organize various explanatory lecture meetings to familiarize ourselves with the greatness of the general, the sagacity of his leadership and his noble communist morality.

Fifth, we will hold a meeting on the morning of 15 April 1982 to pledge endless loyalty to General Kim Il-song. Long live General Kim Il-song! We respectfully wish General Kim Il-song a long life.

ROK DAILY REPORTS FURTHER ON N. KOREAN SPY RING

SK140641 Seoul THE KOREA TIMES in English 14 Oct 81 p 8

[Text] The Defense Security Command (DSC) announced yesterday that it had arrested three Yonsei University students and two other people on suspicion of having engaged in anti-government and pro-communist activities manipulated by North Korean agents in Japan.

The key figure is Kim Tae-hong, 25, a senior in the economics department at Yonsei who is from a Korean family in Kobe, Japan. The DSC said Kim visited Pyongyang early this year during winter vacation and joined the North Korean Workers' Party.

Two other students are U Tae-hyong, 24, and Pak Song-ŭ, 24, both classmates of Kim, who are accused of supporting communist ideology and failing to report Kim's activities to the authorities, according to the DSC announcement.

Yi Tae-su, 22, a former student in the economics department at Yonsei and now serving with a combat police unit, and Yi Ki-hyon, 24, a member of a special military command, are suspected of having leaked classified information about their organization to Kim.

Seventeen other people who have been contacted by Kim have been investigated by the DSC but the command decided not to take any prosecutive action against them because it was determined that they did not commit any serious law violations.

The announcement said Kim, the youngest of the seven children of Kim Pil-to, now dead, was recruited by a staff member of the pro-Pyongyang CHONGNYON organization in Hyogo Prefecture in 1974 and was given communist indoctrination by an agent named Nakamura.

He was given the mission of infiltrating student society in South Korea and agitating for pro-communist and anti-government movements, the DSC said.

He passed an examination for entrance to universities in the home country conducted by the Education Ministry for young overseas Korean residents and was admitted to Yonsei University in March, 1978.

After that, he allegedly contracted fellow students discontented with the political situation, led them to read socialist publications and agitated them to engage in anti-government demonstrations, according to the announcement.

Last January 28, he made a boat trip to Wonsan, North Korea, from the coast of Yamaguchi and stayed in North Korea until February 21. In Pyongyang, he received communist education and training in espionage techniques and joined the workers' party, the DSC said.

The DSC said he had been supplied with a total of 1,620,000 yen (4,800,000 won) by North Korean agents in Japan for his subversive activities over the past four years and made reports to them, travelling between Seoul and Kobe 12 times.

U Tae-hyong and Pak Song-u became communist sympathizers in the course of reading Marxist publications for their studies and had close relations with Kim between late 1979 and early 1980.

The DSC said Kim supplied them with communist ideological books he had obtained in Japan. Kim presented U Tae-hyong with a radio receiver, with which U listened to North Korean broadcasts continuously, according to the announcement.

Kim became acquainted with Yi Ki-hyon through mutual friends. Lee allegedly provided Kim with military secrets concerning the location, organization and mission of his command when Kim visited him at his unit twice.

Yi Tae-su became close with Kim when he learned Japanese from Kim in March 1980. He quit school last March and joined the combat police.

JSP COMMITTEE ADOPTS POLICY ON KOREA

SK130855 Pyongyang KCNA in English 0819 GMT 13 Oct 81

[Text] Tokyo, 10 Oct (KNS-KCNA)--The special committee for measures on Korean affairs of the Japan Socialist Party recently held a general meeting and adopted an action policy for intensifying the movement for supporting the democratization of South Korean society and the independent and peaceful reunification of Korea.

The action policy titled "Present Situation and Tasks" noted: It is for further strengthening the U.S.-Japan-South Korea military integration that the Chon Tu-hwan fascist clique is heightening tension, raising a hue and cry over the so-called "threat from the north" at the instigation of the U.S. and Japanese reactionaries.

It pointed out that the moves surrounding Japan's "aid" to South Korea are aimed to further tighten the military tie-up between the South Korean fascist clique and the Japanese reactionaries. Emphasizing that under such a situation the movement against Japan's "aid" to South Korea and for the independent and peaceful reunification of Korea should be more energetically waged, the action policy referred to the following immediate fighting tasks: To systematically probe into the "aid" problem, military problem and other problems between Japan and South Korea and expose their truth through the Diet.

To urge various organisations to take a fighting posture for coping with the new situation.

To strengthen the activities of the National Council for normalization of Japan-Korea relations.

To establish the "council of various circles for thinking of the Korea affairs" (tentative name) embracing personages of various circles--scholars, intellectuals, religionists, lawyers and trade union leaders--to rouse public opinion on the Korean question including the Japan-South Korean question.

To publish "information on Korean affairs" (tentative name) in the Japan Socialist Party for grasping the Korean situation.

To conduct activities for translating into practice the joint declaration of the Japan Socialist Party and the Workers Party of Korea on the establishment of a northeast Asian regional nuclear-free, peace zone.

JAPANESE VISITORS DEMAND U.S. PULLOUT FROM KOREA

SK131115 Pyongyang KCNA in English 1026 GMT 13 Oct 81

[Text] Pyongyang, 13 Oct (KCNA)--The delegation of activists of solidarity committees in Tokyo, Japan, headed by Ayazo Kubo, representative member of the Tokyo Council of Japan-Korea Solidarity and military critic, which had visited our country, issued a statement in Pyongyang prior to its departure for home.

The statement actively supported the struggle of the Korean people against the foreign forces and for reunifying the country on the three principles of independence, peaceful reunification and great national unity. It said: We vehemently denounce the Chon Tu-hwan military fascist clique and actively support the South Korean peoples struggle for democracy. We know well that it is none other than the U.S. imperialists and Japanese militarists who are obstructing the independent and peaceful reunification of Korea.

The Japanese Government and monopoly capital, in league with the U.S. imperialists, are backing the military fascist dictatorial system of the South Korean puppet clique and scheming to fix the division of Korea. And they are intensifying the arms buildup and strengthening the reactionary forces and hastening the Japan-U.S.-South Korea military integration at an accelerated tempo.

They are also persisting in the war provocation manoeuvres including large-scale military exercises. We oppose all these manoeuvres and cannot tolerate the fixation of "two Koreas."

We will further strengthen the struggle against the Japan-U.S.-South Korea military integration to defend peace in Japan and the world.

We strongly demand the immediate and total withdrawal of the U.S. troops occupying South Korea and a radical change in the Japanese Government's policy towards Korea.

We firmly support the proposal for founding the Democratic Confederal Republic of Koryo advanced by the great leader President Kim Il-song.

In conclusion the statement said: We resolve to more powerfully wage the Japan-Korea solidarity movement for actively supporting the independent and peaceful reunification of Korea and encouraging the South Korean peoples struggle for democracy.

ITALIAN FESTIVAL DELEGATES ON REUNIFICATION

SK080502 Pyongyang KCNA in English 0431 GMT 8 Oct 81

[Text] Pyongyang, 8 Oct (KCNA)--Delegations of the organs of communist and workers parties of 25 countries which attended the festival of LUNITA, the organ of the Italian Communist Party, held recently in Turin, Italy, made public a joint statement on the reunification of Korea, according to a report.

The statement says: The U.S. imperialists should stop at once their interference in the internal affairs of Korea and withdraw from South Korea without delay, taking along their aggression troops and nuclear weapons and military equipment.

They should give up at once the "two Koreas" plot aimed at dividing Korea in two parts forever, discontinue all actions obstructive to the reunification of Korea and comply without delay with the proposal of the Democratic People's Republic of Korea for replacing the armistice agreement with a peace agreement.

Stressing that the military fascist ruling system should be liquidated and a democratic regime be established in South Korea, the statement continues: We strongly denounce the military fascist clique of Chon Tu-hwan, a faithful stooge of the U.S. imperialists, for trifling with the question of the reunification of Korea by bringing forward deceptive "proposal of mutual visits" in accordance with the script of his master and demand that Chon Tu-hwan be removed from "power" without delay and brought to and punished at the court of judgement by people.

Firmly believing that the only correct way of achieving the independent and peaceful reunification of Korea is to realise the proposal for instituting the Democratic Confederal Republic of Koryo and the 10-point policy of the unified state put forward by the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song, we express full support to them.

PCE FESTIVAL DELEGATES ISSUE STATEMENT ON KOREA

SK090350 Pyongyang KCNA in English 0342 GMT 9 Oct 81

[Text] Pyongyang, 9 Oct (KCNA)--Delegations attending the festival of MUNDO OBRERO, the organ of the Spanish Communist Party, recently issued a statement on Korea, according to a report.

Noting that it is the most important point for defending Asian and world peace to remove tension in Korea and realise her reunification, the statement says: Believing that the new reunification proposal for founding the Democratic Confederal Republic of Koryo and the 10-point policy of the unified state put forward by the great leader President Kim Il-song are the most realistic and fair propositions for Korea's reunification, we extend full support to them.

We strongly demand that the United States renounce the "two Koreas" scheme, stop patronizing the South Korean military fascists, accept without delay the proposal of the Democratic People's Republic of Korea for replacing the armistice agreement with a peace agreement and withdraw its troops and all its destruction weapons from South Korea without delay.

We hold that the fascist oppressive machines and evil laws must be destroyed in South Korea, the Chon Tu-hwan clique step down from "power" and the South Korean society be democratized.

We earnestly appeal to the world peace-loving people to extend unquestioned support and encouragement to the Korean people in their struggle to reunify the country by founding the Democratic Confederal Republic of Koryo.

S. KOREANS PRAISE KIM IL-SONG, KIM CHONG-IL

SK151058 Pyongyang KCNA in English 1344 GMT 15 Oct 81

[Text] Pyongyang, 15 Oct (KCNA)--People of all walks of life in South Korea highly praise the chuche idea founded by the respected and beloved leader Marshal Kim Il-song and ardently revere the dear leader Kim Chong-il, who formulated his revolutionary ideas as Kimilsongism as the great successor to his revolutionary cause, convinced of a bright future of the Korean nation, according to Radio "Voice of the Revolutionary Party For Reunification."

A certain Yun who returned to Seoul from an African country to which he had been sold as a construction worker said to his colleagues: As there is no one in the world who does not know the sun in the cosmos, so there is no one who does not know the great General Kim Il-song and the chuche idea founded by him. General Kim Il-song is the great leader directing the world along the road of independence.

An inhabitant surnamed Kim in Inchon said that during his tour of an Asian country he saw that personages of the academic circles of that country formed a society for the study of the chuche philosophy and changed the subjects of their philosophical study and espoused the chuche idea. This, he noted, eloquently tells that the most universal and great doctrine of our era is the chuche idea and respected and beloved President Kim Il-song is the most distinguished thinker and theoretician without an equal in all ages and all countries.

A religionist surnamed Choe residing in the Chongno District, Seoul, said: Many people have believed in God for a long period but God has brought them nothing. He continued: The chuche idea is an immortal, great idea firmly promising the eternal prosperity of our nation and the happy future of our compatriots. Therefore, the man whom our fellow countrymen should wholeheartedly hold in high esteem for ever is President Kim Il-song, the sun of the nation, and the ideology we should accept is the chuche idea, I think.

A university professor in Seoul surnamed Kim said to his students: If young people are to discharge the mission they assume before history and the age, they should start from grasping the chuche idea. He stressed: Dear Mr Kim Chong-il, who has perfectly grasped the immortal chuche idea, formulated and proclaimed the great chuche idea as Kimilsongism by connecting it with the August name of the general. Mr Kim Chong-il is precisely the great successor to the revolutionary cause of the general and a master of thought and theory glorifying his revolutionary ideas.

CHON CLIQUE 'STRANGLER OF PRESS'--Pyongyang, 19 Oct (KCNA)--The puppet minister of culture and information showed up at "a celebration of the founding anniversary of the press association" held in Seoul on 13 October and made a "congratulatory speech," babbling that it is "a request of the times" to make "utmost efforts" for the "expansion of the freedom of the press" and that the newspapers should be made replete with the "spirit of the times" to enhance their dignity, according to a report. This is, indeed, a shameless jargon. The whole world knows that the puppet clique dually and trebly censors and controls the printing registers and manuscripts of all the publications by faking up and malrevising fascist evil laws such as the "basic law on the press" and, if an aspect of the truth is reflected on a paper, it arrests men of the press at random and penalizes them. A Japanese journal recently reported that the control of and interference in the South Korean newspaper offices by the Chon Tu-hwan fascist clique "have been doubled after the repeal of the martial law." It said: "The newspapers are being removed from truth. It is a lawless land." This is a stark fact. No matter how hard the Chon Tu-hwan clique may try to conceal its fascist nature, this will only further reveal its ugly colour and brazenness as the strangler of the press and the traitor to the nation. STUDENT DEMONSTRATORS ARRESTED--Pyongyang, 18 Oct (KCNA)--The Chon Tu-hwan military fascist clique arrested six students of the Songgyungwan University in Seoul on 16 October on charges of violation of the fascist "law on assembly and demonstration," according to a report. When over 500 students of the Songgyungwan University were holding a campus demonstration, shouting slogans in demand of the resignation of the traitor Chon Tu-hwan on 7 October, the above-said students scattered anti-"government" leaflets and encouraged the demonstrating students. That day, too, the fascist hooligans sent the puppet police to arrest many students. [Text] [SK181041 Pyongyang KCNA in English 0904 GMT 18 Oct 81]

'CLIQUE' SENTENCES UNIVERSITY STUDENT--Pyongyang, 16 Oct (KCNA)--The Chon Tu-hwan military fascist clique at a trial held at the east branch of the puppet Seoul District Criminal Court on the 14th passed 2 years in prison upon Nam Chil-ho, a second year student of the Konguk University in Seoul, according to a report. The fascilst clique had arrested and persecuted him on charges of "violation" of the fascist "law on assembly and demonstration" because on 8 June he called upon his fellow students in the campus to hold a demonstration for campus autonomy and against the fascist "system of fixing the number of graduates." [Text] [SK152214 Pyongyang KCNA in English 2210 GMT 15 Oct 81]

STUDENT SCATTERS ANTIGOVERNMENT LEAFLETS--Pyongyang, 16 Oct (KCNA)--Chong Yong-su, student of the Sejong College in Seoul, scattered anti-"government" leaflets and appealed to his fellow students to hold a demonstration, according to a report. On 20 September he printed more than 300 leaflets in his sister's house in Kuro-dong No 2, Yongdungpo District, Seoul, preparing for an anti-"government" struggle. Around 11 on the morning of 4 October he distributed leaflets to students in the corridor of the school, appealing to them to rise in a demonstration to overthrow the Chon Tu-hwan group. For this patriotic action he was arrested on 14 October by the Chon Tu-hwan military fascist clique on charges of "violation" of the notorious "law on assembly and demonstration." JAPANESE GROUP'S VISIT DENOUNCED--Pyongyang, 15 Oct (KCNA)--TASS, 12 October denounced the South Korean visit of a Japanese "war industry delegation." It said: According to the KYODO News Service, during their stay in South Korea, leading experts of military industrial complex and retired "generals," who have changed their high posts in the "Self-Defence Agency" to the armchair of "advisor" of concerns producing weapons, will have a series of talks with the upper crust of the Seoul clique and command of the army on military problems and visit South Korean puppet army units. The present juncket, the first in recent few years, proves that Japanese military industrial complex working hard to rapidly increase the export of weapons and military technique tries to intensify its relations with the Seoul clique. It is not accidental that the "inspection of the biggest South Korean factories producing weapons" is included in the trip program of the representatives of military business. Observers in Tokyo pointed out that "manufacturers of weapons" of Japan persistently demanding Japan's intensified war preparations and close military-political alliance with Seoul are inclined to fin ance the war programme of Chon Tu-hwan and partake in the rearming of the South Korean puppet army. A large number of reporters of various countries of the world were present at the press conference. The chief pointed out that the delegates of many countries attending the 36th session of the UN General Assembly directed deep attention to the Korean question and actively supported the proposal for founding the Democratic Confederal Republic of Koryo put forward by the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song. Stressing that not "two Koreas," but one Korea must be admitted to the United Nations, he explained in detail the problem of convening a conference for the promotion of national reunification proposed in the 6 August joint statement of political parties and public organisations of our country. SEAGA EXPRESSES SUPPORT FOR CHON--Seoul, 13 Oct (YONHAP)--Prime Minister Edward Seaga of Jamaica Tuesday expressed his support for Korean President Chon Tu-hwan's peace initiatives toward North Korea, and for Seoul's efforts toward the admission of both Koreas into the United Nations as "an interim measure pending ultimate peaceful unification." These sentiments were included in the joint communique issued by Seaga and his Korean counterpart Nam Tok-u at the end of the former's four-day visit to Korea. The communique also declared that the two countries would encourage joint economic ventures on the private level and revitalize the existing Korea-Jamaica joint economic committee to enhance economic cooperation. The 12-point communique also said that the two prime ministers have signed a cultural agreement to further strengthen cooperative relations in other fields. It further said that an agreement on economic and technical cooperation would be finalized through diplomatic channels to set up a government-level joint commission. The prime minister from the Carribean country will leave Seoul Tuesday, winding up his Seoul trip which included meetings with high-ranking Korean Government leaders, including President Chon and Premier Nam. KOMEITO SHIFTS POLICY TO PRO-SEOUL--Tokyo, 14 Oct (YONHAP--Japan's opposition Komeito (clean government) Party Tuesday decided on a new basic policy, which stresses the establishment of a new friendly relationship between Tokyo and Seoul and departs from its former position of favoring Pyongyang. The new policy, which acknowledges the existence of tension on the Korean peninsula, was adopted during the party's central executive committee meeting, dealing with security and diplomatic policy. The party also acknowledged that the situation on the Korean peninsula was related to the security of Japan, and emphasized the need to cooperate economically with South Korea. The MAINICHI SHIMBUN, commenting on the shift in the Komeito's Korea policy, said it was made after party chairman Yoshikatsu Takeiri's visit to Seoul last August. STUDENTS STAGE ANTIGOVERNMENT DEMONSTRATIONS--Pyongyang, 8 Oct (KCNA)--Students of the Kyonghui University in Seoul staged an anti-"government" demonstration on 29 September, according to a foreign press report from Seoul. Around 1 hour, 20 minutes that day, three students called upon the fellow students to turn out in a demonstration for the overthrow of the Chon Tu-hwan fascist "regime," scattering leaflets carrying anti-"government" slogans, with a placard in their hands, on the roof of the building of the college of liberal arts and science of the university. In response to their ardent appeal, a number of students staged a campus demonstration in high spirits. This struggle had been kept in the dark for the news blackout by the fascist clique till they made public on 7 October the fact that the three students--Kim Myong-ki, Chong Hui-ku and Kim Ki-son--had been arrested on charges of "violation of the law on assembly and demonstration." The Chon Tu-hwan military fascist clique resort to frantic suppression in an attempt to head off the anti-"government" struggle of the students, but their just struggle goes on vigorously. Students of the "Hanguk College of Foreign Studies" in Seoul also staged a demonstration struggle on the very day when the students of the Kyonghui University waged an anti-"government" struggle. On 17 September, students of the Seoul University also waged a demonstration against the Chon Tu-hwan military fascist clique. [Text] [SK080420 Pyongyang KCNA in English 0408 GMT 8 Oct 81]

STUDENTS DEMAND CHON'S RESIGNATION--Pyongyang, 9 Oct (KCNA)--Over 500 students of the Songgyungwan University in Seoul on 7 October circled the campus in a file, shouting slogans demanding the resignation of traitor Chon Tu-hwan, according to a report. The fascist clique posted the "special riot police" and many plain-clothesmen around the campus in its frantic crackdown on the students and arrested a number of them. SEOUL DAILY HAILS ADMINISTRATIVE REORGANIZATION

[Editorial: "Reduced Administration"]

[Text] The reduction of the government organization made public yesterday is revolutionary, to all appearances. The remodeled administration is to do without as many as 531 posts in its upper echelon, including two minister and six vice minister-level positions.

By any standards, the action is unprecedented in the republic's history. In fact, it is not only unprecedented but also a conspicuous reversal of the past tendency of reorganization which, in most cases, has expanded the administrative machinery. Such enlargement was unavoidable, on the one hand, to cope with the increasing volume and complexity of administrative work that accompanied the nation's endeavor for industrialization over the past two decades.

But on the other hand, even the necessary expansion of the government, if repeated, can hardly preclude the possibility of excessive stretch which results in partial overlapping of functions and thicker red tape, accordingly. In retrospect, this has been the case with most reorganizations carried out under the previous administration.

The sweeping organizational change which is to go into force soon with a revision of the relevant laws, amounts to a major initiative taken by the government in realizing the promised reforms in several aspects of national life. First of all, the reduced administration answers well the rising call and, for that matter, the need for slashing government spending as much as possible, so that more funds may be pipelined into programs for greater welfare, a prominent goal of the fifth republic. The repeal of over 530 positions is estimated to save the government 30,000 million won a year.

The importance of the reorganization is as outstanding from the functional viewpoint. The top-heavy structure of the pre-reduction government is prone to blunt administrative efficiency due to the large bureaucratic ladder plans and policies have to climb up for final approval. Such an extended process is more vulnerable than a simple one to sneaking irregularities and corruption.

Another noteworthy point of the change is the assignment of officials lower in rank than the current requirement for a number of offices. Positioning high-ranking officials where juniors can perform well is comparable to creating [word missing] for specific persons. Special-purpose committees and other bodies of a similar nature also need periodical review to determine the length of their life.

Still, the reorganization will hardly achieve its basic aim unless matched by a higher standard of efficiency and a stronger sense of responsibility on the part of each official. For this purpose, the operational rules for officials need adjusting and their in-service training or education further strengthening to improve the quality of civil service and assure its integrity.

In this regard, the government administration minister's suggestion for possible transfer of certain administrative jobs to private hands is worth active consideration. In order for the small government to do better than an obese but static one, such turnover is to be encouraged wherever it is considered feasible.

ROK DAILY COMMENTS ON ADMINISTRATIVE REALIGNMENT

[Article by Pak Chang-sok]

[Text] The just-drafted formula for administrative reform shows the unswerving resolve of the incumbent government to make itself simpler, and maximize its efficiency in the conduct of state affairs.

This also coincides with the government's fundamental intention to serve, not lord it over, the people.

The reorganization was formally suggested by President Chon Tu-hwan in a message issued last Labor Day, when he announced the elevation of the labor administration to ministry level.

Public voices demanding that the fat be trimmed from the government have been high within and without bureaucratic society.

In this respect, the administrative realignment is deemed desirable from the viewpoint of enhancing efficiency in state administration and saving money.

The goal of the government reorganization is enabling the administration to operate in an autonomous and democratic way by simplifying paperwork procedures.

Another purpose is to reduce government interference on a gradual basis in the private sector, thereby encouraging creativeness in the private sector not only in economic but in industrial fields.

Actually, the size and role of the government has grown enormously during the past few decades, in tandem with the immense expansion of national life thanks to rapid economic development.

The government has made a series of reorganizations on about 35 occasions since the birth of the Republic of Korea Government in 1948.

However, they were all conducted in the direction of increasing bureaucratic posts, especially at high levels.

As a result, the government organization has been too much subdivided, causing the creation of a large number of positions which perform ramified but similar functions.

The excessive expansion of the government organization has been pointed out as a major element detrimental to national growth and development.

The government machinery is too vast compared with those of advanced countries, according to government administration ministry officials.

For example, the number of bureaus in central administrations recently reached 201, about twice the figure of 114 in Japan. Japan has a population three times Korea's.

According to statistics compiled by the Government Administration Ministry, the number of bureaus has almost tripled during the past 20 years from 87 to 201.

A bureau-level office in the central administration in Korea has 36 staff members on average, roughly a fifth the figure of 160 in Japan.

In case the projected realignment of the administrative reorganization is implemented as drafted by the government, about 30,000 million won will be saved annually in the government budget, government officials say.

NEED FOR PEACEFUL TRANSFER OF POWER DISCUSSED

SK140831 Seoul TONG-A ILBO in Korean 13 Oct 81 p 3

[Column: "Reporter's View": "Gathering of Four U.S. Presidents" by Yo Yong-mu, Director of the Newspaper's Research Department]

[Text] On 9 October, U.S. President Reagan met with 3 former presidents--Ford, Carter and Nixon--at the White House, beaming and chatting with them side by side. The photograph of them must have impressed and pleased all who saw it. Those four, the incumbent and former presidents, met together on that day for the latters' participation in the funeral of the late Egyptian President al-Sadat, at the request of President Reagan. Due to its significance, marking a rare and precious occasion, newspapers headlined the event "gathering of the century," thus inviting the readers' attention.

The photograph has made everyone realize how important the peaceful transfer of power in a democratic state is and how helpful to the country are former presidents in case of emergency.

Where there is not a peaceful transfer of power it is difficult to see an incumbent and former presidents warmly sitting together like this. Furthermore, if such a gathering itself is impossible, the question of making use of them for the state's benefit cannot even be imagined.

Whatever their personal and party relations, Reagan, Ford, Carter and Nixon were once political rivals in competition for the presidency. They fiercely fought each other in party presidential nomination campaigns or in the heated presidential election campaigns between the Democratic and Republican Parties. They, nevertheless, can completely forget the bitterness of the campaigns and can immediately unite together whenever their country calls them. We very much envey this. We, thus, think that we should put this idea into practice in the future.

In his inaugural address last March, President Chon Tu-hwan made a promise to achieve, by all means, a peaceful transfer of power after 7 years. On every occasion thereafter, he has stressed that it is absolutely necessary to achieve a peaceful transfer of power so as to have the democracy take root in this soil. It seems that the repeated promise of President Chon has been made because we have not had even a single instance of a peaceful transfer of power throughout the whole history of our constitutional government.

The first president, Syngman Rhee, stayed in power for four consecutive terms despite the vehement opposition of the people. However, he stepped down from power because of death-defying student demonstrations. The fourth president, Yun Po-son, resigned less than 1 year after the 16 May military revolution.

President Pak Chong-hui, though he remained in power for five terms, died in the tragic 26 October incident during his term in office, which spanned 18 years. Therefore, he could not establish a tradition of achieving the peaceful transfer of power, which all the people desire.

In a democratic state, it is understood that the peaceful transfer of power means one without any anomaly or political upheavals, from the ruler, who was elected in a democratic way, to the successor, who is elected through democratic voting, upon the former's termination of office.

When the peaceful transfer of power is realized in our country in the future, there can be such a get-together of the incumbent and former presidents. Moreover, when such a good practice continues, the people's unity will be automatically achieved.

The political and diplomatic activities of the former U.S. presidents have become more conspicuous in recent days.

On his tour around 12 Asian countries last March, Mr Ford conveyed a secret message from President Reagan during his talks with the leadership of the Communist China. Last September, Mr Carter held talks with Communist Chinese leaders, including Deng Xiaoping. Moreover, within their country, too, they exercise their influence directly or indirectly over the formation of the people's political consciousness by expressing their political opinions through written memoirs, interviews with mass media, and special lectures.

In the United States, in which the tradition of the peaceful transfer of power has already been established, former presidents are not old soldiers who fade away from the stage as soon as they resign, but they continue to serve the country, never dying nor fading away.

SPEECHES BY OPPOSITION PARTY LEADERS REPORTED

Seoul CHOSON ILBO in Korean 6 Oct 81 pp 1, 3

[Excerpts] With the attendance of all cabinet members, including Prime Minister Nam Tok-u, the National Assembly session on October 5 heard speeches by Rep. Yu Ch'i-song, leader of the Democratic Korea Party (DKP), and Rep. Yi Man-sop, vice president of the Korea National Party (KNP). The majority Democratic Justice Party (DJP) has decided not to deliver its leader's speech at the parliamentary session.

"If the government really means to usher in a new era, it should demonstrate its resolute determination to remove all vestiges of the old system which still remain in our political, economic, social, and cultural fields; and a series of measures to that end must be sought," DKP President Yu said.

"There still exist vestiges of the old system in our society. The reason is because evil elements of the former Yusin (Revitalizing Reform) system are still kept in our present laws and systems governing our living. Moreover, the former Legislative Assembly, which acted in behalf of the National Assembly under martial law, had to hastily deal with the legislation, abrogation and amendment of many laws and decrees, thereby neglecting those vestiges of the old system," he said.

Yu demanded that the Basic Press Law be rewritten. Quite a few journalists have been dismissed from office for reasons which are hardly convincing; and the merged radio and TV now tend to turn into the government's mouthpieces, he said.

"I think that the foundation should be laid for party politics in order to practice democratic rule," Yu said. He asked for reconsidering the question of organizing "supporters' groups," which he said may result in placing too much emphasis on supplying political funds to a specific party.

Pointing out that "the artificial shift of generations to force those in the 50's and above to retire from office, is just a waste of national strength," he also demanded that this be reconsidered as well.

A gist of his speech at the National Assembly follows:

"On that the Constitution of the Fifth Republic provides for the single term of the president, our party had evaluated it as an epochal reform which would block one from remaining in power too long. However, it is regrettable that in spite of such express provisions, the National Assembly still fails to get any institutional support in its role and function.

"Our party has repeatedly called for, and I have personally recommended to the President, lifting the ban on political activities for all still under it and setting free those victims who are still kept in prison. All these were intended to achieve our national harmony and unity.

"At present, the government advocates having democracy take root in this land. But no concrete plan for that was found in the President's policy speech.

"The local autonomy system which is expressly provided in the Constitution can no longer be delayed with such cliche's as a local financial self-sufficiency, and so forth.

"We are aware of how severely our diplomacy and security had to suffer uncertainties when our politics had been repeatedly crippled in the past. First of all, we must exercise precautions so that the proposition for our self-reliant national defense may not be overexaggerated. We must further strive to urge Japan to realize the need to strengthen the group security among Korea, the U.S., and Japan.

"I believe that the political and social stability based on our national harmony and unity as well as self-restraint with which any specific social stratum or group would not try to rule the whole for their own philosophy and interests, must eventually be our overall ability in national security."

DKP HEAD ON YUSIN SYSTEM, PRESS FREEDOM

SK111140 Seoul HANGUK ILBO in Korean 6 Oct 81 p 2

[Keynote Address by Yu Chi-song, President of the Democratic Korea Party, at the Regular Session of the ROK National Assembly Held on 5 October]

[Text] There are many elements around us which are cause for strain and restrict us. The North Korean Communist Group, turning a deaf ear to the aspirations of the 50 million Korean people for the peaceful unification of the fatherland, is strengthening its military capability without giving up its policy of reunification through communizing the South. The inflation caused by the increase in the price of oil in the international market and the economic recession prevailing in the world have also imposed burdens on us. At a time when hardships at home and abroad plague us, nothing is more urgently required than national unity and concerted actions. We must not view the seriousness of the situation through rose-colored glasses.

The purpose of our call for a revision of the national assembly law is to correct those portions in which are embedded remnants of the old political system and some new items which run counter to the general practices of a parliamentary democracy. What we want changed are only those things that fundamentally destroy the functions of a parliament: the limits imposed on speeches by the members of the national assembly; the nominal authority to investigate government offices; and the contradiction found in banning a review of national budgets while claiming management by the national assembly centered in the steering committee. We must clearly understand that the degree of democratic development can be measured by the extent of a parliament's functions. A parliament without the function of keeping the government in check is nothing but a disguised democratic system.

In a previous address, I repeatedly asserted the urgency of national harmony to achieve the democratic development of the fifth republic. Our repeated calls for a lifting of the ban imposed on those who have been babbed from participating in politics are meant to achieve the goal of national harmony and to completely cure us of our past wounds.

National harmony is a prerequisite for embodying the principle of competition, which is the basic idea of a free democracy. A society which does not guarantee fair competition in the fields of politics, the economy and social affairs cannot be called a democratic one. The democracy which the absolute majority of the people desire and which the Democratic Korea Party is endeavoring to implant here requires the embodiment of the principle of fair competition, clearing away the remnants of the Yusin system.

I do not quite understand the government when it says it cannot immediately enforce local self-government systems, which are stipulated in the constitution.

Financial self-reliance in major cities such as Seoul and Pusan has greatly improved, and there is an urgent need to establish self-governing bodies in these areas for various reasons.

I also have to talk about the government and the national assembly, and about the majority and opposition parties. Even the government and the majority party need to use a certain process of persuasion when they are pushing strong policies. The type of rule which forces people to unconditionally obey runs counter to the slogan of grand national harmony.

It is well known how much the discord between segments of our society, which increased due to the Yusin system, weakened our security capability despite the strengthening of our military equipment in material terms. In this view, I believe that the security concept should be substantially changed from that of the past. First of all, we must guard against an unnecessarily expanded interpretation of the issue of self-defense.

The need to strengthen the collective security system among Korea, the United States and Japan to counter the threat from the communist bloc has been raised as a pending matter because the situation in Northeast Asia has changed. We must direct greater efforts to make Japan understand this situation as soon as possible.

It was appropriate for the government to try to work out a socioeconomic development plan aimed at encouraging individual creativity, while trying to stop pushing the government-led, goal-oriented development plan of the past in its fifth 5-year economic development plan.

However, while it is stated that the aim was to nuture a fair society as the core of the plan, the rate of social security expenditures has been increased only 0.2 percent compared with the fourth 5-year development plan. While championing a drastic expansion of denationalization, the government has never tried to consult the national assembly--the representative institute of the people--in this regard. All this shows that nothing has changed from the past in the government's way of thinking.

The plan talks about the unfairness of the distribution of wealth for those in the low-income brackets, but makes no mention of any steps to reform such matters. The scale of the national budget for 1982 has been expanded to drastically, and it has been worked out in a way which runs counter to the concept of "a fair society."

I truly urge the government to provide the suffering low-income people with hope for tomorrow, because providing people with reasonable hopes will eventually serve as the strongest foundation for the peaceful transfer of power.

I am against the introduction of the education tax, because we are convinced that the funds required can be raised through a reasonable readjustment of the 1982 budget, such as through a reduction in all wasteful elements in the budget and a reduction in the categories of tax exemptions, without imposing additional burdens on the people.

The climate of distrust--a deep-rooted evil custom inherited from the Yusin system--will not disappear simply by opening up a new era or declaring the inauguration of the Fifth republic. To establish a society in which we can enjoy mutual trust and a clean and happy society, above all we must end the climate of mistrust. The residue of the old system still exists in our society because evil elements of the Yusin system are embedded in the laws and systems regulating our life.

I am convinced that the major task of this current session of the national assembly is to free the people from the damage inflicted by the Usin system as soon as possible. To this end, I again propose the organization of a special committee to revamp our laws and decrees.

On many occasions, I have found press reporting and comment to be unfair and dishonest, and it is regrettable that freedom of the press is greatly controlled. I do not intend to enumerate here the areas in which the authorities have intervened in our journalistic institutions. I am convinced that measures to correct such a thing can immediately be taken, because all of us strongly concur in this. Thus, I expect cooperation from all members of the national assembly on the revision of the relevant laws, including the basic press law, which has been called for by our party.

GOVERNMENT, PARTIES AGREE TO REPEAL YUSIN ERA LAW

SK170521 Seoul YONHAP in English 0219 GMT 17 Oct 81

[Text] Seoul, 17 Oct (YONHAP)--The Korean Government and the National Assembly have agreed to repeal the special measures law on national security during the current assembly session.

The agreement was reached Friday in a meeting of Prime Minister Nam Tok-u and leaders of the major political parties, including floor leaders, secretary generals and chief policy planners.

Participants at the meeting were of the opinion that the law has virtually lost its validity, under the constitution of the Fifth Republic launched early this year, Chung Chong-tek, the first minister for political affairs, said.

The 12-article law, enacted in December 1971 under the late President Pak Chong-hui to legalize a state emergency proclaimed three weeks before, empowers the president to take extra-constitutional measures.

These measures include the presidential authority to curb unauthorized assemblies and demonstrations, to restrict freedom of the press and publication, and to regulate labor disputes.

Rep. Ko Chae-chung, floor leader of the minority Democratic Korea Party, said that the participants at the meeting also agreed in principle to abolish the emergency decree on economic stability and growth, invoked in 1972 to freeze loans owed by business enterprises to individuals.

ROK OFFICIALS ON PRESS LAW, LOCAL AUTONOMY

[Column: "Gist of the Interpellation at the National Assembly Session" Covering 14 October Session of the ROK National Assembly]

[Excerpts] Minister of Culture and Information Yi Kwang-pyo: not just in regard to the basic press law but also in regard to other types of licenses and registrations, the right to rescind them is reserved for the offices which approved them. The court then reviews the actions taken by these offices. This is how the system of laws works. Article 24 of the basic press law is not much different than the related clauses of the former press and communications laws. The purpose of the article is to regulate irregularities by newspaper men and deal with the lack of the required newspaper facilities. Thus, I think the article seldom affects the present press and news agencies. However, prudence would be exercised in the enforcement of the law. The government has no plans to revise the basic press law.

Representative Kim Chin-pae of the Democratic Korea Party: the laws on local autonomy are still valid. The government has resorted to expediency in regard to the law on provisional measures enacted in 1962. The use of the term "provisional" for 20 years clearly constitutes a violation to the constitution.

The basic press law should be reviewed again for amendment. The culture and information minister has the authority to cancel the registration of newspapers and news agencies. He can determine the survival of press organs. This runs counter to the spirit of the constitution.

Of course, the constitution has a provision on restricting the freedom of the press. But, even in such a case the provision stipulates that the essential contents of the press should not be encroached upon. The authority for determining the existence or abolition of press organs should be given to the judiciary.

Prime Minister Nam Tok-u: In regard to local autonomy, a careful study is necessary because it inevitably involves the financial self-reliance of the local governments, an adjustment of the relations between the central government and local government offices, a review of the existing government laws and regulations and preparations for the problems that will arise from the implementation of local autonomy. Accordingly, it is unlikely that the local autonomy system will be put into practice in 1983. I can only say that the government has started a positive study on the matter.

DKP ASSEMBLYMAN QUESTIONS ECONOMIC POLICY

SK131148 Seoul CHOSON ILBO in Korean 13 Oct 81 p 2

[From the Column: "News Behind the News"]

[Text] At the 12 October National Assembly session, Rep Hong Sa-tok of the Democratic Korea Party [DKP] asked "political" questions on economic matters, thus driving the majority bench almost to the point of agitation. Speaking at the rostrum as the second man interpellating government officials on hand, he directed his attack against Prime Minister Nam Tok-u by describing the economy in the 1970's as "one of a suicidal resource distribution which was marked by granting favors" and badgered him with such remarks as, "with what attitude and resolve did you participate in the new era?" and, "old wine is still old wine even if it is in a new bottle."

Citing figures in criticizing the disproportionate distribution of wealth among income brackets, Rep Hong said, "Political non-democracy leads to economic non-democracy." He also said that the realization of a just society--the goal of the new era--is fictional when viewed from the contents of the 5-year plan. His remarks caused stirring among the majority bench and as if becoming aware of this, he started to shoot arrows at the side of the Democratic Justice Party [DJP] by saying, "Encouraged by the signs of astonishment and agitation manifest among my colleagues of the DJP, I will ask you, the prime minister."

On the matter of wages for workers, Rep Hon challenged the DJP by saying, "Please repeat here what the finance minister advocated in a meeting with the labor minister advocated in a meeting with the labor minister and I will drop my question if only 10 percent of the majority concurs with the explanation." He several times created moments of excitement by touching on defense outlays, introducing a "theory of marginal utility of national security."

Drawing to a close, he made barbed remarks, saying, "I have still many things to ask you ministers. But the time limit does not allow me to ask you any more. So, you ministers should be grateful to the legislative assembly."

Rep Yi Chae-hwan of the DJP, in the course of interpellating, calmly responded to Rep Hong by saying, "I think that Rep Hong's mention of the DJP is a matter to be considered from the standpoint of political ethics."

SEOUL DAILY VIEWS CIVIL RIGHTS, CRIMINAL LAW

SK082358 Seoul THE KOREA TIMES in English 9 Oct 81 p 2

[Editorial: "Civil Rights vs. Hunch"]

[Text] We often hear the term "hunch," which is preferably used by those engaged in the law-enforcement profession such as police, prosecutors and judges.

A seasoned investigator may undeniably have an extrasensory perception of "sixth sense" in the face of a criminal incident, that may be helpful in solving a criminal case.

In a democratic and modernized society nowadays, however, excessive reliance on crude judgment based on the hunches of an investigator can hardly be justified, needless to say.

Rather, it must be of an extreme absurdity under any circumstances, merely exposing striking backwardness in a society, in view of the legal justice we uphold.

We are referring to this in connection with the latest topic concerning the so-called voluntary protection of a youthful collegian for as many as 15 days by police following the murder of a co-ed from Pusan that took place in Seoul.

Investigators were said to have used an intuitive sense in deciding this youth was the murderer, yet having no material evidence at all.

Thus, finally he was allowed to return home only after he had been virtually detained, running against democratic judiciary principles.

No one will deny that this is an age of scientific investigation among law-enforcement personnel at all levels, making their pledge to guarantee the basic rights of citizens under any circumstances to the fullest.

If a criminal case lacks material evidence, how can we believe in the scientific disposal of it for whatever reason?

Even though the young collegian was released, how can he be compensated for what he has suffered already?

Democratic citizens believe that even a single innocent citizen should be protected though 10 criminals may escape.

This is nothing but common sense in contemporary human society upholding democratic principles.

We often criticize the law enforcement authorities for their failure to deal satisfactorily with vicious criminal incidents taking place one after another, making citizens feel uneasy and placing them under intimidation in the face of the rampancy of violence and crime.

The inability to probe criminal incidents desirably is of course a serious matter, which immediately undermines our basic rights to be free from crimes, particularly in this process of national modernization and advancement.

Nevertheless, the fundamental civil rights of people should be protected and duly guaranteed even if law enforcement authorities may be able to solve "one criminal incident out of 10."

It is one thing that they are blamed for their poor investigative capability and it is quite another to disregard the basic civil rights of people.

In other words, the related authorities can restore their honor by respecting legal justice to a corresponding degree.

Even much belatedly, the related authorities should take the latest lesson most seriously, so that they may not repeat past wrongs.

And it is our conviction that the incident involving the collegian will provide a turning point in the renovation of legal circles by no longer excessively relying on intuitive perception.

FORMER NCU DEPUTIES TO FORM SOCIETY

SK111320 Seoul TONG-A ILBO in Korean 10 Oct 81 p 2

[Text] In the wake of the recent gatherings of professors-turned lawmakers and of female lawmakers in the national assembly, those lawmakers who were deputies to the defunct National Conference for Unification [NCU] are discussing the formation of a fraternal society in the assembly.

Such a move is now being promoted under the sponsorship of representative an Kap-chun of the Democratic Justice Party [DJP] and So Chong-yol of the Democratic Korea Party [DKP], it has been learned.

Representative So Chong-yol disclosed on 10 October that the plan for the formation of a society of former NCU deputies turned lawmakers would take shape during the current regular assembly session, adding: "Most of the former NCU deputies in the assembly have expressed support for the idea."

So said: "The former NCU deputies appear to be treated cooly simply because they participated in the Yusin system in the past. What was wrong in the past was that the ruler stayed in office for a long term. But the achievements in economic development deserve positive assessment."

In explaining the purpose of the society, he said: "The former NCU deputies want to contribute to the development of the state with dignity in their own way."

Among the incumbent lawmakers, those who were deputies to the NCU include 12 from the DJP, 8 from the DKP, 6 from the Korea National Party and one independent, a total of 27.

ROK ARRESTS ENERGY MINISTRY OFFICIALS FOR BRIBERY

SK130643 Seoul THE KOREA TIMES in English 13 Oct 81 p 8

[Text] The Seoul prosecution arrested Yun Sok-ku, 47, director of the Coal Bureau of the Energy-Resources Ministry, and two senior officials at Seoul city hall and the Korea Coal Corporation yesterday on suspicion of taking bribes from coal briquet makers in Seoul.

The other officials are Choe Yong-chin, 46, chief of the Fuel Section, Industries Bureau of Seoul City, and Kim Kwang-su, 39, head of the No 1 Business Section, KCC.

They will face charges of bribery and violating the additional punishment law on specific crimes, which provides heavy penalties for large-scale bribery and other felonious crimes.

The arrests were made in the course of an intensive probe of suspected collusion between makers of coal briquets, the main household fuel called "yontan," and officials overseeing the business, resulting in the sale of low-quality briquets in the Seoul area.

President Chon Tu-hwan has been learned to have expressed concern about the progress of the investigation in a phone call to Seoul prosecution chief Kim Sok-hwi after he inspected facilities of a major yontan producer Saturday morning.

Earlier, the Seoul prosecution arrested three executives of large yontan makers in connection with the production of low-calorie briquets and booked several other yontan businessmen on suspicion of violating the provisional law on coal briquet supply.

The three ranking officials arrested yesterday are accused of having received money from the Korean Coal Association, which sought their favor for the raise of coal and yontan prices and loose supervision of the business of its members.

The prosecution said that Yun was suspected of having accepted a total of 19,400,000 won from the coal association and individual yontan makers over the past three years. In particular, he allegedly received 3,500,000 won last April and 1,500,000 won in August when coal and yontan prices were hiked.

Choe of Seoul city hall is suspected of having received 1,950,000 won from yontan makers, including Chongwon Yontan Co., which allegedly delivered 300,000 won to him last December when city hall was inspecting the production process of yontan companies.

ROK ASSEMBLY QUESTIONS GOVERNMENT MINISTERS

[Text] Minister of Health and Social Affairs Chon Myong-ku said yesterday the government will continuously expand the medical insurance system to cover 94.3 percent of the population by 1988.

In testimony on the last day of the six-day National Assembly interpellation session, Chon said the government will ensure that workshops employing more than 16 persons will implement the medical insurance scheme in 1983.

Businesses with more than five employees will be made to follow suit beginning in 1985 with a result that 65.5 percent and 94.3 percent of the population will benefit from the scheme by 1987 and 1988 respectively, he said.

The top health official observed that what he called an equivalent of the U.S. Food and Drug Administration (FDS) will be established next year at a cost of 7,700 million won for effective food quality control.

Promising to crack down on low-quality food producers, he made it clear that those manufacturing low-quality food at the risk of causing casualties are subject to punishment by death under law.

Prime Minister Nam Tok-u said the Seoul City Government will be made to transfer part of its power to its lower administrative units such as "gu" and "dong."

Nam said a restructuring of the metropolitan administration is now being conducted.

The government is studying the wisdom of introducing the agricultural damage insurance system in 1987 as part of an effort to protect farmers from agricultural damages, he said.

The assembly wound up the six-day question-answer sitting later in the day, and will start panel sessions today.

Minister of Culture and Information Yi Kwang-pyo said the government has not intention to redress the basic press law at the moment.

Referring to article 24 of the law which empowers the minister to cancel the registration of periodicals, Yi said the stipulation is designed to preclude possible irregularities in the press.

However, none of the existing newspapers and news agencies seem to be adversely affected by the stipulation, he clarified.

Minister of Home Affairs So Chong-hwa testified that he will see to it that efficiency and protection of human rights are ensured in crime investigations amid mutual understanding and cooperation between the prosecution and the police.

So also observed that the government does not consider enabling the police to look into crimes independently of the prosecution, becuase it involved amending the constitution and other laws. Currently, police can probe crimes under the direct control of the prosecution.

So's testimony was supported by Minister of Justice Yi Chong-won who said the so-called separation of criminal investigation by the police from the prosecution is a matter which does not require discussion again.

Yi asserted controversy over the issue was settled last year, when the new constitution was adopted.

The constitution adopts a system which provides that criminal investigation by the police shall be subject to control by the prosecution, he said.

In order to protect the human rights of suspects, the ministry will see that the prosecution supervises criminal investigations from the initial stage, he noted.

In the meantime, Minister of Education Yi Kyu-ho disclosed the government will implement free compulsory middle school education in townships beginning in 1985.

To help expand education opportunities for the children of low-income earners in remote areas and islands, the government will increase the exemption of school fees, he said.

He said that if the assembly approves the government-proposed education bill, education tax revenues will be spent first in eliminating the shift class system and overly crowded classes in primary schools.

Minister of Labor Affairs Kwon Chong-dong said the government envisages introducting the employment insurance system some day.

The minimum wage scheme is difficult to implement at the moment, however, he said.

He also said the government will not propose a wage hike guideline next year, allowing businesses to determine their wage increases as they please.

Three lawmakers took the floor, focusing their questions on a wide range of social issues. They were Rep Kim Chan-u of the Democratic Korea Party, Rep Cho Hyong-po of the Korea National Party and Rep Hong U-chun of the Democratic Justice Party.

NAM ANSWERS LAWMAKERS QUESTIONS 8 OCTOBER

[Text] Prime Minister Nam Tok-u, disclosing that foreign liabilities as of the end of last August totaled $30,300 million, said yesterday the nation can hold its own in managing foreign loans.

Answering lawmakers' questions at a National Assembly interpellation session, Nam said that the principal and interest repayment rate has dropped from 21 percent in the years before 1970 to 13 percent this year.

There will be no major problem in managing foreign liabilities, but the government will take utmost care in handling foreign loans with the lion's share going to businesses of high productivity, he stated.

Lawmarkers of rival camps, expressing misgivings about the "formidable amount of foreign liabilities," called upon the government to readjust the fifth five-year economic and social development plan in such a way as to retrench foreign loans.

The nation cannot help introducing foreign investments for some more time to come, and the government's international payments operation plan is appropriate, he claimed.

Four lawmakers asserted the current foreign liabilities of over $30,000 million would reach more than $60,000 million by 1986.

They were Kim Yong-song of the Korea National Party (KNP), Ho Kyong-man of the Democratic Korea Party (DKP), Kim Chong-ki of the Democratic Justice Party (DJP) and No Tae-kuk of the Parliamentary Fraternity Club (PFC).

In response to the KNP lawmaker's call for freezing next year's budget at the level of this year's, the premier said the government has no intention to revise the fiscal 1982 money bill, because its downward readjustment will hamper the otherwise smooth economic operation.

Referring to the overall economic condition, he said businesses as a whole are beginning to pick up with export and industrial production showing 20 percent and 9.6 percent annual increases respectively.

If the nation pursues the fifth five-year economic programs steadily, the overall economy will stand a good chance of steady recovery, he said. He said the government will not import foreign grains in the future, because the nation has a large stockpile.

Lawmakers' queries centered on the foreign debts, readjustment of the fifth economic plan, the modification of the taxation mechanism and promotion of small and medium industries and agriculture and fisheries.

Deputy Prime Minister-Minister of Economic Planning Sin Pyong-hyon said the government will strike a balance between heavy chemical and light industries in investments.

In the meantime, Minister of Finance Yi Song-yon testified that the government finds it difficult now to increase the personal income tax exemption level set at 135,000 won a month.

Touching on the controversial value-added tax system, Yi said the government is not willing to abrogate it, although it plans to readdress its shortcomings continuously.

The government is bound to adopt education tax in a bid to improve education facilities, he said.

An estimated 11,100,000 million won will be needed over the next five years to fund education projects and 9,600,000 million won will be appropriated from general budgets and the remaining 1,400,000 million won will be raised through education tax, he noted. [figures as published]

REWRITING OF 242 LAWS--The government has finished its rewriting of a total of 242 laws, aimed at uprooting basically elements of favoritism and other irregularities prevailing in society. The government project was formally reported by Kim Yong-ok, chairman of the Administrative Improvement Committee, to a session of an interministry council for deliberation on elements detrimental to national growth, which was held in the capitol conference room from yesterday. Chairman Kim revealed that his committee had also improved paperwork procedures in 395 civil petition fields for the convenience of citizen's lives. As part of its efforts to do away with factors hampering national development, the government will resume issuing licenses for new construction business, which have been banned since 1973. Other features of the government project are alleviation of restrictions imposed on imports of export-use materials and a revision of the criminal code. DJP COMMITTEE CHAIRMAN--Seoul, 18 Sep--Korea's majority Democratic Justice Party (DJP) picked Rep Na Sok-ho, 47, as chairman of the party policy committee Friday. The post had been vacant since September 9 when Rep Yi Chin-u resigned, assuming moral responsibility for the so-called rush mat schandal, involving more than a dozen other assemblymen and the Federation of Korean Education Associations. The party designated Rep Chong Chae-chol, 53, as head of a National Assembly budget-settlement committee to be formed soon. Reps Maeng Un-chae, 46, and Cho Chung-chae, 45, were named deputies to the NA taking over vacancies caused by the same scandal. [Text] [SK180634 Seoul YONHAP in English 0320 GMT 18 Sep 81]

ENERGY MINISTER'S DISMISSAL SOUGHT--The three major political parties are moving to seek a motion calling for the dismissal of Minister of Energy and Resources Pak Pong-hwan with regards to the recent coal briquette scandal. They are also considering involving the parliamentary right to look into the government's coal-related administration. Pong Tu-wan, spokesman of the majority Democratic Justice Party (DJP), insisted yesterday that those who are involved in the production of low-quality coal briquettes should be punished regardless of their ranks or positions. In a statement, the spokesman said "the tremendous amount of illegal profits" earned by "yontan" (coal briquettes) producers should be recollected, and demanded that the government work out measures to prevent recurrence of similar incidents. The statement was issued following a meeting attended by key officeholders of the majority party. Meanwhile, Sin Sang-u, secretary-general of the Democratic Korea Party (DKP), said his party has decided to file a motion calling for the dismissal of the minister of energy and resources, and invoke the parliamentary power to probe state administration. ROK EXPECTS 7 PERCENT ECONOMIC GROWTH IN 1981

[Text] Deputy Prime Minister-Minister of Economic Planning Sin Pyong-hyon said yesterday Korea expects an annual economic growth of a seven percent, slightly higher than the original target of five to six percent, this year.

Sin also stated the government need not take any special measures to help boost business and promote investments.

In testimony at a plenary National Assembly interpellation session, the deputy premier said it is difficult to materialize the minimum wage system at the moment.

In response to lawmakers' demand for the immediate introduction of the system, he said the government will make a careful study of it on the premise that it will be implemented some day.

On the fourth day of the six-day question-answer session, three lawmakers took the floor, focusing their queries on readjustment of heavy and chemical industry projects and purchase of rice and other grains.

Recalling the government laid too much stress on achieving economic growth in the past decade, Sin said the government will endeavor to achieve balance and harmony in distributing income.

The minister noted the government will put policy emphasis on raising people's incomes and increasing people's employment.

The government does not consider modifying the 1982 national budget bill nor the fifth five-year economic and social development plan and it is still premature to talk about revising the plan in connection with the 1988 Seoul Olympic Games, he said.

The government will exert continuous efforts to eliminate factors which are feared to hamper redistribution of incomes, he said.

Unveiling that wholesale and retail price indexes stood at 12.7 and 14.2 percent respectively as of the end of last month, he predicted the government will manage to curb this year's price rise below 20 percent.

If oil prices retain stability and contingencies do not arise, the nation will be able to restrict price rises below 12-14 percent next year, he said.

The government intends to maintain a rice stockpile of 9,600,000 bags, and it is very hard to increase the rice purchase price by 30 percent, he remarked.

In an attempt to promote private-initiative economic activities, the government will establish what he termed a private industrial policy council.

In the meantime, Minister of Energy and Resources Pak Pong-hwan testified it would be inevitable for the government to raise oil prices late this year.

The minister said Korea imports 60 percent of its crude oil from Saudi Arabia for $32 per barrel and the price is expected to rise to $34 at the OPEC meeting late this year.

He said the government will check the quality of briquettes twice a month and work out a briquette quality control package.

The government will also increase coal briquette prices to realistic levels to help improve the quality of briquettes, he said.

The Minister of Commerce and Industry So Sok-chun said the government will help promote industrial electronics industries.

Rep Cho Ki-sang of the majority Democratic Justice Party said farming should be promoted not from an economic but from a political viewpoint.

If the government does not invest in farming, he warned Korea's economic foundation will be undermined.

Rep Hong Sa-tok of the Democratic Korea Party said the fifth socio-economic development program lacks ways of redistributing incomes, which he said are essential to materializing a welfare society.

He pointed out that 20 percent of the population monopolizes 75 percent of the total income.

ROK PLANNING MINISTER ON ASEAN PROJECTS

SK080214 Seoul YONHAP in English 0205 GMT 8 Oct 81

[Text] Seoul, 8 Oct (YONHAP)--Deputy Premier-Economic Planning Minister Sin Pyong-hyon said Thursday that the Korean Government would encourage the nation's industry to invest in large-scale development projects in the ASEAN (Association of Southeast Asian Nations) countries.

In a message to an annual conference of Korean-ASEAN business leaders, which opened its one-day meeting at the Federation of Korean Industries (FKI) building here, Sin praised the ASEAN countries for their efforts to accelerate economic growth, and said, "Korea is ready to provide to the ASEAN community its manpower and technical knowhow, accumulated in the process of its own industrial growth." The message was read by Choe Chang-nak, vice economic planning minister.

Sin, South Korea's top economic planner, said the Korean economy will emerge out of the doldrums this year and be back on the track to growth. In pursuing growth, he said, efforts will be made to ensure stability, and the initiative in running the nation's economy will be handed over to the private sector.

Sin said the ongoing conference will translate into fruitful cooperation the momentum provided by President Chon Tu-hwan's tour of the ASEAN countries last summer.

At this year's meeting sponsored by the FKI, some three hundred business leaders including 97 from the ASEAN countries will discuss the establishment of a secretariat for Korean-ASEAN economic cooperation at the nongovernmental level, and explore the possibilities for further cooperation between Korea and the five countries in such areas as construction, plant construction, trade, resource development and joint ventures.

The participants are also expected to urge their governments to conclude bilateral agreements for the prevention of double taxation and investment guarantee between Korea and the ASEAN countries, to pave the way for accelerated economic cooperation.

ECONOMIC IMPLICATIONS OF SEOUL OLYMPIC GAMES EXAMINED

Seoul THE KOREA TIMES in English 4 Oct 81 p 7

[Text]

Seoul's success in inviting the 1988 Olympic Games is expected to give a new impetus to the Korean economy.

The prospective "Olympic business boom" has already begun with a phenomenal rally in the stock market.

Seoul has special reasons to claim doubled international confidence and reputation.

Reasons:

1) Seoul overcame a great disadvantage as a divided country in winning the Olympic venue right; and

2) Seoul showed itself to be a model of newly industrializing country en route to defeating pre-favorite Nagoya, Japan.

In other words, Korean economic potential has played a leading role in enabling the divided country to clinch the Olympic venue right.

Furthermore, the Olympic venue right will probably speed the internationalization of the Korean economy.

The construction industry will be blessed with record-high domestic demand thanks to the 1988 Olympics.

About $2,280 million will be necessary to construct sports facilities, an athletes' village and the related facilities for the 1988 Olympics, according to an estimate by the Seoul organizers.

Furthermore, a lot of big construction projects are sure to go to local builders prior to the Olympic Games.

They include the expansion of Kimpo International Airport, and the construction of subways, hotels and other social infrastructures.

The 1988 Seoul Olympics are estimated to draw 350,000-odd tourists, hinting good days for the Korean tourism industry.

The depth and width of an Olympic business boom can be vividly read in the Japanese case.

Apparently affected by the 1964 Tokyo Olympics, Japanese private facility investment registered an annual growth rate of 40.9 percent in 1960 and 36.8 percent in 1961.

In the Olympic period, the Japanese annual economic growth rose to 12 percent, which economists say led to the present prosperity of the Japanese economy.

Construction

Besides the construction and tourism industries, the Olympic business boom will stimulate many other industrial sectors including electronics, communications, food processing and various services.

In fact, the 1964 Tokyo Olympics changed the Japanese industrial structure and people's living standards a great deal.

The Olympic business boom increased the weight of construction and manufacturing industries as against agriculture and fisheries in Japan.

Japanese sales of television sets and refrigerators skyrocketed by 90 percent and 66 percent, respectively, in 1965 as compared with 8 percent each in 1957.

But the Olympics have not always created prosperity in their host countries.

Munich, Montreal and Moscow may be called Olympic victims as they suffered financial losses due to their excessive investment in the Olympic Games.

Seoul's 1988 Olympic organizers are not worried about possibly excessive investment in Olympic facilities.

"Seoul's population is likely to exceed nine million persons. That fact means that Olympic-related facilities, except the sports complex, can be converted into the houses accommodating ever-growing population," said an official on the organizing committee.

The government has insisted that a lot of Olympic-related infrastructure construction programs are related to the nation's fifth five-year economic and social development plan (1982-1986).

But specialists' private view is that the government should make a minor change in the five-year plan to effectively prepare for the 1988 Olympic Games.

The estimated Seoul Olympic bill of $2,280 million represented a 3.6 percent burden on the gross national product (GNP), based on 1981 prices.

This percentage means that the Olympic bill will be 40,000 won per person.

Domestic observers opine that the burden of the Olympics is not so large in light of Korean economic potential and capacity.

In the coming five years, the nation is expected to need about $43 billion in foreign capital for its continuing economic development plan.

And the nation is not expected to suffer difficulties in obtaining that amount of foreign capital.

Rather, the 1988 Olympic venue right is certain to facilitate the inflow of foreign capital to this Republic.

In 1988 when the nation will stage the Olympics, the Korean GNP and per-capita GNP are expected to reach $100.8 billion and $2,340, respectively.

These figures far exceed the Japanese tally in the 1964 Tokyo Olympic year, amounting to $90.7 billion and $833.

'YONHAP' REVIEWS ROK SHIPBUILDING CAPACITY, PROSPECTS

SK170451 Seoul YONHAP in English 0228 GMT 17 Oct 81

[Text] Seoul, 17 Oct (YONHAP)--The inauguration Saturday of Daewoo Shipbuilding Co's 1.2-million-ton drydock in Okpo of Koje Island off the country's south coast marked a milestone in the history of Korean shipbuilding industry, making Korea the world's fifth largest shipbuilding power, with an annual shipbuilding capacity of four million tons.

In recent years, the Korean shipbuilding industry grew in great spurts partly because the industry was declining in the West, while the volume of world shipping has been increasing, and also because the Korean business boldly invested in the industry with the government's active support.

Korea's annual shipbuilding capacity grew from 250,000 tons in 1972 to 2.8 million tons in 1980, with foreign shipbuilding orders using up some 1.71 million tons, worth around 1.54 billion U.S. dollars last year. This represents the second largest number of orders received by any shipbuilding industry in the world. Japan received the largest number of orders.

As of the end of June this year, Korea won 930,000 tons of foreign shipbuilding orders worth 1.31 billion dollars, 17.5 percent more than was received during the same period last year on a tonnage basis.

Foreign shipbuilding orders totaled 2.7 million tons worth 3.5 billion dollars as of the end of July this year.

As the industry's bullishness continues, the government and the shipbuilding industry plan to further increase Korea's shipbuilding capacity to as much as six million tons by 1986, the last year of the country's fifth five-year economic development plan, to make the country the world's second largest shipbuilder.

However, the Korean shipbuilding industry faces a number of difficulties.

Except for the four major shipbuilders--the Hyundai Shipbuilding Co., the Daewoo Shipbuilding Co., the Korea Shipbuilding Corp., and the Samsung Shipbuilding Co.--the remaining 155 firms are very small, with a combined annual shipbuilding capacity reaching only 350,000 gross tons.

Another important factor is that Korea seems to be losing its international competitiveness because of relatively high wages in Korea. According to experts here, the ratio of wages to the cost in the shipbuilding industry is now as high as 25 percent.

The most challenging competitions to Korean shipbuilding among the newly emerging shipbuilding powers industry are Taiwan and mainland China. Mainland China has an annual shipbuilding capacity of 700,000 tons, and Taiwan's foreign shipbuilding orders in 1980 reached nearly 50 percent of Korea's, according to sources here.

Thus, the challenge for Korea's shipbuilding industry is to hold down costs and increase productivity through the utilization of modern management techniques. The industry must also introduce advanced foreign management methods, and adapt them to its own needs.

ROK TO BECOME WORLD'S FIFTH LARGEST SHIPBUILDER

SK150059 Seoul YONHAP in English 0053 GMT 15 Oct 81

[Text] Seoul, 15 Oct (YONHAP)--Korea will become the fifth largest shipbuilding country in the world when the Daewoo Shipbuilding Co. inaugurates its 1.2 million ton dry dock in Okpo of Koje Island, the country's third biggest island off Pusan, shortly.

Company officials said Thursday that the Okpo shipyard would boost the country's shipbuilding capacity from the current 2.8 million tons to four million tons, the fifth largest in the world.

The construction of the Okpo shipyard took more than eight years, and required more than 327.5 billion won (some 478 million U.S. dollars), both in domestic and foreign capital.

More than six million man-days were utilized to reclaim 400,000 pyong of sea to build the 1.2 million-ton largest single dry dock in the world (one pyong equals 3.4 square meters).

While still under construction, the Okpo shipyard had begun to receive shipbuilding orders from abroad and to build ships since September 1979.

It has so far received orders amounting to 1.1 billion U.S.dollars for chemical products carriers, tankers, seawater disposal plants and oil prospecting rigs.

The yearly turnover of the Okpo shipyard is projected to increase from 673 million dollars in 1982, to 800 million dollars in 1983, and again to more than 1.8 million dollars in 1985.

Another attraction of the Okpo shipyard is the 104-meter-high and 206-meter-wide Goliath crane which can lift ground structures of up to 900 tons. This crane is claimed to be the largest in the world, the officials said.

According to a semiconductor technology promotion program released Wednesday by the Commerce-Industry Ministry, the export target for semiconductor products is 1.5 billion U.S. dollars in 1986 when the fifth five-year economic development plans ends. During the five-year period, the localization of production of semiconductor products will reach 90 percent and semiconductor technology will be developed to such an extent that large scale integrations will be manufactured domestically by 1986. The technology development funds will be raised both by the government (20 billion won) and private enterprises (50 billion won). Basic and sophisticated technology will be developed mainly by research institutes under the supervision of the government, and application or commodity development technology, by private research institutes. The funds will also be used to train technological manpower of over 1,000 and to induce advanced semiconductor technology from abroad. [Text] [SK140913 Seoul YONHAP in English 0740 GMT 14 Oct 81]

NEED FOR QUALIFIED INTERPRETERS BECOMES ACUTE

SK131404 Seoul YONHAP in English 0752 GMT 13 Oct 81

[Text] Seoul, 13 Oct (YONHAP)--Korea's need for professional interpreters seems more immediate than ever, with the rapid growth of the country's foreign trade in recent years, and especially because of Korea's being selected as host for the 1988 summer olympics.

Despite the increasing need for qualified interpreters, institutions to train them are rare in Korea.

The graduate school of interpretation and translation at Seoul's Hankuk University of Foreign Studies, the only graduate school of its kind in Korea, opened in August 1979. It provides eight two-year Korean-foreign language courses and 13 three-year foreign language courses. The two-year courses include Korean-English, Korean-French, Korean-Chinese, Korean-Spanish, Korean-German, Korean-Japanese, Korean-Russian and Korean-Arabic.

Among the three year course are English-French, English-Chinese, English-German, English-Russian and English-Spanish.

According to Dr Kim I-pae, dean of the graduate school, the school produced its first 14 graduates last August. [He said] that more than half of the annual newcomers gave up in the middle of their courses, after finding themselves unable to keep up.

Kim said that a good interpreter should be equipped with a knowledge of politics, economics, literature and other things not to speak of fluency in the languages concerned.

Noting that Korea would need more than 1,700 interpreters when the Seoul Olympics begin, Dr Kim urged the government to pay more interest in training professional interpreters.

The salary of a professional interpreter varies, but according to some sources, a simultaneous interpreter might charge as much as a quarter million won (about 370 U.S. dollars) for six hours of work.

ENGLISH IN PRIMARY SCHOOLS--Seoul, 13 Oct (YONHAP)--The Korean Government has reportedly decided to teach English to primary school students beginning next year as part of its efforts to improve the country's foreign language education. Education Ministry officials said Tuesday that students at the fourth, fifth and sixth grades of primary school will receive English lessons one hour a week as part of their extra-curricular activities. Currently, English is taught from the middle schools level. The move to introduce English at an earlier stage has been very controversial. But the government has decided in favor of it on the assumption that the sooner we learn the language, the more proficient we will be in its use, the officials said. The Education Ministry has already earmarked 800 million won (1.2 million U.S. dollars) for the strengthening of foreign language education in secondary schools across the country next year. The funds will be used to provide middle and high schools with tape recorders and other necessary equipment to improve language training programs for middle and high-school English teachers both at home and abroad. SEOUL DAILY VIEWS WALKER'S SPEECH ON U.S.-ROK CULTURAL TIES

[The "Jargon" Column]

[Text] There is no more difficult word to define than "culture," because it has many meanings. Ten years ago UNESCO conducted a survey to discern the various meanings of "culture" used around the world. The survey findings revealed that "culture" has about 200 different meanings--exceeding the number of countries in the world.

At a meeting of the Korea-American Association on the evening of 6 October, U.S. Ambassador to Korea Richard Walker delivered a speech entitled "Korean-American relations in the 1980's: The cultural dimension." The association is a forum often used by American ambassadors to Korea when they had something to say about U.S.-ROK relations. The term "culture" as he defined it is somewhat different from what it means in Korea. This may be because of a difference in the cultures of the two countries.

Westerners often use the world "culture" to describe a way of life or a way of thinking. Viewed this way, there seems to be a considerable cultural difference between Korea and the United States. It seems to be an American idea that U.S. culture is diverse, whereas Korean culture is almost homegenous.

Ambassador Walker predicted the 1980's will be a period of readjustment--a period when "cultural" differences between the two countries will be reduced. The United States seems to believe it is necessary to mold Korean culture into a more pluralistic one. However, it is not an eady task to reshape cultures.

In the 1980's Korea's progress is expected to be more notable, and the nation's international position will be enhanced. Korea has formal diplomatic relations with 115 countries and trade ties with 160 countries.

In 1988 Korea will host the summer olympics. The political and economi conditions in Korea make it inevitable that we internationalize our society. To achieve this, our consciousness must first be internationalized. We now must review and readjust our "culture."

Internationalization means making as few enemies as possible and refraining from any word or deed which could antagonize others. Nationalism is essential for the survival of a small and weak nation. However, it is likely to invite international isolation if it goes too far. Internationalization necessitates the diversification of information and opinion. It constitutes a condition for our survival. We will have to endure some inconveniences inherent in this readjustment because there can be no gain without costs.

ROK PLANS TO PROMOTE OVERSEAS EMIGRATION

SK160140 Seoul THE KOREA TIMES in English 16 Oct 81 p 8

[Text] The Health-Social Affairs Ministry will push ahead intensively overseas emigration, family planning, and the adoption of orphans by foreign families during next year in strenuous efforts to curtail population growth, it was revealed yesterday.

According to a ministry report to the National Assembly, the ministry will send 40 farming families to Argentina, Chile and Paraguay during next year. The government will provide them with 2,000 ha of farmland initially, the report showed.

Promoting emigration based on family relations, the ministry will encourage private organizations to expedite the emigration of small industrial firms.

The ministry will form a non-government committee for this purpose and will dispatch joint missions overseas to survey the situation related to the emigration of industries and to arrange this type of emigration, the report revealed.

Emigration permissions will be issued to 38,750 persons next year compared with 37,000 this year, according to the report.

It showed that 2,205 million won had been earmarked for emigration sector in the ministry's budget.

The ministry, worried about a possible population explosion resulting from the sharp increase in child-bearing couples, will give various priorities in social benefits to sterilized people, the report revealed.

Medical insurance subscribers will get insurance benefits in case they undergo sterilization and other contraception operations from next year.

People from poor families will be given government loans prior to others if they undergo sterilization operations. They will also be selected as beneficiaries of medical aid prior to others.

Along with tax favors, small-size families with two or less children will be given priority in obtaining scholarships and in buying houses.

As for overseas adoption of Korean orphans, the ministry will ease restrictions on the selection of countries and will promote it by bringing up organizations specializing in the field, according to the report.

Adoption of Korean orphans by foreign families peaked after the Korean war and has declined over the last decade upon the government's decision to raise them in their native land.

COSTA RICAN PRESIDENT ARRIVES FOR 3-DAY VISIT

SK120750 Seoul YONHAP in English 0739 GMT 12 Oct 81

[Text] Seoul, 12 Oct (YONHAP)--Costa Rica's President Rodrigo Carazo Odio arrived here Monday afternoon on a three-day state visit as guest of President Chon Tu-hwan.

On his arrival at Seoul's Kimpo international airport on a crystal clear Korean autumn day, Carazo, his wife Estrella, and a 12-member official party including Foreign Minister Bernd Hiehaus were welcomed by President and Mrs Chon and other senior officials of the Korean Government in an official welcoming ceremony.

Carazo, the first Costa Rican president to visit Korea, will meet with his Korean counterpart at Chongwadae, South Korea's presidential mansion, Tuesday morning to discuss "ways to expand bilateral cooperation, political and economic." [as received]

On Tuesday afternoon, the Costa Rican leader will address a plenary session of the unicameral National Assembly. Carazo will be the fourth foreign head of state to address the Korean Parliament. The last foreign president who spoke before the National Assembly was U.S. President Lyndon B. Johnson, who made an official visit here in 1966.

Diplomatic observers here see Carazo's visit as part of the South Korean Government's efforts to bolster its relations with countries of Central and South America, a vital area of diplomatic contest between South and North Korea, along with Africa and the Middle East.

Jamaican Prime Minister Edward Seaga is in town at the invitation of Prime Minister Nam Tok-u, on a four-day official visit, which began Saturday.

Since it established diplomatic relations with South Korea in 1962, Costa Rica, which upholds a pro-Western foreign policy, has supported the Seoul government at international forums including the United Nations.

The Central American nation established diplomatic relations with North Korea in 1974, but its relations with the communist country, South Korean officials said, have been minimal.

On the other hand, there has been a steady increase in South Korea's trade with Costa Rica. Official Korean statistics show that South Korea exported some 4.8 million U.S. dollars worth of goods including steel products, electric appliances and textiles to Costa Rica last year. Meanwhile, Costa Rica exported 290,000 dollars' worth of products to Korea, including meat and coffee beans.

Bilateral trade and other forms of economic cooperation, including joint ventures, are expected to be discussed by the two presidents, Korean officials said.

CHON ADDRESSES DINNER HONORING COSTA RICAN PRESIDENT

SK140232 Seoul YONHAP in English 0126 GMT 14 Oct 81

[Text] Seoul, 14 Oct (YONHAP)--President Chon Tu-hwan said Tuesday evening that South Korea and Costa Rica, as Pacific nations, are partners in the common pursuit of liberty, peace and prosperity.

In his remarks at a Chongwadae (Korea's presidential mansion) dinner honoring Costa Rican President Rodrigo Carazo Odio, Chon hailed Carazo's visit here as a "meaningful milestone" in further cementing the ties of friendship and cooperation between Korea and the Central American nation.

Explaining his unsuccessful overtures aimed at realizing an inter-Korean summit meeting, Chon castigated communist North Korea for rejecting his offers and continuing to indulge in provocative acts (toward the South), which, he said, heighten the tension on the Korean peninsula.

"I do not believe that North Korea will be able to continue to shun our peace-making efforts. With patience and sincerity, we will continue to do our utmost to establish a lasting peace on the peninsula."

In his reply, Carazo endorsed Chon's bid for a tete-a-tete with North Korean leader Kim Il-song and said his current visit will serve to further strengthen the ties of friendship that bind South Korea and Costa Rica.

"Through this visit, I have reaffirmed the courage with which your people are safeguarding freedom against the constant threat of aggression from the enemy," said Carazo, the first Costa Rican president to visit Korea. "The freedom-loving nations of the whole world should appreciate your efforts to resist totalitarianism and repel the menace of subversion."

[Text] Korea and Jamaica yesterday agreed to conclude an economic, scientific and technological agreement to strengthen the government-level cooperation and increase the activities of the nongovernmental Korea-Jamaica Joint Economic Committee.

This agreement came during a meeting between Prime Minister Nam Tok-u and Jamaican Prime Minister Edward P. G. Seaga who arrived in Seoul earlier in the day on a four-day visit at Nam's invitation.

A Korean source said that the two premiers exchanged views on international situations with stress placed on Northeast Asia and the Caribbean area and on ways and means of promoting bilateral relations in a "sincere and friendly" atmosphere for more than one hour in Nam's capitol office.

Nam explained in detail President Chon Tu-hwan's peace proposals made toward North Korea on January 12 and June 5 while Seaga expressed his deep understanding about the Seoul government's peaceful unification efforts and said "time is on Seoul's side," according to the source.

Seaga hoped for joint investments in Jamaica by Korean business and industrial companies and explained that such labor-intensive businesses as garments, footwear and electronics are among the promising areas for Korean participation.

Nam pledged that he will encourage active participation by Korean companies, the source said.

Following the meeting, the two premiers signed a cultural agreement.

The 11-point accord is aimed at promoting scientific, educational and cultural exchanges.

The Nam-Seaga meeting was also attended by Minister of Commerce and Industry So Sok-chun; Vice Minister of Foriegn Affairs Kim Tong-hwi; Korean Ambassador to Kingston Choe Sang-chin; Kum Chin-ho, secretary-general to the premier and Kim Sok-kyu, director-general of the American Affairs Bureau at the Ministry of Foreign Affairs.

Those from the Jamaican side were Dr Allan Kirton, permanent secretary at the office of the prime minister; E. Frank Francis, permanent secretary of the Ministry of Foreign Affairs; Lloyd M.H. Barnett, director of the Foreign Ministry's Political Division; John Pickersgill, director of the Foreign Ministry's Economic Division, and Kenneth Jones, director of the Agency for Public Information.

In the evening, Premier and Mrs Seaga attended a dinner hosted by Nam at the guest house of the Hotel Shilla.

Today, the Jamaican leader will visit industrial establishments in Ulsan and Pohang.

SEOUL DAILY VIEWS CARIBBEAN LEADERS' ROK VISITS

SK130951 Seoul THE KOREA TIMES in English 13 Oct 81 p 2

[Editorial: "Caribbean Visitors"]

[Text] The leaders of two Central American countries are in town--Costa Rican President Rodrigo Carazo Odio flew in yesterday for a three-day state visit and Jamaican Prime Minister Edward Philip George Seaga is due to leave today after a four-day official tour.

Together with the recent trip here by Canadian Prime Minister Pierre Trudeau and the forthcoming visit by Thai Prime Minister Prem Tinsulanon early next month, their tours underline an auspicious fruition of the nation's vigorous new diplomatic efforts aimed at expanding and substantiating its external relations.

Notable is that the two visits, overlapping in part, involve chief executives from countries situated in the same Caribbean region.

What is more remarkable is that each of the visits has distinct implications for Koreans. President Carazo is the first foreign leader to make a state visit here since the inauguration of the Fifth Republic and also the first to deliver an address before the current National Assembly, an event scheduled for today. Meanwhile, Prime Minister Seaga is the first head of government from a nonaligned nation to visit the Fifth Republic, an occasion which is additionally meaningful as Jamaica is a council member of the powerful Nonaligned Movement of Third World countries.

And the talks which the Costa Rican and Jamaican visitors will have or have already had with their respective hosts, President Chon Tu-hwan and Prime Minister Nam Tok-u, and other Korean leaders are expected to have far-reaching effects in further strengthening Korea's existing bilateral relations with their nations.

For one thing, the high-level talks will have resulted in a better understanding of and paved the way for closer cooperation in tackling each other's national issues. Outstanding in this respect is Seoul's sincere and realistic approach to lessening tension on the Korean peninsula and bringing about a workable settlement of inter-Korea questions, a task that is worthy of due international support.

Probably having a greater impact on mutual interests are the discussions on ways to further promote or newly cultivate Korea's relations with the two countries in such tangible fields as economic cooperation, trade and sociocultural exchanges.

For this purpose, the Jamaican prime minister signed with his host a bilateral cultural agreement, providing for closer cooperation in the sectors of science, education and culture. Besides, the two premiers reportedly agreed in their talks to inject vigor into the function of the Korea-Jamaica Joint Economic Committee and probed effective ways of facilitating joint ventures in about a dozen specific industrial projects, including clothing and footwear production as well as electronics.

Stepped-up economic cooperation in spheres ranging from fisheries to manufacturing industry is also a major topic for the Costa Rican president in his meetings with President Chon and other Seoul leaders. In addition, wider avenues are certain to be provided to cement bilateral relations, which already feature three agreements signed during the past decade covering cultural exchanges, trade and science-technology cooperation.

The visits by President Carazo and Prime Minister Seage are thus hoped to be long remembered as having provided new momenta in upgrading--and what's more substantiating--Korea's relations not only with their countries but also other Latin American nations.

AARRO CONFERENCE OPENS IN SEOUL; NAM SPEAKS

SK160114 Seoul YONHAP in English 0109 GMT 16 Oct 81

[Text] Seoul, 16 Oct (YONHAP)--The Seventh Conference of the Afro-Asian Rural Reconstruction Organization (AARRO) opened Friday morning in Seoul, with delegates from 15 member countries, four observer countries and four international organizations.

Korean Prime Minister Nam Tok-u opened the conference by praising AARRO's invaluable accomplishments in exploring ways of relieving rural poverty in the African and Asian regions, since the organization's founding in 1962.

Nam noted, however, that there were still many people in rural areas who were denied decent lives, and urged all member countries to "join in the crusade for a new world of common prosperity."

He said that the Korean "saemaul undong" (new village movement), started in 1970, can be regarded as one method of meeting the challenges of rural development, and added that Korea is "willing to cooperate in sharing and exchanging our experiences with all our friends."

Korean chief delegate Ko Kun, agriculture-fisheries minister, was elected chairman of the Seoul conference.

Ko explained to the delegates the results of the Korean Saemaul Undong and of the government's plans in the agricultural and fisheries sectors during the country's fifth five-year economic and social development plan period which starts next year.

During the conference, which is continuing until October 23, participants are to discuss their rural development policies, as well as exchange technological information.

At Friday's meeting, it was also decided to hold the eighth AARRO conference in Mauritius.

NAM URGES JAPAN TO PLAY DUE SECURITY ROLE

OW080931 Tokyo KYODO in English 0852 GMT 8 Oct 81

[Text] Seoul, 8 Oct (KYODO)--South Korean Prime Minister Nam Tok-u has urged Japan to play a "due role" for security in Northeast Asia.

Speaking at a National Assembly session Wednesday, Nam called for establishment of trilateral security systems involving South Korea, the United States and Japan.

Both South Korea and Japan have a separate security treaty with the United States but there is no such accord between Seoul and Tokyo.

"There will be no South Korea-Japan security treaty even in the future," Nam said.

"Under these circumstances," he went on, "we want Japan to play a due role for regional security."

Nam said the two countries still do not share the view over how they should promote regional security and economic cooperation but added: "We have come much closer to each other in our perceptions as a result of our recent series of talks."

Nam referred to the Japan-South Korea foreign ministerial meeting in Tokyo in August, that was followed by the regular ministerial conference in Seoul last month.

The meetings produced no tangible agreement, however, on South Korea's request for dollar 6 billion in Japanese government loans, which Seoul linked to its "enormous" defense efforts to maintain peace on the Korean peninsula.

GAP BETWEEN KOREA, JAPAN STUDIED

Tokyo TOITSU NIPPON in Japanese 23 Sep 81 p 1

[Editorial: "How to Bridge the Gap Between Korea and Japan"]

[Text] For the sake of "new Korea-Japan relations," a deepening of mutual understanding by the citizens of the two countries is desired, but according to a "public opinion poll on foreign relations" conducted by the Prime Minister's Office with 3,000 Japanese men and women from all over the country as subjects (published on the 20th), the results are that on the one hand 62 percent responded that Korea-Japan relations are "important," but on the other hand a 53 percent majority responded, "I don't have any friendly feelings toward Korea." In this public opinion poll which has been conducted every year for the past three years, this is the first time that respondents stating, "I don't have any friendly feelings toward Korea," exceeded 50 percent.

Because this poll was conducted from the end of May to the beginning of June, the responses came just as the Korea-Japan Foreign Ministers' Conference was postponed for Japan's convenience after a change in Japan's foreign minister. It was a period when there was the least discord between Korea and Japan since the start of Korea's Fifth Republic and perhaps it may be understood as expressing the ordinary feelings of the average Japanese. By the way, the data retrieval rate was 79 percent with more than 2,300 responding.

Althought 35 percent "feel friendly toward Korea" (43 percent the previous year) and 62 percent think that Korea-Japan relations are "important," what should we think about the result of 53 percent who "do not have any friendly feelings toward Korea" (47 percent the previous year)?

Contrasting Public Opinion Polls in Both Countries

On the one hand, what about Korea's public opinion poll? The most recent is a poll conducted in the middle of July three years ago by the "Chuo Nippo" publication with 3,400 men and women as subjects (the response rate was 91.4 percent and it was published on 22 September the same year). According to that poll, as for feelings of "like or dislike" toward Japan, 58.6 percent responded "dislike," including 21.2 percent who responded "extreme dislike." Conversely, those responding "like" were limited to 12.9 percent, including the 1.3 percent who responded "extreme like."

The results of the two countries' public opinion polls can be said to be contrasting.

Certainly in the understanding of the people of the two countries, there are factors which are pluses for improving relations between the two countries. Looking at Korea's poll, three years ago at the time the poll was started, a response was requested to the question, "what was your impression of Japan five years ago?" In that poll, 69.9 percent responded "dislike" and 7.6 percent responded "like." Thus there is indication of a trend that the impressions toward Japan are gradually improving. On the other hand, in this last Japanese poll, those responding, "I don't have any friendly feelings toward Korea" exceeded one-third with 35 percent.

However, a bad impression of the other is still deeply rooted between the people of both countries. Concerning what should be done, this is an issue that should be given serious consideration not only by the government authorities on both sides but also by the opinion leaders.

From our perspective, we think that the major factor is that there is still no mutual understanding of the other's situation. Even so, since the relative importance Japan occupies for Korea is greater than the relative importance Korea occupies for Japan, it means we have to ask for greater effort on the part of Japan to understand Korea. This difference in relative importance can be understood completely if one compares the relative importance Japan occupies in Korea's total trade and the importance Korea occupies in Japan's total trade.

In the process of diplomatic negotiations between the two countries since the Korea-Japan Foreign Ministers' Conference of this past August, various discussions were held surrounding such outstanding issues as a "6 billion dollar public loan to Korea." But the point we feel most strongly from commentaries and criticism in Japan is the significance of Korea's "wish to re-examine" the economic relations of the two countries during the 16 years since the normalization of diplomatic relations has not been reported to the Japanese people, to say the least. Of course, this is not to say, support and report Korea's assertions, but it is saying what are Korea's reasons for its "wish to re-examine." But this has not been explained to the Japanese people.

"Reciprocity" Measures Are Very Basis

From the Koreans' perspective, the greatest outstanding question in Korea-Japan relations during this time is the correction of the huge trade imbalance. Despite the fact that this correction has been continuously requested for nearly the last 10 years, Japan simply says this "is a long term question" and in contrast to this has expanded import regulations against Korea.

It is not just the Koreans' judgment; no other judgment can be made but that Japan planned the guarantee of a one-sided profit in its relations with Korea.

Concerning this, Japan's assertion that even now Korea-Japan trade "contributed to Korea's export to the third world countries" and "all countries must be looked at---not just the two countries" can lead to no other conclusion except that in order for Korea to strengthen its exports to the third world it is obliged to offer a one-sided profit to Japan in its trade. The relations have been precisely this during the 16 years since normalization of relations.

The question depends on countermeasures Japan takes so that the Koreans can have a constructive impression concerning relations with Japan in both direction and in substance, such as structural measures such as industrial regulation and technology transfer, steps to make a positive balance in trade, and measures to ease the influence of the extreme trade imbalance every year by means of capital cooperation.

It is Korea which has to continue to undertake intense security preparedness, and if there were not the reality of Korea-Japan relations symbolized in the enormous accumulated trade deficit, the impressions of Japan should have taken a far more favorable turn. To the extent this is not resolved, it will be difficult to avoid the vicious cycle of Korea's tough opinion poll towards Japan and the resulting Japanese backlash.

This public opinion poll again showed the "gap" between the people of the two countries. Focusing on the fact that the major factor is the relationship between the two countries is one without reciprocity, and not looking too much at secondary factors, I would like to have understood the alarm bells indicating the necessity of true improvement of relations between the two countries.

SPORTSMEN EXCHANGES WITH E. EUROPE--Seoul, 8 Oct (YONHAP)--Korean sportsmen will actively seek exchanges with their counterparts in the Eastern European countries and other nations with which South Korea has no diplomatic relations. The Korean Amateur Sports Association (KASA) has decided to make positive attempts at such exchanges with those countries, which Korea had formerly kept at arm's length because of political reasons. A highly placed KASA source said Thursday that the decision had been prompted by the International Olympic Committee's awarding of the 1988 summer Olympic Games to Seoul, which he said could have wide-ranging implications for the expansion of the country's sports exchanges with the rest of the world. ROK, U.S. OFFICIALS AGREE ON AGRICULTURAL TIES

[Text] Seoul, 13 Oct (YONHAP)--South Korean Agriculture-Fisheries Minister Ko Kun and visiting U.S. Secretary of Agriculture John R. Block agreed here Monday on the necessity of facilitating bilateral cooperation in the agricultural and fisheries fields, based on the principle of mutual benefit and prosperity.

During the hour-long meeting at the Agriculture-Fisheries Ministry, Ko asked his U.S. counterpart to exercise his influence in lowering U.S. federal tariff rates for Korean mushrooms and canned goods, and in expediting a joint venture between Korea and the United States in the Indian corn processing plant now under negotiations by private business interests of both countries.

Block showed deep interest in Korea's importing more rice and other agricultural products from the United States, taking advantage of the credit facilities made available by the U.S. financing institutions, including the Commodity Credit Corporation (CCC), according to sources at the bilateral ministerial meeting.

Ko and Block agreed that Korea is one of the major agricultural products export markets for the United States.

Ko, Yi Pyong-ki, assistant minister for food grain and livestock administration at the minstry, and three other aides represented Korea at the conference; and Block, U.S. Undersecretary of Agriculture Seeley G. Lodwick, and U.S. Ambassador to Korea Richard L. Walker represented the U.S.

Block arrived in Seoul Sunday, accompanied by his wife and an entourage of 21 U.S. officials, at the invitation of his Korean counterpart Ko on the first leg of his tour of Asian countries.

The U.S. mission visited the truce village of Panmunjom on the demilitarized zone dividng South and North Korea Monday afternoon.

During his four-day stay here, the U.S. secretary will pay courtesy calls on President Chon Tu-hwan and Korean Deputy Premier-Economic Planning Minister Sin Pyong-hyon.

Block is also scheduled to preside over a meeting of U.S. agricultural attaches and counsellors assigned in the Asian area before leaving here for Japan, mainland China and Hong Kong.

ROK DAILY DISCUSSES RISING IMPORT BARRIERS

[Editorial: "Rising Import Barriers"]

[Text] It appears that the world trade environment has gone beyond the stage of uncertainty and entered a phase of upheaval with almost all countries bent on pursuing their own interests only. As advanced nations are still suffering from prolonged economic stagnation combined with inflation with little hope of recovery in the near future, the growth of global trade volume which ran up to as much as nine percent a year in the early 1970s has now declined to two to three percent.

While advocating free trade in principle, or in lip service, developed industrial countries are increasingly resorting to import-restriction measures on grounds of protecting their domestic industries and coping with rising unemployment. Even the functions of the General Agreement on Tariffs and Trade (GATT), an authoritative international institution dedicated to promoting free trade, are being deplorably weakened as most member nations evade fulfilling their obligations. The Multilateral Trade Negotiations (MTN) and Multifiber Arrangement (MFA) are drifting toward strengthening import restrictions rather than promoting free trade at the insistence of advanced countries.

Korea, as a developing country and, more specifically, a newly industrializing country, which must depend heavily on exports to sustain economic growth, or even economic survival for that matter, finds itself more and more pinched by rising import barriers in major overseas markets. In some of the cases, we are made a victim of trade conflicts between economic powers in this age of economic multipolarization.

How to effectively cope with such unfavorable international trade environment is therefore a crucial question that may very well decide the future of the Korean economy. In this connection, we are alarmed by the report that the volume of incoming letters of credit, a vital indicator for future export performance, began to fall in September below the level of a year before.

A study report by Korea Trade Promotion Corporation (KOTRA), released this week, deserves serious attention by all concerned with the export industry as well as the government economic authorities. According to the report, as many as 148 items or 28.5 percent of the nation's total exports are affected by import restrictions abroad.

Most of the restrictions Korean commodities are subjected to are of classical types. They include the so-called "voluntary" restraint by Korean exporters imposed by bilateral agreements with importing countries. Textiles are the typical item coming under this category. There is also the escape clause in the GATT which provides for protectionist "safeguard" measures, now being abused by importing nations to limit imports such as footwear and electronic goods. Then the antidumping duties and counrervailing tariff against subsidized exports.

As long as the rising import barrier is a reality, regrettable as it is, we must develop wisdom to overcome it. First of all, it is imperative for our exporters to expand shipments to nonrestrictive markets in the Third World, and Eastern Europe, if possible.

At the same time, our export industry should intensify their efforts to produce sophisticated, higher-priced goods to earn more within a given quantitative import quota in an existing market, through thorough quality control, improving designs and keeping current with changing fashions. Joint-venture production in the target country itself and intensified commodity publicity drives in the markets are some other desirable means of promoting our exports.

It must be emphasized, however, that our traders and industrialists avoid stirring a sentiment of resistance to our products in any of our export markets by refraining from unnecessary excesses in sales offensive. An orderly marketing attitude and sincere endeavor for balanced trade on our part are needed.

1982 EXPORT TARGET INCREASED--Seoul, 9 Oct (YONHAP)--The Commerce-Industry Ministry has set Korea's export target for next year at 25.3 billion U.S. dollars on the free-on-board basis, and the import goal at 31.33 billion dollars on the basis of cost, insurance and freight (CIF). Along with this, the ministry decided Thursday to increase this year's export target by 500 million dollars to 21 billion dollars and reduce imports by 800 million dollars to 27 billion dollars. The 1982 export figure shows a rise of 20.4 percent from the readjusted export target for this year and the import figure, an increase of 15.9 percent from the readjusted import scale in 1981. As of October 6, Korea's exports amounted to 15.71 billion dollars. It is the first time since 1978 that the government has set the export growth rate at above 20 percent. A ministry official said that in order to achieve the eight percent economic growth envisaged by the government for next year, the country should export 20 percent more than this year's figure. However, the attainment of this export goal is uncertain, because of the anticipated reduction in the overseas demand for Korean products, the continuing gain of U.S. dollars against other major currencies, and the high interest rates in international money markets. TV EXPORTS CREATE CONTROVERSY--Seoul, 13 Oct (YONHAP)--Some Korean TV manufacturers are trying to export black-and-white TV sets to the United States at dumping prices, thus giving rise to protests from their rivals in Taiwan and other developing countries. Business sources here said Tuesday there is a growing demand for black-and-white sets in the United States because major U.S. black-and-white TV manufacturers have given up this line because of their poor price competitiveness, and are importing finished products from Korea and Taiwan. Korean TV manufacturers have offered the General Electric Co. of the U.S. 14-inch TV sets at 44 to 45 dollars per unit, 10 percent lower than the usual export price. Last year, Korea emerged as the biggest black-and-white TV set exporter in the world by selling more than five million sets overseas, 21 percent of the world's total black-and-white TV exports. DOMESTIC RAW MATERIALS--Seoul, 13 Oct (YONHAP)--Korean exporters have used more and more domestic raw materials for their export commodities in recent years, according to a tally released Tuesday by the Korean Customs Administration. The tally showed that the ratio of domestic raw materials to imported raw materials for export commodities for this year was 55.7 percent as of the end of July. Local exporters used 4.6 billion U.S. dollars' worth of domestic raw materials and imported 3.6 billion dollars' worth of raw materials. The statistics also said that the ratio of local raw materials began to preceded that of the foreign raw materials in 1977 and rose to 56.1 percent in 1979. The ratio of domestic resources slightly dropped to 54 percent last year because of the prolonged economic recession in the country. Government officials welcome the increased ratio of domestic raw materials for export products as signalling the improvement of the foreign-exchange earning rate of export commodities. They attribute this increased ratio primarily to the government's efforts to convince domestic manufacturers to increase their use of Korean raw materials. ROK, NEW ZEALAND TRADE COOPERATION--Seoul, Oct 7 (YONHAP)--Korea and New Zealand have agreed to combine their efforts to further expand bilateral trade and economic cooperation. The agreement came during the 12th annual meeting of the two countries' trade ministers, So Sok-chun and B. E. Talboys, in Seoul October 5-7. To that end, New Zealand will import an additional 300 Korean-made passenger cars called "Pony," and Korea will give first preference to the Oceanic country's livestock products when it imports such dairy products from abroad. According to a 19-point joint communique issued at the end of the three-day Seoul conference, Korean firms participating in international biddings to be hosted by the New Zealand Government will be given favorable consideration. In order to accelerate bilateral economic cooperation, the two countries will increase their capital invesetments in each other's countries and expand personnel and technical exchanges in the fisheries sector. The government of the two countries also agreed to provide every possible facility for a meeting of private shipping company officials, scheduled to be held either in Seoul or in Wellington in November, to discuss the establishing of a regular shipping line between the two countries, according to the joint communique. The meeting--the 13th of its kind--will be held in Wellington next year. New Zealand's Foreign and External Trade Minister Talboys and his entourage left here Wednesday afternoon. Comrade Yim Chun-chu and Chang Yun-pil, Kim Man-kum, Yi Yong-su, Kim Yong-nam and other personages concerned and anti-Japanese revolutionary fighters were present at the meeting together with workers and trade unionists in the city.

At the meeting the speakers recalled that on 9 October 1945, the great leader went to Kangson, leaving at the fork of roads to Mangyongdae and Kangson the mark of his great intention thinking first of the revolution before thinking of his native place and visiting workers before meeting his grandparents and family. 'NODONG SINMUN' REMINISCES ON 'GLORIOUS DAYS'

SK121617 Pyongyang KCNA in English 1521 GMT 12 Oct 81

[Text] Pyongyang, 12 Oct (KCNA)--NODONG SINMUN allotted two whole pages to reminiscences of An Sin-yong and Mun Cho-yang, participants in the struggle in the period of the early revolutionary activities of the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song under the title "Looking Back on the Glorious Days When We Held the Sun of the Revolution in High Esteem."

The authors recalled with deep emotion the glorious days when the young communists of Korea held the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song in high esteem as the sun of revolution 50 years ago.

An Sin-yong vividly retrospects the day when she attended a lecture on the situation given by the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song in Jilin, northeast China, in May 1927 and was overjoyed to see that there appeared a leader to save the destiny of Korea. It was in October 1928 when the great leader was guiding a mass demonstration of students against the Jilin-Hoeryong railway project of the Japanese imperialists for an aggression on Manchuria.

In those days An Sin-yong, a member of the Anti-Imperialist Youth League, learned in excitement the revolutionary pean "The Star of Korea" from Kim Hyok, a revolutionary poet and composer, at a meeting attended by Cha Kwang-su and other young communists. The song was imbued with the boudnless joy and pride of young communists who greeted the great leader as the guiding star of the Korean revolution. Hearing the song, the great leader stopped them from singing it, even getting angry and saying why should a young man like him be praised that way. The young communists had never contradicted the words of the great leader. But they would not comply with these words only. Thus, the song was widely disseminated among the people. An Sin-yong also disseminated this song back at the Jiangdong Anti-Imperialist Youth League to which she belonged.

Ho Yul who had once got involved in a sectarian strife but later had become chairman of the Jiangdong Anti-Imperialist Youth League, taking the right course after meeting the great leader, explained the meaning of the song to the league members. He said in an excited tone that, if we are to chase the Japanese imperialists out of our homeland and accomplish the historic cause of the liberation of the fatherland, all of us must hold the great leader in high esteem and rally around him.

Mun Cho-yang reflects on the days when he was in charge of a section of the Wuchiatzu Anti-Imperialist Youth League.

Pak So-sim, a young intellectual, was laid up with tuberculosis while walking a worthy road, upholding the teachings of the great leader.

The great leader had just been freed from the Jilin prison, but not caring for his own health, he looked after the young intellectual with utmost care and took a measure for his medical treatment.

One day he walked 80 kilometers to call at his straw-thatched hut where he conversed with him, the sick man, during the night, lying side by side with him. Learning that Pak So-sim gave his life a wide berth for the mere reason that she was of a well-to-do family origin, the great leader persuaded him warmly, saying that he should not be so narrow-minded. But call her to him, educate her and let her nurse him.

The great leader's love was so warm and renevolent that the young communists deemed it a noble duty of the revolution to repay his loving care.

The authors also recount the story that in South Manchuria Cha Kwang-su, Kim Hyok, Choe Chang-kol and other young communists devoted themselves to the struggle to defend and implement the revolutionary ideas of the great leader and his chuche-oriented lines and policies.

In response to the teachings of the great leader, Choe Chang-kol joined the nationalist independence army and educated commanders and men to rally them in the Anti-Imperialist Youth League.

When Kim Hyok contracted a serious disease while performing a revolutionary duty, he was advised by members of the revolutionary organization to take a rest for medical treatment. But Kim Hyok said how could a revolutionary soldier of the great leader take a rest when the great leader was undergoing painful sufferings in prison in this cold winter and determinedly left to meet him and receive a new task from him.

Cha Kwang-su used to stress that to defend and safeguard the great leader is the greatest duty of the young communists to the fatherland and the revolution.

Chang Ul-hwa, son of the richest family in Fusong, also ardently revered the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song. He was brought up into a communist by the tireless education of the great leader and actively helped him in his revolutionary activities.

The authors tell an emotional story that the great leader spent sleepless nights, forgetting meals, at the thought of his arrested comrades.

In the last part the reminiscences say: It was neither at the request of anyone nor for any position or distinction after the liberation of the country that the young communists revered the great leader so ardently and remained loyal to him.

Their loyalty was based on the unshakable faith that the victory of the Korean revolution and bright future were assured only when they attend the great leader as the centre of unity and cohesion and advance along the road indicated by him and it stemmed from their lofty revolutionary duty and spotlessly clean conscience at receiving the immortal precious political lives embraced in his bosom, covering a road full of turns and twists.

ECONOMY DEVELOPS RAPIDLY

SK151610 Pyongyang KCNA in English 1551 GMT 15 Oct 81

[Text] Pyongyang, 15 Oct (KCNA)--The Korean economy is making a rapid development, firmly relying upon its raw materials, fuel and technique.

Industrial output last year was 17 percent up on the preceding year. It recorded a high growth rate of 15.9 percent on an annual average in the 1970s when the world floundered in an economic crisis. This indicates that the Korean economy is advancing constantly at a high rate, not affected by any economic fluctuation, as it depends on its own resources and technique.

An active struggle has been waged in Korea for effectively using the nation's resources, with the juche-orientation of the national economy as the primary task.

In the 1970s when many countries were developing power and chemical industries on the basis of oil, arguing for its high economic advantages, Korea developed overall industries including power, chemical, building materials and metal industries on the basis of its home resources such as rich hydraulic, coal and other resources. Thus the independence of the industry was firmly guaranteed.

The self-supply rate of raw materials and fuel is above 70 percent.

The economic potential of the country is growing day by day with new industrial branches depending on the solid home raw material and fuel bases and technique taking shape and a large number of modern factories and enterprises cropping up.

Roughly 9,000 objects of industrial construction were completed in the first 3 years of the second seven-year plan (1978-1984) alone.

Korea aims at the production of 56,000-60,000 million kwh of electricity, 70-80 million tons of coal, 16 million tons of iron ores, 7.4-8 million tons of steel, one million tons of nonferrous metals, 12-13 million tons of cement and 5 million tons of chemical fertilizers in 1984, the last year of the present seven-year plan.

At that time, the might and independence of our economy will grow incomparably stronger.

KIM IL-SONG GREETS CONSTRUCTION OF NEW PLANT

SK141120 Pyongyang Domestic Service in Korean 2300 GMT 10 Oct 81

[Excerpts] A modern movilon mill has been built in Hamhung, an industrial city. The great leader Comrade Kim Il-song sent a congratulatory message to the construction workers who built the mill. In the message he extended warm congratulations and gratitude to those engaged in the construction of the movilon mill, such as construction workers, youth shock brigade members, scientists, technicians and helpers, expressing satisfaction with the fact that they have built in a brief period a modern movilon mill--one that will make great contributions to the development of the nation's economy and the promotion of the people's living standards--by carrying out a vigorous labor struggle in response to the decisions of the Sixth KWP Congress.

Those who were engaged in the construction of the mill, he noted in the message, have scored the great labor exploit of building in 1 year or so a modern movilon plant by displaying mass heroism out of their boundless loyalty to the party and the revolution.

He also noted that they have built the mill up to modern standards by demonstrating, from the first day of construction, the revolutionary spirit of self-reliance and arduous struggle in overcoming difficulties that faced them, by thoroughly implementing the party policy that calls for efforts in construction work to be done intensively and industriously and for the waging of a speed battle, and by actively introducing various advanced work methods.

Saying that the mill is of significance in strengthening our country's chuche industry, consolidating the self-reliant national economy and improving the people's living standards, the building of the mill, the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song noted in the message, has made it possible to solve the problem of cotton for bedding through the use of plentiful domestic raw materials and to supply raw and other materials more sufficiently to various domains of the national economy.

He also highly praised the labor exploits of the workers who have erected another monumental creation of the KWP era by implementing the party's demand for production of chuche movilon fiber. Pointing out that the construction workers and working class that were engaged in the construction of the mill were faced with the honorable task to normalize the production of movilon and effect greater upsurges in production and construction, in response to the programmatic tasks laid forth at the historic Sixth Party Congress, he said in the message that construction workers and helpers should erect more and better monumental edifices--which will shine generation after generation--by thoroughly implementing the party policy to perform construction wirk intensively and industriously and by vigorously waging the speed battle.

Guidance functionaries, workers, technicians and office workers of the movilon mill should normalize the production of movilon and, in the days to come, increase the production capacity by doing a good job of economic organization and by taking part in enterprise management in a manner worthy of their role as the master, the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song noted in the message.

He expressed his confidence in the message that they will creditably perform the revolutionary tasks assigned them by vigorously carrying out the movement to win the red flag of the three revolutions and the movement to learn from unsung heroes and by energetically advancing in the manner of the chollima spurred by the speed battle--holding high the banner of three revolutions, ideological, technical and cultural.

A ceremony commissioning the mill was held on 10 October on the spot. Seen at the site of the ceremony were a portrait of Comrade Kim Il-song and such slogans as, "long live the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song," and "long live the honorable KWP."

On hand at the ceremony were comrades Kim Hwan and Kye Ung-tae, functionaries concerned such as Yi Kil-song, Cho Chang-tok and Kim Hyong-chong, construction workers and workers of the movilon mill. The ceremony started with singing in chorus the "Song of General Kim Il-song." Amidst stormy applause, Comrade Kim Hwan conveyed the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song's congratulatory message. A report was delivered.

Afterwards, cadres and functionaries who were present at the ceremony inspected the mill's production processes.

PYONGYANG TROLLEY PLANT--The KWP Central Committee sent a congratulatory message to workers, technicians and office employees of the Pyongyang trolley plant. In the message, the Party Central Committee extends warm congratulations to workers, technicians and office employees of the Pyongyang trolley plant, who significantly greet the 20th anniversary of the first historic on-the-spot guidance [to the plant] by the great leader. The message points out that on 10 October 1961 the great leader personally saw the first trolley made in our country by the workers of the Pyongyang trolley bus plant, and he elucidated a profound plan to transport the passengers of the capital by trolley cars. He pointed the direction for the plant to follow by giving frequent on-the-spot guidance and many programmatic teachings. The Party Central Committee notes that the workers, technicians and office employees of the Pyongyang trolley plant manufactured by themselves various machines and facilities, including a 400-ton press and gantry cranes, by thoroughly implementing the leader's teachings and the party policy. Thus, they developed the plant, once a small car repair shop, into a large plant which produces modern trolley cars and various means of transportation by laying a firm material and technical foundation for production. Through their devoted struggle, the program of installing trollies in Pyongyang City has been successfully carried out and convenience in transportation and in the daily life of the citizens of the capital city is being more smoothly guaranteed. A gathering to convey the Party Central Committee's message was held on 9 October at the site. EDUCATION MAKES RAPID PROGRESS IN DPRK

SK131509 Pyongyang KCNA in English 1459 GMT 13 Oct 81

[Text] Pyongyang, 13 Oct (KCNA)--Education has made a progress at fast pace in the Democratic People's Republic of Korea during the 36 years after the liberation.

Intellectuals of chuche type who received education under the peoples regime after the liberation, now workers full of vigor in their 40s and 50s, are playing a big role in different fields.

Placing education before all other work, the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song has carried on his ideological and theoretical activities for the solution of the educational problem for a long period and has wisely guided the educational work for its development.

Education was in a deplorable state in Korea under the Japanese imperialist colonial rule. In those days, nearly a half of the school age children were left outside primary school in the present area of the northern half of the republic. There were only 43 middle schools and no college or university was to be found.

After the liberation, countless schools at all levels have been built under a far-reaching plan of the great leader.

In 1980-1981 schopl year our country had some 10,000 schools at all levels, among them 170 universities and colleges, 516 higher specialized schools, above 4,000 senior middle schools.

In 1978 the number of the students and school children per 1,000 heads of the population recorded 372 to top the world's list.

The universal compulsory middle school education, the first of its kind in Asia, was enforced in 1958 to be followed by a universal nine-year compulsory technical education and then by an 11-year compulsory education which came into force in full in 1975.

The tuition fees were completely abolished long ago and the state fully bears the educational expenses. Stipends are issued to the students of the higher specialized schools and colleges and universities and the expenses for the extracurricular activities, experiments and practice, excursion, study by inspection, and camping are all paid by the state.

The contents and methods of education have been steadily improved to suit the basic principles of socialist pedagogy along the road indicated by the educational theses put forward by the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song. As a result, the number of the schools and classes of honour and excellent students and the number of those students has rapidly increased and useful personnel firmly armed with the chuche idea and prepared mentally, morally and physically have been trained in great number.

Along with the regular educational system, a study-while-working system of education has been established. Eighty-five factory colleges, including branch colleges, are operating at big plants and enterprises in different domains of the national economy and there are still greater number of factory higher specialized schools.

At the time of liberation, there were only scores of technicians who had finished the courses of higher educational institutions. But now the number of the technicians and specialists exceeds one million.

Our country is now preparing for a compulsory higher education to implement the policy of intellectualising the whole society.

While increasing the number of the colleges and universities and higher specialized schools, our country will set up many factory, farm and fishermens colleges and a college on television.

WFTU BULLETIN MARKS DPRK ANNIVERSARY

SK131521 Pyongyang KCNA in English 1511 GMT 13 Oct 81

[Text] Pyongyang, 13 Oct (KCNA)--A recent issue of FLASHES, the weekly bulletin of the World Federation of Trade Unions, published an article captioned "33rd Anniversary of the Founding of the Democratic People's Republic of Korea," according to a report.

The DPRK, it says, has now turned into a powerful socialist state with solid foundations of an independent national economy by carrying out socialist industrialisation in a short period of 14 years.

Pointing out that the working masses and people of Korea have won great successes, surmounting all difficulties under the wise leadership of President Kim Il-song, the weekly bulletin says: The powerful promotion of the three major tasks of technical revolution made it possible to greatly diminish differences between heavy and light labour and between agricultural and industrial labour and free the women from the heavy burdens of household chores and lift productive forces to a high level.

Introducing the dazzling economic development of our country and the 10 long-term objectives of socialist economic construction on the basis of concrete figures and facts, the weekly bulletin stresses that when these objectives are attained, the DPRK will become a more powerful country.

Pointing out that the United States and the Chon Tu-hwan clique are maneuvering for the perpetuation of national division and working persistently for the fascistization of South Korean society and the preparations for a new war, it says: President Kim Il-song of the Democratic People's Republic of Korea put forward a new proposal for the founding of the Democratic Confederal Republic of Koryo. If this proposal is to be carried into practice and Korean reunification be achieved, the U.S. authorities must renounce the "two Koreas" policy and stop interfering in the internal affairs of Korea, accept the just proposal of the DPRK for replacing the armistice agreement with a peace agreement and withdraw from South Korea their troops and military equipment including nuclear weapons in accordance with the resolution of the 30th session of the UN General Assembly.

DAILY HITS S. KOREAN FOREIGN MINISTER'S SPEECH

SK071539 Pyongyang KCNA in English 1501 GMT 7 Oct 81

[Text] Pyongyang, 7 Oct (KCNA)--The South Korean puppet foreign minister in his speech clarifying the "keynote of South Korean diplomacy" in New York ranted that the "simultaneous entry of the north and the south into the United Nations" is "desirable." Commenting on this rigmarole, MINJU CHOSON today says: This is an intolerable splittist jargon.

Noting that the U.S. tour of the South Korean puppet foreign minister is a trip for split, the author of the commentary says: The Chon Tu-hwan clique again peddled "simultaneous entry into the UN" which had been miscarried, denounced and rejected by the world. This fully reveals its splittist nature.

What cannot be overlooked in particular is the fact that he described separate entry of the north and the south into the UN as a "way of achieving unification."

It is not because the north and the south did not enter into the UN separately that the reunification has not yet been realized and our country remains divided as ever. It is because the U.S. imperialists have been staying in South Korea, doggedly opposing Korea's reunification since their illegal occupation of South Korea following the 15 August liberation and such traitors as Chon Tu-hwan who depends upon the outside forces, trading off the country and the nation to them, has seized "power" and seeks fascism and division and persists in war manoeuvres.

The Chon Tu-hwan clique which is begging for U.S. troops permanent occupation of South Korea, indiscriminately cracking down on people desirous of reunification and answering our efforts for reunification with gun firing in war exercises twaddled about "unification" and "way." This is a sinister intention to veil its splittist and bellicose nature under the mask of "unification."

While talking about a "place of dialogue," the puppet foreign minister again babbled about "mutual visits." Branding this as a brazen-faced sophism, the commentary says: We will consult about the important question of the nation only with those who aspire after reunification, not with a group of such traitors as Chon Tu-hwan, a human-butcher and vicious splittist.

If the question of national reunification is to be settled truly, it is imperative to get rid of the Chon Tu-hwan gang of murderers in South Korea and abolish its military fascist rule, establish a democratic gover-ment and democratize South Korean society. This is an urgent demand of the times and a unanimous desire of the nation. The splitting manoeuvres of the puppets going against the trend of the times and the desire of the nation are bound to go awry.

Noting that the Nonaligned Movement is a strong revolutionary force which powerfully inspires and stimulates the world peoples struggle for independence, the article says: The Nonaligned Movement, first of all, resolutely struggles to realise the desire of the humanity for peace. By pursuing the most just peace policy, the nonaligned policy, this movement contributes to preventing the heightening of international tension and defending peace and security of the world as a powerful force of our times against war and for peace. It deals a telling blow to the imperialist colonial system and dynamically accelerates the course of its collapse.

Proceeding from the noble mission it has assumed before the times and history, it set it forth as an important task to destroy the old international economic order and establish a new one and is waging an active struggle to realize it.

In the international arena this movement plays an important role in checking the imperialists arbitrariness and solving the international problems in the interests of the people.

The article further says: The Nonaligned Movement has been able to grow in strength as a powerful motive force advancing human history firstly because it reflects the main trend of the times of independence. The main factor of the steady growth of the Nonaligned Movement as an invincible force lies in that it reflects the gigantic trend of the era of independence and is guided by the idea of anti-imperialism and independence.

This movement has been able to become a powerful motive force advancing human history in conformity with the independent purpose and demand of the world people also because it is united on the basis of independence. By firmly uniting on the basis of independence, this movement has been able to grow in strength as an international movement broadest in history, which embraces hundreds of millions of people and the majority of the countries of the world.

It is also thanks to the active struggle of the nonaligned countries for the expansion and strengthening of this movement that it has been able to demonstrate its might as the motive force of the development of the times.

The nonaligned countries are actively struggling for the development and strengthening of this movement and its unity and cohesion, firmly convinced of the justness of the sacred cause of this movement against imperialism and for independence.

The article stresses in conclusion: The nonaligned countries must make active efforts to make this movement a living movement of greater vitality and more powerfully demonstrate its great might by strictly observing the fundamental principle of this movement and strengthening its unity and cooperation.

CHINA'S CELEBRATION OF 1911 REVOLUTION

SK121521 Pyongyang KCNA in English 1507 GMT 12 Oct 81

[Text] Beijing, 11 Oct (KCNA)--Various functions were held in China on the 70th anniversary of the 1911 revolution in China, according to a XINHUA report.

More than 10,000 people from all walks of life in Beijing gathered at the Great Hall of the People on the afternoon of 9 October to commemorate the 70th anniversary of the 1911 revolution.

Attending the meeting were members of the Preparatory Committee for the Celebration of the 1911 Revolution and party and state leaders of China Ye Jianying, Deng Xiaoping, Hu Yaobang, Zhao Ziyang, Hua Guofeng and Deng Yingchiao; members of the Political Bureau of the Central Committee of the Communist Party of China, members of the secretariat of the CC, CPC; vice-chairmen of the Standing Committee of the National Peoples Congress; vice-premiers of the State Council; and vice-chairmen of the National Committee of the Chinese People's Political Consultative Conference.

Also present were participants of the 1911 revolution and veterans who have worked with Dr Sun Yat-sen, relatives of Dr Sun Yat-sen, and Chinese residents from abroad and Hong Kong and Macao and foreign guests.

The meeting was declared open by Ye Jiangying, vice-chairman of the CC, CPC, chairman of the Standing Committee of the National Peoples Congress and chairman of the Preparatory Committee for the Celebration of the 70th Anniversary of the 1911 Revolution.

Hu Yaobang, chairman of the Chinese Communist Party Central Committee, made a speech at the meeting. He said: Seventy years ago, in 1911, revolutionaries under the leadership of Dr Sun Yat-sen initiated a revolution in old China that overthrew the Qing Dynasty. That revolution raised the banner of a democratic republic on the territory of China and the Republic of China was founded. This was a revolution of great importance in China's history.

The 1911 revolution put an end to the autocratic monarchy that had ruled China for thousands of years; this was a tremendous advance for Chinese society.

Dr Sun Yat-sen was a great national hero, a great patriot and the great forerunner of the democratic revolution in China. His meritorious deeds are inscribed forever in the annals of Chinese history. He devoted his whole life to seeking national independence, democracy, freedom and the happiness of the people. The Chinese people of all nationalities will never forget his historic accomplishment of raising high in dark China the banner of democracy and revolution.

After reviewing the development of the China's history since the 1911 revolution, he said: China has entered the historical stage of carrying out socialist modernization in all fields. The prime task of great importance for the people of all nationalities throughout China is to concentrate major efforts on socialist construction to modernize agriculture, industry, national defence and science and technology.

A task of great importance is to ensure Taiwan's return to the motherland so as to complete the great cause of reunification. All people share this aspiration, especially on the occasion when they are commemorating the 70th anniversary of the 1911 revolution. The desire to bring to an end Taiwan's separation from the mainland as quicily as possible has become a rising and irresistible historical trend.

Ten days ago, on the eve of National Day, Comrade Ye Jianying, chairman of the Standing Committee of the National Peoples Congress, issued another statement elaborating on the policy for the return of Taiwan to the motherland to achieve peaceful reunification. His statement expressed the common will of our party and army and the people of all nationalities throughout the country. The people of Taiwan, our compatriots in Hong Kong and Macao and Chinese nationals residing abroad have done much to help reunify the country, and they are bound to respond warmly to the policy announced by Chairman Ye Jianying. People all over the world who are concerned about peace in the Far East are also glad to learn of this policy.

The question of Taiwan is entirely China's internal affair.

Qu Wu, vice-chairman of the Central Committee of the Revolutionary Committee of the Chinese Kuomintang, Hu Juewen, vice-chairman of the NPC Standing Committee and chairman of China Democratic National Construction Association, spoke at the meeting.

Round-table talks, exhibitions and other different functions were held in the capital city of Beijing and various cities on the 70th anniversary of the 1911 revolution.

Meanwhile, the paper PEOPLES DAILY, 9 October published an editorial headlined "Reunify the Motherland, Make Her Strong and Prosperous."

PAPERS OBSERVE FORMATION OF ANTI-IMPERIALISM UNION

SK161540 Pyongyang KCNA in English 1513 GMT 16 Oct 81

[Text] Pyongyang, 16 Oct (KCNA)—Papers today dedicate articles to the 55th anniversary of the formation of the Down-With-Imperialism Union, the first true communist revolutionary organisation in our country, by the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song (17 October 1926).

An article of NODONG SINMUN titled "Historic Declaration of New Start of Our Revolution" says: Entering the latter half of the 1920s, the national and class contradictions in our country grew more acute than in any other country owing to the brutal colonial rule of the Japanese imperialist aggressors which became ever more hideous.

It represented a fundamental question on which depended the victory or failure of the revolutionary cause and the destiny of the oppressed and exploited toiling masses whether the road of the revolution against the domination of imperialism and all brands of reactionary forces and for the realisation of the independence of the working masses was successfully hewed, or not.

This urgent problem of the times could be brilliantly solved with the formation of the Down-With-Imperialism Union by the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song under the revolutionary banner of indepen dence. The formation of the DIU marked a historic starting point and imperishable landmark at which the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song started our revolutionary cause, the revolutionary cause of chuche, for the first time, and opened a new era of our revolution. With the formation of the DIU, the revolutionary struggle of our people entered a new road of development under the banner of independence. From that time our people held in high esteem respected and beloved Comrade Kim Il-song as the great leader creating a new era of independence. This is the first reason why the formation of the DIU marked the starting point in developing the revolutionary struggle of our people independently.

With the respected and beloved leader Comrade Kim Il-song forming the DIU and standing at the head of the revolution, our people who had thirstily waited for the appearance of an outstanding leader could hold in high esteem the great leader peerless in the history spanning thousands of years and our revolution could make a victorious advance along the road of independence.

The next reason why the formation of the DIU marked the starting point in developing the revolutionary struggle of our people independently is that from that time the Korean revolution could have a most correct fighting programme.

The great leader Comrade Kim Il-song taught: "We set it forth as the immediate task of the Down-With-Imperialism Union to overthrow Japanese imperialism and achieve the liberation and independence of Korea and defined it as its final objective to build socialism and communism in Korea and, furthermore, overthrow all imperialisms and build communism in the world."

The programme of the DIU was the first revolutionary programme of chuche in the Korean revolution which most correctly reflected the socioeconomic situation and class relations in our country and the ardent desire of our peop;e; it was a militant banner which powerfully inspired the people to the sacred struggle for national and class liberation.

As the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song set forth the programme of the DIU the Korean revolution embarked upon the road of independence with its independent theory and strategy and tactics.

One more reason why the formation of the DIU was the starting point in developing the revolutionary struggle of our people independently is that the national liberation struggle and communist movement of the Korean people could have their first guiding vanguard organisation, reliable core force.

With the formation of the DIU, the first ranks of communist revolutionaries of chuche type who were strongly armed with the revolutionary idea of the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song, the chuche idea, and firmly united around him in one ideology and purpose, made their appearance.

Taking over the undying revolutionary traditions the great leader established by leading this organisation, our party, a working-class party of new type, was founded and has been strengthened and developed in to a guiding force of the revolution with invincible might.

The revolutionary struggle of our people for accomplishing the cause of chuche which started with the formation of the DIU has recorded a triumphant advance under the wise leadership of the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song and is now dyn amically being accelerated, succeeded by the cause of modelling the whole society on the chuche idea.

Bright is the future of the Korean revolution advancing under the guidance of the glorious party centre, with respected and beloved Comrade Kim Il-song as the great leader; only greater victory and glory always lie in store for our people in their future struggle, the article stresses.

'NODONG SINMUN' MARKS 'WORLD FOOD DAY'

SK171523 Pyongyang KCNA in English 1509 GMT 17 Oct 81

[Text] Pyongyang, 17 Oct (KCNA)--NODONG SINMUN today comes out with a signed article on "World Food Day." The food crisis faced by the developing countries at present is a historic consequence of colonial domination and a result of social inequality, the article says, and goes on: If the developing countries actively tap the internal reserves and organise and mobilise the people on the principle of self-reliance, they can well solve the food and agricultural problem. This is well proved by our experience.

Noting that our country, which had been a land of food deficiency, consequent upon the colonial rule of Japanese imperialism, has turned into a land of self-sufficiency in food in a short span of time after liberation under the wise leadership of the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song, the article says: The biggest reserve of increased food and agricultural production lies in constantly improving the methods of farming and strengthening agricultural scientific researches including the improvement of seeds to place agricultural production on a solid scientific and technical basis.

Irrigation is very important in developing agriculture.

The diversification of agriculture represents a main condition for the overall development of agriculture. Economic and technical cooperation and exchange among the developing countries are an important way for surmounting obstacles and difficulties in solving the food and agricultural problem.

If the nonaligned and other developing countries strengthen cooperation with each other in the field of food and agriculture on the basis of mutual accommodation, solidarity and mutual assistance and on the principle of collective self-reliance, it will help promote agricultural development in those countries.

Experiences show that when the nonaligned and other developing countries energetically develop agriculture by mobilizing their potential to the maximum and strengthening cooperation on the principle of self-reliance, they will certainly attain self-sufficiency in food, the article stresses.

PAPER CALLS FOR NEW INTERNATIONAL ECONOMIC ORDER

SK101236 Pyongyang KCNA in English 1114 GMT 10 Oct 81

[Text] Pyongyang, 10 Oct (KCNA)--NODONG SINMUN, 9 October carried a signed article titled "Nonaligned Movement and New International Economic Order." The article points out that the Nonaligned Movement for its progressive and revolutionary character has expanded and developed its ranks, surmounting all trials and difficulties, and constantly increased its might in the fierce flames of the struggle against imperialism and colonialism since it appeared on the historic scene.

It further says: The establishment of a new international economic order holds an important place in the tasks for expanding and developing the Nonaligned Movement. It is, first of all, because only when a new international economic order is established can all the nonaligned nations have a substantial guarantee for maintaining the fundamental principle of the movement.

The new international economic order would also create realistic conditions for all the nonaligned nations to abide by the principle of complete equality and noninterference and strengthen unity and cooperation. The nonaligned countries have all conditions and possibilities to establish a new international economic order.

The common desire and purpose of the nonaligned countries based on the noble idea of anti-imperialism and independence is a prerequisite to establishing the new order surmounting manifold difficulties. The enormous economic potential possessed by the nonaligned countries is an important condition for establishing the new order.

The article continues: In order to destroy the old international economic order and establish a new one, the nonaligned countries should above all set up a fair banking and monetary system and reorganize all the unfair and irrational economic relations to eradicate the root cause of international exploitation. They should also maintain permanent sovereignty over their domestic resources and economic arteries and establish equal trade relations and a rational system of division of labour.

If all the nonaligned countries build the economy in conformity with the specific conditions of their own countries relying on domestic resources, expand foreign trade on the principle of mutual accommodation and realise close economic cooperation between themselves, they will put an end to the exploitation and plunder by the imperialists, the article stresses.

Addressing the party first, Vice-Premier Chong Chun-ki said:

During your visit to the homeland, you Mr President of the International Federation of Taekwondo had the honour of being received by the respected and beloved leader President Kim Il-song. This is an expression of the deep trust of the fatherly leader in you and all other personages overseas and a manifestation of his high expectation for a greater progress of the overseas compatriots movement for national reunification.

Wherever you went during your stay in the homeland, you Mr Choe Hong-hui praised the respected and beloved leader President Kim Il-song as the great leader of the nation and the immortal chuche idea founded by him as the only guiding idea of our times and expressed admiration at the innovatory successes made by the people in the homeland under the guidance of the great leader and the glorious party centre. This inspired us to devote ourselves more energetically to the revolutionary cause of chuche.

Noting that talks were held between Mr Choe Hong-hui and personages concerned in the homeland on the question of national reunification which culminated in the publication of a joint statement, Vice-Premier Chong Chun-ki said: This is one more precious contribution to the struggle for promoting national reunification.

Our country with a long history, which had presented tributes to other countries in the past, has turned into a land where the heads of state, politicians, thinkers, young people and scientists of many countries of the world visit in great number with gifts, which leaves me overwhelmed with deep emotion.

It goes without saying that this wonderful reality has been made possible thanks to the great President Kim Il-song, the chuche idea and the dear leader who aids the great leader and wisely leads the working masses.

ROK ACCUSED OF DETAINING 15,000 IN FORCED LABOR CAMPS

SK200838 Pyongyang KCNA in English 0826 GMT 20 Oct 81

[Text] Pyongyang, 20 Oct (KCNA)--The South Korean military fascist clique is detaining more than 15,000 patriotic people and students in forced labor camps of the puppet army and persecuting them, said KNS conveying a report of the September 20 issue of the U.S. newspaper THE NEW YORK TIMES quoting materials of the "Emergency Council of Christians on the South Korean Affairs" in Japan.

According to a report of the English language paper KOREA HERALD published in Seoul, some 58,000 people were detained in those camps from August last year to January this year.

NEW KOREA TIMES, a newspaper of Koreans published in Canada, reported on September 26 that a large number of students and citizens who were arrested in the Kwangju popular uprising in May last year and students who staged anti-"government" demonstrations in various parts of South Korea are now under detention in the camps.

The military fascist clique supplies to those detainees less than a half of the meals served to the soldiers of the puppet army and are drivin, them hard in the building of military setups near the military demarcation line.

Some detainees die tragic deaths from brutal tortures, hunger and hard toil forced upon them by the fascists.

Alarmed by growing voices denouncing the inhumane persecution, the Chon Tu-hwan traitor clique is carrying on the false propaganda that the forced labor camps "have been removed: and all the detainees "have been sent back to society."

But, it has been disclosed that more than 15,000 people are still under detention.

This repressive act of the Chon Tu-hwan military fascist clique is another treacherous crime which the preceding dictators dared not commit, it has evoked the indignation of broad public circles.

ROK'S CHON VIEWS LEGISLATURE, COAL INCIDENT

SK200212 Soul TONG-A ILBO in Korean 17 Oct 81 p 2

[From "Tidbits" column]

[Text] President Chon Tu-hwan, also president of the Democratic Justice Party [DJP], is reported to have expressed his views on the legislature, administration and the recent incident regarding low-caloried coal briquettes in a meeting held at Chongwadae on the morning of 16 October for issuing letters of appointment to the newly-appointed cadre members of the DJP including Na Sok-ho, chairman of the DJP policy committee.

According to a DJP member who attended the meeting, President Chon warned that the National Assembly should not be a replica of the old one in which the members--with the next election in mind--made political remarks to gain popularity. In reference to the scandal of low-caloried coal briquettes, President Chon stressed: "It seems that in the past businessmen were spared from punishment for fear of creating inconveniences to the public. Now, we must deal with such things wisely by sternly punishing those businessmen while not creating inconveniences for the people."

President Chon is also reported to have lamented that people still denounce certain personages by deliberately linking them with the old era. He reportedly stressed that Korea's request to Japan for economic cooperation is natural.

After the DJP cadres were given their letters of appointment, Kwon Chong-tal, DJP secretary general, reportedly made a special report to President Chon on party affairs.

[Editorial: "The Korean Youth League--We Worry About Harmful Consequences of Excessive Organization of the People"]

[Text] The Korean Youth League will emerge next year with the aim of rallying 5 million members comprised of youths from kindergarten to college and working youths on the pretext of training a nucleus force of the people. The Education Ministry, chiefly in charge of the operation of this league, has appropriated 1.7 billion won in the budget for the purpose of the league's organization, training and operations.

When approving the law on the youth league on 27 March this year shortly before its dissolution, the Legislative Council for National Security planned to organize this league within the year and expand it into a pan-national organization by 1986, encompassing 5 million members. Because of the difficulty of forming a vast organization in a short span of time and because of the people's passive response, however, the formal inauguration of this organization has been delayed for a year.

Because the youth league is a corporate judicial person, it can be regarded as a private organization. Considering that the government will actively interfere in, support and supervise the organization and operation of the league in accordance with the law of the league, however, we can define it as an organization under control of the government.

According to the law on the league, the league is aimed both at training youth to become a nucleus force of the people by helping them have a correct view of the country and the people and at contributing to the fatherland's unification and to cration of a historical national upsurge. In this regard, the education minister is authorized to change the scope and direction of the activities of the league if deemed necessary as demanded by government policy. This means that the scope and direction of the activities of the league can change as demanded by the government. Because of the league's nature, the government or local autonomous organizations will offer financial aid to the league and allow it gratuitous use of state and public property and even military facilities, if needed.

Nothing has been formally announced in detail as to the nature of the activities of the league--an unprecedentedly large youth organization which will wholly depend on support and supervision by the government. The chief aim of the youth league, however, is to instill in youth patriotism, loyalty, brotherly love, the spirit of self-reliance, of being a vanguard and of partnership by developing democratic discipline among league members. Training methods incude intensive spiritual and collective training by having league members visit historical relics where militias fought and other places and participate in camping, marine exercises, large-scale collective activities and various other functions.

No one will oppose the aim and ideals of the league. However, is it necessary for us to have a vast organization costing so much and inviting misunderstanding?

The education minister and other officials concerned think that they cannot conduct spiritual and political training for youth with the already existing 26 youth organizations, including the Young Men's Christian Association, and through schools because these organizations seek their own specific aims and because their capabilities are limited. Accordingly, they believe that they need a powerful pan-national organization to achieve this end. They demand that, to cope with the situaton in which North Korea has a juvenile corps of 3 million spiritually-armed members and the League of Socialist Working Youth of Korea which has 3.5 million members, we possess a similar organization.

Unfortunately, the people have been passive to the idea of the league since the approval of the law on this league. This is because of their unfavorable memory of Jugend in Germany in the 1930's. The Education Ministry stresses that the nature of the league differs from the German Jugend. We doubt the persuasive power of this claim. Furthermore, the hasty approval of the law made the people suspicious about the league. Hasty approval of the law without discussion--an act eliminating the possibility of strong opposition on a political issue--has left an impression that the motive behind the league's inauguration is not just.

Apart from this circumstantial reason, the people hate excessive organization so the population because they believe that this will eventually violate freedom. The government should take into consideration the idea that many people feel that our society is too organized. We should realize that, in having a showdown against a totalitarian system, the method of our struggle should not resemble theirs.

Sympathizing with the ideal behind the young league, we urge the government not to violate the principle of a democratic society by excessively organizing the people.

ROK DAILY ON LIQUIDATION OF OLD ERA

SK200345 Seoul CHOSON ILBO in Korean 18 Oct 81 p 2

[Editorial: How To Liquidate the Old Era"]

[Text] In recent days, the government and political parties have become politically active in liquidating the remaining vestiges of the old era. Needless to say, as long as the trend of the times aspires to the new era, maintaining vestiges of the old era and old system is not desirable. In this connection, on 16 October the government and political party leaders met at the official residence of Prime Minister Nam Tok-u and reached an agreement on repealing, as a first step, the special national security law (enacted in December, 1971) and the presidential emergency order on economic stability and growth (effective 3 August 1972).

It is natural that the national security act and the 3 August measure should be abrogated because those laws are no longer necessary from a legal point of view. However, we want to study this move not from the standpoint of legal interpretation, but from that of politics. As is well known, the national security act contains many negative and unconstitutional factors which allow the president to proclaim a state of emergency, to control the economy, to issue national mobilization decrees, and to stop workers from waging collective action. Moreover, the law has given an extremely bad impression because it was passed in an abnormal way only by the ruling party meeting in an annex to the National Assembly building.

In the meantime, though the 3 August presidential order bestowed a special favor on entrepreneurs by freezing repayment of private loans to enterprises and so on, it also hurt not a few bona fide creditors. This is an affirmative measure from the viewpoint of the fact that it made it possible for enterprises to surmount difficulties and made possible the acceleration of high growth. This notwithstanding, it has caused unbalanced growth, thus leaving lots of problems in its wake.

At any rate, the aim of repealing the national security act and the 3 August measure is to liquidate the negative vestiges of the old era, thereby ushering in a new era. Furthermore, the term "national security" is likely to be considered taboo, but the government has taken the initiative to agree to repeal the law. This move by the government shows its determination to resolutely break away from the lingering habits of the old system. Noteworthy in this regard is that the ruling and opposition sides have reached an agreement through rational dialogue in a harmonious atmosphere, not in an atmosphere teeming with shouting and confrontation.

A large number of laws should be subject to review to liquidate the remnants of the old era, not only the two mentioned above.

If worried by possible confusion as a result of rash revision and abolition of laws, the National Assembly should take its time deliberating and deal with them step by step.

The work of liquidating remnants of the old era and old system will certainly be continued, but at this juncture we need to define the end of the old era. If we set the present as the starting point, the first republic, the second republic and the third republic are all old era. Well, the first republic does not really matter because it was a long time ago. What matters are the third and the fourth republics which immediately preceded the current fifth republic. And it is only natural to define the old era as the later half of the third republic--beginning September 1969 when the Democratic Republican Party forcibly pushed through a revision of the constitution giving the president a third presidential term--and the entire era of the fourth republic after October of 1972, the period called the Yusin system.

From an objective point of view, politics regressed and the economy showed superficial growth during these periods. However, the gap between the rich and poor was widened, privileges, corruption and various sorts of irregularities were rife and political feuds became serious. If we are to follow the old saying of "new wine in new goatskin" since we are now aspiring for a new era we have to liquidate remnants of the old era by separating ourselves from the laws, systems, politics and the force of habits wrongly accumulated in the past.

Liquidating remnants of the old era should be based on democratic ways in view of the fact that the fifth republic has adopted building a democratic welfare state as its national goal. Democracy was of course claimed in the old eras, but the fifth republic should without fail achieve democratic development acceptable to the general public by renewing its determination and seeking national harmony in the course of achieving democracy. Second, the fifth republic should sincerely adopt the goal of public welfare. In other words, the fifth republic should achieve maximum stabilization in public life and drastically narrow the gap between the rich and the poor. In particular, we firmly believe that the fifth republic should emphasize its new legal and political goal of increasing income for the workers and those in low-income brackets.

PARTIES' EFFORT TO REMOVE YUSIN REMNANTS HAILED

SK210632 Seoul THE KOREA HERALD in English 21 Oct 81 p 5

[Article by Yi Chong-ku]

[Text] The proposed abrogation of the national safeguard law has great symoblic significance in that it spells an end to whatever has been left of the Yusin (revitalizing reforms) system.

The law virtually negated by the adoption last October of the new constitution was enacted December 27, 1971, empowering the president to declare a state of national emergency.

By invoking the 12-article law, the late President Pak Chong-hui proclaimed a state of national emergency and cleared the way for the introduction of the Yusin mechanism in 1972.

The statute may safely be stigmatized as the very author of devastated politics, because it harbingered the advent of the Yusin system marked by protracted presidency and extreme bipartisan confrontation.

Earlier this month, leaders of the minority Democratic Korea Party (DKP) and Korea National Party (KNP) called for an eradication of the allegedly formant vestiges of Yusin.

Some time after the call, the majority Democratic Justice Party (DJP) and minority DKP and KNP agreed to abolish the law during the current regular National Assembly session.

The repeal of the law, however, is devoid of any substantial meaning, because the law was neutralized following the assassination of the last President Pak and the subsequent adoption of the new mother law.

Symbolic significance may be accorded to the retraction of the 10-year-old law, because it means an irrevocable end to the Yusin system.

By agreeing to propose a joint motion for the abrogation of the law, major political parties showed a resolve to materialize dialogue politics amid enhanced national concord and harmony.

Furthermore, the government raised no objection to the interparty agreement to put an end to the law, saying the envisaged negation of the law coincides with President Chon Tu-hwan's intention to eradicate laws and orders hampering national growth and development.

In his inaugural speech last March, Chon promised to free the people from political repression, abuse of power, poverty and threats of war.

Thus, the abolition of the law will serve to materialize President Chon's promise.

The law was legislated 10 years ago with effervescent controversy and opposition from various segments of society.

The late president proclaimed a state of national emergency December 6, 1971, three weeks ahead of the creation of the law, which gave him increased prerogatives.

As minority lawmakers made desperate attempts to block the passage of the law, staging an all-night sit-in-and occupying the assembly platform, the then majority Democratic Republican Party (DRP) forced its approval unilaterally at a place other than the main chamber.

The passage of the law belatedly justified President Pak's declaration of the state of emergency and authorized him to take a series of emergency measures.

Pak ordered a freeze on payment of interest of usurious curb loans, a special censorship of the press and regulation of outdoor rallies and demonstrations.

In the wake of the series of emergency measures, public complaints increased, and rival political parties went to extremes, hamstringing the otherwise smooth parliamentary politics.

As a result, many persons fell victim to the sting of the law and emergency steps.

The law was placed beyond judicial review, and people had no place to appeal to.

At any rate, the government and major political parties agreed to eliminate the controversial law, one of the dregs of the past political system.

The agreement may be interpreted as the political circle's conscientious efforts to remove vestiges of the Yusin system and realize new politics in the new era.

The people in general seem to hail the abrogation, along with a demand that other existing factors infringing on human rights and hindering national development be ferreted out and removed.

CURRENT ROK OPPOSITION PARTIES CRITICIZED

SK211115 Seoul KYONGHYANG SINMUN in Korean 19 Oct 81 p 3

[Column by Kim Kim Yong-sul, director equivalent of the KYONGHYANG SINMUN Political Department: "There Is no Longer a 'Rightful Opposition Party'"]

[Excerpts] In a nutshell, in this era there cannot be a so-called rightful opposition party, and its root, if it ever existed, has been completely extirpated. This is proved by the following: first, the cause of the anti-dictatorial struggle, the principal reason for the existence of rightful opposition parties until the fourth republic, is now defunct in the fifth republic.

At the same time, the anticommunist struggle, the ideological buttress of rightful opposition parties in the past, has now been inherited not by a specific party but has become an ideological common cause for all parties of the fifth republic.

Second, it must not be overlooked that the composition and character of today's opposition party are entirely different from that in the fourth republic. The majority of leading officials, parliamentarians and senior members of the opposition party now represents the new political generation. A drastic change in the generations of the opposition party has occurred. Despite these circumstances, some members of the opposition party are still exhibiting the chronic evils of the rightful opposition parties of the past, while hampering the development of the opposite party. This is very regrettable. The worst example is that they take internal party affairs to the National Assembly, disturbing its regular operation.

Recently, because of a complaint over the personnel reshuffle in their party and the atmosphere of the meetings between the leaders and parliamentarians of the party, they delayed the convocation of the session of the budget committee. And, prior to the opening of the regular session of the National Assembly, they attempted, through the floor leaders of the assembly, to change the agenda of the regular session that had already been approved. These were clearly anachronistic acts. Another evil is the breach of political and moral promises. Although they are participating, some take a negative attitude towards the development of the new politics. This is clearly a moral deception and a continuation of the opportunist idea that was rampant in the old era. Such an attitude, we can say, should become an object of people's condemnation, because seasoned politicians, since they have now taken part in the new politics, must make every effort to develop and sow the idea of the new era and of stable political reform. Nevertheless, in reality, there are still some politicians who have not relinquished the stereotyped political slogans and double-dealing tactics inherited from the old era, but who still try to seek personal popularity by pandering to popular tastes, to to extremes, lie and speak against the system.

In addition, what worries us is that they always try to interpret all political phenomenon and events with the government in mind. We can easily say that the blemished political history of the 30 years of constitutional governments was mainly created by those who always acted with the government, and obtaining power, in mind.

This political trend added to the traditional power-seeking character of our people, resulting in a deepening of people's distrust for politics. We cannot say that such a political trend did not persist in the operation of the eleventh National Assembly.

When we view relations among opposition parties, we can still find many problems which we should resolve. The new constitution paves the way for multipolar politics. However, some people have occasionally ignored the multipolar system, thus disturbing the political climate. The majority opposition party has intentionally ignored minority opposition parties, thus revealing a lack of the sense of coexistence. If the majority opposition party does not surreptitiously hope for the revival of the past bipolar system, this practice should be corrected.

The opposition parties of the fifth republic are at a crossroads from which they should create the new character of the new-era-opposition-party by resolutely eliminating some negative factors deviating from the new political principles. To this end, they should, above all, fully understand President Chon Tu-hwan's idea on reform, that we have neither reforming force nor force being reformed but that we are all participating in reform work. We should take the lead in setting up the ethic of joint participation. Thus, we can expand the sphere of our activities.

In order to expand the sphere of joint participation, we should, above all, achieve the stable development of politics. Without achieving stability, we cannot achieve political development and modernization. Nor can we expand opposition parties. This being the case, only when the opposition parties continue separating themselves from the past and stabilizing themselves can their foundation for existence be consolidated and their future-oriented tradition also be firmly established.

This should be accompanied by the will of reformation. Without reformation, there will be only a tradition that rots off and no vital tradition can be established.

However, it is an absolute miscalculation to believe that party expansion can be achieved by the ambition to grab power.

When the opposition parties leave no means untried to grab power, the very foundation of the state will be shaken and, paradoxically, the opposition parties will be frustrated and smitten by a tragic fate. This has already been proven by history.

Now is the time for the opposition parties to continually strengthen activities such as endlessly proposing policies for the people and national development, exploring practical policies in favor of the people instead of excessively logical and textbook-like political theories and undertaking constructive criticism instead of coming up with criticism for the sake of attack.

When opposition parties become like this, the people will have more confidence in them with each passing day. Also, the opposition parties will be able to build up their image as a reliable advisor to the government and as a partner of the ruling party for the development of the National Assembly. By contrast, when the opposition parties remain mistrusted by the bureaucratic class, when the ruling party considers them uncooperative, they will flounder as eternal minority opposition forces. Such precedents are to be found easily in our constitutional history.

Therefore, the opposition parties should incessantly challenge themselves not to be outsiders but to be assistants in the process of political stabilization and reform-propelled political development. When this is the case with the opposition parties, the nation can advance and they will certainly contribute to historical development by providing a take-off for themselves.

LAWMAKERS DEMAND HOME MINISTER'S RESIGNATION

[Text] Lawmakers grilled the home minister and the national police headquarters director on the alleged theft of deposit certificates, arguing that they should quit voluntarily in view of the seriousness of the incident.

In a night-long meeting of the home affairs committee of the National Assembly yesterday, lawmakers of the major minority party, the Democratic Korea Party, demanded immediate resignation of Home Minister So Chong-hwa and National Police Headquarters Director Yu Hung-su.

Home Minister So said he was prepared to assume all the responsibility on a scope within his accountability in such reasonable manner as being understandable to the people.

Yu said he felt an acute sense of responsibility for all the fuss caused by the scandalous theft of the bank bills.

The committee session lasted through the night until around 1 a.m. today.

Rep O Hong-sok of the DKP argued that the fact that policemen charged with the duty of wiping out thefts committed theft alone as a reason good enough for the cabinet to resign en masse.

In this context, the resignation of home minister and NPH Director Yu Hung-su was "too natural."

Rep Yu Sang-ho of the majority Democratic Justice Party, said it was another kind of human rights violation if officers in higher ranks should be held accountable automatically for the wrongdoings perpetrated by the men under his direct control.

Then, Rep Yu demanded full accounts of what role the police officers had in the theft so that they faced dismissal. Three police officers under whose command Detective Ha was were sacked.

Rep So Chong-won of the DKP demanded sizable hikes in the salaries of policement as an institutional device against the recurrence of such shameful incident.

He asked what kind of performance of duty could be expected of policemen receiving only 160,000 won in salaries despite 10 years of service?

NPH Director Yu said Detective Ha stole the bank bills not under a premediated plan but under momentary impulse while probing the murder of Mrs Yu Kyong-hwa. "It was a momentary act in the absence of reason. There was no others implicated in the theft," said Yu.

According to Yu, Ha is now living in a house which he rented on a three million won in key money.

Rep O of the DKP took issue with the alleged torture by policemen of Mrs Ko Chong-suk now on trial on charges of murdering Mrs Yun. He also asked about the alleged torture of collegian Chang Kyong-su who was released after having been interrogated for 15 days under arrest in connection with the murder of his girl friend Miss Pak Sang-un.

Home Minister So and NPH Director Yu denied the torture allegation. They said there had not been torture whatsoever in the course of investigation.

However, Home Minister So promised that no human rights be encroached upon the course of investigation.

Meanwhile, the lawmakers on the committee were given briefing on the progress of the investigation of murder of Miss Pak in a closed-door session.

Meanwhile, the major three political parties--the majority Democratic Justice Party, the KDP and the Korea National Party--resolved in their respective meeting of party leaders yesterday morning to come out strongly against the case of theft making it a hot political issues.

ROK NOT TO INTERVENE IN REV MUN'S CASE IN U.S.

SK210137 Seoul YONHAP in English 0116 GMT 21 Oct 81

[Text] Seoul, 21 Oct (YONHAP)--The Korean Government will not intervene in the case of Unification Church leader Rev Mun Son-myong, who is being accused in the United States of filing false income tax returns, Foreign Minister No Sin-yong told the National Assembly.

In what appeared to be the first comment on the scandal by a senior Korean Government official, No said the government has made its position clear on the issue, to both the U.S. Government and other pertinent authorities in that country, and added, "If a religious organization violates the law of a country (where it is operating), it should be governed by the law of that country."

The foreign minister was being interpellated by the assembly, Korea's unicameral parliament, Tuesday evening.

In answer to a lawmaker's question that the government may reconsider setting up a separate agency to deal with overseas aid, No said that this would depend on the scale and number of recipients of South Korea's economic assistance next year.

On Seoul's standing request for Japanese loans totaling 10 billion U.S. dollars, including 4 billion dollars in commercial loans, No, South Korea's chief negotiator for the loan package, said he will stake his portfolio as foreign minister on the obtaining of the loans.

On South Korea's relations with European nations, the minister said that France continues to show an active interest in enhancing its commercial and economic relations with this country, and that Seoul's long-standing friendship with West Germany is being strengthened. The election of Socialist Francois Mitterrand to the French presidency in May has aroused concern on the part of the South Korean Government that Paris may move to seek improved relations with North Korea, with which it has no diplomatic relations at present.

No said South Korea will seek expanded and strengthened relations with nonaligned nations on a bilateral basis, to get ahead of North Korea in this area of diplomacy.

He added that the government has begun its diplomatic efforts to encourage the participation of "all nations of the world including communist countries" in the 1988 Seoul Olympics. South Korea will also seek improved relations with Cuba, the minister said.

"Those foreign ministers of nonaligned countries with whom I met while in New York pointed out that the awarding of the 1988 Olympics to Seoul means a victory for this country in its diplomatic contest with North Korea," No said. "Even North Korea's sympathizers now endorse our proposal for the entry of South and North Korea into the world body."

CHON ADDRESSES NATIONAL POLICE--Seoul, 21 Oct (YONHAP)--President Chon Tu-hwan said Wednesday that it was essential for the Korean Police Force to maintain a higher degree of integrity within itself while ferreting out and correcting social wrongs. [Text] A total of 206,199 million won will be used for development costs in the fields of coal, electricity and minerals including crude oil at home and abroad next year.

The figures were disclosed yesterday in a report by the Energy-Resources Ministry on its major plans for next year. The report was submitted to the National Assembly Commerce-Industry Committee.

According to the report, coal development will require 140,437 million won, up 32 percent from the sum set aside for this year.

In efforts to maximize the development of the nation's indigenous fuel, coal will be dug to a total depth of 66 kilometers and total length of 25 kilometers will be surveyed.

The mechanization rate of coal mining equipment will increase to 18 percent next year from 12 percent projected for the year's end.

Coal stockpiles will be expanded enough to store 4.5 million tons during the summer season and also enough to store 1.5 million tons for government use in emergencies.

To tap uranium, some 1,200 square kilometers will be surveyed next year under the government policy of surveying 7,000 square kilometers by the end of 1986.

The report showed that 373 square kilometers of the target 528 square kilometers set for this year had been roughly surveyed by the end of September. Close surveys including boring will be conducted to a total depth of 8,500 meters for the exploration of uranium deposits in the Korean and Kumsan areas.

To push ahead with the oil-search program, the state-run Korea Petroleum Development Corp. (PEDCO) and private companies will begin to build a semi-submersible drilling rig next year and plan to complete it in one and a half years. A total of 57 million won will be required for the completion of the nation's firstever oil rig.

The projected drilling rig will be used for the development of oil reserves at home and abroad, the report said.

Test boring will continue next year on the continental shelf between Korea and Japan under an agreement between the two neighbors to jointly explore for oil.

In addition to the Korea-Japan oil project, the nation will conduct an oil drilling operation in the fourth mining block and drill four wells off East Java, Indonesia next year.

The government also set 5 billion won as a fund for overseas energy development to help encourage private companies expedite overseas mineral development with the use of the fund.

According to the report, local private firms will survey a combined total of 17 mines abroad with an estimated fund of 203 million won and drill to a depth of 9,000 meters with an estimated 856 million won next year.

The construction of an LNG receiving terminal will begin in March next year at Pyongtaek near Asan Bay. The construction project for next year will require 140 billion won.

To also thrust ahead with gas projects, government financing will be extended next year to complete the construction of the first LPG-receiving terminal by early in 1983 and the second terminal in February next year.

JAPAN EXPANDED INVESTMENT--Tokyo, 21 Oct (YONHAP)--The Japanese Government and private businesses are apparently seeking ways to expand Japanese investment in Korean industry, which has been declining in recent years. The Japan Machine Industry Cooperative decided, in an economic cooperation committee meeting held Tuesday, that it would send a joint investment survey team to Korea this year in order to promote Japanese businesses' investment in Korea industry. Meanwhile, the Japanese Government decided that it would bear the expenses for the survey team, and that the Japanese EXIM Bank's foreign investment financing plan would give priority to businesses which want to invest in Korea, Japan's NIHON KEIZAI SHIMBUN said. Japanese businesses' investment in Korea dropped from 220 million dollars in 1978, to 90 million dollars in 1979, and to 35 million dollars in 1980. The move to expand investments in Korea on the part of the Japanese Government and private businesses seems to be intended to ease strained relations due to Korea's recent request for 6 billion dollars in Japanese Government loans, sources here said. JAPANESE VIEW ON KOREAN ECONOMY--Seoul, 20 Oct (YONHAP)--Major Japanese firms are looking forward to a slow but steady economic growth in Korea in the future, but most of them are indifferent to improving their trade relations with Korea. This is among the major findings of a recent survey of how major Japanese firms view the future of the Korean economy. The survey was conducted by the Japanese productivity center, and the survey results were obtained and released by the planning and coordinating office of Daewoo business group here Tuesday. According to the survey results, 71.9 percent of 130 Japanese firms surveyed expected that the Korean economy would continue a slow but steady upturn in the future, and more than half (54.5 percent) of them said that Korea's economy will be at a point of development between Japan and the developing countries in 10 years time. But, Japanese firms do not attach great importance to the Korean market (56.7 percent) and they do not think that Korea is catching up with Japan economically (44 percent). Japanese firms which consider Japanese goods superior in quality to all other goods accounted for 67.2 percent of the total firms polled. As regards Korean-made commodities, 61.2 percent said that Korean goods are cheap, but their quality is fair. [Text] [SK200107 Seoul YONHAP in English 0042 GMT 20 Oct 81]

INCREASED MANPOWER EXPORTS PLANNED--Seoul, 22 Oct (YONHAP)--South Korea plans to set its manpower exports at 176,200 persons next year, up 14 percent over the manpower exports for this year. According to an 1982 labor policy paper submitted Thursday by the Labor Affairs Ministry here to the National Assembly, the foreign exchange earnings by overseas Korean workers next year are projected at 1.55 billion U.S. dollars, up 20 percent over total earnings for this year. The paper said that in order to achieve these goals, the government would send overseas labor market exploration missions to the Middle East, including Saudi Arabia, to Latin America and to the African region, and invite foreign labor officials, such as the labor ministers of Bahrain and Libya, to Seoul as part of its campaign strategy. To ensure the continued good relations between overeseas Korean workers and their employers, the government will arrange round-table conferences between labor and management next year in Saudi Arabia, Bahrain, West Germany and Qatar. Meanwhile, 146,436 Korean workers obtained jobs abroad during the first eight months of this year, increasing the total number of overseas Korean workers to 166,051. DELEGATES TO AARRO MEETING URGE COOPERATION

[Text] Foreign and Korean delegates to the Afro-Asia Rural Reconstruction Organization (AARRO) decided yesterday to consolidate exchanges of experience, technology and information among member countries.

In the Seventh General Conference of the International Rural Organization, 25 distinguished participats from 14 countries agreed that they would do their utmost to develop rural economies and enhance living standards.

They also determined to establish two regional offices--one in the United Arab Emirates and one in a French-speaking country--in a fresh bid to effectively pursue firm ties by region, in addition to unitary cooperation among the 25 member countries.

Closing a five-day series of discussions in Seoul, the rural revitalization mission agreed to hold various kinds of seminars on agro-forestry-fishery issues such as the RECA (Research and Education Center for AARRO) seminar and the fifth Afro-Arab seminar, which are respectively scheduled to open in Japan and Egypt next year.

Dr I. S. Minhas, secretary general of the AARRO, said in his address that the activities of the organization would center on health care of rural people and agricultural extension in the three coming years.

The member countries will also take necessary steps to help train farming youths in more developed countries and promote opportunities for education for rural workers.

MAURITIUS PLEDGES TO INCREASE FISH QUOTA FOR ROK

SK210642 Seoul THE KOREA TIMES in English 21 Oct 81 p 7

[Article by Kim Chang-yong]

[Text] "Mauritius and Korea will achieve more rapid economic development through mutual cooperation, in particular in the agriculture and fishery sectors," a high ranking government official from Mauritius opined yesterday.

Rabindrah Ghurburrun, Mauritius minister of economic planning and development, told THE KOREA TIMES that the marine resource-abundant country would increase fish quotas for Korea fishing firms.

The minister, lauding the economic growth Korea has accomplished during the past decade, revealed his government's intention to import Korea-built fishing boats and other kinds of ships.

"I was very impressed by the fantastic economic progress when I inspected industrial sites and rural communities in Ulsan and Pohang, Kyongsang-namdo, a few days ago. Korea has upgraded the level of industrialization completely 10 years after I first visited here," he observed.

Its outstanding achievements had, he added, already enabled Korea to attain good credit in international society, and it was a splendid example of development programs for developing countries.

Ghurburrun came here to attend the Seventh General Conference of the Afro-Asian Rural Reconstruction Organization (AARRO), which ended yesterday after five days of intensive discussions designed to eliminate starvation and improve the living standards of farming people.

The minister is concurrently vice-president of the AARRO conference, and is expected to preside over the next general forum of the government-level transnational setup for rural rehabilitation, as the triennial gathering will be hosted by Mauritius.

The influential figure noted that Korea, as a newly industrializing country, was required to help promote cordial relations with less developed countries for mutual benefits. He elaborated that Korea and his country would have to make reciprocal contributions to each other in a broad spectrum of political and economic segments by complementing shortages in each country.

STEEL EXPORTS--Seoul, 20 Oct (YONHAP)--Korea's export of iron and steel products this year amounted to 1.66 billion dollars as of the end of September, up 19 percent over exports for the same period last year, according to a tally by the Korea Iron and Steel Association. The tally, released Tuesday, showed that the export of steel sheets and coils accounted for 634 million dollars, steel pipes for 349 million dollars, and wire ropes for 88 million dollars. The United States was the largest market for Korean iron and steel products accounting for 422 million dollars' worth, followed by Japan with 234 million dollars' worth, Saudi Arabia with 215 million dollars' worth. FOREIGN EXCHANGE DWINDLING CONTINUES--Seoul, 17 Oct (YONHAP)--Korea's foreign exchange holdings have dwindled in recent months due to the worsening balance of invisible trade, officials at the Finance Ministry said Saturday. According to officials, the country's foreign exchange reserve stood at 5.7 billion dollars as of the end of September, down 900 million dollars from the amount at the end of the last year, and down 800 million dollars from the amount in the same period last year. The country's current balance has a deficit of 3.6 billion dollars, similar to that of one year earlier, primarily due to the increasing burden of the foreign debt fueled by high international interest rates. The officials said that the long-term capital balance recorded 1.9 billion dollars of surplus owing to smooth inducements of public and bank loans, while short-term capital balance showed a decreased surplus of 600 million dollars, compared with a 1.9 billion-dollar surplus one year earlier. The ministry estimates that the country's capital requirements this year will reach 7.9 billion dollars of which 4.6 billion dollars has been induced so far. In a report on the outlook for Korean enterprises' access to major countries' development projects, KOTRA also said it was advisable for the country to introduce an insurance system designed to counter possible risks in uncertain regions including the Middle East. Joint ventures and technical tie-ups with advanced nations could also contribute to the lessening of possible risks, according to the report. 'NODONG SINMUN' NOTES KIM IL-SONG WORK ON PARTY

[Text] Pyongyang, 19 Oct (KCNA)--Papers here October 18 dedicated articles to the 15th anniversary of the publication of "On the Elimination of Formalism and Bureaucracy in Party Work and the Revolutionization of Functionaries" (October 18, 1966), a historic work of the respected and beloved leader Comrade Kim Il-song.

In an article headlined "Programmatic Guideline Which Opened a New Road of Turn in Improving Method and Style of Party Work," NODONG SINMUN says:

This historic work was published on October 18, 1966, when a new great turn was taking place in the development of our revolution.

At that time our party and people were faced with the weighty militant task to further consolidate the successes already made in the revolution and construction and, particularly, thoroughly implement the decision of the party conference which was held some time before the publication of the work and thus successfully build the economy and defences in parallel.

The new circumstance of the revolutionary development and its task demanded a decisive improvement of guidance of the party work and economic work commensurate with them.

In order to carry out this urgent task of our party and revolution, the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song personanly called functionaries of the departments of organisational leadership and propaganda and agitation of the Central Committee of the party and made before them a speech "On the Elimination of Formalism and Bureaucracy in Party Work and the Revolutionization of Functionaries."

In the work the great leader, basing himself on a scientific analysis of the demand of our developing revolution and the actual conditions of the party work at that time, set forth programmatic tasks to eliminate the old work method and thoroughly establish a new revolutionary work method based on the revolutionary mass line and revolutionise and working-classize the functionaries by powerfully accelerating the ideological revolution.

The work which gave an all-round answer to the questions arising in improving the party work in a revolutionary way, fully displayed its invincible vitality in strengthening and developing our party into a militant general staff with ever-victorious might in the past period and carries great significance still now in establishing a revolutionary work method in the whole party in conformity with the requirements of the developing reality in which the cause of modelling the whole society on the chuche idea is being powerfully promoted.

The significance of the work lies in that it gave a scientific exposition of the essence and harm of formalism brought out in acute relief in the guidance of the economic work and forms of its manifestation, thereby making it possible to thoroughly overcome the old work method and establish a revolutionary work method in the whole party and society, and that the work helped actively push ahead with the revolutionization and working-classization of the party members and working people by vigorously waging the ideological revolution.

'NODONG SINMUN' ON GENERATION OF YOUTHS

SK191621 Pyongyang KCNA in English 1550 GMT 19 Oct 81

[Text] Pyongyang, 19 Oct (KCNA)--NODONG SINMUN today carries an article under the headline "Revolutionary Ranks of New Generation Faithfully Struggling Under the Leadership of the Glorious Party."

It says:

Today the entire young people of our country are faithfully struggling on the road of revolution under the guidance of the party and the leader.

It is the unshakable determination of the Korean youth and their noblest ideological and spiritual trait to remain boundlessly faithful to the party and the leader generation after generation.

What is basic in the traits of the new generation who have to carry forward the revolutionary cause to completion is to fully inherit the fidelity to the leader which was formed in the historical period when the road of revolution was hewed out for the first time and give full play to it.

The whole history of the Korean youth movement is proud annals in which a great example of fidelity to the leader was created among the young people and was brought into brilliant bloom from the first step of the movement.

Today all members of our younger generation are upholding our party centre from the stand and stance which the young communists in the past days maintained in attending young General Comrade Kim Il-song.

This tradition of allegiance has been purely inherited in the history of the development of the Korean youth movement. This is an incomparably precious and proud thing.

The most important feature in the traits of our new generation who glorify the history of allegiance generation after generation is, first of all, spotlessly clean purity of firm faith that they know nothing but our party.

Our young people are the revolutionary new generation who were born and grew up, being given education in chuche in the bosom of the party. It was the boundlessly warm bosom of the party that our new generation knew before anything else while taking the first step; it is an ardent love for the party and the fatherland that they have stoutly cultivated.

Our young people are firm and unshakable in their stand and posture of attending the party. As the pure-minded generation form the main force of our revolution, the prospect of our party is immensely bright and the future of the fatherland promising.

What is important in the traits of our new generation who are soundly growing up as the successor to the cause of chuche is the militant stamina and indomitable fighting spirit with which they carry through the plan of the party through thick and thin.

It is the militant spirit of our young people to be first in holding high a torch in carrying out anything the party calls for and to unconditionally carry it through to the end without a moment's delay or hitch. With this stamina and way of working our young people are now displaying the honour of being a vanguard and a shock force in the construction of new large power stations, tideland reclamation, development of coal mines, railway construction and the construction of socialist countryside and performing new miracles and feats in their efforts to attain the grand 10 long-range targets of socialist construction.

The traits of our young people who are growing up as the reliable successor to the revolutionary cause are also characterized by their resoluteness in defending the authority and dignity of the party in every way.

They regard it as the important work of defending the party and revolution, as one related to the future of our revolution to ensure the authority of the party. They allow no concession and vacillation in the matters concerning the authority and dignity of the party. They are devoting all their efforts and wisdom to firmly defending and adding lustre to the undying feats and gains of our party.

The entire young people of our country are now rallied firm around the party in one mind and one will. The glorious Workers Party of Korea has struck its roots deep into millions of these young people along with the entire people throughout the country and enjoys their absolute support and trust. Our revolutionary cause will surely emerge victorious as long as this great party stands in the van and there are the young ranks of the rising generation, mighty revolutionary force which faithfully upholds the party.

BASES OF METAL INDUSTRY CEMENTED

SK191545 Pyongyang KCNA in English 1521 GMT 19 Oct 81

[Text] Pyongyang, 19 Oct (KCNA)--The metal industry of Korea fully meets with its production demands for various kinds of steel and different standards of rolled steel.

Now its bases are being further consolidated.

Expansion projects are successfully progressing at the Kimchaek Iron and Steel Works and signal successes registered in introducing a newly developed chuche-based method of metallurgy into production.

With the conversion of the Kimchaek Iron and Steel Works into a giant comprehensive metallurgical base equipped with all the production processes from pig iron to steel and rolled steel in recent years, the power of the nation's ferrous metallurgical industry has further increased. In particular, the increasing proportion of steel sheet and plate in production and the mass production of cold rolled goods have opened up a new prospect for the development of the automobile, rolling stock, shipbuilding and other branches of the engineering industry and the daily necessaries industry.

Over the last 10 years the steel production at the Kimchaek Iron and Steel Works has grown four times.

The workers of the Kangson Steel Works who astonished the world people by producing 120,000 tons at a bloomery with a rate capacity of 60,000 tons have constantly boosted its capacity to produce more than 800,000-900,000 tons of rolled steel annually. While pushing ahead with various technical innovations which will greatly contribute to the strengthening of the chuche character of the metallurgical industry, the workers there are conducting overall reconditioning and technical reconstruction to markedly increase the capacity of the bloomery.

At the Hwanghae Iron and Steel Works, the overhauling of open hearths Nos 2 and 3 and their technical reconstruction were carried out and now vigorous endeavours are made to replenish and readjust other metallurgical equipment and increase its capacity.

Successful efforts are being made at the Songjin Steel Works, the Chongjin Steel Works, the April 13 Iron and Steel Works, the Puryong Metallurgical Plant and other factories and enterprises in this domain, too, to further consolidate the material and technical foundations.

Our country's target for 1984, the last year of the Second Seven-Year Plan, is to produce annually 7.4-8 million tons of steel, 5.6-6 million tons of rolled steel, 6.4-7 million tons of pig iron, granulated iron and unwrought steel and one million tons of non-ferrous metals.

HO TAM ADDRESSES BANQUET FOR BENIN COUNTERPART

SK211329 Pyongyang Domestic Service in Korean 0400 GMT 21 Oct 81

[Speech by DPRK Foreign Minister Ho Tam at 20 October banquet for Benin Foreign Minister Simon Ifede Ogouma in Pyongyang--read by announcer]

[Text] Today, we are very pleased to have with us friends from Benin who have come to our country carrying the Benin people's deep feelings of friendship toward the Korean people.

We warmly welcome your visit to our country. The respected his excellency minister has visited our country despite the fatigue which accompanies a long journey. This is a clear expression of your deep trust for our people and of the special friendly relations formed between our two peoples.

The peoples of Korea and Benin have long waged a common struggle against domination and subjugation and for the building of an independent new life, and in this course we have become close comrades-in-arms and brothers.

In particular, the historic meeting of the great leader of our people Comrade Kim Il-song with His Excellency Mathieu Kerekou, esteemed president of the Benin people, in July 1976, was an epochal event which developed the friendly relations between our two countries onto a new, higher stage.

The Korean people value their friendly relations with the fraternal Benin people and actively support their struggle for building a new society.

Today, the fraternal Benin people under the correct leadership of respected President His Excellency Mathieu Kerekou have registered good results in the struggle to defend national sovereignty and achieve socialist development, courageously frustrating aggression and the subversive maneuvers of reactionaries at home and abroad.

The Benin people, who have started on the road of creating a new life since the declaration of the republic, are developing their national economy and national culture. They have registered successes in implementing the targets of the first 3-year plan. Our people, advancing together with them the road of anti-imperialism for independence, highly rejoice over this.

We highly estimate the efforts undertaken by the government and people of Benin for the complete liberation of Africa and for the strengthening and development of the nonaligned movement against imperialism, colonialism and racism, holding high the banner of independence and nonalignment, and we sincerely wish them greater success in their future struggle to carry into effect the line of socialist construction.

The Korean people's struggle for socialist construction and for the independent and peaceful reunification of the country is now being waged in close connection with the struggle of the peoples of nonaligned countries against imperialism and for independence.

The Korean people, upholding the programmatic tasks set forth by the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song at the Sixth KWP Congress and following the guidance of the glorious party center, are vigorouly struggling to fulfill the Second 7-Year Plan ahead of schedule and to achieve the magnificent programs for socialist construction in the 1980's.

The independent and peaceful reunification of the nation is the greatest desire of all Korean people and is the supreme national task which should not be delayed for a moment. We have not achieved national reunification even though nearly forty years have passed since the liberation. This is because of the occupation of South Korea by the U.S. imperialists and the maneuvers of the South Korean puppets to perpetuate the division of the nation.

At a time when all the Korean people and the world's peoples are unanimously supporting our party's new proposal for achieving the nation's reunification through the founding of a Democratic Confederal Republic of Koryo, the U.S. imperialists and the Chon Tu-hwan military fascist clique are intensifying new war preparations against the northern half of the republic and more persistently adhering to the two Koreas plot. Because of this, the situation in our country has become extremely strained [kuktoro kinjang] and peace in Korea is being constantly threatened.

The entire Korean people will surely achieve the historic cause of national reunification with the united strength of the whole nation and with the support and encouragement of the peaceloving people of the world, including the Benin people.

I take this opportunity to thank the Benin Government and people for their active support and solidarity for our party's policy of national reunification and our people's struggle for its realization.

It is a task of particular urgency under the present complex international situation for the nonaligned countries to maintain the principle of nonalignment and to strengthen unity and cooperation. The Korean people will as ever firmly unite politically with the all peoples of nonaligned countries and closely cooperate with them economically and technologically, thereby making an active contribution to frustrating the aggression, plunder and interventionist maneuvers of imperialists, domination forces, defending peace and security of the world and building an independent, prosperous new world.

In conclusion, I hope the visit to our country by His Excellency will bring fruitful results. I propose a toast to the friendship and unity between the Korean people and the Benin people, to the good health and long life of respected President His Excellency Mathieu Kerekou, to the good health and long life of the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song, to the good health of respected His Excellency Simon Ifede Ogouma, to the good health of all guests and friends attending here.

BENIN MINISTER ADDRESSES PARTY IN HIS HONOR

SK210914 Pyongyang KCNA in English 0831 GMT 21 Oct 81

[Text] Pyongyang, 21 Oct (KCNA)--Minister of Foreign Affairs and Cooperation of Benin Simon Ifede Ogouma made a speech at a party arranged by the Government of the Democratic Peoples Republic of Korea in his honour on October 20.

Noting that the relations between the Peoples Republic of Benin and the Democratic Peoples Republic of Korea have grown stronger since the establishment of diplomatic relations between the two countries and particularly since the conclusion of an agreement on economic and technical cooperation in February 1973, he said:

His Excellency Mathieu Kerekou, president of the Peoples Republic of Benin, paid a goodwill state visit to your beautiful country at the invitation of His Excellency President Kim Il-song, the great leader of the Korean Revolution, in 1976, whereupon the heads of state of the two countries laid the foundation of unbreakable bonds of friendship, solidarity and cooperation between the Benin and Korean peoples, the two governments and the two parties.

The bilateral cooperation between the Peoples Republic of Benin and the Democratic Peoples Republic of Korea has taken a gratifying course. It has dynamically developed and already borne fruits.

The results of cooperation in economy, education, public health and art are, in fact, very affirmative and the concrete successes have already reflected the common will of our peoples and leaders for cooperation on the principles of mutual respect, independence, non-interference in others internal affairs and reciprocity.

Therefore, on this happy occasion, we express deep thanks in the name of the National Executive Council and President Kerekou to the great leader President Kim Il-song and the entire friendly Korean people.

Bein and Korea are anti-imperialist and they support each other as member nations of the non-alignment, he noted, and stressed: Such support was manifested at the time when a brutal aggression was committed against the Benin people on January 16, 1977.

The Benin people, the Revolutionary Peoples Party of Benin and the National Executive Council, he said, are grateful for the righteous and valiant stand consistently maintained by the Korean people, the Workers Party and Government of Korea on the Middle East, Western Saharan and South African problems and other problems.

He further said;

The Revolutionary Peoples Party of Benin and the National Executive Council support the affirmative proposals put forward by the Democratic Peoples Republic of Korea and the great leader President Kim Il-song for the North and the South to open-heartedly seek a dialogue and achieve the independent and peaceful reunification of Korea.

We denounce the imperialists desperate manoeuvres to create "two Koreas."

We demand the replacement of the Korean armistice agreement by a peace agreement and the withdrawal of all foreign troops from South Korea.

We express firm support to the South Korean people in the undaunted struggle they are waging for liberation and national reunification in the teeth of growing brutal repression.

Victory lies in store for the fighting great Korean people.

Victory lies in store for the fighting African people.

Victory lies in store for the fighting world people.

He proposed a toast to the friendship and solidarity between the Benin and Korean peoples, to the good health and long life of the great leader His Excellency President Kim Il-song and to the good health and long life of the dear leader His Excellency Kim Chong-il.

ROK TO REVISE CIVIL CODE, COMMERCIAL LAW IN 1982

SK270256 Seoul THE KOREA TIMES in English 27 Oct 81 p 1

[Excerpt] The government plans to revise the civil code and the commercial law late next year to make them better-suited to the current social practices, according to Justice Minister Yi Chong-won yesterday.

In a meeting of the Legislation-Judiciary Committee of the National Assembly, he said about 54 points in the civil code and 99 points in the commerce law were subject to examination for revision.

Finance Minister Yi Sung-Yun said in a meeting of the Finance Committee that he was notified that Hyundai Construction Company would go public toward the end of next year.

All of the 13 standing committees but two were in session yesterday, either conducting interpellation or hearing business briefings on the concerned ministries yesterday.

Justice Minister Yi said the illegal profits enjoyed by the yontan makers from making low-quality products totalled 3.2 billion won, twice the amount claimed by Energy-Resources Minister Pak Pong-hwan.

He said the government would take necessary action to collect the illegal profits within the limits of the law.

He went on to say that he had instructed the prosecution authorities to investigate criminal suspects without placing them under arrest as much as possible.

This was to help ensure the human rights of criminal suspects, which had become a vocal issue recently.

As to the revision of the civil code and the commerce law, Justice Minister Yi said a special panel would be formed with leading scholars and government officials for joint examination.

ROK TO LOWER PREDRAFT PHYSICAL TEST AGE TO 19

[Excerpt] The government plans to lower the age for those obliged to undergo pre-conscription physical tests next year from 20 to 19.

In testimony at the National Assembly Defense Committee yesterday, Pan Kyong-won, director of the Office of Military Manpower, said the government plans to exempt from military duty excellent students at agricultural colleges provided they serve as rural leaders for five years.

Pang said the plan is designed to foster able rural leaders. He said the agricultural collegians should also be 4-H members to be qualified for the measure.

He said the plan would be adopted as a government policy as soon as consultations with relevant ministries are completed.

He testified that qualification for students going abroad for studies will be limited from March of next year.

For high school graduates, those whose academic achievements fall within 20 percent from the top will qualify.

College students less than 24 years of age are qualified for overseas studies while the age limit for graduate students will be 26, he said.

Meanwhile, Minister of Health and Social Affairs Chon Myong-ki testified in front of the Health-Social Affairs Committee that imports of cosmetic items will be liberalized beginning in 1983.

The two committees were among the 11 assembly panels which were convened to continue their question-answer sessions.

At the home affairs meeting, Minister of Home Affairs So Chong-Hwa hinted at the possibility of an early realization of local autonomy yesterday by saying the government is studying the wisdom of enacting a law that will govern local councils.

Answering lawmakers' demand for an early materialization of local self-rule, So said local councils have not yet been formed but that the local autonomy law is in force at the present.

The materialization of local autonomy involves many problems such as financial self-reliance, he said.

So also said the government will push ahead with the saemaul (new community) movement, allowing residents to have more leeway in realizing saemaul program.

ROK DAILY PRAISES EFFORT TO CREATE 'NEW SOCIETY'

SK220715 Seoul THE KOREA TIMES in English 22 Oct 81 p 2

[Editorial: "'Old Order' Vestiges"]

[Text] The removal of undesirable "old order" vestiges has been an impending task of the fifth republic, which accents the building of a "new society" befitting a "new era". Indeed such remnants of the past, sometimes retaining ominous implications, are detrimental to renewed nation building, which calls for greater national concord and harmony.

In this connection, the proposed abrogation of two controversial edicts of the early seventies--a special law on national security and a presidential emergency decree on economic stability--marks a positive step toward improving the national climate.

The former, enacted in 1971 after turbulent legislative debate, was primarily designed to endorse a repressive state of national emergency that had been proclaimed three weeks earlier by the then president. Its effect, empowering the president to curtail civil liberties and order a national mobilization at his will, was virtually negated a year later when the notorious Yusin (revitalizing reforms) constitution, containing similar provisions, was put into force. Yet the law, long since forgotten, has been left unrepealed.

The latter, issued in 1972 under a sustained state of emergency, was to freeze usurious private loans and thus to relieve enterprises of mounting interest pressures at the expense of creditors. It did help to reinvigorate stagnant business and industry, ultimately contributing to rapid economic growth. But the decree, outmoded for many years now, also played a role in inviting disproportion in the economic mechanism.

Their abrogation, expected to be finalized during the current National Assembly session, can be taken as only part of the on-going efforts of the incumbent government leadership and the political elite to institute a viable "new order" by eradicating leftovers of the past, which hamper national reconciliation and development.

What is noteworthy in the latest case is the way agreement has been reached to get rid of the dormant vestiges. Calls for abolishing the decrees were first voiced by minority parties earlier this month and were soon responded to by affirmative reactions from the ruling camp. A meeting was subsequently held over the weekend between the government and political parties, both majority and minority, to decide on abrogating the two statutes during the current assembly sitting.

Such a process is in good contrast to past practices, which often featured wrangling and even sharp confrontation between government and opposition parties on similar matters. It is reassuring that the agreement indicates the ripening of a new political climate, politics through dialogue.

The recent political accord, at the same time, points to the fact that there are still more laws and ordinances which are either already or potentially subject to scrutiny and reevaluation.

Hasty repeal or revision of the statues may be feared to cause confusion. Yet both the government and the National Assembly ought to keep on making close studies and meting out appropriate alternative measures, albeit on a gradual basis, for the sake of boosting sound national development which involves democracy, social welfare and justice.

ROK PREPARES FOR DPRK PLAN TO DISTURB '88 GAMES

[Text] Unification Minister Yi Pom-sok testified yesterday before the National Assembly that North Korea reported Tuesday for the first time about the Seoul Olympics in 1988 on the radio of its ghost Unification Revolutionary Party.

"However, North Korea seems to be worried about the Seoul Olympics," he told the Foreign Affairs Committee.

He also said that he knew North Korean head Kim Il-song had directed the CHONGNYON, a pro-Pyongyang Koreans residents association in Japan, and other organs to disturb the Seoul Olympics.

"But," the minister said, "the concerned authorities of the government have been working out proper measures against the North Korean scheme."

Asked about the situation after Kim Chong-il takes over power from his father, Minister Yi said that the possibility of internal chaos could not ruled out.

The minister further testified that the government would not be hasty on matters involving the participation of North Korea and China in the Seoul Olympics at present, but would make efforts to attract them to the sports festival.

Lawmakers who queried the ministers were Reps Yi Sang-hu, Ha Sun-pong, Sin Chin-su, Yim Tok-kyu, Yi Yun-ki, Yu Han-yol and Yi Man-sop.

In the Legislation Judiciary Committee, lawmakers such as Reps Kim Sa-yong, Pak Pyung-il and Hwang San-song asked Kim Yong-chol, director of the Office of Court Administration, about overall court affairs including the terms of judges and a drastic increase of judges.

Kim said in reply that his office would examine the promotion of the Pusan District Court to an appellate court. But the matter should be decided on according to the government policy.

In the Education Information Committee, Culture-Information Minister Yi Kwang-Pyo revealed that the government planned to make financial contribution to the fund for literature and arts promotion.

Meanwhile, floor leaders of the three major political parties decided yesterday to deliberate on the Democratic Korea Party-proposed motions for the formation of two special house committees to dig into human rights violations and scandalous sub-quality coal briquets tomorrow in the steering committee.

The first minority DKP had forwarded the motions to the National Assembly based on the parliamentary right to investigate state affairs stipulated in the assembly law.

In a meeting, the whips of the Democratic Justice Party, the DKP and Korea National Party also decided to convene a joint meeting of the economy-science committee and the agriculture-fisheries committee at 10:00 a.m. tomorrow to hear a government briefing on the government rice purchase price this year and to interpellate the administration about the matter.

They also discussed in the gathering a DKP-proposed special parliamentary panel to reform various laws and decrees.

ROK DAILY URGES MORE PRUDENCE IN DETENTION

SK240128 Seoul HANGUK ILBO in Korean 23 Oct 81 p 2

[Editorial: "More Prudence Is Urged in Detaining People"]

[Excerpts] As far as detaining people is concerned, the more prudent, the better. This is the spirit of the new constitution which has emphasized the clauses for basic rights. Even for criminal cases, investigation without detention is a principle. Detention is an exception for special conditions.

In this regard, it is encouraging that the director of the Office of the Court Administration, Kim Yong-chol, at the interpellation of the legislation and justice committee of the Natonal Assembly on 21 October disclosed a measure to improve the system for issuing warrants. Answering questions by committee member, he said that when the regulations for criminal prosecution are revised, a study will be made to establish a system for a substantial review of warrants and to control issuance of warrants by junion judges.

All in all, no one can deny that there is still much room for improvement of the present system of detention and its application.

According to a statistical report, in 1979 as many as 90.3 percent of the total requests for the issuance of warrants were approved. However, only 73.4 percent of those for whom the warrants were requested were actually indicted and detained. This shows indiscretion exercised in the application for warrants and their issuance. As for release on bail, in 1979 requests were made by 8.2 percent of those who were indicted and detained. However, less than 50 percent of the total requests were approved by the court. In the operation of the habeas corpus system, during an 8-month period this year the requests for review of legality of detention were made by 4,930 persons, of whom 2,072 persons were released. However, considering the number of the detainees, no one could say the figure was high enough. We cannot but say that the system for detention is not properly applied.

After all, the respect for human rights is ensured by the court. No matter how much the police may exercise self-control and the public prosecutors prudence, ultimate judgment is in the hands of the court. For personal liberty, the fundamental factor in human rights, the court is urged to make all efforts to improve the system and to make an incessant study for a better application of the existing system.

SK261208 Seoul SINMUN in Korean 25 Oct 81 p 2

[From the column "Stroll on the Political Avenue"]

[Text] With the passage at the 24 October cabinet meeting of the final plan for reducing government organizations, the existing organization of the Ministry of Foreign Affairs--composed of 2 offices, 12 bureaus, 34 sections and 24 offices in charge of special projects--has finally been altered into 1 office, 9 bureaus, 36 sections and 7 offices of special projects.

The International Commerce Bureau has been integrated into the Economic Affairs Bureau, with its functions and activities transferred to the newly organized international commerce policy section under the Economic Affairs Bureau.

The Treaty and Legal Affairs Bureau has been integrated with the International Organizations Bureau with the new name of the International Organizations, Treaty and Legal Affairs Bureau. At the same time, an office in charge of deliberations on treaty affairs has been newly established under the new bureau.

The telecommunications functions of the abolished Telecommunications and Documents Bureau have been transferred to the Information and Cultural Affairs Bureau. The documents functions of the abolished Telecommunications and Documents Bureau have been transferred to the Office of Planning and Management. However, taking into account the importance of telecommunications affairs, an office in charge of telecommunications affairs has been newly established under the direct control of director-general of the Information and Cultural Affairs Bureau.

The existing four policy deliberators and the policy coordinator have been eliminated from the new organization.

Assistant Minister for Planning and Management Kim Ki-su said on 24 October that with the adoption of the new organization of the ministry, the posts of 15 section chiefs and officers in charge of special projects have been abolished and that consequently the number of officials of the Foreign Affairs Ministry has been reduced.

He said that a large-scale followup reshuffle among officials in the middle ranking posts of the ministry will be undertaken soon.

ECONOMIC RECESSION CAUSES UNEMPLOYMENT--Seoul, 29 Oct (YONHAP)--Recession in Korea has forced considerable reductions in employment, affecting iron and steel, machinery, automobile, electronics and other key industrial sectors last year. This is according to the Commerce-Industry Ministry's survey of the employment situation in the country's major industries for 1980. In the iron and steel sector, the nine major companies with the exception of the state-run Pohang Iron and Steel Integrated Company, decided to lay off a total of 1,000 workers, or five percent of the total work force, in 1980. In the machinery field, 2,000 or seven percent of the work force of the Changwon Machinery Industry Estate were dismissed. Five thousand employees, representing 15 percent of those working in auto assembly plants, and 18,000, or 31 percent of those in auto parts plants, were also laid off. In the electronic field, 15,000 workers, or 15 percent of the employees of Samsung Electronics and seven other companies lost their jobs. The reductions in employment are attributable to the dwindling factory operation rates in the manufacturing industry, stemming from increased inventories and a sales slump. The factory operation rate in 1980 was 73 percent, down nine percent from that of 1979. [Text] [SK230156 Seoul YONHAP in English 0100 GMT 23 Oct 81]

REPORT ANALYZES ELECTRONIC INDUSTRY--Seoul, 23 Oct (YONHAP)--Korean electronic manufacturers lag behind joint-venture or foreign-invested electronic manufacturers in Korea, both in scale and productivity. A Korea Electronic Industry Promotion Association report released Friday said that, at present, there are 744 electronic manufacturers in Korea. The total may be broken down to 597 firms (80.2 percent) operated by Koreans, 103 joint-venture firms (13.8 percent) and 44 foreign-invested firms (6.0 percent). The average annual turnout of Korean electronic makers, however, stands at 2.7 million U.S. dollars each, compared with 8.9 million dollars each for the joint-venture firms, and 18 million dollars each for the foreign-invested firms. The average per capita annual output of Korean firms is 13,500 dollars, compared with 16,900 dollars for joint-venture firms, and 17,000 dollars for foreign-invested firms. The work force of each Korean firm is 201 on the average, compared with 495 for the joint-venture firms and 1,068 for the foreign-invested firms. Pressed by such poor business scale and productivity, Korean electronic manufacture are unable to improve the quality of their products or to even conceive of making additional investments to improve technology and expand their facilities, the report pointed out. MINERS BLAMED FOR MOST ACCIDENTS--Seoul, 24 Oct (YONHAP)--A report presented Saturday by the Korea Coal Corporation to the National Assembly showed that 62 percent of coal mine accidents were due to the mine workers' carelessness. According to the report, during the last five years, the mine accidents took 248 lives and left 3,829 others wounded. Sixty-two percent of the accidents stemmed from the workers' carelessness. This indicates that accidents caused by carelessness affected miners at an annual average rate of 506 persons. The second major cause of accidents was the negligence on the part of management, representing 21 per cent of the total mine accidents. Eight per cent of the accidents were attributed to the inadequate facilities, and unavoidable accidents accounted for nine per cent. The report clearly indicated that careful controls could have prevented most of the accidents. As of the end of September, the number of the deaths caused by mine accidents this year reached 185, a considerable increase, over the 138 cases registered during the same period last year. The average death toll for the January-September in the last 10 years is 161. [Text] [SK240315 Seoul YONHAP in English 0248 GMT 24 Oct 81]

INDONESIAN OIL SEARCH STARTED--Seoul, 27 Oct (YONHAP)--The Kodeco Energy Co of Korea began a 40-day seismic survey Tuesday in search of seabed oil in the West Madura area of Indonesia, according to a report sent to the Energy-Resources Ministry in Seoul. The report said that the survey by Kodeco and its Indonesian joint venture partner, the state-run Pertamina, will cover 3,530 km, and will be completed by early December. The Western Geophysical Co of the United States has been entrusted with the job, using two oil prospecting vessels. After computerizing the date collected from the survey, Kodeco plans to select the best spots for oil drilling, the report said, adding that test drilling is expected to start in the latter half of next year. Four holes will be drilled by the end of June, 1983, and four more a year later, Kodeco said. A U.S. oil company used to pump 5,000 barrels of crude oil a day in that area, but has stopped due to lack of economic feasibility. The report said that the area has an estimated oil deposit of 330 million barrels. Kodeco is the first Korean company to attempt oil explorations abroad. BRIEFS

EMIGRATION INCREASES--Seoul, 23 Oct (YONHAP)--Official figures made public Thursday showed that during the last three months, the number of persons who have obtained permission to emigrate reached 10,109, and emigration expenses were calculated at 15.9 million U.S. dollars. Since the government lifted last August virtually all restrictions on Korean emigrants, the number of emigrants has been steadily increasing. According to the report submitted Thursday by the Finance Ministry to the National Assembly, the average emigration expense per person is 1,573 dollars or, some 7,864 dollars per five-member family. A family is allowed to carry up to 100,000 dollars. Meanwhile, during the last summer vacation, 1,857 college students went abroad at their own expense, spending some 3.175 million dollars. DISCRIMINATION AGAINST KOREANS IN JAPAN ANALYZED

Seoul HAEWOE TONGP'O in Korean Summer 1981 pp 12-25

[Article by So Yong-tal, Professor at Momoyama Gakuin University: "Conditions and Problems of Discrimination Against Koreans Resident in Japan"]

[Text] I. What Are the Problems?

On 19 April 1979, at the "meeting of various circles to call for the ratification of the International Human Rights Agreement by the 87th Diet," held in the office building of the Federation of the Japanese Attorneys at Law in the vicinity of the Japanese Ministry of Justice building, the writer, as one of those foreign residents, had an opportunity to call for the abolition of discrimination. Mr so-and-so, director of the United Nations Bureau at the Ministry of Foreign Affairs, an invited guest at the meeting, said: "Our country has one of the world's foremost constitutions, one of whose major themes is respect for human rights; in light of the provisions of the [International Human Rights] Agreement, it would not be an overstatement to say that the provisions regarding respect for human rights are being carried out in our country almost fully." [He added:] "On the occasion of Japan's ratification [of the agreement], I regard it as significant that, encouraged by this ratification, those nations that have not ratified it are moving positively toward ratification, and many nations are about to ratify and implement it." (Report on the Meeting "For the Ratification of the International Human Rights Agreement," p 12)

It would not be an exaggeration to say that this way of thinking represents a near-consensus of Japanese Government authorities, because it was also clearly indicated in the official reply letter of then Prime Minister Ohira regarding the recommendations made by Socialist Party Dietman Ueda Takumi in March 1979 concerning the abolition of discrimination against ROK-Chosen Koreans [in Japan].

However, such a way of thinking cannot avert the criticism that it represents the arrogance and ignorance of the Japanese Government, when viewed from the viewpoints of those foreign residents. How could Japan, the 60th nation to ratify the International Human Rights Agreement, be called a human rights leader in international society? Although it cannot be denied that Japan has one of the world's foremost constitutions for peace, it would not sound at all odd if one were to "interpret" the situation that Japan, which is enjoying advanced technology that is changing along with the development of the times, is applying the provisions of human rights in her constitution, including Article 25, exclusively to Japanese who have Japanese citizenship. It is asserted that the right to life [in Japan] is inherent to the Japanese and, in principle, cannot be applied to foreign residents. In spite of Japan's ratification of the International Human Rights Agreement, almost nothing is being discussed in the Diet regarding the issue of abolishing discrimination against foreign residents--Asian residents in particular. Is it to be taken as true that Japan's ratification is nothing but a deceptive measure designed to keep international society from regarding Japan as "an underdeveloped nation in terms of human rights?" It is rather doubtful that the statement given in the preamble of the constitution--"that we want to acquire an honorable status in international society"--represents the true wishes of the Japanese people.

Human rights are, after all, the rights of human beings. They must not be distinguished by colors. Regardless of whether one is Japanese or foreign, and regardless of nationality, race, or social status, human rights must be guaranteed in Japan. If those basic human rights which are guaranteed in the constitutional provisions were guaranteed equally for all people, it would perhaps not have been necessary [for Japan] to ratify the International Human Rights Agreement. However, at any rate, Japan's ratification was needed. Thus, it has been a tendency in Japan that human rights are colored and only those colors which the Japanese like are guaranteed; those quarters that promoted ratification stated that ratification was intended to let not only the government but also the people know of the need for nondiscriminatory application of the agreement. It is hoped that, as stated in the remarks made by the guest at the above-cited meeting, both the Japanese Government and the people will give second thought to the fact that "what is significant" is not "ratification" "but the actual materialization of the spirit of the agreement."

On 21 September 1979, the International Human Rights Agreement went into effect in Japan. On that day, Foreign Minister Sonoda issued a communique saying: "Ratification is of great significance, in that it provides a momentum for making Japan's domestic policies toward the guarantee of human rights more effective and stronger." Ironically, however, this writer was delivering a speech on that day at the YMCA in Kanda, Tokyo, on the abolition of discrimination--at the request of "the rally demanding a national pension for ROK-Chosen Koreans in Japan." That day was a significant day that might be regarded as the beginning of the movement to safeguard human rights in Japan. For the purpose of providing a clarification of "equality for both citizens and foreigners"--which is the spirit of the agreement--this article will point out the problems, the developments in the nationality issue, and above all the actual conditions of the violation of human rights of Korean residents in Japan, who make up approximately 90 percent of all foreign residents in Japan.

II. Nationality of Koreans Residing in Japan

(1) Discrimination Carried Out on the Pretext of Nationality

The following is part of the discrimination experienced personally by this writer in Japan: "Since you are a ROK-Chosen Korean, you would rather not enter public middle school" (when in 6th grade of a prewar primary school). "Only a Japanese citizen can be granted a scholarship by the Japan Scholarship Association" (when in the 1st year of college). "No matter how good your scholastic achievements may be, you had better give up the idea of getting a job at a first-rate business corporation" (4th year of college). "You may be able to get a job as a lecturer at a state or public college, if you are naturalized" (graduate school). "Although you have been recruited for a permanent position lecturer, you are advised to become a hourly-wage lecturer because you are a ROK-Chosen Korean" (graduate school). "Voting rights at the Japan Academic Conference cannot be enjoyed by anyone who is not a Japanese citizen" (when working as a lecturer). "The benefits of life insurance and housing fund loans can be enjoyed only by Japanese citizens" (when working as an assistant professor). "The compulsory education system is applicable only to Japanese citizens; therefore, no notice of reaching school age will be sent to ROK-Chosen Koreans"; "If you want to send your child to primary school, you must submit a written oath with a pledge to observe the law" (at the time of sending a child to school).

In order to kill a dialy wage worker, you need not use a knife or anything like that; a few days of rain would be sufficient.... This was a story once told. From the same token, it may be said that to kill a foreign resident, you need not use a knife or anything like that; simply imposing discrimination and bias upon him might be sufficient to kill him. In fact, Kenichi Hayashi, a child, was not the only person who died of the nationality wall, discrimination, and prejudice in this society.

How many ROK-Chosen Koreans are undergoing racial discrimination on the sophisticated pretext that they are not of Japanese nationality, in spite of the fact that they are observing Japanese laws and fulfilling their tax obligations just as any Japanese citizens do? In order to understand this situation, it is very urgent to understand the fact that they are faced with a situation in which even the establishment of the cause of human rights is regarded as inconceivable. Dealing with all the issues shall start here.

(2) Unilateral Granting or Stripping of Nationality

Let us review the process of having Koreans in Japan. Not many Koreans immigrated to Japan until August 1910, the date of Japan's annexation of Korea. It is self-evident that the rapid increase of immigration of Koreans was due to the colonial policy of Japanese imperialism. The signing of the annexation treaty between Japan and Korea came after the intimidation of the King of Korea and his cabinet ministers by the bayonets of the Japanese military police, in the course of implementing the policy of aggression in line with the Sino-Japanese War (1894), the assassination of Queen Min by the Japanese minister and others (1895), and the Russo-Japanese War (1904). As a result, "a territorial change" occurred in terms of international law, and thus Koreans in Japan were given Japanese citizenship unilaterally. However, the Koreans in Japan, a term used to discriminate them from Naichi, or Japan proper, and Naichijin, or Japanese citizens proper, remained a set term. Thereafter, in August 1945, when the Potsdam Declaration was accepted by Japan and her unconditional surrender came about, Japan gave up sovereignty over the territory of old Korea (Korea's name prior to Japan's annexation was "The Great Korean Empire"); and, in compliance with "the territorial change," our nationality seemed to have returned to that of ROK-Chosen Koreans. Nevertheless the postwar settlement procedures were very complicated. The [Japanese] Government's policies toward the ROK-Chosen Koreans in Japan were pretty much confused, as indicated below, because they reflected the postwar situation with respect to the Korean Peninsula and the postwar cold war structure.

Whereas in 1945, because of Japan's defeat in the war, Koreans in Japan were regarded as "those who retain Japanese citizenship," despite the fact that the ROK actually became independent, the Bulletin of the Civil Affairs Bureau in April 1952 definitely ruled that ROK-Chosen Koreans and Taiwanese "shall lose Japanese citizenship" upon ratification of the San Francisco Peace Treaty.

Date of Proclamation of Ordinances, etc.	Ordinances	Main Content (Regarding ROK-Chosen Koreans)
3 Nov 46	"Initial Fundamental Directive issued, after the surrender, by the Supreme Commander of the Allied Forces, regarding the occupation and management of Japan"	"Although they shall be regarded as people of a liberated nation, because they were Japanese citizens...they shall be regarded as people of the enemy nation."
19 Feb 46	"Memorandum Concerning the Execution of Rights to Criminal Trials"	"They shall not bring criminal trial suit against the people or organizations, including corporations, of the Allied nations."
20 Nov 46	"Announcement of the External Relations Bureau, GHQ, Concerning the Status of and the Handling Procedures for Koreans"	"(Those Koreans in Japan) who reject the repatriation measures laid down in the repatriation plan of the GHQ...shall be regarded as having retained Japanese citizenship." "If they continue to reside in Japan...they shall obey the local laws and regulations."
25 Jul 46	"Memorandum Concerning the Application of the Common Tax Provisions to Non-Japanese Citizens"	"There is no objection to the imposing of common taxes on all non-Japanese citizens in local districts and some designated areas."
15 Mar 49	"Memorandum of the War Termination Liaison Bureau Concerning the Food Distribution for Citizens of Allied Nations, Neutral Nations, and Stateless Persons"	"(Koreans) shall be treated with exactly the same standards as Japanese."
15 Mar 49	"Administrative Ordinance No 51--Administrative Ordinance Concerning Acquisition of Property by Foreigners"	"Those who have Japanese citizenship and the citizenship of countries other than Japan. But those who have had their addresses in Japan continuously since 2 Sep 45" shall be eliminated from the category of foreigner.
30 Mar 49	"Operations Order of the 8th Army Concerning Tax Administration Supervision by Japan"	"Koreans shall be given exactly the same treatment as that given to Japanese citizens, in terms of the levying of taxes."

14 Jan 52	"Administrative Order No 3--Administrative Order Governing Business Activities of Foreigners"	Effectiveness of the 15 Mar 49 Administrative Order is extended.
19 Apr 52	"Civil Affairs Bureau Notice No 438 Governing the Nationality and Family Register Processing Procedures That Became Effective as the Peace Treaty Went Into Effect"	"All Koreans and Taiwanese, including those who reside in Japan proper, shall lose Japanese citizenship."

There were still some unanswered legal questions regarding the nationality of those ROK-Chosen Koreans who lived in the territory of Japan and had Japanese citizenship before [the war]--for example: Is it not true that the nationality of ROK-Chosen Koreans and Taiwanese who are residing in Japan shall not be changed, in compliance with international law, because the Peace Treaty does not have provisions governing nationality and because there has been no "change in territory?" Furthermore, in compliance with Law No 126, the "Law Governing Various Directives and Measures Issued by the Foreign Ministry on the Basis of the Orders Issued as a Result of Acceptance of the Potsdam Declaration," the "Ordinance Governing Immigration" (1951) and the Law Concerning Registration of Foreigners" (1952) were applied strictly.

Thereafter, as a result of the "ROK-Japan Legal Status Agreement" (1966), the legal status of Koreans [in Japan] as foreigners was clearly established; and the requirements for the Koreans' status, seen from Japan's viewpoint, were met.

Then, what are the "Ordinance Governing Immigration" and the "Law Concerning Registration of Foreigners"? How are the human rights of the ROK-Chosen Koreans and the Chinese being violated by these legal provisions? Let us talk about these questions!

3. Residence Rights of the Koreans Who Reside in Japan, and the "Ordinance Governing Immigration"

(1) Discriminatory Scribbled Notes, and the Cultural Characteristics of the Japanese

I described above the circumstances in which ROK Koreans in Japan could not help living in Japan. Most of them are either those who were brought to Japan by force or were forcibly immigrated to Japan by the colonial policy of "the Japanese Empire," or are their descendants. These are the factors which the Japanese must not forget when they discuss the residence rights and living rights of ROK Koreans in Japan.

On 21 October 1980, a scribbled note saying "Koreans, go back to Korea!" was found once again at Momoyama Gakuin University--the Japanese still put North and South Korea together and calling them Chosen or Korea (editor)--a total of over 23 cases of discriminatory scribbled notes, including those discriminating against a village, against the handicapped, or against females, have been found there since around June 1977. Furthermore, even in connection with this writer's socialist movement, various notes, including one saying "Go back to Korea!" arrive in my mail. I will talk later about the historical and social background in which these discriminatory notes were written. But it cannot be denied that there are a lack of understanding and ignorance about the legal status and residence rights of ROK Koreans in Japan.

Nay, not only a simple lack of understanding or ignorance, but also aspects of the situation related to the cultural characteristics of the Japanese, including their calculating egotism, exclusivism, and distorted single-race-state outlook, are strongly at work. They will not be able to avoid the criticism that they lack the basic requirements for understanding that foreign residents, including the ROK-Chosen Koreans and the Chinese, are also human beings like the Japanese, that they are also members making up Japanese society, that they are equally responsible for working, for respecting and obeying laws, and for paying taxes, and that they are the same kinds of human beings who are contributing to the development of local communities.

In general, foreigners enter Japan and stay of their free will, usually for a definite purpose--for example, business, training, study, or sightseeing. The "Ordinance Governing Immigration" is an ordinance enacted to oversee and control the entry to, exit from, and stay in the country by foreigners in general.

However, as stated above, the "Ordinance Governing Immigration" is being applied to those ROK Koreans in Japan who came to reside in Japan due to the colonial policy of Japan, who have been residing in Japan for more than 35 years, or who were born and grew up in Japan, in the same way as it is applied to foreigners in general. Is it not reasonable that foreign residents, depending on the situation in which they came to reside permanently under circumstances beyond their control, as well as the length of their stay, should be assured of some humanistic and morality-oriented treatment which foreigners in general are not ordinarily given?

(2) Cruel Application of Deportation Provisions

According to a "brief report on immigration activities during 1979" made by the Immigration Bureau, Ministry of Justice, Japan, as of the end of 1979 the total number of ROK Koreans in Japan was 662,561, or 85.3 percent of the total number of 774,505 foreigners. A breakdown of the Koreans is as follows: approximately 390,000 Koreans who received permanent resident status as a result of the ROK-Japan Legal Status Agreement; approximately 150,000 Koreans whose status is governed by Law No 126 (those who began their residence in prewar days and are allowed to reside with indefinite resident status and indefinite period of residence); and over 120,000 sons and daughters of those permanent residents under Law No 126, called specially designated residents, whose status is very complicated and unstable. In many cases, the status of the father differs from that of the children, and the status of the husband differs from that of the wife; therefore, these differences sometimes cause the separation of parents from their children or the separation of husband and wife.

In particular, in cases in which the parents are residents under Law No 126, their children are called specially designated residents and their grandchildren special residents. All of them must renew their resident permits every 3 years by receiving the justice minister's permission. The date of renewal often varies from one to another among the children or grandchildren, because their birthdays are different. If one inadvertently forgets to renew, he or she is regarded as under an "illegal stay" and gets a deportation notice.

Deportation, a forced exit from a country, is a measure taken by a state to make an undesirable foreigner leave the country by force. In principle, it is a measure that may be taken against a foreigner by a state within its jurisdiction whenever a foreigner who enters a country with a specific purpose for an interim stay commits a crime during his stay or launches activities he is not permitted to undertake. However, on the part of the foreigner in question, it would be against his own interests because he would be forced to leave the country without accomplishing the purpose intended by his entry.

Meanwhile, in case those ROK Koreans and Chinese who are permanent residents in Japan are ordered to be deported, the person who receives the deportation order loses his or her job; furthermore, his or her family members probably will be separated, the home probably will be destroyed, and the right to life of all the members of the family, including children, probably will be taken from them. The International Human Rights Agreement, however, sets forth the requirement that care shall be taken lest the home be destroyed and lest the children's right to life be violated. It is a pity that this requirement is not sufficiently understood by the Japanese [authorities].

For instance, there is the case of Sin Kyong-hwan of Hyogo Prefecture, who was about to be deported because of a criminal case in which he was involved, despite the fact that he had a permanent resident permit from the Japanese Government. Also, there is the case of Han Min-ang of Osaka, who was born and grew up in Japan, who repatriated to Korea temporarily after the war, who then smuggled into Japan, and who turned himself in to the authorities in order to acquire the status by which his children could be educated. And there is the case of Kim Kuk-hwan of Nagoya, who was awarded a gold medal in the gymnastic events at the Asian Olympic Games held in Teheran, who got into a traffic accident which injured him so badly that he may not be able to perform in the gymnastic games any more, and who then committed a crime. These cases tell us that even permanent residents under the agreement may be deported because of the necessity of criminal punishment.

(3) The Poor and Handicapped May Also Be Deported

The "Ordinance Governing Immigration" sets forth the provisions governing deportation [Article 24): one who has entered the country illegally; one who has engaged in activities other than those permitted; one who has been sentenced to certain criminal punishment; one who has disturbed the public peace; and, furthermore, one who is not desirable in terms of finances, who is poor or handicapped, or who is on relief from the local self-government. Although persons who come under these provisions should be actively protected by the state, in light of the spirit of Japanese constitutional law and of the International Human Rights Agreement, such persons are being deported just because they are foreigners. This type of practice, one may assert from a humanistic point of view, should not be tolerated. However, there is almost no one among the Japanese who strongly advocates revision of this ordinance. This fact points to the irrevocable backwardness of Japan in terms of the cause of human rights.

The case of a family of a mother and five children, Korean residents in Fukuoka, Japan, was nothing but misery. Some time after the war, the mother returned to Korea temporarily, but soon reentered Japan, received a special permit of stay, and lived in Japan for more than 20 years. Separated from her husband, she had to send her five children to school, and then she needed relief, which was provided to her. However, the Fukuoka Immigration Office refused to extend her stay just because of the fact [that she was getting relief]. Then she gave up her relief and again applied for an extension of her stay. In September 1975 she received a deportation order and was deported.

To cite a similar case, a Malaysian student who came to Japan to study was hospitalized because of liver trouble after he had received some money from his parents [as published]. He had no way [to pay the hospital expenses] other than to receive medical relief. The immigration office refused to extend his stay, on the grounds that he had received medical relief. In September 1975 he was deported, after a deportation order was given to him.

In Japan today, the law says that even a foreigner is entitled to social security benefits. Nevertheless, one may say that the relief system in Japan is still regarded as a public security measure, because deportation measures are being taken on the pretext of relief, under which, it is publicized, equal treatment is given to everyone entitled to it. In such a practice as this, one may see a kind of "economic animal" habit but no humanistic cause. According to the statistics of the Ministry of Justice, during 1973 a total of 1,652 persons were deported: 748 ROK Koreans, 441 Chinese, 104 Thais, 86 Americans, 72 Filipinos, 44 Chileans, and 41 Englishmen.

Deportation is a miserable pain to ROK Koreans in Japan; it deprives their whole life. For the majority of them, Japan is their life base; over 80 percent of them were born and grew up in Japan, and do not know their [Korean] mother tongue. Why is it that such cases should not be a human rights issue?

(4) The Characteristics of the "Law Concerning Registration of Foreigners" as a Law Enacted for the Cause of Public Security

The "Law Concerning Registration of Foreigners," which consists of a total of only 24 articles, and the "Ordinance Governing Immirgation" are called the fundamental laws governing foreigners. Those foreigners who settle for a long period are obligated to register with the local self-governing community in which they live; when the registration is conducted, they are issued foreigners' registration certificates. The ROK-Chosen Koreans call the certificates "dog licenses." Just as those dogs which are not wearing the health center's licenses are captured for penning, so those foreigners who are not carrying their registration certificates, disregarding their obligation to carrying them at all times, may be arrested and jailed. One may assert that the foreigners' registration [system] is working as a strong weapon in violating the fundamental human rights and democratic rights of those foreigners who settle down in Japan.

To cite some very recent cases, persons who violate parking or speed regulations have been arrested because the violators did not carry their registration certificate, and one person who forgot to carry his registration certificate when he went to public bath was arrested. Speed violations and so on may be punished simply by imposing violation fees, whereas the failure to carry the registration certificate may be punished by imposing a fine and recording it as a previous conviction.

In an actual case in Kitakyushu City, Mr H., a Korean resident in Japan, was on his way home when a drunken man did violence to him. He was taken to the Moji Police Station, where a policeman asked him to show his registration certificate. He happened not to have carried it, however, whereupon the person who had attacked him said: "You are not carrying your certificate at all times. You are under arrest." The drunkard was assistant police inspector K, chief of the Public Security Section, Moji Coast Guard Station. Mr H was restrained for a few hours without any legitimate reason. This is a case in which the victim was accused by the person who had done violence to him. This must be a case of abuse of the law.

If the purpose of requiring the certificate carrier to carry the registration certificate at all times were to confirm whether the person has or has not registered, it would be possible to confirm it by telephone. However, this is not the case. The punishment for violation of the Japanese Citizens' Residential Fundamental Record Law and the Family Register Law is a "correctional fine" (a system to maintain the administrative order), whereas the punishment for violation the "Law Concerning Registration of Foreigners" is imprisonment at hard labor, confinement, or a fine. Thus one can interpret that the purpose of these legal provisions lies in imposing unreasonable penal punishment. This reminds me of the anonymous letters sent to me, which said: "If you want to complain, return to Korea." Why is it that foreigners with permanent resident status are burdened with the duty of carrying the registration certificate at all times and of showing it whenever they are asked to do so?

Furthermore, the foreigner's registration certificate must have fingerprints on it if the bearer is over 14 years of age, and the fingerprints are to be taken every 3 years. It is said that the fingerprints of a human never change throughout his or her life. But in the case of foreigners, they are handled as criminals. If the purpose of taking fingerprints is to ascertain his or her status and residential status, fingerprints are not necessary. Perhaps the enforcing of the fingerprints provisions is aimed at facilitating the criminal search. In the field of criminal law, too, the taking of fingerprints is an act of violating human rights; this issue is discussed in connection with the warrant issue. Is it right to reason that the human rights of foreign residents do not matter? Or is it right to reason that foreigners are to be regarded only as potential criminals? It is strongly required at this juncture that the right way of establishing human rights prevail.

IV. Living Rights of Koreans Who Reside in Japan, and Job Discrimination

(1) The Right to Work as a Basic Human Right

One's profession is a main axis of human life. Since the beginning of the 20th century, the right to work has been guaranteed in the constitution of every country as a basic human right. Japan is no exception. "The right to a minimum level of healthy and cultural life," which is guaranteed in Article 25 of the Japanese Constitution, cannot be realized without a guarantee of the right to work. Regarding the right to work, the World Human Rights Declaration (Article 23) set forth: "All men shall have the right to work, to freely select an occupation, to have guaranteed equitable and profitable working conditions, and to receive protection when unemployed." "All men shall have the right to receive equitable reward for their work, free of discrimination." The International Human Rights Agreement, in its actual provision (Article 6), set forth the right to work. In other words, the right to work is a most fundamental right freely selected by all men.

The constitution of Japan, too, lays down equality before the law (Article 14) and the freedom to select an occupation (Article 22). Article 3 of the Occupational Security Law and Article 3 of the Labor Standards Law set forth a provision to the effect that there is to be no discrimination because of nationality differences.

However, ROSEI JIHO, or LABOR ADMINISTRATION NEWS, a journal being issued with the permission of the Ministry of Labor (issued by the Labor Administration Research Center [Romu Gyosei Kenkyusho]), carried an article in its February 1975 issue which, by stating that "there is no 'beautiful custom or good manners' which forbids the refusal of a job to foreigners," advocated the promoting of job discrimination, asserting that it is not unlawful to refuse to give a job to a foreigner. A group of citizens who came to recognize the cause advocated by this article organized the "Kanto Liaison Meeting To Struggle Against Racial Discrimination" and staged protests on a few occasions. However, it took as long as a year for the Research Center to fully recognize its mistake. The journal, in a correction article with apology, said: "The lack of understanding of the current situation of ROK Koreans in Japan and ignorance and indifference have created a hotbed for discrimination, after all."

Then how much recognition has been given so far to the right of Koreans residing in Japan to work--their basic human right? Let us review here the actual situation in which they are working.

(2) Transitional Changes in Occupational Employment of Koreans Residing in Japan

Table I shows the occupational employment of the Koreans residing in Japan during the 15 years from 1959 to 1974, cited according to the data provided by the Ministry of Justice. Among the approximately 640,000 Koreans residing in Japan, only 150,000 of them were employed, whereas some 490,000 were unemployed, including students. The ratio of employment was 23.25 percent, that of the Chinese 28.63 percent, that of Americans 33.36 percent, and that of other foreigners 41.18 percent. Thus the ratio of the Koreans residing in Japan is much lower than that of others.

The reasons for this are as follows: As for the European and American residents, many are staying for business activities, but as for Korean residents and Chinese, despite special circumstances in which they are staying due to some unavailable circumstances, they are not able to benefit from equal job opportunities in such a discriminatory society as this. Furthermore, it cannot be denied that, even if they were given such an opportunity, they are still under circumstances in which they cannot fully display their ability because of various restrictions.

Here I will add some supplementary explanations to each item listed in Table I. The first item, "Other Industries," means those industries other than the building industry. The item entitled "Other Sales Businesses" means those sales businesses other than foreign trades and antique dealers. The item entitled "Other Service-oriented Businesses" means those service rendering businesses other than barbers, beauty shops, and recreation center receptionists. They say that many Koreans residing in Japan are "water salesmen." But when one reviews the past 15 years, the primary occupation is "other industries"; "water salesmen" ranks only 10th.

The lifeline for the Koreans residing in Japan, who lack capital and a means of livelihood, lies in those occupations that can be started without capital--for example, antique shops, rag-and-bone merchants or junkmen, and unskilled laborers. And when these businesses grow, they will turn to "other industries," such as home industries.

Sources: Table I is compiled from "Immigration and Its Facts," 1959, 1964, and 1971 issues, compiled by the Immigration Bureau, Ministry of Justice; and the table entitled "Occupations of Foreign Residents" which was carried by "Immigration--Its Current State and Tasks" (May 1976).

If one reviews the 15-year period further, many other characteristics of various kinds may be cited. But in this article, I will cite the current circumstances in which Koreans residing in Japan are being restricted in their job opportunities or are finding them eliminated.

(3) Job Discriminations Seen in Provisions of the Written Law

Reviewing the above-cited facts about employment, one may be able to imagine how many restrictions are being imposed on the right to work and the economic activities of Koreans resident in Japan. The logical grounds for these restrictions and eliminations are to be found in the interpretation that the expression "all men" in the articles of the constitution means only those who have Japanese citizenship; on the basis of such an interpretation, the nationality clause has been enacted. Local self-government authorities established the nationality clause, or established virtual nationality status, for those who are not listed in the Residents Fundamental Records or those who are not listed in the eligible voters list; thus they are depriving Koreans who reside in Japan of the right to work.

Some actual legal limitations on Koreans residing in Japan include the following restrictions and eliminations imposed upon their job opportunities: just like other foreigners, mining rights and the right to rent a mine are denied them; those Korean residents who had mining rights in 1945 when the war ended were deprived of their mining rights (Mining Law); ownership of ships and airplanes is also prohibited. The prohibition against owning a ship makes it difficult for Koreans who reside in Japan to engage in fishery or maritime transportation business (Ships Act, Aviation Act).

Furthermore, elimination or strict restrictions are imposed on Koreans residing in Japan in the following job categories: the broadcasting business (Radio Telegraphy Act), air transportation (Aviation Act), the banking business (Banking Act), the insurance business (Law Governing Foreign Insurance Business), stockbrokers (Law Governing Foreign Stockbrokers), deepsea fishing (Fishing Act), the maritime transportation business (Ships Act, Maritime Transportation Act), notary publics (Notary Public Act), firemen (Fire Services Act), diplomats (Foreign Affairs Officials Act), and policemen (Police Act).

As for attorneys at law, Mr Kim Kyong-tuk was allowed by the Supreme Court to become a student at the Legal Training and Research Institute on 23 March 1977, and later he became an attorney at law--Korean attorney at law No 1. The road to becoming an attorney at law was opened for Koreans residing in Japan by means of the positive efforts of the Japan Attorneys at Law Federation and of "Harago Sanji" and "Tanaka Koryo," not by the Supreme Court or the government.

In this way, Koreans who reside in Japan are strictly restricted in or eliminated from many kinds of jobs. It is a fact that they are in a situation in which they feel much pain, unlike the situation with the Japanese.

(4) Discrimination by Means of Administrative Notices and Precedents Which are Not Provided in Legal Codes

Japan is a constitutional state. Administration should be conducted on the basis of law; groundless administrative notices should not be issued to distort the spirit of law. Some typical examples of job discrimination made by means of administrative notices and/or practices may be found in the application of the National Government Officials Law or Local Government Officials Law. In general, no written provisions either in the National Government Officials Law or in the Local Government Officials prohibit employing foreign residents as government officials. The only excuse may be found in the customary practice of discriminatory administration established by the official view (29 June 1953) of the secretary general of the Agency of Personnel Administration regarding a "foreigner's eligibility for a position as a government official."

According to this view, "although there are no regulations that establish restrictions on a foreigner's eligibility for a position as a government official...the legal commonsense theory on government officials is to the effect that Japanese citizenship shall be a requirement for the position of any government official who executes public authority or who takes part in the formation of the administrative will of the state."

As indicated in the theory cited in this view, this practice was applied to all official government positions, without any clarification regarding the kinds of positions and without examining the contents of any duties involved in the position; therefore, Korean residents and Chinese in Japan were eliminated from [any job opportunities for positions as government officials]. Thus, Japanese society unilaterally deprived foreign residents of their job rights without any objective or reasonable grounds. No positions whatsoever in national government organizations, in local self-government organizations, as primary, middle, or high school teachers, or on the faculty of national and public colleges and universities were available to foreigners.

Recently, a citizens' movement was launched in this connection, and it resulted in the employment of some foreign residents as city officials (government officials' positions, in general) in Nishinomiya City, Kawanishi City, and Amagasaki City in Hyogo Prefecture. It also led to the assurance by a number of local self-government organizations of the employment of foreign residents as their officials. Furthermore, Osaka City, Osaka Fu, Mie Prefecture, and Shiga Prefecture authorities have employed Korean residents in Japan as teachers in primary and middle schools. And other self-government organizations are now going to employ as officials Koreans who reside in Japan. These facts are indicative of happy events. In the case of Shiga Prefecture, its employment of teachers was conditional upon the promise of naturalization-assimilation; thereupon a group of citizens launched an opposition movement, and it came to pass that the prefecture authorities made a definite commitment to take positive corrective measures.

Furthermore, as for the employment of the teaching staff of national and public colleges and universities, the movements of many organizations, including the "Roundtable Conference of the ROK-Chosen Korean Teaching Staff of Colleges and Universities," led to further increases in such employment. The Japanese Government, too, is now preparing "A Special Measure Bill Regarding Employment of Foreign Teaching Staff in National and Public Colleges and Universities." In May 1979, meanwhile, the Association of National and Public Colleges and Universities made public its view "On the Issue of Foreign Teaching Staff," and in October 1980, the Japan Academic Council published its view "Regarding the Employment of Foreigners as Full-Time Teaching Staff." Thus it was made clear that the employment foreigners is now possible under current legal provisions. However, severe criticism must be given to the fact that colleges and universities, which should have been universal in principle, were closed to a great extent, as well as to the characteristics of the personnel of the colleges and universities who deprived the foreign resident researchers, including Korean residents and Chinese in Japan, of the freedom of education and research.

Furthermore, even without administrative notices and practices, job discrimination is being carried on constantly. In August 1970, Mr Pak Chong-sok, who had passed the entrance examination for a job at the Totsuka Software Factory of the Hitachi Manufacturing Company, was dismissed on the pretext that he had entered [on his application] a wrong permanent domicile (ROK nationality). He launched a 4-year lawsuit sturggle, won once and for all, and was readmitted to the company. However, most big businesses are excluding foreign residents from the examinations. (One may cite a questionnaire which was sent to 100 companies, each of which has capital of more than 3 billion yen, by the Educational Research Room of Tokyo Municipal College.) And in 1976, the struggle for withdrawal of refusal by the Kinki Telephone and Telegraph Public Corporation to give an entrance examination to an applicant led to the admission to the corporation of Mr Ko Ch'ang-chung of Nishinomiya High School--thanks to the support of teachers and of over 30,000 members of the labor union of the Telephone and Telegraph Public Corporation in April 1978.

In this way, Koreans who reside in Japan have launched their struggle to the end against job discrimination, and they are gaining human rights one by one. But the root of discrimination is still deep. It is desired that all Japanese extend their understanding and active cooperation [to Korean residents] without running counter to the international trend of human rights.

V. The Right to Life of Koreans Residing in Japan, and Social Security

(1) Interpretations of the Constitution in Such a Way as To Suit the Interpreter's Taste

Japan has a peace-oriented constitution that she may be most proud of before the whole world. The Japanese people are now standing at the cross roads to decide whether or not they should expand their armaments; Article 9 of the constitution renounces war and denies the right to arm or to wage war against other nations. However, regardless of Article 9, Japan's armaments have developed to a considerable extent.

Was the slogan "Switzerland of the Orient," which came immediately after Japan's defeat in the war, put forward as a real reflective thought on the war?

Tanks were referred to as "special cars"; the police reserves became self-defense forces. The interpretation that war capability for the purpose of self-defense is not war capability was openly accepted. Takeshi Sakurada, a prominent star in business circles, who created the wind that sent Self-Defense Force ships to the Malacca Strait, was greatly honored. Furthermore, the trend toward expansion of armaments has gone so far that Prince Lockheed, Marquis Douglas, Count Grumman, Viscount Pantham, and so on are running rampant. In view of these developments, who in the world can guarantee that the history of Japan's economic invasions and then of armed invasions in the past will be not repeated? The situation we are forced with is that no preventive measures against such a repetition of history may be confirmed. Is the current interpretation of Article 9 of the constitution appropriate, I wonder?

In the same way, the concept of "the people" in the constitution is also being desecrated. The constitution clearly states: "The people shall have responsibility to pay taxes, in compliance with the provisions set forth by the law" (Article 30); "All members of the nation shall be equal before the law and shall not be discriminated against on grounds of race, creed, sex, social status, or political, economic, or social relations" (Article 14).

Foreign residents, including Korean residents and the Chinese in Japan, have the responsibility to pay taxes but are not equal with others before the law. Not only the Japanese Government but also many jurists interpret the concept of "the people" in such a way as suits their taste; thus, foreign residents sometimes are charged with responsibilities but are deprived of their rights.

Equality between foreign residents and the Japanese is clearly set forth not only in the International Human Rights Agreement that was ratified by Japan but also in ILO No 102, the "Agreement on the Minimum Standards of Social Security," which was ratified in January 1976. In Section 12 of the latter, it is clearly stated: "Both those residents without citizenship and those residents with citizenship shall have equal rights." Therefore it is inconceivable that a reasonable justification may be given to the above-mentioned variant definitions of "the people" in articles 14 and 30 of the constitution and the illogical application of those articles. Rather, it would be constitutional for both the foreign residents and the Japanese citizens to be treated equally, at least in terms of social security.

The fundamental right to life of foreign residents include medicare, livelihood protection, old-age care, child allowance, and residential care. The provision that "all members of the nation shall have the right to the wholesome, cultural, and minimum level of livelihood" (Article 25 of the Japanese Constitution) is interpreted in such a way that this is to be applied only to "Japanese citizens," and that foreigners are not to have this right to life that is laid down in the constitution. Such an interpretation as this has brought about discrimination and disadvantages. Let us cite here some of these discriminations and disadvantages.

(2) National Pension System With a Thick Citizenship Wall

Both the national pension as a residential insurance system and the national health insurance system have provisions governing the nationality requirement. I will cite here some cases of the national pension.

Mr Kim Hyon-cho (70 years old), who lives in Arakawa-ku, Tokyo-to, took out a [national pension insurance] contract when an insurance salesman told him that "Koreans, too, can have an insurance contract, just as Japanese can, if they are permanent residents," and he paid premiums for 12 years. When he became 65 years old, the age at which he became entitled to get a pension, he was told that he was not eligible even to be an insured person because of this being a Korean national. Article 7 of the National Pension Law set forth Japanese citizenship as an eligibility requirement for a person to be insured. In other words, even if a person was born and grew up in Japan and was granted permanent resident status based on the Agreement, he or she cannot be insured [under the national pension system]. Mr Kim, maintaining that "I cannot accept this mistreatment given at the last moment on the pretext of legal provisions," filed a lawsuit against Tokyo-to and the Social Insurance Agency at the Tokyo District Court, requesting that the action of disqualifying him as the person insured under the national pension system be withdrawn. A similar case is that of Mr Toyoda Kinji (70 years old; naturalized) of Saitama Prefecture. These two and other similar cases are enjoying the spritual support of Kim Kyong-tuk, attorney at law, and the "Assembly To Request the Benefit of National Pension for ROK-Chosen Koreans in Japan." A thoroughgoing solution of this problem would be brought about by abolishing those provisions of the National Pension Law which require Japanese citizenship. However, the Welfare Ministry authorities are holding fast to the fundamental posture of refusing national pension benefits to foreigners.

National pension benefits include: the expectation system, under which insurance premiums should be paid--old-age pension, disabled person's pension, mother-and-child pension; and the non-expectation system, under which low income families, including disabled persons and the bereaved mother and child, get benefits from funds provided by the national treasury--old-age welfare pension, disabled person's welfare pension, and mother-and-child welfare pension. All these benefits require the status of a Japanese national.

In compliance with the "U.S.-Japanese Friendship, Commerce, and Navigation Treaty" (effected 30 October 1953), the National Pension Law is to be applied to Americans who reside in Japan, as they are entitled to be persons insured under the law. Therefore, there certainly is a latitude for avoiding the provisions of requiring Japanese citizenship. While the pension benefits are to be given to the nationals of big powers, they are not to be given to the nationals of small nations, this kind of view is a distorted one. In compliance with the ROK-Japan Treaty, treatment as citizens shall not be given to those ROK-Chosen Koreans who are granted permanent resident status set forth in the treaty.

Furthermore, requirements for the welfare pension under the non-expectation system include another factor besides Japanese citizenship: that is, the date of confirmation of the fact of being disabled, in the case of the disabled welfare pension; or the date of death of the husband, in the case of the mother and child welfare pension; and being a Japanese citizen on that date. The decision of the Osaka District Court dated 29 October 1980 in the "Shiomi suit" reveals the cruelty of the pension system. Mr Shiomi Hide (46), the subject of the case, was born in Osaka; his parents were Koreans resident in Japan. When he was a baby, he became blind due to scarlet fever. He then married a Japanese blind girl and was naturalized in 1970. He applied for a disabled welfare pension at the Osaka City Hall but was not granted the pension. The above-cited court decision denied him the pension benefit: the reason is that he was not a Japanese national when he became blind. The pension wall is thick even to those disabled who [later] became Japanese citizens.

(3) Mistreatment of Former Soldiers, Army Civilians, and Air Raid Victims

A total of about 365,000 Koreans took part in the aggressive war of Japan as soldiers and army civilians; 720,000 Koreans were forcibly taken or drafted. And among these Koreans, more than 30,000 died and there were innumerable wounded.

However, the Pension Laws, the Relief Law Governing the Bereaved Families of the War Wounded and War Dead, and the Special Allowance grants Law are not applied to those who do not have Japanese citizenship; in other words, they are not to be applied to Korean residents and Taiwanese in Japan. During wartime, they fought for Japan just as other Japanese did; yet these war victims are regarded as foreigners who are not entitled to the disabled pension benefits or bereaved family pension benefits. Those Filipinos who took part in the war along with the U.S. Army are receiving pensions and compensation money in the same way as the American soldiers after the Philippines won independence.

Furthermore, when Japan was defeated in the war, those who were accused of war crimes requested their release on the grounds that "they lost their Japanese nationality when the peace treaty went into effect, and therefore there are no legal grounds for them to be accused of being Japanese national war criminals." However, the response was that "the Koreans and Taiwanese shall be included among the Japanese nationals because they become war criminals in the status of Japanese nationals." The payment of pensions was denied to them on the grounds that they were not Japanese nationals; however, those foreigners accused of war crimes were regarded as Japanese nationals and served the sentences given to them--sheer unreasonable practices! It is an inevitable conclusion that the Japanese-oriented "interpretations" lack a human rights viewpoint.

In August 1976, it was reported that some Taiwanese who were drafted into the Japanese Army during the war got together to launch a movement to denounce as violations of human rights the refusal to pay war-dead condolence money, pensions, and war-wounded comfort money. It is a very delightful thing for a person who is in a similar situation to see the support that some sympathetic Japanese people rendered to the cause of this movement, given by the "Group To Support the Compensation Request of Those Taiwanese Who Were Drafted Into the Japanese Army During the War."

A few years ago, it was reported that the "ROK-Chosen Korean Air Raid Victims Liaison Council" in Hiroshima Prefecture sent copies of the document describing the actual conditions of those Korean victims of atomic bomb air raids to U.S. Secretary General Waldheim and the U.N. missions of the 145 U.N. member nations. The document requested that the United Nations pass a resolution to see to it that the Japanese Government stop all racial discrimination and oppressive measures against ROK-Chosen Koreans in Japan, and that the Japanese Government take welfare measures [to aid] those atomic bomb victims.

Today the Japanese people in general are fully enjoying a peace and prosperity that is as hollow as a water bubble. They are living peacefully in the "New Japan," which enjoys the new political and economic superiority that replaced the past imperialism of the Emperor's rule; and they are gradually forgetting the history of those past miserable days, including the days of hot air raids. It is understandable that those Korean residents who are atomic raid victims--and who are undergoing misery because of the thick wall of lineage principle, which derives from the viewpoint of refusing to tackle the problem with an attitude of dealing with it as though it concerned the Japanese people themselves--could not help appealing with their voices to the international community for their right to life.

For the Koreans residing in Japan and the Chinese in Japan, the postwar era has not yet ended. Where has the truthfulness of the Japanese gone, I wonder?

VI. Prospects for a Multiracial Society

(1) Origin of the Discrimination Against Korean Residents in Japan

A series of discriminatory scribblings have been found in lavatories of Momoyama Gakuin University recently. On 21 October 1980: "Koreans must go back to Korea"; on 2 December 1980: "The Village Liberation Research Society of Momoyama Gakuin and the League Society that is acting currently in Japan must be disbanded! Just because of the existence of these organizations, the misunderstanding that causes the bias about discrimination against Koreans is occurring." "From now on Momoyama Gakuin must abolish all the symposiums on the village liberation issues and the Korea issue!"

All this is a great pity to us who are seeking the education that should struggle against discrimination and the education that should not bring about discrimination. Liberation from such discrimination as described above is a very urgent task that must be carried out to establish the fundamental human rights in a democratic society; it is by no means an issue exclusively for the benefit of foreign residents. The way of thinking that is displayed in the series of scribblings is a categorical challenge to the freedom of research and education and the seeking of truth at the university; we must resolutely fight against such ways of thinking as this.

Then, against what social background in the world were the Japanese people's discrimination and bias against the Korean residents in Japan formed? Let us briefly review the historical background. In the Edo era, it seems that Japan and Korea were rather friendly as neighboring nations. However, it happened that the emperor-first principle, lineage principle, and nationality, rather than the dignity of the human being, began to be regarded as more important than anything else. This happened perhaps because of the influence of Shintoism, which emerged as the ethical principle that replaced Buddhism, which had been regarded as important during the 265-year Tokugawa period. Then, it became necessary for the Japanese to overthrow the Shogunate government and establish a brandnew ethical principle. Thus they established the wrong morality of setting up the emperor as a living god by means of distorting the history of Japan and of proclaiming the "Imperial Rescript of Education." Then the militaristic Japan emerged. China and Korea were invaded and turned into colonies in order to maintain the Great Japanese Empire. Here lies the origin of racial discrimination.

Furthermore, it can be said that the promotion and furtherance of discrimination against Koreans were directly caused by the colonial rule of "Japanese imperialism." It may be natural that oppression follows colonial rule. Japan's colonial rule is characterized by its thoroughgoing policy of assimilation. Japan took their language away from Koreans and distorted the history and culture of Korea. Japan disregarded its neighboring nation's views of value; it called its disregard universalization; and it said that it was helping Korea by means of assimilation. Japan itself came to fall under this kind of illusion. Furthermore, militarism, the groundless feeling of racial superiority, and the lineage principle were closely related; they asserted that the emperor was a son of god, and that the Japanese people were sons and daughters of the emperor. Thus, despite the fact that all Koreans and Taiwanese under the colonial rule were "the subjects of the empire," they were not treated as human beings at all--our memory of this is still fresh.

Those Japanese who became captive of this way of thinking do not have any guilt feelings about their colonial exploitation or search their hearts on the matter or militarism. It is therefore natural that Japanese children educated with such feelings as these would naturally discriminate against Korea in a repeating pattern of events. "The slaughter" (not the suicide) of Kenichi Hayashi, a youth, and the discriminatory scribblings at Momoyama Gakuin University are all the same kind of practices. We must pay attention to the fact that the new young generation, who may be regarded as a generation that has nothing to do with "the Japanese imperialist" era, is successor to the irresponsible biases and discrimination of the old generation.

Above all, as described above, the economic status of foreign residents tends to degenerate because of the job discrimination and various restrictions imposed upon the economic activities [of foreign residents]. Judging from the viewpoint that poverty is the hotbed of miserable discrimination, the only way to destroy the discriminatory social structure is to eliminate the administrative discriminations led primarily by the government and to make efforts to eliminate the feeling of discrimination that is deeply rooted among the people in general. This may be a rough and long way, but it will not be impossible to attain this goal if each citizen makes efforts in that direction.

(2) Transformation of the Discriminatory Social Structure

First of all, the elimination of administrative discrimination means to eliminate "the wall of nationality" that Japan takes for granted. This would also pave the way for observing the International Human Rights Agreement, which advocates equality between foreigners and Japanese citizens.

On 31 October 1980, Minister of Health and Welfare Sonoda issued a directive calling for a study of ways to grant the benefits of the national pension system to foreign residents. Thus the iron gate, which was closed tight despite repeated appeals of Korean residents in Japan, [began to open] because of the pressure of international public opinion created by means ratification of the "Displaced Persons Agreement." As stated above, the benefits of the national pension system are to be given only to those who have Japanese citizenship. However, this cannot be compatible with the ratification of the Displaced Persons Agreement, which advocates "the same treatment that should be given to its own citizens, in terms of the application of social security" (Article 24 of the agreement). Here one can clearly see the characteristics of the Japanese national who is "weak when faced with international pressure." Nevertheless, it is consoling to know about that situation stated above.

Anyway, it is imperative that the movement be launched intensively so that, when the wall of the national pension falls, the discriminative administration, including more than 10 items of such provisions, may be quickly eliminated, in light of the spirit of the International Human Rights Agreement.

Secondly, it is imperative that the Japanese "psychological wall" of discrimination against foreign residents be eliminated.

There is no especially efficacious remedy for this situation; the only solution might be to find an effective remedy by means of substantial education. From 1975 on, Momoyama Gakuin University added "A Study of ROK-Chosen Culture" and "A History of the ROK-Chosen" to the courses under the professional chair of human rights.

These two courses are to be taken, together with the other three courses under the chair, as required courses. Fortunately, there are many students who take these two courses; in the 1980 schoolyear, some 2,500 students are studying the history and culture of their neighbor nation. Furthermore, in 1980 a seminar on the history and culture of Korea was held in Korea [under the sponsorship of the university]. Thus, efforts are being made by the Japanese to understand the unique culture of the ROK-Chosen and to eliminate bias by correcting the teaching of deformed history, as was practiced hitherto. I like to believe that a way will soon be open for the Japanese to attain ideological growth. If such education measures as these on culture and history were to be taken in other colleges and universities and organizations, the discriminatory social structure would assuredly be changed greatly.

Meanwhile, Korean residents and Chinese in Japan, too, must come to understand their identity, intensify the education of their children in a subjective manner, and thereby train their children in such a tolerance as would be capable of overcoming the discrimination of the Japanese by means of pride, and of persuading those who discriminate against them.

Finally, if one fully understands that Japan's society, in which 770,000 foreigners live, is not a single-race society but a multiracial one, and if one can mutually overcome "the wall of nationality" and coexist and coprosper as human beings, the 21st century would become the century of Japan. Would this not be so? The society in which there is no racial discrimination, no village discrimination, and no discrimination against the handicapped is a society which is open internationally. In such a society, the glorious stage on which the Japanese can act would be expanded on a worldwide scale. In short, the elimination of discrimination is closely related to the development of Japan itself.

Japan today is not a society of Japanese alone. There are 770,000 foreign residents who also are members of Japanese society. The Korean residents, the Chinese, the Indians, and the Indonesians are all, with their racial consciousness, observing Japanese laws, fulfilling their tax payment responsibilities, and taking part in the development of Japan. In other words, Japan is a multiracial society. It is a fact that there were some unfortunate events in the course of forming the multiracial society, but it is sincerely hoped that each one of the Japanese people will understand that such a multiracial society itself displays the features of a most natural society. At the same time, it is a forgone conclusion that an urgent problem that the Japanese society faces is to grant citizenship to those foreign residents.

COUNTERMEASURES SOUGHT FOR EXPORT PROBLEMS

SK260803 Seoul YONHAP in English 0748 GMT 26 Oct 81

[Text] Seoul, 26 Oct (YONHAP)--With the end of this year just two months away, the Korean Government, economic organizations and business circles are making every possible effort to cultivate new export markets and expand trade with already cultivated overseas markets, to ensure a sustained export growth next year.

Trade officials at the Commerce-Industry Ministry had a meeting Monday to discuss measures to prevent the country's trade profitability from being deteriorating further due to the continued appreciation of the U.S. dollar, government sources said Monday.

The country's commodity exports this year are expected to exceed the original goal of 20.5 billion dollars by 500 million dollars by the end of this year.

The continued drops in the arrival of export letters of credit since the turn of the second half of this year, however, cast dark clouds over future trade prospects.

The sources expressed fear that if L/C arrivals decrease at the current pace, exports to Japan, Europe and the Middle East would shrink considerably next year.

Meanwhile, the 10 government-designated general trading companies are urging the government to broaden the fluctuation of the won-dollar exchange rate even more than the originally targeted three percent next year, to protect their profits.

The 10 general trading firms which are usually responsible for more than half of the country's total exports, are: Bando Sangsa, Daewoo Industrial, Hyosung Corp., Hyundai Corp., Korea Tradining International, Kukje Corp., Kumho & Co., Samsung Co., Ssangyong Corp., and Sunkyong Ltd.

The country's exports this year totaled 16.5 billion dollars as of October 21, up 23.3 percent over exports for the same period last year, while the arrival of export letters of credit came up to 14.2 billion dollars, a 16.6-percent rise.

The government has set next year's export goal at 25.3 billion dollars, up 20.5 percent over this year's. But L/C arrivals, which reached a peak of 1.8 billion dollars last March, plunged to 1.2 billion dollars in September, a drop of 14.9 percent from that of September last year.

BILATERAL ROK-U.S. CELEBRATIONS URGED--Among the standing committees of the National Assembly, the Foreign Affairs Committee was the first to finish its interpellation because it only dealt with two government offices--the Ministry of Foreign Affairs and the National Unification Board. For the remaining period of the regular session of the National Assembly, the committee, beginning on 22 October, will be briefed in detail by the Foreign Ministry on specific areas of the world. In the discussion of the celebrations marking the 100th anniversary of the establishment of Korea-U.S. relations, Representative Yi Se-ki of the Democratic Justice Party and Independent Representative Pak Chong-su pointed out our active preparation contrast to those of the United States, whose efforts seem not yet very discernible. They said, "The commemorative events must be held on a reciprocal and equal basis. The anniversary must not be celebrated unilaterally, like one-side love." Commenting on the question of U.S.-resident Koreans, Representative Yu Han-yol of the Democratic Korea Party said, "The government must not repeat the mistakes of the former government by branding them as anti-ROK overseas Koreans just for the reason that they are against the government." He advised that "the Ministry of Foreign Affairs, in making policy for the overseas Koreans, classify the U.S.-resident Koreans by making a clear distinction between the anti-ROK and anti-ROK Government residents." U.S. IMPORT RESTRICTION ON ROK TV SETS TO END

[Text] Seoul, 28 Oct (YONHAP)--The U.S. Government's quota or "Orderly Marketing Agreements" (OMA) on Korean-made color television exports to the United States is scheduled to expire June 30, 1982, a joint communique said Tuesday. This will clear the way for increased exports of Korean-made color TV sets to the U.S. market, currently pegged at up to 577,000 sets a year.

According to the communique, issued at the conclusion of the two-day annual meeting here of the commerce ministers of Korea and the United States, Secretary Malcolm Baldrige welcomed Korea's trade liberalization plan, and expressed the hope that the plan would not be "compromised by offsetting increases in tariff rates."

The U.S. delegation further requested that Korea liberalize import restrictions of such items as cigarettes, textiles and motion pictures, and the Korean delegation, headed by Commerce and Industry Minister So Sok-chun agreed to transmit the U.S. request to the "appropriate authorities," it said.

On the U.S. side's request for increased patent and trademark protection in areas including chemicals and pharmaceuticals, the Korean delegation said in response that Korea had jointed the Paris convention (on the protection of industrial property rights) last year and had passed new industrial property laws this September.

On major project sales by American companies in such areas as nuclear power, transportation and telecommunications equipment, the U.S. delegation reviewed policies regarding export financing, and noted that recent changes in U.S. policy are aimed at reflecting the higher cost of borrowing and leaving project awards to be settled between companies, without government's export financing subsidies.

At a news conference, meanwhile, Baldrige reiterated his government's interest in U.S. companies winning Korea's projects involving the purchase of turbine generators for the country's atomic power plants Nos 9 and 10, for which France is supplying nuclear reactors, as well as the subway construction in Seoul. He said he was told by Korean officials that the U.S. firms' bids would be "carefully" studied.

Saying that financing remains a key consideration in the Korean Government's award evaluation process, the secretary added, "We believe they (the U.S. bidder proposing the sale of turbine generators) are competitive in the whole package."

On coal, one of the key U.S. export items discussed at this year's bilateral commerce ministers' meeting, So "suggested that U.S. coal exporters could maximize their position in the Korean market" by enhancing competitiveness and by guaranteeing a stable supply.

The two ministers discussed Korean-U.S. cooperation in joint ventures in Third World countries including countries in the Mideast, Asia, and South and Central America, and plant exports to third countries.

The U.S. secretary agreed that these activities "could benefit both countries."

AUTOMOBILE PARTS INCREASED EXPORTS--Seoul, 27 Oct (YONHAP)--With the automobile industry being one of the priority sectors supported by the Korean Government, South Korea exported 156 million U.S. dollars' worth of automobile parts during the first nine months of this year, an increase of 56 percent over exports for the corresponding period of last year, industry sources reported Tuesday. On the other hand, according to the sources, a gradual decline has been noted in the country's imports of foreign-made automobile parts, from 423 million dollars in 1978 to 359.8 million dollars in 1979, and 199.6 million dollars in 1980, an indication that the country's automobile industry is being fast Koreanized. Korean-made automobile parts are being imported by 92 countries, the sources noted, adding that there are some 850 South Korean manufacturers of automobile parts. Meanwhile, the sources said, a number of European automobile part manufacturers are considering the possibility of joint venture operations with Korean firms. These include Uniparts Co. and the Society of Motor Manufacturers Trade Association, both British firms, which recently sent their representatives here to study the feasibility of such operations. Trained, yet relatively cheap, manpower is a major lure for foreign interests, which are seeking the partnership of Korean firms in manufacturing automobile parts, according to the sources. VIDEO TAPE RECORDER EXPORTS--Seoul, 24 Oct (YONHAP)--Korean-made video tape recorders [VTRS] are likely to become a most promising export item for Korea beginning early next year. Business sources here said Saturday that the Gold Star of Korea developed V.H.S.-method video tape recorders with its own technology in 1979, thus making Korea the fourth country in the world to produce video tape recorders, following the Netherlands, Japan and West Germany. The Gold Star has, however, been unable to export VTRS because it failed to obtain a technological license from Japan which holds the exclusive patent for the production of V.H.S.-method VTRS. The Japanese V.H.S. committee, however, recognized the Gold Star Co.'s high technological standards, when its VTRS were displayed at an electronic products show held recently in Seoul, and promised to favorably consider allowing Gold Star to use its technological license by the end of this year. The Japanese committee, consisting of Japan's three leading electronics manufacturers, Matsushita, Hitachi and Nihon Denki, has never allowed foreign firms to use its technological license. If Gold Star obtains the right, a major source of video tape recorders will become dollar earnings for the country, the sources said. Last year the world demand for VTRS stood at more than eight million, 90 percent of which was met by Japan. [Text] [SK240318 Seoul YONHAP in English 0232 GMT 24 Oct 81]

AUTOMOBILE EXPORTS--Seoul, 28 Oct (YONHAP)--South Korea's automobile exports are estimated to reach 85,000 units in 1986, the target year of the country's fifth five-year economic and social development plan beginning next year, government officials here said Wednesday. The government authorities concerned have just completed preparations for a long-term automobile export-promotion program, to be implemented during the coming five-year development plan period. The officials said that the automobile export program calls for the country's annual automobile production capactiy to be expanded to 637,000 units in 1986, from the present 314,000 units. Under the program, the automobile exports are targeted at 34,000 units in 1982, 42,000 units in 1983, 54,000 units in 1984, 67,000 units in 1985 and 85,000 units in 1986. Meanwhile, automobile exports as of September this year totaled 20,562. By the end of thisyear, foreign sales of the products are estimated to reach 32,000 units. KTA TRADE PROSPECTS CONCERNS--Seoul, 24 Oct (YONHAP)--The Korean Traders Association (KTA), expressing concern about the recent slump in exports to Japan and elsewhere, and the decrease in the arrival of letters of credit, has called for a joint contingency measure between the government and business circles. In a meeting Friday, the KTA also contended that an appropriate readjustment of the exchange rates was necessary, because the Korean currency has been assessed at higher than its real value in relation to the Japanese yen and major European currencies. The arrival of letters of credit, which has been slowing down since last May, the KTA went on, registered a sharp decline after September, This means a gloomy outlook for the country's export performance for the rest of the year. The arrival of letters of credit from the European region in September was down 9.8 percent from that of the same month last year. The decline in the arrival of letters of credit from the Middle East was 45.7 percent. [Text] [SK240231 Seoul YONHAP in English 0123 GMT 24 Oct 81]

NORTH, SOUTH KOREAN SOCIAL CULTURE COMPARED

Seoul PUKHAN in Korean Apr 81 pp 110-121

[Article by Pak Ung-hui, research associate on North Korea, National Unification Board: "Comparison of South and North Korean Social Culture"]

[Excerpts] I. Comparative Method for Social Culture

The greatest task facing the Korean nation today is the reunification of country and nation; nonetheless, the situation today, 35 years after the division by foreign powers, into North and South, manifests itself in the intensification of the heterogenization between North and South and the sharpening of the conflict of the systems.

First, not only do the North Koreans have no freedom to travel, select jobs or change residences, they have no room for extras in their daily lives so that their life experiences are limited; second, North Korea has so little exchange of information, even with other communist countries, that when ROK scholars visit those countries they receive requests for materials on North Korea. In addition, persons visiting North Korea are extremely restricted in their contact with the people and their scope of activity.

Also there is the problem of the reliability of North Korea's statistics. North Korea has not published official statistics since 1963 except for fragmentary bits; furthermore even for those materials that we have, the majority, perhaps due to impossible quantification or some other reason, do not correlate. For example, the statistics for medical institutions from 1971 through August 1975 show 2.8 times more hospitals than in 1970; most statistics published by North Korea are of this type. Such facts present a particularly great problem in quantitative analysis.

II. Comparison of Cultural Life

A. Education

1. Overview of Educational Goals and Policies

Humans are shaped by education. Furthermore, when we consider that not only is the educational process satisfying in itself and a manifestation of the human spirit, but also that the question of how many knowledgeable and skilled persons education produces for each sector of a society is a measure of that society's development, the analysis of South and North Korea's educational level and content becomes the most important index for measuring the potential of the social culture of each.

Also, the comparison of education between two heterogeneous systems gains significance only in terms of the relationship between state goals and the level of educational attainment.

From this point of view, education in North Korea is nothing more than a powerful tool for the realization of communist dictatorial politics, whereas in the ROK, although education is influenced by demands coming out of the political process, it is independent of politics and strives to be faithful to the goals of education itself. In other words, the totality of North Korea's educational goals and policy is the political goal as it applies to the educational sector. However, in the case of the ROK, the human educational goal is expressed as education itself, thus the South and North Korean educational goals and policies have differing significance.

As can be seen in Table 1, whereas the foundations of the ROK's educational goals lay in democratic national education and education fostering democratic citizens based on the ideals of the People's Education Charter and the ideals of broadly benefiting humanity through self-realization, North Korea bases its educational goals on fostering the talent needed for the construction of a communist society and for remaking people to adapt to such a social system.

Table 1. Educational Goals of North and South Korea by Time Period

Period	ROK	North Korea
1945-53	Democratic national education "widely benefiting mankind" through self-realization --Overcoming the (Japanese/Korean) one nation thought --Love of state and nation, civic qualities	Marxist-Leninist Communist human --Mobilization of nation building thought --Marxist-Leninist study
1954-60	Democratic citizen education --Civic qualities --Self-dependent livelihood	Class education for labor and technology --Class struggle consciousness --Destruction of traditional culture --Socialist patriotism
1961-72	National revival education --Establishment of view of nation-state --Contribution to state development through self-realization --Institutional succession of tradition --Protection of national culture	Chuche type Communist human --Revolutionary tradition indoctrination --Chuche ideology --Three Great Revolutions --Setting forth of socialist educational principles

Period	ROK	North Korea
1973-present	Establishment of view of independent (chuche) nation-state --Establishment of consciousness of national independence --Harmony of individual development and state prosperity --New village education	Establishment of unitary ideology educational system --Establishment of Kim Il-song's unitary ideology --Establishment of chuche --Strengthening of class and party nature --Revolutionization and labor classification

Additionally, the ROK is bringing to life the ideals of the People's Education Charter, by instituting education of the whole person which enhances to the maximum the abilities and creativity of the individual. It has as its basic goals the fostering of the qualities of the democratic citizen who leads a cooperative society based on the harmony of consideration and reconciliation, of self-regulation and responsibility along with the fostering of true Koreans who can contribute to the state's development and the national revival, i.e., persons who are loyal to the state, filial to their parents and helpful to their neighbor.

Unlike this, however, North Korea revealed its basic goal for education in the 39th article of the Socialist Constitution adopted by the 1st Session of the 5th Supreme People's Assembly on 27 December 1972 which stated, "The state will realize the principles of socialist pedagogy to bring up new generations as new Communist humans with intellect, virtue, and health, as strong revolutionaries who will struggle for the society and the people." In order to achieve this goal, North Korea is setting forth the three great principles of "the revolutionization and labor classification of the whole people," "the intellectualization of the whole people," and the "communization of the whole people."

In particular, following the 5th general party meeting of November 1970, with the creation of the "principles of socialist pedagogy" and the adoption of the "Thesis on Socialist Education" at the 14th Plenary Session of the 5th Supreme People's Assembly on 5 September 1977, North Korea established the direction of its basic educational policy which it has carried out vigorously ever since.

The thesis emphasizes heavily the principles which must be upheld in order properly to carry out socialist educational work: First, education must realize party and working class nature; second, it must establish chuche; third, it must combine with revolutionary practice; and fourth, the socialist state must be responsible for education, organize it and carry it out.

2. Educational Systems

The state's goals and systems, and its educational policy for realizing them are important elements in characterizing the educational system. This is because the educational system is developed in order to realize effectively and systematically the state's goals and educational policies.

Such educational systems can be compared in several ways, but here I will examine a few features centered on school systems and types of schools.

As can be seen in Tables 2 and 3, the ROK's educational system is a single track type, whereas North Korea's is a multitrack type. Second, North Korea emphasizes kindergarten education for the purposes of molding "new Communist humans" and of exploiting female labor. Third, in comparison with the ROK's 6-year elementary school, North Korea's is 4 years. This is interpreted as an intention to decrease the amount of primary education and increase instead the amount of intermediate education directly related to production skills. Fourth, beginning with primary education, North Korea operates separately privileged special educational organs, such as the Academy for the Survivor Children of the Revolution, for the children of party cadre and special classes to which the children of the ordinary masses are not admitted, thereby carrying out discriminatory education for the training of cadre. Fifth, looking at the establishment of schools, all of North Korea's educational organs are operated by central or local governmental organs so that the goals and purposes of school establishment are unified according to the political intentions of the party or governmental organ. But in the ROK, private schools established by private foundations occupy an important position alongside state and public schools and each can embody individual ideals and education according to the purposes of the founder, thereby making possible the training of flexible, variated talent. Sixth, in the case of colleges, the ROK has colleges and universities distributed evenly throughout each region. But with the exception of Kim Il-song University, North Korea's colleges are like technical training centers since they are colleges for special subjects attached to factories, enterprises and production bases, for the purpose of producing persons skilled in only their field who would have difficulty applying their skills to other fields. For example, there are such organs as the Irrigation College, the Motive Force College, the Mining College or the Orchardry College which, although called colleges, carry out the functions of technical training and vocational training centers for their respective areas.

3. Educational Content

Seen from outside, the North Korean schools' educational content of intellectual, ethical, physical, and artistic education seems similar to the ROK's educational content, but in North Korean society, where educational content is meaningless unless it serves politics, the party, and Kim Il-song, the educational content of each area in the actual curriculum is quite different from the ROK.

That is, in the ROK intellectual education is based on the search for truth and fosters the knowledge needed for individual activities or the foundation of a profession, while ethical education fosters the refinement of emotions and the establishment of healthy views on morality, ethics, and the state, and physical education fosters the health and strength needed for a pleasant and satisfying personal and social life.

However, in the case of North Korea, educational content is structured according to a deterministic viewpoint to achieve political goals, such as intellectual education which studies the principles of communism, ethical education which implants the spirit of revolutionary fighters with the ethical traits of communism, or physical education which, under the national defense physical education, emphasizes the strengthening of military power; this deterministic principle has been established according to the unique revolutionary demands of North Korea.

The socialist educational content set forth in the September 1977 "Thesis on Socialist Education" is divided into indoctrination in political ideology, technical education, and national defense education, with indoctrination in political ideology regarded as primary.

Looking first at education in political ideology, "The Works of Kim Il-song," "The History of Kim Il-song's Revolutionary Activities," and "The History of the Policy of the Korean Workers Party" are handled with importance in colleges and Kim Il-song's revolutionary activities and Kim Il-song's revolutionary history in senior intermediate schools, while even in kindergarten we can find such subjects as "Stories of Kim Il-song's Childhood" and "Communist Morality"; the primary purpose of this is to encourage loyalty to the party and Kim Il-song.

Looking next at North Korea's military education, compared to other subjects more time is allocated to military education with the completion of 240 hours per year required in college and 120 hours required in senior intermediate school (senior class); organizationally, college and senior technical school students are incorporated into the quasi-regular military Red Worker-Peasant Militia and organized into echelon units, while senior intermediate school students (senior class) are organized into the Red Youth Guards, all wearing uniforms and hats and armed with AK rifles.

In particular, since North Korea adopted the 2 March 1959 "Cabinet Resolution Number 18 Regarding the Initiating of the Student Social Compulsory Labor System," senior intermediate school students are mobilized for 4 to 6 weeks per year, senior technical school students for 10 weeks, and college students for 12 to 14 weeks, and when necessary, they are repeatedly mobilized without regard for the compulsory labor time. In the case of elementary school students, there are no regulations, but they are mobilized for 2 to 4 weeks per year during the busy farming season as children's units for rural assistance work. This student compulsory labor mobilization shows signs of increasing following the strengthening of three revolutions team activities in 1973.

4. School, Student, and Faculty Situation

Table 4 shows the ROK to be far ahead numerically, having, as of 1979, 10,412 schools, some 850 more than North Korea's 9,562 and having 10,421,000 students while North Korea has less than half that at 5.1 million (kindergarten and day-care excluded).

Table 4. School, Student, and Faculty Numbers (as of 1979)

Classification		ROK	North Korea

	Elementary schools	6,450	4,700
	Middle schools	2,328	4,100
	High schools	1,409	600
	Technical schools, colleges	206	161

	Middle school	2,437,272
	High school	1,651,767	100,000

l College	18,983
t Total	244,789	app. 200,000

However, the difference in the number of schools between South and North is not as great as the number of students because in North Korea's case there is no freedom to move residences or change jobs and because of the topographical particularity schools are generally small and there are still places where elementary and high schools are combined. Also, in the case of the ROK, only those schools in the regular educational system are counted in the statistics whereas North Korea includes in the totals the branch campuses of all schools; in the case of high schools, workers' senior technical schools; in the case of colleges, people's economic colleges, each province's communist college, and the factory, farm, and fishery colleges established at major factories, enterprises and cooperative farms.

Also, although the ROK has many more faculty, at 250,000 than North Korea's 200,000, North Korea has a somewhat better teacher/student ratio; this is a result of North Korea's inclusion of party members working at adult schools, technicians, and military trainers in faculty statistics.

B. Journalism and Publishing

1. Overview of Journalism Policy and Character

As a basic human right, freedom of expression through various kinds of mass media such as journalism and publishing must be protected and expanded to the maximum.

In order to protect this freedom concretely, the various necessary elements, i.e., such mass media as newspapers, broadcasting stations and communications companies must be establishable and operable by civilians. From this viewpoint, the ROK's journalism policy is a competitive and open multitype system while North Korea's is a centralized and closed monolithic-type system.

The ROK posits its provisions for the protection of freedom of expression in Article 18 of the Constitution. Only, as a measure to build a free democratic state and protect broader basic rights, are radical and exaggerated expressions which might break national harmony or be used in communist strategy or tactics autonomously regulated. However, this is absolutely not an infringement on basic rights but rather a neutral measure to protect those basic rights.

By comparison, in North Korea where basic human rights are violated and divested, freedom of expression cannot exist. That is, in North Korea all mass media are subject to the party's thorough inspection and control.

Chapter 4, Article 53 of North Korea's Socialist Constitution prescribes that "citizens have the freedom of journalism, publishing, assembly, association and demonstration," propagandizing within and without as though the freedom of expression were guaranteed, but the truth is totally different since in the other articles of that same Socialist Constitution can be found many articles that deny even basic rights; good examples are Articles 2, 4, and 18.

Judging from this, the only latitude allowed in freedom of expression is that of unconditionally and absolutely obeying and being loyal to the leadership of the regime within the limits prescribed by the party's precepts.

By prescribing that "newspapers, magazines, books, and such published materials are important means for linking the party and the masses, and are tools of propaganda and agitation which organize and mobilize the worker masses for the carrying out of the revolutionary tasks set forth by the party," Kim Il-song makes it clear that there can exist no mass media that departs from the party line.

Thus in North Korea the party monopolizes all mass media and cuts off all sources of information harmful to the communist dictatorship, thereby working to close off ahead of time the appearance of any incorrect instance of opposition. Therefore, North Korea's mass media are not purveyors of news or means of enlightenment and entertainment but rather organs which carry out "the role of collective propagandist/activist and organizer" as prescribed by Lenin.

2. The Journalism and Publishing Situation

As seen in Table 5, North Korea has such central newspapers as the party organ, the RODONG SINMUN, and the MINJU CHOSON, the PYONGYANG SINMUN and the RODONG CH'ONGNYON, along with the local papers published by the party committees of each province and city; it publishes such magazines as KULLOJA, CH'OLLIMA, and CHOSON MUNHAK; and the main body of its books is made up of things related to the idealization of Kim Il-song such as the fabricated "Works of Kim Il-song" or "Revolutionary Tradition." (See Table 6)

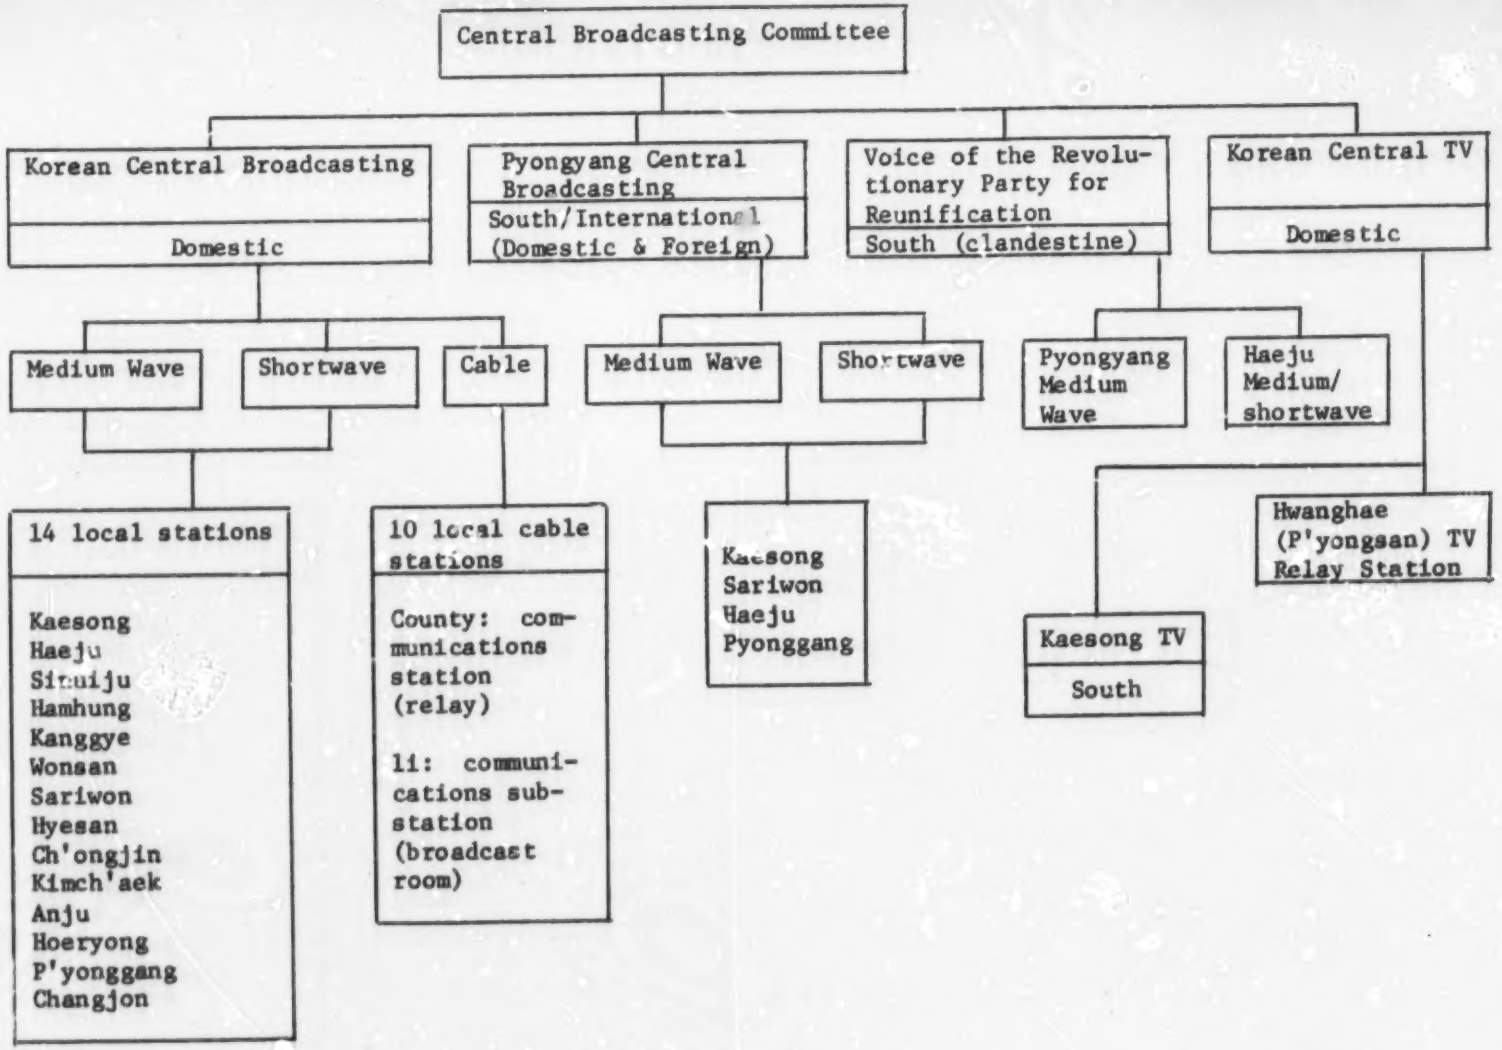
In the case of broadcasting, the Pyongyang Central Broadcasting and the local broadcasting stations in each province are established and operated under the unitary system of the Central Broadcasting Committee attached directly to the State Administration Council and the broadcasting committees of each province, city, and county.

The unique thing about the broadcasting system is that "Pyongyang Broadcasting" is established separately from the domestic central broadcasting as a foreign and psychological broadcast targeted to the South and operated under the control of the party Central Committee's Liaison Bureau; also there is, as clandestine broadcasting, the "Voice of the Revolutionary Party for Reunification" which began broadcasting in April 1968 as the "South Korea Liberation Broadcasting" but changed its name on 1 June 1970. (See Table 7)

Table 7. North Korea's Broadcasting Network System



Regular television broadcasting began in 1969 but dissemination is very slow.

In the case of radio as well, there are more cable than wireless networks and 65 percent of total households listen to cable radio; the fact is that it is easier to control the residents this way.

III. Comparison of Social Problems

A. Social Deviation

All sorts of socially deviant acts such as juvenile delinquency, divorce, fraud, and sex crimes have different forms and rates of frequency depending on the nature of the social system; this derives from the system's structural principles and the nature of the basic mechanism for maintaining the system.

For example, in the ROK where the system of private ownership is guaranteed and social and economic activities are carried on around the free market economy, there are naturally many property crimes or deviant acts abusing the free atmosphere, whereas under North Korea's system of communist dictatorship, there are naturally many ideological crimes.

1. Types of Crimes

According to the "Political Dictionary" published by North Korea's Social Science Publishing Company, the things considered important in today's communist morality are "the collectivist spirit which holds the group's interests as more valuable than the individual's, the revolutionary spirit of self-reliance, the communist attitude toward labor, socialist patriotism and proletarian internationalism, and communist humanity and culture."

However, unlike the requirements of this communist morality, violating, socially deviant acts are found in many areas; looking at the types of crimes covered by North Korea's criminal law, there are crimes relating to opposition to state supremacy, injury to state officials, injury to state or collective group property, personal injury, injury to public property, violations of labor laws, crimes in conduct of official business, and economic crimes. These phenomena constitute no more than an example of the things that remain unresolved in spite of the North Korean Communists unrelenting efforts; the following is a rough classification of the types of crime frequently happening in North Korea.

Type of crime	Description	Cause	Remarks
Personal injury	Assault, rape, adultery, murder, arson	Excessive female presence in society, love, party control over marriage, unfree male/female relations	Many cases of rape and adultery by party and cooperative farm cadre

Type of crime	Description	Cause	Remarks
Economic crimes	Embezzlement of state property, black marketeering and embezzlement of foodstuffs, incorrect release of hard-to-get items, thievery by false reportings, excess profits, misappropriation	Thievery; basic lack of clothing, food, housing	Mostly by cadre of cooperative farms or economic organs working in economy sectors
Political and other crimes	Insulting Kim Il-song, antirevolutionary acts, escape, impure thought Gangsterism, pickpocketing	Residents disbelief in communism Poverty and dissatisfaction with regime, real expression of vanity

The above-listed types of crime and their descriptions show us churning dissatisfaction in the area of political ideology as well as the contradictions in the Kim Il-song system. In relation to these facts, the North Koreans reason that socially deviant acts have not been eliminated due to the parents' responsibility or the criminal's own personality, also they consistently explain it as vestiges of capitalism or vestiges of bourgeois thinking.

2. The Phenomena of Social Irrationality

Because social irrationality also reflects the natures of South and North Korea's systems, it is ultimately difficult to measure by direct comparison the phenomena of social irrationality which impair social stability; therefore, the nature of both societies' social irrationality must be clarified in the ramifications of these social systems. In the case of North Korea, the policy direction they have chosen and their process of policy determination indicate, continuously if fragmentarily, the various antisocialist and antisocial problems they are facing. Representative examples are the problems arising in the actions of party members in the 1973 "New Party Arbitration Transfer Work" or the aspects of social irrationality cited among the tasks at hand emphasized at the 1975 "Industrial Activists Meeting." These examples of the social irrationality and instability North Korea is facing can be summarized as follows: One, avoidance of study of the religion of Kim Il-song; two, neglect and disregard of party organization life; three, party members' and workers' negativism and lack of zeal; four, dislike of labor, avoidance of labor and violation of labor discipline; five, waste and misuse of state property and misuse of resources; six, continuation of outmoded thought such as technical mysticism, conservatism, empiricism, revisionism, capitalist thought and feudal Confucian thought; seven, bureaucratic, subjective, expedient and formalistic work ethics; and eight, antisocialist acts by the young intelligentsia and human alienation.

These phenomena, things noted by the North Koreans themselves, reflect the internal social consciousness of all the inhabitants of North Korea, and are seen to operate deeply as factors in social insecurity.

IV. Conclusion

Although we have fragmentarily compared within a limited scope the South and North Korean cultures whose systems have differing structural principles and maintenance mechanisms, we can see that South and North Korea, which once formed a single, common society, now have greater sociocultural differences than homogeneity or similarity and that as the years go by the intensifying of heterogeneity and the sharpening of confrontation between the systems will increase.

Now I will summarize my comparative results.

First, in the case of education, the ROK bases itself in the spirit of the People's Education Charter, and bringing this spirit to life, has the goal of fostering a Korean who can contribute to the development of the state and the revival of the nation; by contrast, North Korea has as its goal the fostering of communists imbued with class struggle and the unitary ideology, so that in North Korea education is nothing more than a tool for realizing the politics of communist dictatorship.

Second, in the ROK the mass media such as newspapers and broadcasting inform the opinions of all groups and classes and fulfill the function of widely enlightening and guiding the common masses whereas in North Korea they are used as means to maintain Kim Il-song's unitary system.

Third, in relation to social change, South and North Korea have various social problems resulting from the particular natures of their systems' structural principles and maintenance mechanisms; these social problems bring about social tension and psychological dissatisfaction, thereby leading the way to sociocultural reorganization.

[Article by Ho Shibata, Columnist for SANKEI SHIMBUN: "The Chon Tu-hwan Regime Aims for Another Miracle Growth"]

[Text]
The South Korean economy, which began to recover from the nadir of recession since last October, finally got on track in mid-June this year. I recently visited South Korea for two months and had the opportunity to observe its progress with my own eyes. The following is my report.

Following an "overheating" in 1977 and 1978, the South Korean economy began a decline in 1979 and continued the downward trend until, in August of the same year, it fell below the business barometer of 1.0 which represented the dividing point between recession and stability. During the six months from April 1980, it remained at a constant 0.4, which is the low point of an ongoing recession, without any prospect of recovery.

However, favorable export trends began to show early this year, productivity began to pick up and shipments began to increase, which lowered goods in stock. Recently, domestic demand has also been on an upward swing, resulting in a turnabout from stalemate conditions. The business barometer of 1.0 recorded by the Bank of South Korea on 6 August was the first in a year and 10 months since August 1979. South Korea's economy finally appeared to be on track towards growth.

As a tangible example of trends reflecting the business recovery, the Bank of South Korea revealed on 7 August that the aggregate plant investment funds loaned out as business funds during the month of July reached 140 billion "won." This is the highest monthly total recorded since the latter half of 1979. The monthly business loans made by banking institutions remained below 50 billion "won" from the last half of 1979 through February of this year, but the amount gradually rose until it exceeded 78.3 billion "won" in June and topped 100 billion "won" in July.

Manufacturing Industries Begin Climb

The sudden upsurge of investments in plants and facilities by the enterprises proves the effectiveness of the "measures to promote rationalization of industry and investment" adopted by the South Korean government last April, in order to stimulate investments. The measures centered on: (1) increased funds for plants and facilities to export industries and small and medium enterprises; (2) expansion of an emergency investment and tax exemption system; and (3) lower interest on secondary financing, such as calls and notes.

The revival of an initiative toward investment is premised on the outlook that (1) the business forcast index will show an estimated 1.0 for June, while the economic growth rate in the second quarter (April-June) will reach 3-4 percent, thus strengthening the base for a business recovery; (2) the recovery base will accelerate after the third quarter (July-September).

Also, with regard to the 60 major projects announced by the South Korea Economic Planning Administration on 11 August under the fourth 5-year plan for economic development ending this year, 42 projects are progressing according to schedule, while 18 projects are slightly behind schedule. Those slated to be completed this year include (1) the Okpo dockyard construction project undertaken by the Taesu Shipbuilding Company, (2) the double track railroad project between Yongdungpo and Suwon, (3) the Changnyong district agricultural development project, and (4) the Pusan-Masan highway construct project. The Okpo dockyard on Koje Island is a mammoth dockyard with an annual shipbuilding capacity of 1.2 million tons and a repair capacity of 680,000 tons. It will be capable of constructing special ships which require high technology, such as LPG (liquefied propane gas) and LNG (liquefied natural gas) tankers.

Also, according to the 6 August announcement by the Economic Planning Administration, 610,000 persons were unemployed in June, which is 62,000 less than the 672,000 unemployed in the same month a year ago. It means that the rate of unemployment in June dropped 0.5 percent from the 4.4 percent a year ago to 3.9 percent. The number of employed as of the end of June this year was 15,149,000--an increase of 390,000 from a year ago. The number of mining industrial workers declined somewhat after 1979, but turned upward for the first time recently.

There has been much other good news concerning the South Korean economy. On 8 August, the Economic Planning Administration announced that foreign capital brought into South Korea during the first six months (January-June) reached 3.5 billion 2 million dollars, which is 45.5 percent of the goal of 7.7 billion dollars sought for this year, and that the goal for the last six months (July-December) should be reached without trouble.

Plant Exports Continue

Additionally, negotiations have resulted successfully in the form of contracts for many major projects, such as the construction of the Palaupkomdo (phonetic) hydrocarbon pressurized distillation and dissolution plant for Singapore (order received by Tae Lim Industries), the construction of port and harbor facilities for Indonesia (order received by Sam Hwan Enterprises) and 200 items of rolling stock for Nigeria (order received by Hyundai General Trading Company).

Furthermore, according to the American business magazine FORTUNE's annual "List of The World's Top 500 Non-American Companies," ten South Korean companies are listed this year. It is the same number as last year. This year, however, they have climbed sharply in rank, except for two companies. Especially the Hyundai group jumped from its No 80 position last year to No 72, and it is the top ranking company among the developing countries and semi-developed countries.

What is the outlook for the last half of this year? According to the "economic trend for the first half of FY-81" (January-June) announced by the Economic Planning Administration on 24 July, exports are progressing smoothly, while industrial production and shipments are on the increase. This has resulted in lower supplies in stock and a constant base for economic recovery. It is estimated that the growth rate will reach 2.5 to 3 percent [the growth rate for the first quarter (January-March) was 1.2 percent], and that the business recovery will accelarate during the last half of the year (July-December) to reach 9-10 percent, thus establishing an annual rate of 6-7 percent.

Seven Percent Growth Rate Predicted

Also, according to a report made public by the South Korean Development and Research Institute (KDI) on 28 July, the outlook under the present economic policy indicates that (1) the economic growth rate for this year will be 6.5 percent, and a rate of 8 percent will be possible next year; (2) the fixed capital investment rate is minus 1.5 percent, but it should increase to 1 percent next year; (3) the current account deficit will be 5.5 billion dollars for both this year and next year; and (4) wholesale commodity prices rose by 24 percent this year, and are estimated to rise another 16 percent next year.

Meanwhile, the report hypothesizes that, if an expansion policy were adopted, (1) the currency volume would increase 25 to 30 percent; (2) interest rates would drop 2.5 percent; (3) the economic growth rate is 7 percent this year, but could rise to 9.5 percent next year; and (4) the employment figure could rise by 30,000 at the end of this year.

However, the Economic Planning Administration points out that the recent economic recovery is taking place under restraint factors, such as (1) weakening of the domestic demand base, (2) flagging plant investment by the enterprises, and (3) a slow economic recovery in foreign countries. It therefore warns that, if a policy to force stimulation of the economy is adopted, it would result in a greater burden on commodity prices and international balance of payments.

After all, the keynote for South Korea's economic recovery has been based on the removal of political anxiety since the last half of last year. It was brought about by the establishment of the Con Tu-hwan regime through constitutional revision, a national referendum, the presidential election and parliamentary elections.

Japan's Response Studied

The fourth 5-year economic development plan, which started under the Pak government, will wind up this year, and the "fifth economic and social development 5-year plan" (1982-86) will be launched next year. The fifth plan is not only a "preliminary" development plan, which will test the leadership of the Chon Tu-hwan regime, but is an ambitious plan which purports to repeat the "miracle of the Han River" of the Pak government.

On 10 August, the Economic Planning Administration unvieled the economic indices of the fifth 5-year plan. Compared with the tentative plan (mid-term plan) drafted in May, the growth rate and aggregate investment rate are somewhat adjusted upward while enchancement of economic independence is stressed by lower adjustments in the trade balance deficit and dependence on stockpiled overseas investment resources.

According to the economic indices, (a) the economic growth rate (annual average) will be 7.6 percent [9.2 percent in the fourth 5-year plan]; (b) the GNP (1986) will be 107,461.2 billion "won" [the goal for 1981 under the fourth plan is 16,214 billion "won"]; (c) the per capita GNP (1986) will be 3,471 dollars [the goal for 1981 under the fourth plan is 1,512 dollars]; (d) the aggregate investment rate will be 20.2 percent; (e) the investment rate for FY-86 will be 32.4 percent [domestic savings raee-29.6 percent; overseas savings rate-2.8 percent]; (f) exports (1986) will reach 53 billion dollars; (g) imports (1986) will total 55.5 billion dollars; and (h) the commodity price increase rate (annual average) will be 10.8 percent.

The fifth 5-year plan projects seven multi-purpose dams, including one in Antung, Kyongsang-pukto' the Taegu-Kwangju east-west superhighway; repaving of 334 kilometers of the west coast highway between Inchon and Mokpo' the fifth-stage road repaving project totalling 402 kilometers in Chungchong-namdo, Cholla-pukto, Cholla-namdo, Kyongsong-pukto and Kyongsong-namdo provinces; a new international airport in the capital area; an LNG import base; the development of the No 4 mining district; and construction of an oil pipeline between Yosu-Seoul and Ulsan-Taejon.

As South Korea faces a military threat from North Korea and is burdened with a heavy military budget of 5.6 percent of its GNP, how will Japan cooperate with its fifth 5-year plan? What will Japan do to correct South Korea's deficit in Japan-South Korea trade, which has reached an annual rate of 3 billion dollars? Japan's choice cannot be considered without a realistic awareness of the security of Northeast Asia.

INCREASING TRADE BETWEEN SOUTH KOREA, CHINA REPORTED

Tokyo TOITSU NIPPO in Japanese 19 Sep 81 p 1

[Article: "China: Stepped-Up Trade with South Korea"]

[Text] Trade between South Korea and China has increased greatly compared with last year. The 17 September issue of the newspaper CHUNG PAO reports a Hong Kong government office announcement that in the first half of this year South Korea received imports worth HK $97 million (about US $16 million) from China via Hong Kong.

This is an increase of 118 percent over the same period last year and indicates that Chinese exports to South Korea are increasing greatly.

South Korean exports to third countries via Hong Kong are up by 147 percent over the same period last year, to $169.2 million. Almost all of these exports are believed to have gone to China; and like China's exports to South Korea, South Korea's exports to China have more than doubled.

South Korean export to China is considered to have begun last year; but according to South Korean customs officials, in the 7 months between January and July of last year, South Korean exports to China, consisting primarily of fibers and chemical fertilizers, were worth $2.45 million.

South Korean imports from China were confirmed, though unofficially, in 1978. In that year there were complete failures of the garlic and red papper crops, and these agricultural products were imported in large quantities via Hong Kong in order to assure their availability.

Thus far, China has made public no details of its trade with South Korea, but the newspaper GUANGDONG RIBAO for 5 September reports that in the middle 10 days of last last month China exported 20 tons of ginger through Hong Kong, and on 16 September, alumni association [0681 1331 2585] head Hao Deqing [6787 1795 7230] and Deputy Minister of Foreign Trade Jia Shi [0328 4258] confirmed in an interview with Japanese Diet members visiting China that "We are actually engaged" in trade with South Korea.

Since this was the first time that high-ranking Chinese officials had confirmed the existence of trade between the two countries and since the volume of trade has increased greatly compared with last year, it is felt that a change has occurred in China's trade posture toward South Korea and that Chinese trade with South Korea may become even more active in the future.

Coal is said to be the main product imported from China, but although Chinese authorities acknowledge the fact of trade with South Korea, they avoid any discussion of the nature or price of the products exported or imported.

Reportedly this is because China is not in a position to ignore totally the wishes of North Korea, which has protested against South Korean-Chinese "rapprochement." On one occasion, vigorous North Korean protest prevented the carrying through of a commercial transaction in which South Korea was to import large quantities of coal from China, even though it had already been arranged through a Hong Kong company. This is illustrative of the long shadow which the "antagonism" between North Korea and South Korea casts on the indirect trade between China and South Korea, but in view of the fact that recently China has acknowledged its trade with South Korea several times, the indirect South Korean-Chinese trade seems to be undergoing great changes.

That in recent years China has conducted active research on the South Korean economy and Semaul Movement; Chinese officials were sent unofficially to observe steelmaking at P'ohang; and experts from Chinese government organizations were sent to the International Law of the Sea Conference sessions in Seoul this year--these may be important factors in the background of China's embarkation on active trade with South Korea.

Korea's undertaking trade with China has been pushed by both the government and the private sector since Chinese Minister of Foreign Trade Li Qiang [2621 1730] indicated in 1978 that trade with South Korea would be welcome by saying that "it would be very much in the interest of both China and South Korea."

Since the beginning of this year, in keeping with President Chou's basic foreign policy that "Foreign relations will be expanded regardless of differences in ideology and political systems," Korea has embarked on an active policy of improving its relations, first with China, and then with the Soviet Union and Eastern Europe.

Expansion of trade with communist countries has become a major task for South Korea, which aims, by expanding its number of export markets, to export products worth $50 billion by 1986, and in accordance with this policy it is likely to pursue a variety of diplomatic activities in order to expand its trade with China, which represents an immense neighboring export market.

PYONGYANG MEETING OBSERVES OCTOBER RESISTANCE ANNIVERSARY

SK271012 Pyongyang Domestic Service in Korean 0100 GMT 23 Oct 81

[Text] A Pyongyang report meeting was held at the Moranbong Theater on the afternoon of 22 October to commemorate the second anniversary of the October resistance of South Korean students and people for democracy.

Respectfully placed on the front wall of the meeting hall was a portrait of Comrade Kim Il-song, the great leader of our party and people. Posted in the meeting hall was the slogan: "Long live the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song and the glorious Korean Workers' Party!"

Participating in the meeting were Hong Ki-mun, vice chairman of the Committee for the Peaceful Reunification of the Fatherland; Chong Tu-hwan, Presidium member of the Central Committee of the Democratic Front for the Reunification of the Fatherland; Yom Kuk-yol, vice chairman of the Central Committee of the Korean Social Democratic Party; leading functionaries of public organizations; workers and students in the city.

The meeting opened with the singing of the song of General Kim Il-song.

Vice chairman Hong Ki-mun made a report. He said that the 1979 October resistance for democracy in Pusan and Masan, South Korea, was an eruption of the pent-up resentment and grievances of the people against the colonial fascist rule of the U.S. imperialists and the Pak Chong-hui puppet clique, their stooge, and a mass anti-imperialist, antifascist, democratic and nation-saving resistance against the cursed Yusin system and for the establishment of new democratic politics and order.

The great leader Comrade Kim Il-song has taught: Exploitation and repression evoke the people's resistance. It is natural for the South Korean people to struggle against the oppressors to achieve their freedom and liberation.

The speaker said that the October democratic resistance of South Korean students and people was a natural product of the atrocious Yusin fascist rule. He went on to say that the heinous, tyrannous fascist rule by the Pak Chong-hui puppet clique, patronized by the U.S. imperialists, forced the South Korean people to experience immeasurable sufferings and disasters. He said that the puppet clique's maneuvers for fascist tyranny and its antipopular and anticommunist rule evoked the hatred and enmity of the people, that the rancor and resentment of South Korean students and people developed into a mass riot touched off by the antigovernment struggle of the students of Pusan University on 16 October 1979. This struggle quickly developed into a great democratic, nation-saving struggle, encompassing almost all areas of the Yongnam District, he said.

He said that dashing to the street of resistance chanting the slogans "resign the dictatorial regime!' "abrogate the Yusin constitution!' "narrow the gap between the poor and the rich!" The students and citizens of Pusan assaulted and destroyed public buildings and attacked the enemy, thus converting the whole of Pusan into a whirlpool of resistance.

He went on to say that students and people rose in the struggle one after the other in Masan, Seoul, Kwangju, Taegu, Chonju, Chongju, Ulsan and other areas which seemed to spread throughout South Korea.

With the fierce showdown between democracy and fascism, the Yusin system faced a crisis. It resembled a wall soaked in water. The colonial rule of the U.S. imperialists was on the verge of collapse.

Pak Chong-hui, the ringleader of the notorious Yusin dictatorship, was killed by his confidant on 26 October 1979 when victory over dictatorship was near at hand. This was a stern punishment meted out by history to the Yusin dictator who, reigning over the South Korean people for many years, had resorted to fascist dictatorship and treacheries.

This was a just trial by fellow countrymen against an incorrigible traitor who had commited indelible crimes against the people.

The speaker said that the October resistance for democracy, with which South Korean students and people displayed their heroic spirit, was of great significance. The October resistance for democracy, he noted, dealt a heavy blow at the colonial military fascist rule of the U.S. imperialists and their stooges in South Korea, totally paralyzed the pullet ruling system and opened an occasion for a new turn in the South Korean people's struggle against fascism and for democracy.

He said: Following the October resistance for democracy, the people's patriotic advance toward demanding the complete abrogation of the fascist Yusin system and toward achieving democracy and peaceful reunification was rapidly stepped up in South Korea leading to the heroic uprising of the Kwangju citizens in May 1980, 7 months after the resistance which added the most shining chapter to the history of the modern struggle of the oriental people.

He said: Through the October resistance for democracy, South Korean students and people vigorously demonstrated the heroic, unyielding fighting spirit of the Korean people at home and abroad and brilliantly decorated the history of the anti-imperialist, antifascist and nation-saving struggle of the South Korean people for democracy and against foreign aggressors and their stooges. He continued: On the occasion of commemorating the second anniversary of the October resistance for democracy, I respectfully cherish the memory of the resistant warriors who were killed while courageously struggling on those unforgettable days in October to achieve freedom, democracy and the country's peaceful reunification and extend deep respect to their bereaved families and those who participated in the struggle.

Saying that the October resistance for democracy afforded a valuable lesson to the history of the anti-imperialist, antifascist and nation-saving struggle of the South Korean people, he urged South Korean students and people to struggle continuously and thoroughly until they seize power so as to win victory in their struggle for democratization and against fascism. He also urged the primary masses, such as the workers and peasants, to actively join this struggle, perform their assigned duty, wage struggles in a systematic manner and closely combine this struggle with an anti-U.S. struggle.

He said that although the October resistance for democracy failed to win final victory, South Korean students and people gained a precious experience through this struggle: If they unite firmly and rise in a mass struggle, they can readily smash any citadel of fascism.

He said that two years after the October resistance for democracy, the desire of the South Korean people for freedom, democracy and the country's peaceful reunification has been violated more mercilessly than before and that they have been forced to experience additional cruel misfortunes and sufferings.

He said that traitor Chon Tu-hwan--the outrageous fascist hangman who emerged as chieftain of the Yusin remnants with the support of the U.S. masters--in order to shore up the crumbling Yusin system and to realize his ambition to hold power, declared emergency martial law in all areas of South Korea, banned political activities in any form, including the activities of political parties and public organizations, indiscriminately arrested and imprisoned all of those who disagreed with him, and unhesitatingly committed frantic oppression and atrocities which were not even committed by the heinous former dictator.

In particular, he said that the fascist military hooligans of South Korea surpassed all fascist dictators of the world in the bestiality and cruelty they showed during the atrocity of killing compatriots in Kwangju.

Fearful of the youths and students, who are filled with a burning sense of justice, the Chon Tu-hwan clique is now concentrating on fascist campus repression and making last-ditch efforts to thwart the patriotic advance of the students, he said, and continued: Today, at colleges and high schools in South Korea, students who participate in the struggle for democratization and others who disagree with the clique are expelled from school on unjustifiable pretexts.

He said that the clique established a network of fascist oppression not only among students, but also among people of all strata such as workers, peasants, intellectuals and religious people and has put their every word and act under surveillance. It is arresting innocent people without justification and committing outrageous atrocities against them.

The unprecedented fascist repression being committed in South Korea is sustained by a military fascist system more atrocious than the former Yusin system, he said, and pointed out: The Chon Tu-hwan clique enacted various kinds of fascist evil laws or further intensified them while drastically bolstering the oppressive organizations and forces. By so doing, the clique has turned South Korea into a huge prison and a kingdom of fascist shackles.

The speaker said: Today, in South Korea, people cannot express their opinion on democracy and peaceful reunification, nor can they discuss is candidly. In the midst of the continuing fear and terror, they are in a miserable situation in which they can only expect prison, the gallows and death.

The fascist Chon Tu-hwan clique, which has brought everything in South Korea under the fascist military dictatorial system, is fully subservient to the aggressive war policy of the U.S. imperialists and getting more feverish in new war preparations against their compatriots, the speaker said and noted: Today, in South Korea, in accord with the criminal war policy against the northern half of the republic, the number of puppet troops has increased, the weaponry of the puppet forces is being further modernized, and the war industry and military facilities are being constantly bolstered and expanded.

He pointed out that, because of the reckless military adventurism of the traitorous Chon Tu-hwan clique, a dangerous situation in which a full-scale war can break out at any time is being created in our country.

The traitorous Chon Tu-hwan clique is bringing the situation to the brink of war by further aggravating the tense situation. It is desperately obstructing the peaceful reunification of the country, the cherished desire of the nation, the speaker said, and added: Today, in South Korea, the anticommunist commotions aimed at promoting antagonism against the northern half of the republic are being intensified more than ever before and unification through annihilation of communists is openly urged.

The speaker said: Traitor Chon Tu-hwan constantly harps on the proposal for mutual visits which has become a laughingstock of the world and babbles about the so-called peaceful unification. But, this is nothing but a trick aimed at concealing his divisive and belligerent nature and to realize his wicked objectives to transform his poor image, sustain the crumbling fascist military regime and achieve the ambition for long-term power.

Traitor Chon Tu-hwan is perhaps qualified to be a chieftain of murderers and military hooligans. However, under no circumstances can he become a person in supreme authority in South Korea, the speaker pointed out. If we deal with him, the speaker noted, it would mean a betrayal of the patriotic Kwangju strugglers and other South Korean patriots and people who were relentlessly killed by him while struggling for democracy and reunification. It would also mean an insult to the democratic personages, youths and students who were arrested and imprisoned by the fascist hangmen and are suffering in prison.

The United States is to blame for the fact that the desire of the people for democracy and reunification is savagely trampled underfoot and a tragic situation has been created in South Korea today, the speaker said, and continued: That a military hooligan such as Chon Tu-hwan--who was totally unknown to the people--could become a new fascist dictator overnight in South Korea, that he could mobilize the enormous troops under the ROK-U.S. combined forces command to bring the Kwangju popular uprising under control, and that he has put South Korea under an atrocious fascist military system to commit all kinds of crimes at his disposal--all this is unthinkable without U.S. manipulation and protection.

Saying that the criminal atrocities of the fascist Chon Tu-hwan military clique are only arousing a stronger resistance of the South Korean people, he pointed out that the South Korean youths, students and people who eliminated the ringleaders of the Yusin dictatorship through the October resistance for democracy do not surrender to the relentless oppression but are fighting courageously by turning out in the patriotic struggle for democracy and peaceful reunification of the country.

Availing himself of this occasion marking the second anniversary of the October resistance for democracy, he said that he sent, in the name of the people of the northern half of the republic, warm compatriotic support and encouragement to the South Korean youths, students and people waging the persistent struggle for democracy and peaceful reunification of the country in the midst of the relentless fascist oppressive rule of the Chon Tu-hwan clique.

The courageous resistance which the South Korean people, youths and students carried out for democracy in October 2 years ago has not yet ended, the speaker said, and emphasized: The urgent desire of the fighters of the October resistance, who rose up for independence, democracy and reunification without fear of prison and the gallows, must be realized at an early date.

He pointed out that, to have their noble desire realized, first of all, the present fascist military rule must be removed and the democratization of the society be achieved in South Korea. He said that in South Korea all fascist evil laws must be rescinded and all oppressive organizations liquidated, and that the democratic personages, including Kim Tae-chung and patriotic people who were unjustly arrested and sent to prison, must be released and free political activities of political parties, public organiztions and individual personages guaranteed.

He said that traitor Chon Tu-hwan must step down at once from the power he illegally seized and the present military fascist regime must be replaced by a patriotic and democratic regime seeking democracy and the country's independent and peaceful reunification.

Stressing that, in order for the defenseless people to win victory in the struggle against the armed military fascist clique, they should firmly unite and unfold a common struggle, the reporter said that South Korean people of all walks of life should completely eliminate the Chon Tu-hwan fascist clique by forming the united front of antifascism and democracy and by letting the entire land of South Korea seethe with the strong flames of resistance for antifascism and democracy.

He said that the United States must refrain from obstructing the reunification of Korea, stop supporting the Chon Tu-hwan military fascism clique, the target of hatred of the South Korean people, sincerely accept our just proposal for concluding a peace agreement and withdraw its troops and nuclear weapons from South Korea at the earliest possible date.

He stressed: In order to achieve the national desire for reunifying the fatherland, the new proposal for founding a confederal state advanced by the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song should be realized. He continued: The proposal for founding the Democratic Confederal Republic of Koryo [DCRK] put forward by the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song is a most reasonable reunification program elucidating the path by which the reunification problem of the country can be solved in conformity with the specific realities of our country. It is also a most just and fair reunification charter acceptable to anyone. Anyone who loves the country and the nation and who truly desires peaceful reunification must actively struggle to carry into practice the proposal for founding the DCRK advanced by the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song.

He said: To realize the proposal for founding the DCRK at the earliest possible date, all Korean people must firmly unite under the banner of fatherland reunification, transcending differences in ideologies, ideals, systems and political views. In order for the whole nation to firmly unite, representatives of political parties, groups and personages of all walks of life in the north, the south and overseas must have contact and dialogue.

Saying that the situation today makes it urgent to arrange the venue of such a nationwide dialogue for reunification, a conference for the promotion of national reunification already proposed by us, he stressed: Representatives of political parties, groups and personages of all circles in the north, the south and overseas desirous of reunification should sit at one table for dialogue on reunification at an early date and seek a path to reunification together and take practical steps to implement it.

He said: As long as all South Korean people, youths and students unanimously demand democracy and peaceful reunification and all Korean people and peace-loving peoples of the world actively support and encourage the just and patriotic struggle of the South Korean people, the South Korean people's national salvation struggle against imperialism and fascism and for democracy will surely be victorious.

Stressing that today the people of the northern half of the republic are faced with a sacred mission to implement the grandiose struggle program set forth by the Sixth KWP Congress ahead of schedule and to achieve the historic cause of reunifying the country at the earliest possible date, the reporter said: We must first of all cherish infinite loyalty to the great leader and the party center and vigorously accelerate the cause of imbuing society with the chuche idea.

In conclusion, the speaker said: Holding aloft the revolutionary banner of the great chuche idea, all of us must firmly unite around the respected and beloved leader Comrade Kim Il-song and the glorious party center and vigorously continue to struggle for the independent and peaceful reunification of the fatherland, for the complete victory of socialism and for fulfillment of the cause of chuche.

CHOE HONG-HUI PRESS CONFERENCE IN PYONGYANG

SK240239 Pyongyang Domestic Service in Korean 0500 GMT 20 Oct 81

[Remarks by Choe Hong-hui, publisher of PAEDAL SINBO and president of the International Federation of Taekwondo, at press conference in Pyongyang on 19 October--read by announcer]

[Text] Speaking first at the press conference, Mr Choe Hong-hui said: Last year I visited the homeland for the first time in several dozen years. My emotions at that time could hardly be expressed in writing. In a way, it might have been natural for me to be surprised at the totally changed appearance of the homeland on my visit last year. However, on this visit I could only find the word "surprised" to describe the transformation made in only a year, not 10 years--a fleeting second when compared to the length of human history. We hear that the rivers and mountains change in 10 years, but I believe there is not a saying that the rivers and mountains change in one year. Nevertheless, this description, which we cannot find even in proverbs, is suitable for describing my homeland.

He continued to relate his feeling about the visit to the homeland: I am convinced that this is a true world for people to live in. I have frequently heard overseas compatriots who had visited the homeland say that it is a paradise. Upon hearing such remarks, some people expressed doubts and asked how could they say such things about this country after superficially seeing it in less than one month, without ever having lived there. I ask these people: Should you slaughter all the oxen in the world and taste them to know how beef tastes? You could know how beef tastes even after eating a kun of beef. And I advise them to visit the homeland if they are so doubtful about it.

Indeed, my homeland is a cultured country where none worry about food, clothing and housing, all enjoy longevity in good health and none pay taxes. It suffers nothing by comparison with a utopia which human beings have longed for.

It is very presumptuous of me, but I tried to find some of its weak points this time. However, I could not find a weak point in the homeland during my tour of every aspect and every area such as the capital and the districts, cities and rural communities, and agriculture and industry. The deeper I understand the situation here, the more advantages and gratifying aspects of this society I find. This is my frank confession.

The economic potential here simply surpasses my imagination. Constructed or under construction in Pyongyang during past year are the Grand People's Study Hall--one of the world's largest--the Mirim sluice gates, Changgwang Street, the Munsu Street, which itself looks like a city. Indeed, the homeland's economic power, which advances beyond recognition with creation and construction every hour and every day, is great.

While staying here I read a report about the decision to reclaim 300,000 hectares of tideland and acquire 200,000 hectares of new land, and construct the Nampo lockgate and the Taechon power station in a few years, and I am convinced that it will be carried into practice without fail. Such great works which subjugate nature to mankind and transform the nation's map cannot even be imagined without economic power.

The strength of the unity of the whole nation is an unequalled, matchless strength without parallel in the world or in history. No big power can match such a country where the leader and the people are one in body and spirit and the will of the popular masses is unanimous; a country where not only the adults but also the children think and act as one, this is the source of powerful and most fundamental national strength.

My homeland is a great country which stands in the splotlight of the world. In a period of 20 days while I stayed in the homeland, three foreign state leaders visited this country and, shortly before I came here, a symposium on world food and agricultural production was held here with attendance of delegations and delegates from 81 nations and 14 international organizations. And now delegations and delegates from some 100 countries are daily coming into our country to attend a congress of the homeland's youth organization. Reviewing such phenomena, I realized that people from other countries continually come here to learn something from this country. Otherwise, why should they spend money to come to such a small country in the Far East. Indeed, my country abounds in things to learn from and benefit by.

This fatherland of mine, the cradle of the great chuche idea which is the guiding compass of the contemporary world, which liberated itself from the colonial yoke and won sovereignty and independence by itself and which today proudly ranks among the advanced countries of the world, is without a doubt the paragon for the small nations, the developing countries of the world, I believe.

The amazing development of the fatherland and its high prestige in the world today is thanks to the great President Kim Il-song. Nature is the same as it was and the people are the same as they were. And yet, how is it that this country, once backward and poor, has been able to reach the ranks of the advanced countries of the world by making such a surprising leap in only 30 years? This is no doubt due to the greatness of the leader, I believe.

If a family is to lead a happy life, the master of the family should play the role as the master. Likewise, the prestige and state affairs of a country are influenced by the leadership of the leader who governs the country.

President Kim Il-song is the greatest, most illustrious and most peerless great man and giant among the great men known to history. There are special things in the universe. But the man imposingly rising above all, the lord of the creation, the man who cuts a conspicuous figure and enjoys reverence of whole mankind, the man who throws light on the destiny of all mankind, the man whom we cannot but call "a great man who descended from heaven," this man, I think, is the respected and beloved President Kim Il-song, the leader of our nation and the spiritual pillar of the small nations of the world.

During my meeting with the great president--with the utmost honor of being allowed to see him--and during my tour of every place of the fatherland where the footprints of his leadership are clearly marked, I could once again keenly feel and affirm his matchless greatness and his noble personality and virtuous character. The president is a hero possessed of clairvoyant intelligence, a tender-hearted father possessed of great magninimity and tolerance, and the noblest virtues, a possessor of matchless intelligence and courage scaring any formidable enemy out of his wits and forcing violent nature to fall on its knees and bow, and an immortal light of the universe.

Because of the president, who has performed the most glorious and brilliant feats and exploits in history, there exist the dignity, honor and glory of our nation. Because our nation upholds the president, it possesses happiness.

It is gratifying to have today's happiness. But, what is more gratifying is the fact that we firmly believe that tomorrow is bright, too.

The greatest misfortune for a family is that there is a break in the family line. The greatest joy for a family is to have a future generation which will carry on the family line.

This is true with the case of a country and nation. Recalling the history of our nation, the country of our ancestors was a country which possessed powerful strength. Then, the nation experienced countless ups and downs, and twists and turns during the latter part of its history. This was because the destiny of the nation was toyed with by a group of the corrupt and incompetent rulers seeking only their personal welfare.

However, with the beginning of our generation, the nation received the matchless great man, President Kim Il-song, as leader. As a result, the nation is now able to display its greatness to the world.

Glorifying and passing on to our descendents the shining achievements of the president is a supreme desire of our people. This desire can be realized only when an inheritor of the cause of the president is correctly chosen. It is very good that the fatherland has now chosen the wise Mr Kim Chong-il as the leader who will help achieve the cause of the president and inherit it.

The miraculous development of the fatherland is attributable to the wise leadership of the great president and the energetic activities of the leader [chidoja seasangnim] of many talents.

Everywhere in the fatherland, I witnessed the shining achievements the leader has won by securing the cause of the president and implementing his intention. At the same time, I had great sympathy for the incessant praise of his greatness by the people of the fatherland. The esteemed leader is indeed the genius of ideology and theory, the genius of the art of leadership, the master of guidance with noble virtue and character, and the greatest sage among the sages in history. To have the wise leader is the greatest pleasure, honor and happiness of our nation.

I am filled with vigor since I now have faith in the shining future of the fatherland.

To achieve the reunification of the nation sooner or later is a matter of course. Thanks to the deepest concern for the reunification of the fatherland which the world leader President Kim Il-song shows, the reunification of the fatherland will certainly be achieved. The proposal for the establishment of a confederal state which was personally worked out and proclaimed by the great president is a just great program for reunification. There is no other way but to found a confederal state for peaceful reunification of the country under the condition in which our nation has diametrically different systems in the North and the South. I fully support the proposal for achieving the reunification by founding a confederal state.

If the cause of national reunification is to be accomplished, all fellow countrymen must achieve a great unity and, to this end, the Chon Tu-hwan clique, the group of traitors engaged in murder and repression, division and war, must be eliminated. Without the elimination of this clique, a group of the most relentless outrageous military hooligans and savages, neither the unity of the nation nor peaceful reunification can be achieved. This group of traitors is completely abhorred, condemned and repudiated by the whole nation and its downfall is now only a matter of time.

The United States must not support the Chon Tu-hwan group--the target of curse and resentment of our fellow countrymen--discontinue interfering in the internal affairs of our nation and promptly withdraw its troops along with the nuclear weapons introduced into the South.

I am determined to devote myself to the reunification of the fatherland. What man dreads most is to die. However, more dreadful than death is, needless to say, a breach of faith. And what pleases man most is to live long. However, more pleasant than that is to keep faith.

With the sense of duty to serve and to devote myself to the cause of the reunification of the nation, I am now leaving my fatherland only to return soon.

Finally, I respectfully wish the respected and beloved President Kim Il-song, the benefactor, father and leader of the nation, good health and long life and the respected and admired Mr Kim Chong-il [Kyongmo Hanun Kim Chong-il Songsaengnim] good health. Thank you.

KIM IL, CHOE HONG-HUI JOINT STATEMENT

SK211608 Pyongyang KCNA in English 1539 GMT 21 Oct 81

[Text] Pyongyang, 21 Oct (KCNA)--A joint statement on talks held between Comrade Kim Il, vice-president of the Democratic People's Republic of Korea and chairman of the committee for the peaceful reunification of the fatherland, and Mr. Choe Hong-hui, former commander of a South Korean "ROK" army corps, former ambassador of South Korea to Malaysia, publisher of PAEDAL SINBO in Canada and president of the International Federation of Taekwondo, was released in Pyongyang on October 20.

The statement noted that Mr. Choe Hong-hui paid his second visit to the homeland from September 28 to October 20.

Pointing out that talks were held between Comrade Kim Il and Mr. Choe Hong-hui, the statement said: At their talks held in an atmosphere of mutual understanding and trust, Comrade Kim Il and Mr. Choe Hong-hui, taking note of the fact that an agreement was reached in their talks held in September last year on a series of problems of principle for putting an end to the division of the country and achieving its reunification and joint information released and confirming that the new proposal for founding the Democratic Confederal Republic of Koryo advanced by the great leader President Kim Il-song is a most realistic and reasonable policy for national reunification, reached a complete unanimity of views on the following important problems arising in founding a confederal state:

1. The Chon Tu-hwan military fascist rule must be liquidated and society be democratised in South Korea.

The fascist evil laws and repressive apparatuses must be abolished, democratic liberties and rights be ensured to all people and the freedom of the formation and activities of democratic political parties and organisations be guaranteed in South Korea.

Illegally arrested and jailed students and democratic figures including Kim Tae-chung must be acquitted and an immediate end be put to the suppression and persecution of South Korean patriots, overseas democratic figures and compatriots who are waging a righteous struggle for democracy and the peaceful reunification of the country.

The Chon Tu-hwan group opposing the reunification of the country and seeking its permament split must immediately step down from power and the military fascist "regime" be replaced by a democratic government.

2. Tensions must be eased and the danger of war removed in Korea.

The United States must discontinue its armd buildup in South Korea, withdraw the illegally introduced nuclear and other mass destruction weapons and give up a new dangerous plan to deploy neutron bombs in South Korea. The United States must respond to the fair proposal of the government of the Democratic People's Republic of Korea to replace the Korean armistice agreement with a peace agreement and promptly turn up at Korea-U.S. negotiations.

The South Korean rulers must immediately stop the reckless act in massively [word indistinct] military equipment and destructive weapons from foreign countries on the pretext of the fictitious "threat of southward invasion" and staging adventurous military exercises against the northern half of the DPRK to aggravate tensions and lead the situation to the brink of war.

3. The "two Koreas" policy of the United States and its interference in the internal affairs of Korea must be checked.

The United States must renounce the criminal "two Koreas" policy and refrain from obstructing the reunification of Korea and withdraw its troops from South Korea at an early date.

The United States must stop defending and "assisting" the present ruling group of South Korea seeking anticommunism, fascism, war and split and discontinue meddling in the affairs of the Koreans.

4. The traitor Chon Tu-hwan's "proposal for mutual visits" must be strongly rejected.

The so-called "proposal for mutual visits" and "supplementary proposal" are a product of the conspiratorial tactics to prevent the influence of the proposal for founding the Democratic Confederal Republic of Koryo, delude public opinion at home and abroad, prolong the military fascist rule and create "two Koreas."

Chon Tu-hwan massacring fellow countrymen and going against democracy and reunification is not entitled to participate in a sacred reunification dialogue for discussing important matters of the nation.

5. To wage an all-nation patriotic movement for supporting and carrying into effect the proposal for founding a confederal state at home and abroad, broad contacts and dialogues must be held between personages of various circles in the North and the South and abroad.

In particular, we consider that the August 6 proposal of the political parties and organisations in the northern half of the DPRK on convening a conference for the promotion of national reunification to be represented by political parties, groupings and personages of various circles in the North, the South and abroad desirous of reunification is a most reasonable step for removing hurdles lying in the way of national reunification and promoting the cause of reunification at present.

The dialogue now being held between personages in the North and abroad will be helpful to the convocation of a conference for the promotion of national reunification.

Bilateral and multilateral dialogues between different parties, groupings and personages of various circles in the North, the South and abroad should be more widely held to convene a conference for the promotion of national reunification at an early date and discuss the proposal for the establishment of a confederal state and other questions related to reunification.

6. All the compatriots at home and abroad must firmly unite under the banner of national reunification, transcending differences in idea and ideology, social system and political view.

Those who truly desire the reunification of the country should put to the fore the commonness of the nation, putting aside the differences in idea and ideology, social system, party affiliation, religious belief and political view, and strive to achieve nation-wide unity. They should reject antinational, anti-communism in South Korea and abroad and take the road of patriotic alliance with communism, the road of great national unity.

Comrade Kim Il and Mr. Choe Hong-hui expressed the belief that their second talks following the talks last year will contribute to further deepening mutual understanding and trust and promoting national unity and the cause of reunification and manifested the determination to work more closely joining hands in the future, too, to bring earlier the reunification of the country, the cherished desire of the nation.

WELCOMING CEREMONY HELD FOR NORTH KOREAN DEFECTOR

SK260232 Seoul YONHAP in English 0157 GMT 26 Oct 81

[Text] Seoul, Oct. 26 (YONHAP)--A welcoming ceremony for a North Korean defector was held at the Sejong Cultural Center in downtown Seoul Monday morning, with Mayor Pak Yong-su, administrator Yi Chong-ho of the South Korean Veteran Administration office and about 1,800 other Seoulites representing every walk of life.

The North Korean resident Pae Pyong-kwan, 32, stole across the lower Han River on a drifting plastic water container to South Korea on August 31, taking advantage of river's being particularly swollen because of torrential rains.

Pae reportedly listened to broadcasts aired from South Korea, including Seoul, and for a long time longed to live where people enjoy freedom.

In his welcoming address, Seoul Mayor Pak said that "All Seoulites offer cheers and encouragement to freedom fighter Pae, who succeeded in running away for the republic," and added that all Koreans should stand up against Pyongyang's "Kim Il-song gang" who are always preoccupied with "the schemes of attacking the south."

Pak presented Pae with Seoul citizenship papers and various gifts.

Defector Pae revealed that "North Korea is now busy preparing for another Korean war, with leader Kim Il-song, and his son and heir apparent Kim Chong-il, driving the resident very hard," and added that the number of people who are rising in revolt against the Kim Il-song's system is increasing gradually.

Pae also indicated that there are many signs that North Korean leaders are considerably concerned about the rising discontentment of the residents.

In Monday's ceremony for Pae, the North Korean defector received numerous gifts of money and mementos from Seoulites, including veteran administration office administrator Yi.

The ceremony was arranged by the Korea Anti-Communist League.

PATRIOTIC REUNIFICATION MOVEMENTS BY KOREANS IN SOUTH, OVERSEAS URGED

Pyongyang NAMJOSON MUNJE in Korean No 7, 1981 pp 7-8

[Article by Wi Cahe-hyop: "To Launch an All-People Patriotic Movement for Fatherland Reunification in South Korea and Overseas Is an Urgent Requirement for the Creation of a Confederate State"]

[Text] The respected and beloved leader, Comrade Kim Il-song, who is the sun of our people and a great component of national reunification, answered questions raised by the delegates of the Xinhau News Agency, who visited our country on 23 April [1981]. In his reply, he fully clarified the requirements to carry out a plan for the creation of the Democratic Republic of Koryo [DCRK]. He emphasized the need to launch an all-people patriotic movement in South Korea and overseas.

The great leader, Comrade Kim Il-song, taught us as follows: "To accelerate the creation of the DCRK as early as possible, it is an urgent task to extensively launch an all-people patriotic movement in South Korea and overseas, in order to support and carry out the plan [for the DCRK]."

The plan to create the DCRK proposed by the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song, is the most realistic and just reunification plan under the present condition in which different ideologies and systems exist in the north and south. His proposal represents the unanimous intentions and wishes of all Koreans to rationally solve the reunification problem, taking into consideration the basic benefits and requirements of the people.

To all Koreans, nothing is more important and urgent than the task of accelerating the creation of the DCRK in respectful support of the patriotic and fraternal reunification plan put forward by the great leader.

In accelerating the creation of the DCRK, one of the most important problems that stand out at present is to launch an extensive all-people patriotic movement for national reunification in South Korea and overseas.

In short, the problem is related to the all-people character of the task of creating a confederate state. It is also related to the mission and role of the people of South Korea and overseas Koreans in carrying out the great reunification task.

The task of creating a confederate state is not to benefit any particular class, stratum, or individual political party, nor is it to benefit a particular region, north or south.

It is a sacred task to fulfill the unanimous intentions and wishes of all people who long for the reunification of the country and people. It is a patriotic and fraternal task to accomplish unified development and shared prosperity of the people

Thus, the grand task of national reunification in order to create the confederate state cannot be accomplished through the effort of people of only one region or that of an individual class or stratum. It is an all-people task that can be accomplished only through a combined and unified campaign of all who love this country and people. In other words, to create the DCRK, all components of the people, whether they live in the north, south, or overseas, should realize their noble mission and duty for the country and people. They should also unanimously and vigorously launch a patriotic movement by all the people for national reunification.

Today, with a firm resolution to definitely accomplish the grand task of national reunification within our generation, the people of the northern half are doing their best to create the DCRK as soon as possible according to the plan proposed by the great leader, Comrade Kim Il-song. The people of the northern half are vigorously launching a campaign to destroy the conspiracy by domestic and foreign separatists to create "two Koreas" and to achieve great solidarity among our people. They are also agressively supporting and encouraging all just and patriotic campaigns for democracy and national reunification by the people of South Korea and by overseas Koreans.

Under these conditions, the [success of the] acceleration of the creation of the DCRK depends on whether the all-people patriotic movement is vigorously launched or not in South Korea and overseas.

Here, the most urgent requirement is to vigorously launch patriotic movements especially in South Korea in order to support and realize the plan to create the confederate state.

This is so because the conspiracy by domestic and foreign separatists is launched mainly from bases in South Korea.

The bosses of the separatists, the American imperialists, continue the military occupation of South Korea in order to create "two Koreas" by all means. The bosses also continuously instigate the South Korean puppet gang to divide the people.

The South Korean puppet gang does not accept any rational plan to reunify the fatherland and madly maneuvers to divide the Korean people, with the criminal intention of enjoying power and pleasure obtained through the creation of "two Koreas" and the installation of South Korea as a permanent colony of the American imperialists.

In order to accomplish national reunification by creating the DCRK, these facts, above all, urgently require that an all-people patriotic movement be launched vigorously in South Korea.

If the South Korean people participate extensively for the all-people patriotic movement, then they could greatly hurt domestic and foreign separatists. They could also successfully accelerate the task of creating the DCRK.

To launch the all-people patriotic movement for national reunification in South Korea is also an important requirement to promote the formation of the Grand National Reunification Front [GNRF] and accelerate the creation of the confederate state.

The formation of the GNRF is a prerequisite and a guarantee for the creation of the confederate state. To create the DCRK, therefore, everyone should be solidly united under the banner of national reunification regardless of differences in idologies, systems, factions, and political views. An important problem here is to promote the vigorous growth in South Korea of a unionist group that demands the creation of the confederate state.

In particular, promotion of the growth of the unionist group becomes a more urgent problem in view of the current reunification movement conducted by the South Korean people.

Today, among the people of South Korea, the tencency to support the plan to create the confederate state and to demand its realization is increasing. Yet, the unionist group in South Korea is not powerful enough to overcome the separatist group. The unionists are not fully playing a leading role in developing the situation. Thus, the national reunification group in South Korea does not play its expected role and does not contribute its expected share in the task to form the GNRF. To promote, therefore, the growth and unity of the national reunification group in South Korea becomes an urgent requirement to accomplish national unity between the north and south and step up the grand task of reunification. For this purpose, the all-people patriotic movement, which supports and accelerates the creation of the DCRK, must be launched extensively among all sorts of South Korean people.

To accelerate the creation of the DCRK, it is also necessary to vigorously launch among overseas Koreans an all-people patriotic movement to support and realize the [DCRK] plan.

Besides the 700,000 Koreans in Japan, hundreds of thousands of Koreans are living overseas. They also suffer from all types of pains and calamities caused by the national division. From Japan, the U.S., and all other regions where overseas Koreans live, a strong voice is heard condemning the conspiracy to create "two Koreas" by the puppets of the American imperialists and demanding the independent and peaceful reunification of the country. In particular, overseas patriots are organizing various organizations and groups for national reunification, and participating aggressively in the task to accelerate the creation of the confederate state.

The all-people patriotic movement by overseas Koreans directed toward the creation of the confederate state not only hurts severly domestic and foreign separatists and corners them into a difficult situation, but also significantly contributes to encourage the national reunification movement by the South Korean people and to launch a more vigorous movement for international solidarity in support of the reunification of Korea.

Under these conditions, in order to support and realize the creation of the confederate state, to launch patriotic movements extensively in all continents and areas where overseas Koreans reside is an urgent requirement for the acceleration of the creation of the DCRK through the united power of the people achieved by transforming the national reunification campaign to an all-people campaign including all Koreans, both domestic and overseas.

To launch extensive, all-people patriotic movements as described above in South Korea and overseas in support of the creation of the confederate state is truly significant in smashing the conspiracy to create "two Koreas" by the American imperialists and their puppets, in forming the GNRK, and also in accelerating the great task of national reunification.

If the Koreans in the south and overseas bear in mind their honorable national duty and carry out the national reunification movement more vigorously, the desire of the Korean people to create the DCRK will certainly be fulfilled.

FY82 BUDGET PROPOSAL DETAILED

Seoul MAEIL KYONGJE SINMUN in Korean 19 Sep 81 pp 2-3

[Excerpt] The outline of the FY82 budget has become known to be 9,595,600,000,000 won for General Accounts and 5,173,200,000,000 won for Special Accounts, a total of 14,768,800,000,000 won.

The scale and content of this budget, which was proposed by the Economic Planning Board, are unlikely to be changed in their basic structure during the course of deliberation by the Cabinet and the National Assembly, though some amendments might occur. We will explain how the new budget is composed and what programs are scheduled.

The General Accounts budget of 9,595,600,000,000 won for the new fiscal year is only 44,400,000,000 won short of 10 trillion won.

Is this amount reasonable in view of our economic scale and conditions?

First of all, the main budget of 7,851,100,000,000 won for General Accounts is larger than the FY81 budget by 1,744,400,000,000 won, an increase of 22.2 percent.

Last year, our economy recorded a negative growth owing to an unprecedentedly poor harvest, inflation, and stagnant business conditions. When we consider the fact that the economy has not improved this year either, the new budget, which will be increased by 22.2 percent, is certainly a burden on taxpayers.

The new budget, however, cannot be considered as an expansive one compared to the growth rate of the budget in the past several years, which averaged about 30 percent.

The growth rate of the budget was 29.8 percent for FY79, 28 percent for FY80, and 35.3 percent for FY81, for an average increase of 31 percent during FY77-81; this rate is far greater than the 27.5 percent growth in the normal GNP during the same period. The increase of 22.2 percent for the new fiscal year (19.2 percent from the adjusted budget), however, is less than the 23.1 percent growth in normal GNP. This can be interpreted as a clear effort [by the government] to restrain the expansion of the budget.

This effort to control the size of the budget is interpreted not only as a recognition of limits on taxation but also as an intention to stabilize prices by healthy financial management, in view of the past experience that excessive budgetary expansion resulted in economic inflation.

The livelihood of a nation is the same as that of a family. If the size of a household and prices increase with time, one needs more money. Can the country meet its household needs with a restrained budget?

For this reason the budget office has resolved to agressively trim waste from the budget, set priorities in fiscal investments, and to live frugally.

For instance, the defense expenditures for national security are indispensable but limited to six percent of the GNP. Grants to local governments have been nailed down to not more than 12 percent of the domestic tax revenue.

As a result, though the new budget proposal reaches nearly 10 trillion won, generous spending is not evident. In every part of the budget, austerity and cost savings are emphasized more than in any previous [fiscal] period.

Those items, however, that occupy an absolute majority of the budget, such as defense expenditures, grants to local governments, and wages of government employees, cannot be managed with any flexibility.

Accordingly, the drive for fiscal restraint has concentrated on the expenses for general administration, social development, and economic development. The departments responsible for economic and social developments, which planned agressive projects for the new fiscal year, requested budgets larger than the current ones by 125 percent and 120 percent, respectively, but they have been greatly reduced.

The new budget proposal thus adjusted and classified by function is: defense (34.4 percent), social development (26.6 percent, including education), economic development (17.6 percent), general administration (10.5 percent), grants to local governments (7.5 percent), and debt service and others (3.4 percent).

Grants to local governments increased the most by 38.8 percent compared to the FY81 budget. The education budget, which will be financed from a new education tax starting next year, increased by 33.3 percent, social development by 30 percent, general administration by 19.3 percent, and economic development by 17.8 percent. The increase in the budget for general administration and economic development is far below the average rate of increase.

Following a policy of restraining the increase in general administrative costs, the government plans to defer the replacement of retiring employees by as much as 80 percent (except for teachers), to achieve more effective use of manpower and to restrict the increase in number of government employees. According to this plan, the government expects to save a total of 35,700,000,000 won in FY82, of which 30,700,000,000 won will be saved by not replacing 7,260 employees and 5 billion won through other cost-saving measures.

In addition, the number of government employees will not be increased at all in FY82, except for 50 judges, 30 prosecutors, and 7,403 teachers who are needed in new schools and for an increase on the number of classes. The government plans to enhance its budget savings by reorganizing itself. Also, it has decided to improve the operation of official cars and to eliminate the private use of the cars. The number of government-owned cars will be gradually reduced to 50 percent of the current number by 1984 and the excess cars will be transferred to form a pool for official business.

Of the 1,327 cars to be reduced, 199 of them will be reduced in FY82, resulting in a savings of 1.5 billion won.

In parallel, to fulfill the realistic desire of car ownership by high-ranking officials, the Ministry of General Administration has decided to subsidize the owner-driver system [an official owns a car and drives it himself] and it is preparing details to enforce the plan.

In FY82, the raises in wages for government employees have been restricted to 9 percent to induce wage stabilization in private business and to remove the cause of inflation [sustained] by the vicious circle of nominal increases in income. In spite of these cost-saving efforts, the 10.5 percent share that our general administrative costs occupy in the total budget is still too high compared to 5 percent in Taiwan and 3.7 percent in the U.S.

But the government allowed for an exception to consider special provisions in order to protect the livelihood of low-ranking (5th class and lower) officials and to realize a "clean government."

Moreover, to save on various administrative expenses and to enforce frugality, the measures being counted on to control the increase in general administrative expenditures are: reduction of entertainment expenses for foreign dignitaries, reduction of expenses for various official events and ceremonies, restriction on nonessential overseas trips by government officials, and a full-scale reexamination of normal operating expenses.

In contrast to the budget for general administration, grants to local governments showed the highest rate of increase to reflect cost increases resulting from the reorganization of local governments, such as two new cities directly controlled by the central government and 10 new cities controlled by local governments.

The total budget required for local governments increased by 28.4 percent from 1,930,400,000,000 won this year to 2,479,000,000,000 won next year. Revenue from local taxes next year will amount to 689,000,000,000 won, and that from other sources will add 729,200,000,000 won. The deficit, which amounts to 690,000,000,000 won, will be supported by grants from the central governments. The fragile fiscal status of local governments seems unlikely to improve soon.

Of the budget for social development, if one excludes expenditures for education that account for 20.4 percent, then only 598,500,000,000 won are left. The budget represents an increase of 30 percent from this year's budget, but is only 6.2 percent of the total budget.

In view of the fact that the basic needs of the people in the field of social development are increasing rapidly, the absolute amount of the [social service] budget in the composition of the total budget is too little.

Support for social welfare programs is being neglected too much compared to foreign countries, where fiscal investments for social development are more than 50 percent [of the total budget].

The defense budget occupies the largest fraction, 34.4 percent, of the total budget. This cost is inevitable in order to establish the capability to defend ourselves but in a heavy burden on the economy of the people because it promotes inflexibility in fiscal policy.

Defense and educational expenditures alone occupy 54.8 percent of the total budget, seriously affecting the usable financial resources in other fields. This fiscal rigidity is further worsened by expenses such as wages and grants to local governments for which flexible management is almost impossible. Therefore, we cannot expect much on the control of business conditions, which is a characteristic function of fiscal policy.

NEW SHIPYARD AT OKPO DESCRIBED

Seoul THE KOREA TIMES in English 18 Oct 81 p 7

[Text] OKPO, Kyongsang-namdo — The dedication ceremonies for the Okpo Shipyard of Daewoo Shipbuilding & Heavy Machinery Ltd. were held here yesterday with 600 domestic and foreign dignitaries attending.

On hand for the ceremonies were President Chun Doo-hwan, five Cabinet members including Commerce-Industry Minister Suh Suk-joon; eight lawmakers including Lee Tae-sup, chairman of National Assembly Commerce - Industry Committee; and 400 foreign VIPs including foreign ambassadors to Korea.

Attendants also included J.W. Bates, chairman of Reading & Bates; Abrhamsen, president of DNV; Alhaji Umaru Dikko, Nigerian transportation minister; Nasr Eldin Mustafa, Sudanese economic planning minister; and Tanaka, vice president of Mitsubishi Heavy Industries of Japan.

The mammoth Okpo Shipyard, which was financed with a total of 327.5 billion won in domestic and foreign capital, required 6 million man-days during the past eight years.

On the occasion of the dedication of the Okpo Shipyard, whose annual shipbuilding capacity is 1.2 million G/T, Korea's shipbuilding capacity rose to 4 million tons from 2.8 million tons, making it the fifth country in the world and the second nation in terms of receiving overseas orders.

The shipyard is equipped not only with the world's largest 900-ton Goliath crane but also a monster drydock reaching 21,000 pyong (one pyong is 3.3 square meters). The main dock is as much as 7.5 times the area of the football field at Seoul Stadium.

Another characteristic of the shipyard is its capability and facilities capable of meeting the new pattern of worldwide demand for high-priced and highly-sophisticated vessels, specialty ships, LPG and LNG carriers, chemical tankers and offshore plants.

The Goliath crane, which cost 13 billion won, is 104 meters in height and 206 meters in width. The crane, higher than the Samil building in Seoul, is able to lift a weight equivalent to the loads of 125 7.5-ton trucks to a height of 91.4 meters.

The mammoth drydock, which was build with an investment of 31.1 billion won, is 530 meters in length, 131 meters in width, and 14.5 meters in depth. The main dock is capable of building 1 million ton-class ships.

Meanwhile, during the dedication ceremonies, Hong In-kie, president of Daewoo Shipbuilding & Heavy Machinery Ltd., was awarded the Order of Industrial Service Merit (silver tower); and three others received Orders of Industrial Service Merit (bronze tower, iron tower and tin tower) respectively.

DKP'S FINDINGS ON MINIMUM LIVING EXPENSES REPORTED

Urban Workers

Seoul TONGA ILBO in Korean 31 Aug 81 p 2

[Text] The Democratic Korean Party [DKP], following a survey of the minimum theoretical cost of living of urban workers, has announced that the minimum standard cost of living for a five-member family now stands at 446,284 won.

According to an announcement made on 31 August 1981 by the DKP's Policy Council, the monthly minimum theoretical cost of living for a five-member urban workers family is 446,284 won, based on a survey made as of 20 August 1981. It includes the following: food expenses, 172,435 won (38.6 percent); housing and energy expenses, 46,137 won (10.3 percent); clothing expenses, 39,302 won (8.8 percent); transportation expenses, 26,500 won (5.9 percent); educational expenses, 42,698 won (9.6 percent); health maintenance expenses, 54,989 won (12.3 percent); miscellaneous expenses, 40,860 won (8.2 percent); and miscellaneous taxes and public fees, 23,363 won (5.2 percent).

These figures show a 21-percent increase during a 10-month period: as of 29 October 1980, the minimum theoretical cost of living for a five-member urban workers family was 368,962 won, based on a survey made by the Korean Federation of Labor. And a breakdown of the increase is as follows: food expenses, 36.3 percent--the highest increase; housing and energy expenses, 16.6 percent; and health maintenance expenses, 17.9 percent.

The DKP's survey, made at the request of the party, was actually carried out by research organizations in Korea, including the Korean Applied Statistics Research Center.

The five-member family referred to in the DKP's survey consisted of a husband and wife, mother, and two children (one higher school student and one middle school student), while the family referred to in the survey of the Korean Federation of Labor consisted of a husband and wife and three children (one higher school student, one middle school student, and one primary school student).

The DKP also announced the minimum theoretical cost of living needed to support families in general as follows: for a four-member family, 367,140 won per month; for a three-member family, 290,661 won per month; for a two-member family, 233,426 won per month.

The DKP, meanwhile, has decided to make a similar survey on the cost of living as of 20 August every year and to have the results of such a survey reflected in the tax reforms, etc.

Han Yong-su, chairman of the Policy Council, said: "The workers' wages should be set at a level high enough to guarantee the minimum cost of living," and asserted that "it is very urgent to stabilize the prices of basic daily necessities in order to safeguard the livelihood of the common people, in view of the fact that the basic cost of living, including food expenses, is increasing rapidly.

Average Civil Servant's Income

Seoul CHUNGANG ILBO in Korean 4 Sep 81 p 5

[Article by reporter Mun Ch'ang-kuk: "Income and Expenditure"]

[Text] The head of a section at the Office of General Affairs, who had passed the civil service administrative examinations and who enjoyed a promising future, expressed doubt about the life of a government employee. On a Saturday early last summer, he gave a Korean gin party in the suburbs for the personnel of his section because they had had to work overtime for a number of consecutive days. Two of the section members refused the invitation, saying that their personal circumstances did not permit them to join the party. They said that their wives were doing some knitting work to earn money for living expenses, and so they had to go home early at least once a week, on Saturday, to take care of their children.

Mr A, head of a section at the central government office, who has been working for the government for 22 years, says that it is most painful for him when vacation season comes. His friends have asked him several times to go on vacation with them, but he refused on the pretext that his vacation time did not coincide with that of his friends. Then, he said, he went to the countryside to spend a day in the suburbs of Seoul with a friend who worked for the Department of Communications. Mr A's college classmates are all executives in private business enterprises, and if he were to go on vacation with them, he would have to spend some 100,000 won or more, and then he would have to work hard till the end of the year to make up for the vacation expenses.

No one knows when it started that, among government employees, those at the level of section head or lower--in contrast to those at the level of bureau chief or higher--customarily refuse to join an alumni party or any similar meeting with their friends.

Many government employees say that at the end of an alumni party, when a second party usually starts, they are often told that "those government employees who don't have money should not follow the second party in groups but will have to disperse in joining the second party," and in face of this kind of insulting situation, they don't want to participate in any more alumni parties, they say.

They just have to follow others and not pay anything toward the second party, where the burden of those who take them to the party becomes heavier.

The Economic Planning Board announced that the living expenses for the five-member family of a man on wages was 383,529 won during the last quarter period.

Meanwhile, let us look at the salary statement slip of Mr B, head of a section at the central government office, who has been working for the government for 22 years: salary proper and position fee, 165,000 won; the continuous service pay 22d grade, 133,000 won; family member allowance (5,000 won per member), 20,000 won; and adjustment allowance, 30,000 won. Thus the total pay is 348,000 won. Various deductions have to be subtracted from this, a total of some 49,000 won in deductions, including taxes, donations, health insurance fee, and group insurance fee. So the actual pay only amounts to 299,000 won. Furthermore, if he has to pay a "home-installment" of 50,000 won, his take-home pay is only 259,000 won. [figures as published].

What has been added to the pay to allow the government employees "to breathe" is a monthly "information allowance" of 100,000 won, which was started in January this year. However, even with this added, the pay is still less than the average living cost. When asked, "when do you feel most gloomy during your working month?", 99 percent of the government employees said: "on pay day." This is an accepted attitude in the society of government employees.

While they are working and absorbed in their work, they feel all right, but when they get their pay, they suddenly feel depressed.

Mr K, director of a bureau, who has been working for the government for 26 years, gets about 530,000 won per month, including 200,000 won information allowance.

In addition, he gets a 400-percent (of the pay proper) annual bonus and a 200-percent diligent service bonus. And he receives the bonus pay every 2 months. Thus he saves 400,000 won bonus money in the bank without fail.

This saving is for the purpose of paying the school registration fee of his youngest daughter, who is attending the E women's university. Mr K purchased a 24-p'yong apartment in the Panp'o AID apartment house in early 1970 and still lives there.

Grown sons and daughters! He cannot afford to give a room to his daughter, so she has never been able to invite her friends to her house, he said. However, he gets over 200,000 won a month as payment for the two lectures he gives to business enterprises every month, and this provides his pocket money.

Mr K, chief of a bureau, wonders how it is possible for some of his bureau chief level colleagues to play golf on the weekend. Because it would be really too much for a person of his pay level even to play tennis, let alone golf.

Of course, those government employees who are "sitting on the yoke of an egg," like some taxation officials and worksite operations government employees, are in quite a different situation from that of the "ordinary" government employees, who are barely living on the edge of subsistence with their monthly pay.

According to statistics compiled by the Office of General Affairs, the number of government employees who have additional income besides their government service pay is 42.6 percent of the total number of government employees.

A breakdown of this income by the type of source is as follows: both husband and wife working, 33.8 percent; other family members working, 12.4 percent; money lending or rental income or other property income, 19.4 percent; running a store or other side job, 16.4 percent; and others, 18 percent.

Those government employees whose grades are higher than the "secretary official" rank (section head), to whom "the information allowance" is given, are rather better off. However, those government employees of the "secretary official" rank or lower who have no income other than the government pay are in great misery.

The parents of a sixth year class primary school girl who stabbed her classmate with a knife last February were both working. The issue of educating children became a popular topic because of the incident. A couple, both of whom have been working for 20 years, said that [when they heard of the incident] they had never felt so miserable.

Actual Amount of Pay of Government Employees (1981) (Unit: won)

Classification Rank (Pay grade)	Pay	Total Pay	Deduction	Amount Received
1st Class (22)	464,000	726,000	116,600	609,400
2d Class (22)	393,000	619,500	88,500	531,000
4th Class (20)	290,000	485,000	57,200	427,800
6th Class (20)	218,000	382,000	35,700	346,300

Note: The total pay is the average monthly pay, in which the pay proper, bonus, family allowance (5,000 won per member), and adjustment allowance, etc, are included. Deductions include taxes, donations, health insurance fee, group insurance fee, etc.

I pondered: "Even if I, as a father, decided to sacrifice myself, how much would I regret it if my children's education suffered because of my poor showing."

There is a trend among young government officials who have passed the civil examinations to consider that "if I am poor, my wife's family must be a rich one." The reasoning behind this kind of attitude is that when the pay is not enough to live on, either the wife must get a job or the wife's family must help with the couple's living expenses.

Then, how can the government official who has no property and whose wife's family renders no aid maintain his livelihood?

When each started out as a government official, without exception he was proud of being of service to the country. However, as he came face to face with reality, his ambition and pride shrank gradually, and he eventually became a "petty citizen" and a mean person. This is a situation often cited by veteran government officials, who express regret at such a situation.

INDOCTRINATION AGAINST AMERICAN IMPERIALISM PROMOTED

Pyongyang NODONG CH'ONGNYON in Korean 17 Sep 81 p 3

[Article by Chang Yong-saeng: "To Make Them Hate the American Imperialists Infinitely," dispatched from the Socialist Working Youth League (SWYL) Committee of Kumbong-ni, Yont'an-gun]

[Text] The respected and beloved leader, Marshall Kim Il-song, taught us as follows:

"The first problem to be treated forcefully in class indoctrination is to breed among the workers hatred against imperialism.

"Imperialism is the first objective of our struggle. All imperialism is bad, but we must fight especially against American and Japanese imperialism."

The SWYL Committee of the village is carrying out anti-American indoctrination among the [village] youths through various forms and methods.

Last June, as the "Day of June 25 Anti-American-Imperialism Struggle" approached, the village SWYL Committee set up plans for an anti-American indoctrination project.

Following the plan, the village SWYL Committee carried out the anti-American indoctrination project through various forms and methods such as movie appreciation, art commentaries, revenge meetings, a visit to the Sinch'on Museum, and debates.

Recently the village SWYL Committee held a debate to condemn American imperialism.

To ensure the success of the debate, the village SWYL Committee carried out a commentary meeting with posters of "Jackals," "Avenge upon My Enemy," and "the Grudge of Sinch'on."

Members of the SWYL who attended the commentary meeting burned with hatred of the American imperialist enemy.

The office of the SWYL mobilized and asked primary level members of the SWYL and youth commentators to read articles on savage acts of the American imperialists reported in newspapers and other publications.

They were thoroughly informed, in particular, on the tricky maneuvers of the American imperialists, who are inciting the military fascists gang led by Chon Tu-hwan from behind the scenes for the savage oppression of campaigns by young students and people in south Korea.

They were also informed on the lunatic activities of the American imperialists to provoke another war by the massive introduction of new types of weapons into south Korea and by stirring up troubles through large scale military maneuvers.

At the same time, a meeting was held to watch a documentary film, which exposed the crimes committed by the enemy savagely oppressing the uprising of the people of Kwangju.

After carrying out preliminary indoctrination as described above, the village SWYL Committee held a debate to incriminate the American imperialists.

Comrade Ch'oe In'sop, who was the first speaker, stated that the American imperialists have invaded our country for more than 100 years. He exposed their crimes with historical data. Moreover, he furiously denounced the savage killing of innocent people in south Korea committed even now by the American imperialists.

Comrades O Yon-ok and Yi Yong-nam followed [the first speaker] at the podium.

They called the American imperialists the primary enemy of our revolution and firmly promised a determined campaign against the implacable enemy, the American imperialists.

Together with these meetings, the village SWYL Committee steadily carried out anti-American indoctrination in the fields and paddies where members of the SWYL were working.

Not long ago, a revenge meeting was held in a corn field to denounce the American imperialist enemy.

Thus the village SWYL Committee vigorously carries out anti-American indoctrination among members of the SWYL and [farm] youths and heightens their class awareness continuously.

MISERABLE LIFE OF JAPANESE WORKERS RECOUNTED

Pyongyang NODONG CH'ONGNYON in Korean 19 Sep 81 p 4

[Article by staff reporter Yi Pok-hui: "A True Story: "Capitalists talk about the rights of people, but in fact, in a capitalist society, workers do not have any right to work, eat, live, receive medical care, or to learn."

Capitalist society is sick and rotten, a society in which even the elementary right to live for most of the working people, except for an extremely small number of capitalists, is mercilessly trampled down.

The life of Kimiko, a maiden who lives in Nakano-ku, Tokyo, is a real-life example of such case.

[An advertisement] We are looking for two able women of about 23 years old with good figure aptitude. Hopeful candidates should come to Room 16, second floor of our company as soon as possible with documents. [recommendations] signed by three references and apply for an "interview."

In the middle of Last January, Kimiko saw the newspaper advertisement for an office job and went to the front yard of a credit union.

Why did Kimiko end up there, a girl at a tender age, full of dreams and who should be attending a school?

Kimiko grew up with loving care from her parents in a not-so-rich but happy family. She was attending a commercial [vocational] high school fulfilling part of her dream to study.

In April of last year, unfortunately her father passed away after suffering from poverty.

Japan, a capitalist society in which even a fool can be elected to the Diet as long as he has money, and someone's misfortune is another's enjoyment, was very cruel to Kimiko's family.

Kimiko was expelled from her school because she could not pay the every-rising tuition.

From then on, she became the breadwinner of her family in place of her late father.

Kimiko thought about the pitiful sight of her sick and hungry mother, who could not afford any medicine, and also of her younger brother, who sold newspapers from morning till late at night. She worked on jobs that were hard even for men, such as sifting gravel, backpacking in road repairs, and cleaning sewers.

She did not have any steady job but she worked at whatever was available, even in rain and snow.

Kimiko could not find a job in a system in which she is condemned for "being born with misery."

It was one of these suffering days.

Kimiko received a newspaper copy from her brother, who came back home in the evening with a hungry stomach.

"Sister, there is an advertisement for an office job in a credit union...."

(What? An office job?!)

This was an unexpected news for Kimiko who had been drifting around without any decent job.

Kimiko, who had been writhing in agony over a steady job, felt that she had found a great opportunity.

Kimiko could not sleep all night, thinking about the new job.

Kimiko passed the night without much sleep. The next morning, she was so happy that she hardly ate the watery gruel her mother had prepared. She got up from her [sick] bed for the first time in a long while. Kimiko hurriedly left home with her brother.

It was an early morning, darkness still hung overhead and chilliness of early morning penetrated sharply.

Kimiko did not know the world in which only money mattered; she did not know the nature of capitalists. She reached the front yard of the credit union with only the simple desire to look for a job.

There were, however, already more than 200 young women milling around the front yard of the credit union that was to hire one or two.

Kimiko had to wait almost all day for her turn to "be interviewed."

"You are 23 years old now. How about your school?..."

The interviewer's voice was harsh from the start.

But she answered the man carefully, calming her excitement.

Kimiko begged with her eyes, which had dark rings around them.

"All right. Did you bring the introduction fee?" The man asked about money before much discussion.

"After I get the job...."

When he found that Kimiko did not bring any money, he blurted out with an amazed look: "You must learn how to live before you look for a job!"

For a while, Kimiko could not understand what he meant. She finally realized that it was the robbery logic of a sick and rotten society that encourages the weapon [money] to survive in the "competition for survival."

Kimiko did not want to live such a life even if she had to die otherwise.

She was angry and chagrined at the fact that she had waited all day shivering outside.

(Should I go home? Or should I look for a laundry job? But the day is almost over and where can I find work now?...)

Suddenly her brother showed up with a bundle of unsold newspapers and started at Kimiko with hopeful eyes.

Kimiko turned her face to avoid her brother, who worried about the harsh life of his jobless sister more than his own suffering. But she could not bear it any more and began to cry.

Kimiko thought deeply as she walked home with her brother.

She thought that she had become a burden on her mother and brother. She did not want to live any longer because she felt that she had failed in her moral responsibility as a daughter as well as a sister.

Although she trembled in desperation and even entertained an extreme thought, she tried to fight this cruel world by all means without giving up.

The next morning, Kimiko again left home early with hope of finding work.

Many unhappy days passed. Toward the end of February, Kimiko also lost her beloved mother.

(Alas! Why is this world so cruel?)

Kimiko finally fell down unconscious.

This orphaned sister and her brother are writhing in agony even today, looking for jobs.

The misfortune of Kimiko's family is a part of the miserable life faced by most of the workers in capitalist societies today.

KWANJU STUDENT MOVEMENT ANNIVERSARY MARKED

Anniversary Marked

SK031627 Pyongyang KCNA in English 1550 GMT 3 Nov 81

[Text] Pyongyang, November 3 (KCNA)--Papers here today come out with signed articles commemorating the 52d anniversary of the Kwangju student movement, a massive anti-Japanese patriotic struggle of Korean students.

The Kwangju student movement was touched off by an insult of Japanese boy students to Korean girl students in a train running between Kwangju and Naju on November 3, 1929.

In an article titled "Let Us Put an End to Foreign Forces Aggression and Interference With Nation-wide Anti-Imperialist, Anti-Puppet Struggle" NODONG SINMUN says that the students of Kwangju rose, giving vent to the pent-up national resentment of our people against Japanese imperialism.

It goes on: The flames of the struggle speedily spread to Pyongyang and Seoul, Sinuiju and Kaesong, Taegu and Pusan and all other parts of the country. The students gallantly fought against the heavily armed Japanese imperialist army and police for half a year, shouting "down with Japanese imperialism!" "abolish colonial enslavement education!" and "long live the independence of Korea!"

The struggle demonstrated to the whole world the ardent patriotism and revolutionary spirit of our students and people who treasure the country and the nation and dealt a telling blow at the colonial rule of Japanese imperialism.

The U.S. imperialists who landed in South Korea after the August 15, 1945, liberation to take the place of the Japanese imperialists have imposed the tragedy of territorial division and national split upon our people, trampling underfoot their national sovereignty. The article further continues:

After the "October incident" the United States encouraged the remnants of "Yusin" to stage a bloodbath against the people crying for democracy and reunification in Kwangju and other places of South Korea, rigged up a new military fascist "regime" and unhesitatingly committed the dastardly act of placing such butchers of the nation as the traitor Chon Tu-hwan at its head. Having legalized the U.S. troops permanent occupation of South Korea together with the new stooge, the U.S. imperialists intensified as never before their schemes to freeze the division of our country into "two Koreas" and stepped up the new war preparations to invade our republic with South Korea as a stepping stone.

Together with the U.S. imperialists, the Japanese reactionaries are also intensifying their reinvasion of South Korea in an undisguised way.

The Japanese reactionaries have already secured new "leased territories" in Masan and many other areas of South Korea, insulting and exploiting the South Korea people. In recent years they invested thousands of millions of dollars under the name of "investment" and "loan" to seize the major arteries of the South Korean economy and bring it into Japan's economic sphere.

The Japanese reactionaries are partaking in the criminal "two Koreas" plot, barring the reunification of Korea and unscrupulously tightening their military tie-up with the puppets these days.

The article goes on: The Korean people, whether in North or South or abroad, should vigorously rise in the nation-wide struggle to repulse the foreign forces aggression and interference. At the same time, they should struggle against the flunkeyist traitors serving the imperialists as an agent in their aggression.

Today the U.S. imperialists and the Japanese reactionaries are riding roughshod over South Korea, insulting the Korean nation and intensifying their exploitation and plunder. This is because such flunkeyist traitors as Chon Tu-hwan have seized power and are committing treacherous acts, talking about "friendship and amity" with the United States and prattling that South Korea and Japan are "the same territory."

The U.S. imperialists must renounce their anachronistic occupation policy and withdraw from South Korea at once, taking along the aggression forces and destructive weapons. The Japanese reactionaries must discontinue encouraging the South Korean puppets and obstructing the reunification of Korea.

The Chon Tu-hwan military fascist clique must step down from "power" at once, as unanimously demanded by the South Korean people.

MINJU CHOSON also runs an article titled "Struggle of South Korean Students and People for National Dignity and Sovereignty Is Sure To Be Crowned With Victory."

Youth Meeting Held

SK041110 Pyongyang KCNA in English 1030 GMT 4 Nov 81

[Text] Pyongyang, November 3 (KCNA)--A Pyongyang youth and students meeting commemorating the 52d anniversary of the Kwangju students movement was held on November 3 at the theatre of the Pyongyang Students and Childrens Palace.

A portrait of the great leader of our party and our people Comrade Kim Il-song was placed on the platform.

The meeting was attended by Kim Si-hak, director of a department of the Central Committee of the Workers Party of Korea; Hong Ki-mun, vice-chairman of the Committee for the Peaceful Reunification of the Fatherland; Yi Yong-su, chairman of the Central Committee of the League of Socialist Working Youth of Korea; Yi Tuk-yop, vice-chairman of the Pyongyang Municipal Peoples Committee; university presidents and college rectors and youth and students in the city.

Chairman Yi Yong-su made a report. He said that the righteous struggle of the Kwangju students which swept the whole country in powerful waves 52 years ago was a courageous anti-Japanese resistance of the Korean students who rose up against the fascist rule of the brigandish Japanese imperialists and their colonial slave education and their just patriotic struggle.

He went on: The massive struggle of the Kwangju students was triggered off by an insult offered to a Korean girl student by Japanese students in a train coach on the Kwangju-Naju line on November 3, 1929.

In the teeth of the bloody suppression by the Japanese imperialists, the furious flame of this patriotic struggle spread in a twinkle to Pyongyang, Seoul, Sinuiju, Kaesong, Pusan and all other parts of the country.

In the angry waves of the massive anti-Japanese patriotic struggle, the students fought undauntedly against the heavily armed Japanese imperialist army and police, loudly shouting such slogans as "down with Japanese imperialism!" "repeal colonial slave education!" "long live the independence of Korea!"

The struggle of students, which lasted for half a year under the barbaric suppression of Japanese imperialism, was an eloquent demonstration of the noble patriotic spirit and unbreakable fighting spirit of our people not to recognize their colonial slave education and to regain the lost fatherland and dignity of the nation at any sacrifice.

The Kwangju students movement powerfully demonstrated the unyielding will of our people and students not to allow anyone to trample upon the dignity and spirit of independence of the Korean nation, the resourcefulness of the nation, which had been cherished and defended for thousands of years, and never to tolerate the arbitrariness and oppression of the foreign imperialists who were committing aggression and plunder against our country and nation.

The reporter said that it was not until the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song, the sun of the nation, stood at the head of the revolution that the anti-Japanese national liberation struggle and the communist movement in our country entered a true road of their development.

The desire for national independence and sovereignty which burned so furiously in the hearts of the passionate students of Kwangju 52 years ago still remains unrealized in the southern half of our country, he said, and stated:

Due to the aggressive manoeuvres of the U.S. imperialists who crawled into South Korea in place of the Japanese imperialists and the flunkeyist traitors policy of dependence on outside forces and treacheries, South Korea has turned today into a U.S. imperialists' colony and military base and a tragic living hell where the dignity and sovereignty of the nation are ruthlessly trampled on and even the vestige of democracy cannot be found.

He pointed out that Chon Tu-hwan, who made his appearance as the boss of the military fascist group in South Korea, fawning upon outside forces, crushed the demand of the people for democracy and national reunification in the most vicious way which even the defunct dictator dared not employ, and has converted South Korea into a dark hell without a parallel in history, into a pandemonium of fascism.

The 50-odd years since the Kwangju students movement have been years of a grand struggle in South Korea against the aggressors and traitors and for the sovereignty of the nation and national reunification, the reporter said. He recalled that in the 1970s, too, the South Korean youth and students waged an undaunted national salvation struggle against imperialism and fascism and for democracy and for the reunification of the country and advanced the youth and students movement along a road of victory, braving the brutal suppression by the enemy.

Declaring that the situation prevailing in South Korea today confronts the South Korean students and people with the urgent tasks to liquidate the colonial fascist rule of the U.S. imperialists and their stooges at an early date, democratize society and achieve the country's peaceful reunification, he said:

The South Korean students and people should wage a valiant anti-U.S., anti-Chon Tu-hwan struggle everywhere, deeply conscious of their noble mission to the country and the nation.

They should closely unite under the banner of anti-U.S. national salvation and wage an unyielding struggle to force the U.S. imperialist aggression troops to withdraw from South Korea and remove the U.S. imperialists colonial rule.

The United States, he said, must no more back with arms the antinational criminal acts of the fascist dictator Chon Tu-hwan clique, give up the "two Koreas" plot, take their hands of interference off Korea and immediately withdraw all its aggression troops and destruction weapons including nuclear weapons from South Korea.

The Japanese reactionaries, feigning concern for a "democratic development" of the South Korean society in words, are zealously encouraging the South Korean rulers to fascist suppression and national division, joining the U.S. imperialists in their "two Koreas" plot, he said, and demanded that the Japanese reactionary rulers should discontinue such criminal moves.

'NODONG SINMUN' DISCUSSES PEOPLE'S BELIEF IN FUTURE

SK301530 Pyongyang KCNA in English 1505 GMT 30 Oct 81

[Text] Pyongyang, 30 Oct (KCNA)--NODONG SINMUN on October 29 alloted a whole page to an editorial article titled "High Pride of Our People Vigorously Advancing With Unshakable Conviction of Victory in Revolution."

The article consists of two parts.

In the first part it stresses that the spirit of loving the future and revolutionary optimism are indispensable noble traits of the revolutionary people.

It says: Revolutionary optimism is a noble revolutinary spirit of resolutely fighting for the future of revolution, neither shrinking back nor falling into pessimism before any obstacle and difficulty, with the conviction of certain victory that the cause of socialism and communism will be surely triumphant under the leadership of the party and the leader.

Today the conviction of the future and optimism possessed by our people are the loftiest and most staunch revolutionary spirit originating from their living and making revolution under the guidance of our glorious party, holding in high esteem the respected and beloved leader Comrade Kim Il-song, the great pioneer and guide of the cause of chuche. Now it is the rock-firm creed for our party members and working people that the Korean revolution cannot be advanced a step and there can be no bright future of the country and nation apart from the respected and beloved leader Comrade Kim Il-song and our party. Our conviction of the future is so unshakable as it is based on the noble spirit of entrusting all their destinies entirely to our party and carrying the revolution to accomplishment following the party under whatever conditions. For this conviction our people always burn with revolutionary enthusiasm and have strong fighting spirit and display dignity and honour as a heroic people who can do anything, once they are determined to.

It is not yesterday or today that the revolutionary creed and optimism of our people emerged. They involve a long history of struggle and a shining tradition.

Our people's ideological sentiments in taking an optimistic view of the bright future and victory of revolution have been steadfast from their inception and have become more unshakable as days went by.

The unshakable faith in always trusting the leader and the party and looking forward to a brighter future of the fatherland underlies the great victory which our people won over the imperialist aggressors incomparably superior in strength and technique and the miracles of the century in building such prospering powerful socialist country as today, not thrown into despair even on the ruins after everything was razed and burnt.

The pride of our people's history of struggle lies in that it clearly proves that when the people fight with a firm conviction of the justice of their cause and its victory and with optimism, their might knows no bound and no force can block the road of such people.

In the second part the article stresses:

The optimistic traits of our people which were rooted in the thick forests of Mt. Paektu long ago and have been steadfastly succeeded through the storm of revolution, are displayed today on the loftiest height in the course of the march of modelling the whole society on the chuche idea.

The noble traits of our people fighting with firm belief in the bright future and victory of revolution are clearly demonstrated, first of all, in the unbreakable fighting spirit and strong will of resolutely defending and implementing the party's lines and policies.

Today our people accept the party's lines and policies, decisions and instructions as supreme orders and regard it as an inviolable strict law to carry them through to the end. To implement the party's line and policy is for our people a vital demand concerning themselves and their posterity, and future of the country and the nation. It is their immovable creed that in this struggle there may be things difficult but there is nothing impossible.

To firmly trust and follow only their party and leader under whatever circumstances and to fight through fire and water to implement the intention of their party, without a retreat or vaccilation--this is precisely the optimism of our people and their creed of the future of communism today.

The noble traits of our people determined to make revolution to the end, with a firm belief in the bright future of the revolution are given full play in firmly defending and safeguarding the precious socialist gains won through an arduous and bloody struggle under the wise leadership of the party and the leader and constantly consolidating and developing them.

Today our people regard it as their greatest happiness and loftiest duty to devote their all to the struggle for defending and glorifying the socialist system and gains of revolution and they do not tolerate in the least the slightest attempt to impair and obliterate them.

As long as there are such heroic people who fight staunchly, overflowing with confidence and optimism under whatever conditions, regarding it their great glory and happiness to live and make revolution in Korea of chuche, no one can dare provoke our socialist gains and national dignity, and our socialist system of chuche established by the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song will be steadily consolidated and developed.

The noble traits of our people determined to make revolution to the end, with firm belief in the bright future of revolution, are also fully displayed in the revolutionary habit of living always a merry and cheerful life and fighting courageously.

Today our people work in a revolutionary way and live a modest life, as becomes the people of a revolutionary country and in an age of struggle, and they find the greatest worth of life and happiness on the righteous road of revolution for the party and revolution, for the fatherland and people.

Such communist attitude of our people towards life is noble spiritual and moral traits growing out of the deep consciousness that their future and happiness and joy of life lie in the boundless prosperity of our fatherland steadily consolidated and developed.

Our people are now making continued innovation and continued advance for a better future, full of fighting spirit and zeal, with firm conviction of a bright future of the Korean revolution.

Our people, in weal and woe, have lived and fought stoutly, always gaining strength and courage from the might of the party, and are filled with firm resolution and determination to follow the party forever and carry the revolution to accomplishment.

Only greater victory is always in store for our people who are vigorously advancing, overflowing with hope and optimism, with a mighty vanguard unit of the revolution to which they can wholly entrust the destinies of themselves and their posterity and the future of the fatherland.

KIM IL-SONG SPEECH AT LSWYK CONGRESS EVOKES RESPONSES

SK281617 Pyongyang KCNA in English 1531 GMT 28 Oct 81

[Text] Pyongyang, 28 Oct (KCNA)--The great leader Comrade Kim Il-song made a programmatic address "The Youth Should Be Dependable Heirs to the Revolutionary Cause of Chuche" at the seventh congress of the League of Socialist Working Youth of Korea.

His address has evoked widespread repercussions upon the entire people and youth. Yi Hak-chol, chairman of the central district, Pyongyang, committee of the LSWYK, said that the address made by the respected and beloved leader is a triumphant review of the glorious road of struggle traversed by the Korean youth movement under the banner of the chuche idea and a militant programme giving a new exposition of the duty and fighting task of the League of Socialist Working Youth in conformity with the new historic stage where the modelling of the whole society on the chuche idea poses as the general task of our revolution.

He further said: The address of the respected and beloved leader gives perfect answers to all the theoretical and practical problems arising in further strengthening and developing the LSWYK to be eternally a revolutionary youth organisation of chuche type and militant reserves which would carry forward and bring to completion the cause of modelling the whole society on the chuche idea, following the glorious party. His address is a torchlight of the righteous struggle to carry forward and accomplish through generations the revolutionary cause of chuche which has developed by our party, and a guiding principle on which the LSWYK organisations and youth should keep a tight hold.

His address run through with the immortal chuche idea is also an immortal classic work illumining the road ahead of the youth movement of the era of independence, on the basis of a comprehensive review of the victorious path and historic experiences of the Korean youth movement for over half a century.

Chang Yong-kwon, chief of a section of the Central Committee of the LSWYK, said that in his historic address the great leader assigned it to our young people as the supreme revolutionary task of the youth and honourable duty of the LSWYK to carry the cause of chuche to accomplishment through generations.

We, he remarked, will further strengthen education in loyalty to the party and the leader to bring up the LSWYK members and young people to be communist revolutionaries of chuche type who will carry to accomplishment the cause of modelling the whole society on the chuche idea.

Kim Manpok, chairman of the first primary LSWYK committee of the youth shock brigade of the construction of the capital, had this to say: To firmly establish the monolithic ideological system of the party in the LSWYK is the foremost task and noble duty facing our young generation, the heirs to the cause of chuche.

We will thoroughly establish the monolithic ideological system of the party among the LSWYK members and youth, establish within the league a steel-like discipline and an orderly work system of acting as one in accordance with the policies of the party and its instructions, and firmly build up the LSWYK organisation into a militant unit of continuing the vigorous advance under the wise leadership of the great leader and the glorious party centre.

Chon Myong-chol, chairman of the primary LSWYK committee of the machine work battalion of the January 18 Shock Brigade of Nampo Lockgate Construction, said: The programmatic address of the respected and beloved leader is an inspiring banner which energetically leads our LSWYK members and youth along a road of grand march for modelling the whole society on the chuche idea, for socialism and communism.

Our LSWYK members and young constructors, in hearty response to the militant call of the party, will set off a strong wind of the speed campaign in the construction of the Nampo lockgate, one of the four major construction objects, giving a full play to the heroic stamina and resourcefulness of the Korean youth in creating "the speed of Nampo Lockgate Construction."

Choe Myong-nim, secretary of the Sunchon County Committee of the Workers Party of Korea, said: Today our party organisations and functionaries are confronted with the honourable duty to firmly prepare all the youth and children as the militant reserves of the party and dependable heirs to the cause of chuche by further strengthening the party's leadership in the work with the youth and children, upholding the historic address of the great leader at the seventh congress of the LSWYK.

The Sunchon County Committee of the party should vigorously conduct the work with youth, laying emphasis on decisively improving the method of guiding the work of the League of Socialist Working Youth.

BRIEFS

STUDENTS SENTENCED--Pyongyang, November 12 (KCNA)--The Chon Tu-hwan military fascist clique on November 10 staged a trial at the puppet Seoul district criminal court and sentenced six personages including students to prison terms up to three years for opposing fascism and demanding democracy, according to a report. They include members of the Catholic Peasants Society, university teacher and students of Sogang University in Seoul and Chonnam University in Kwangju. The military gang arrested them on the strength of a fascist evil law, charging them with involvement in leaflet scattering at Sogang University on May 18 and has since persecuted them till it imposed the above penalties upon them by referring them to the murderous court. CONSTRUCTION OF NAMPO LOCK GATE REPORTED

SK120429 Pyongyang KCNA in English 0406 GMT 12 Nov 81

[Text] Pyongyang, 12 Nov (KCNA)--The construction of the Nampo lock gate, a big creation for grand nature-remaking which will display the honour and power of Chollima Korea, is progressing apace.

To push ahead with the full-scale construction of the lock gate from next year, young builders and their helpers have now started the building of the main dike of the lock gate, while carrying on the construction of a railway line and road.

The fourth plenary meeting of the sixth Central Committee of the Workers Party of Korea which was held some time ago set forth a task to complete the construction of the Nampo lock gate by 1985 by accelerating the project to solve the problem of supplying water to the west coast tideland.

The Nampo lock gate project is an unprecedentedly difficult, large-scale one in which the constructors have to build a dike extending 8 kilometres across the sea scores of metres deep, combating tidal water, build several waterways for the passage of small and big ships and lay a motor road and railway line on the dike.

When the Nampo lock gate is constructed, the water problem for the west coast tideland will be satisfactorily solved, with the result that the vast area of tideland already reclaimed and to be reclaimed will be turned into a fertile land producing rich crops in whatever drought and, further, a great change be effected in the natural environment of the area along the Taedong River including Pyongyang.

Besides, the problem of industrial water and drinking water will be fully solved in the lower reaches of the Taedong River, the water will get deeper to enable the Nampo and Songrim ports to freely accommodate big and small ships and the industrial and grain producing zones be linked by a big canal to open a broad prospect for inland water transport, and a new coastal circular railway be added to our country's railways to develop railway transport in a big way.

The great leader Comrade Kim Il-song visited the construction site in May to choose the site of the lock gate and brightly illumine the direction and ways of the project.

CONSTRUCTION OF TAECHON POWER STATION REPORTED

SK120414 Pyongyang KCNA in English 0402 GMT 12 Nov 81

[Text] Pyongyang, 12 Nov (KCNA)--The giant Taechon hydraulic power station is under construction by a new method of exploitation in a broad inland mountainous section of the northwestern area of Korea.

The constructors of the power station are now widely waging a high-speed tunnelling drive in the building of water tunnels and vigorously striving to create the "Taechon power station construction speed," a new construction speed, by actively introducing a rational method of tunnelling suited to various geographical conditions and the form of tunnels.

This power station which will be one of the biggest hydraulic power stations in our country is being built as one of the new four major construction tasks of grand nature-remaking set forth at the recent fourth plenary meeting of the sixth Central Committee of the Workers Party of Korea.

This power station under construction to produce electricity by damming rivers flowing northwestwards of the country and storing a huge amount of water is a model in the construction of power stations by a new method of exploitation of hydraulic resources, proposed originally by our party.

When the power station is built, it will help smoothly solve the water problem for tideland to be newly reclaimed in the area of North Pyongan Province, drastically increase the generating capacity and, furthermore, do away with flood damages for good by harnessing the water of the Taeyong River and render the scenery around the reservoir more beautiful.

GOALS FOR NEW ARABLE LAND REVIEWED

SK120402 Pyongyang KCNA in English 0353 GMT 12 Nov 81

[Text] Pyongyang, 12 Nov (KCNA)--Vigorous endeavours are now being made in the Democratic People's Republic of Korea to reclaim 300,000 hectares of tideland and acquire 200,000 hectares of new land, which hold an important place in her grand nature-remaking projects.

Reclaiming 300,000 hectares of tideland and acquiring 200,000 hectares of new land, a new task put forward by our party are a magnificent undertaking for expanding the land area, rendering the landscape of the country more beautiful and thus laying a more powerful foundation of agricultural production by successfully carrying out the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song's plan of grand nature-remaking.

The fourth plenary meeting of the sixth Central Committee of the Workers Party of Korea which was held some time ago set forth a target to reclaim 300,000 hectares of tideland till 1988 and put forward a task to launch a vigorous drive for tideland reclamation by all efforts.

The reclamation of 300,000 hectares of tideland is a vast nature-remaking project for obtaining a new land larger than the area of the arable land of a big province in the agricultural zone by building dikes extending thousands of ri and damming off the West Sea. When 300,000 hectares of tideland is reclaimed and 200,000 hectares of new land is obtained, our country will acquire new arable land equal to one-third of the total existing area of land under grain crops.

It is an urgent demand for the development of agriculture to extensively reclaim tideland and vigorously wage a movement for obtaining more land. As the per hectare yield of grain has reached a very high level as a result of the vigorous progress of the technical revolution in the countryside and the application of the chuche method of farming, the area of cultivated land should be further expanded to rapidly boost grain production. Today in Korea, therefore, thorough measures are being taken to fully meet the growing demand for food consequent on the growth of the population and ensure raw materials and feed needed for the rapid development of light industry and stockbreeding.

'KCNA' REPORTS EFFORTS FOR NATURE-REMAKING GOALS

SK120355 Pyongyang KCNA in English 0338 GMT 12 Nov 81

[Text] Pyongyang, 12 Nov (KCNA)--"Let the whole party, the whole country and the entire people, turn out to powerfully assist grant nature-remaking projects!"

This slogan which is seen everywhere in towns and villages of the Democratic People's Republic of Korea fully reflects the determination of our working people to carry out at all costs the new four construction tasks of grand nature-remaking which were put forward at the recent fourth plenary meeting of the sixth Central Committee of the Workers Party of Korea.

At the plenary meeting the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song advanced the four vast construction tasks--reclaiming 300,000 hectares of tideland, acquiring 200,000 hectares of new land and building the Nampo lock gate and the Taechon power station for solving water problem for tideland.

The far-reaching plan of grand nature-remaking is a brilliant blueprint to make our country stronger and richer and provide our people with a more affluent life.

The whole party, the whole country and the entire people are turning out to the struggle for carrying into effect the far-reaching plan of the great leader for the grand nature-remaking projects.

The workers of the Songsan ore mine are standing in the van of this movement.

Recently they took a new initiative to give powerful assistance to the grand nature-remaking projects in accordance with the intentions of the glorious party centre. They resolved to assist materially and in labour the work of reclaiming tideland, while overfulfilling their ore production plan by vigorously carrying on the three revolutions--ideological, technical and cultural--and called upon factories and enterprises to respond to their appeal.

The glorious party actively supported the initiative of the miners and highly appraised their meritorious deeds.

In response to their appeal, workers of the Kangson Steel Works, the Sungri General Automobile Works, the Sunchon Cement Factory, the September 28 Factory, the February 21 Construction Office and many other factories and enterprises went to the sites of tideland reclamation carrying machines, equipment and materials.

A joint meeting of factories and enterprises in South Pyongan Province for powerfully assisting the reclamation of tideland was held a few days ago. A movement for assisting this project is going on in various forms in all domains of the national economy.

The working people of organs and enterprises in North Pyongan Province sent to the sites of tideland reclamation in the province scores of various machines and a large quantity of equipment, rolled steel, coal and other materials and daily necessaries which they produced through a vigorous increased production drive.

A brisk mass movement for carrying out medium- and small-scale tideland reclamation projects is being waged in Nampo and in varous domains.

Organs and enterprises in all domains of the national economy are waging a powerful campaign to acquire new land, each taking charge of one project as they help the farmers in farm work every year.

The movement for assisting the construction of the Nampo lock gate and the Taechon power station is also brisk.

The Nampo shipyard has already built over ten tug boats and trailer boats to be used in the Nampo lock gate construction and is registering big successes in building boats needed in damming project.

Under the deep care and with the powerful assistance of the people throughout the country, the builders who are in charge of the vast four construction tasks are waging a vigorous drive to create the "tideland reclamation speed" "Nampo lock gate construction speed," and "Taechon power station construction speed."

MUSAN MINE BLASTING--Pyongyang, 28 Oct (KCNA)--A big blasting involving 2.5 million tons of earth and ores was successfully carried out recently at the Musan Mine, one of the biggest ore mines of the country. This has brought into being one more large open-cast ore-cutting site at this promising mine with rich deposits. This will lead to a leaping jump in the mines ore production. The big blasting was unlike the earlier ones. It was a technically complex blasting in which the earth covering the ore beds were blown off to a valley and the ores were made to fall on the original place, well crushed. While pushing ahead with ore production, the miners had carried out preparations in a few months for the successful blasting. During the Second Seven-Year Plan (1978-1984), the production scale of the mine will be expanded to 10 million tons. Now it is going ahead with preparations for another big blasting. PERUVIAN SENATOR HAILS KIM IL-SONG'S UPCOMING BIRTHDAY

[Text] Pyongyang, 6 Nov (KCNA)--Angel Castro Labarello, senator and chairman of the National Liberation Front of Peru, made a speech on the subject "Let us grandly celebrate the 70th birthday of the great leader Marshal Kim Il-song, the genius of revolution and construction, as a great common festival of mankind" at the Latin American and Caribbean regional meeting for the peaceful reunification of Korea held recently in Medellin, Colombia, according to a report.

He said:

April 15, 1982, is the 70th birthday of the great leader President Kim Il-song, the founder of the immortal chuche idea; it is the greatest fete for the whole mankind.

With this significant day drawing near, the world people are preparing with all sincerity for its most significant celebrations.

To grandly celebrate the 70th birthday of respected and beloved President Kim Il-song, the great leader, on an international scale is a unanimous desire of the people the world over who have found a road of independent life in the chuche idea.

The earliest reunification of Korea is a unanimous desire not only of the Korean people but of the world people as well and an urgent demand of present times, he said, and went on:

Respected President Kim Il-song advanced a new proposal to achieve the reunification of the country by means of founding the Democratic Confederal Republic of Koryo, leaving the ideas and systems in the North and the South of the Korean Peninsula as they are, on the basis of the three principles of independence, peaceful reunification and great national unity.

We consider this reunification proposal to be the most reasonable one suitable to the reality of Korea and a fair one fully conforming to the cause of world peace, too.

He further said: All of us highly respect and revere President Kim Il-song as the great leader of the people of the whole world.

All of us admire the illustrious character of respected and beloved President Kim Il-song who has been devoting his all life to the cause of anti-imperialism and independence, the cause of freedom and happiness of the people.

His warm love reaches across boundaries the world people fighting for independence.

We should always look up to and follow respected and beloved President Kim Il-song, the leader of us all. This is our greatest honour and happiness.

All of us should prepare from now to greet the forthcoming 70th birthday of the great leader President Kim Il-song as the most auspicious international holiday.

Many countries and international and regional organisations plan to form preparatory committees and mark off a "festival week," a "celebration week" and so forth and conduct various functions.

On a world scale, friendship and solidarity organisations are preparing colourful functions such as celebration meetings, lectures, symposiums on the chuche idea, film shows, photo and book exhibitions by mobilising all their possibilities.

Prominent writers of the world highly praise him as the genius of revolution and construction, the tender-hearted father of the people, and are writing books appraising his greatness and genius and his noble virtues with the approach of his 70th birthday.

We should hasten preparations with deepest reverence and loyalty for greeting his 70th birthday as a most auspicious international holiday.

The Korean people have as their great leader the outstanding thinker and theoretician who has made the greatest and immortal ideological, theoretical and practical contribution ever in human history.

President Kim Il-song found truth not in a quiet study, but in the bloody anti-Japanese armed struggle, in the complex building of a new society and the fatherland liberation war, and in the grand reality of arduous postwar rehabilitation and construction and the building of socialism and communism, and clarified all his ideas and theories on the basis of the fighting experiences of the masses.

His revolutionary idea is an integral system of the immortal chuche idea and the new and original theory and method clarified by it.

The great chuche idea of President Kim Il-song is the revolutionary idea of the working masses reflecting their fundamental demand and interests in becoming the masters of nature and society and revolutionary world outlook of the working class of our times.

By scientifically elucidating the position and role of people in the world, for the first time in the history, on the basis of the profound philosophical principle that man is master of everything and decides everything, the chuche idea gives to people powerful weapons for having a most correct understanding and viewpoint toward nature and society and recognizing and transforming the world.

The chuche idea correctly indicates the law of the development of society and powerfully inspires the revolutionary struggle of the working masses for an independent and creative life.

The revolutionary theory of chuche, very comprehensive and rich, covers all domains and fully expounds tasks in all stages of revolution and their ways and strategic and tactical principles to be firmly maintained in the whole period of the building of socialism and communism.

By embodying the immortal chuche idea President Kim Il-song created and perfected the chuche-based method of leadership, the first of its kind in history, and is leading the masses along a most correct path.

President Kim Il-song is possessed of iron-will and a revolutionary principle which do not waver in whatever adversity.

He pushes ahead with the work through to the end with an outstanding revolutionary method of work and superb revolutionary sweep.

Greeting with joy and excitement the birthday of the respected and beloved leader President Kim Il-song who has been dedicating his whole life to the liberation of mankind and to the construction of a new society, we should further strengthen our militant solidarity to force the U.S. troops to promptly withdraw from South Korea and realize the independent and peaceful reunification of Korea at an early date.

We wholeheartedly wish good health and a long life to the great President Kim Il-song who has performed undying feats for the Korean revolution and the world revolution and has been devoting his whole life to the cause of national liberation with his outstanding ideological, theoretical and practical activities.

POLISH JOURNAL'S TRAVELOGUE ON DPRK CITED

SK311530 Pyongyang KCNA in English 1513 GMT 31 Oct 81

[Text] Pyongyang, 31 Oct (KCNA)--The Polish journal PERSPEKTIWY No. 37 carried a travelogue on Korea titled "Chollima Does Not Slow Down His Speed," according to a report.

Noting that the reverence and respect of the people for President Kim Il-song, general secretary of the Central Committee of the Workers Party of Korea, who has been dedicating his all to the freedom and happiness of the people for over half a century gives strong impressions to the foreigners visiting the Democratic Peoples Republic of Korea, the journal says:

The people praise him as the "great leader" and carry badges of his portrait on their chests.

Statues of President Kim Il-song were erected at many places of the Democratic Peoples Republic of Korea. And there is Mangyongdae where he was born not far from the heart of Pyongyang. A large number of people visit there every day.

The journal continues: In his report to the sixth congress of the Workers Party of Korea, President Kim Il-song reviewed successes achieved in the three revolutions--ideological, technical and cultural--and set forth ten long-range objectives of socialist economic construction for the 1980s.

The sixth party congress advanced the proposal for founding the Democratic Confederal Republic of Koryo, setting it forth as an urgent task to put an end to the division of Korea.

President Kim Il-song has taught that all problems arising in the revolution and construction should be solved independently mainly by ones own efforts in conformity with the reality of ones country through the embodiment of the chuche idea.

The chuche idea arouses the popular masses to strengthen the independent economy and self-reliant national defence.

The postwar three-year plan, the five-year plan, the seven-year plan and the six-year plan were successfully carried out and the industrial output will increase 2.2 times in the period of the Second Seven-Year Plan.

Korea is not affected by the economic fluctuation now sweeping the world for its rational utilization of natural resources and effective management of the enterprises.

Referring to the chuche-orientation, modernisation and scientisation of the national economy, the journal stresses:

The DPRK is the best model in education.

She maintains an independent foreign policy and plays an active role in the non-aligned movement.

PAPERS MARK ANGOLA'S NATIONAL DAY

SK111534 Pyongyang KCNA in English 1503 GMT 11 Nov 81

[Text] Pyongyang, 11 Nov (KCNA)--Papers here today dedicate articles to the sixth anniversary of the independence of Angola.

NODONG SINMUN in its article stresses that the Angolan people under the leadership of the MPLA put an end to the cursed colonial rule and won the independence of the country on November 11, 1975, by waging a courageous struggle for a long period with arms in their hands.

The author of the article says: After the dependence [as printed], the Angolan peope have been advancing along the road of socialist development, repulsing the ceaseless invasion and subversive activities and sabotage of the reactionaries within and without.

Today efforts are made in Angola to strengthen the unity and cohesion of the party and consolidate the peoples power and defend the revolutionary gains and territorial integrity and carry out the tasks for national reconstruction.

Pursuing a non-aligned policy externally, the Angolan Government is actively developing friendly and cooperative relations with the peoples of the socialist and African countries and other developing countries.

Our people sincerely rejoice over the fact that the Angolan people are building a new Angola on colonial ruins.

Though Korea and Angola are far away from each other, their peoples are linked together by bonds of friendship for the commonness of their lot yesterday and today's struggle. Especially, the visit of the president of the People's Republic of Angola Jose Eduardo Dos Santos to our country in October was a signal event in deepening the friendly relations between Korea and Angola and the feelings of fraternity between the two peoples.

The Korean people will in the future, too, holding high the banner of independence, friendship and peace, make active efforts to develop the friendly and cooperative relations with the Angolan people in accordance with the treaty of friendship and cooperation between Korea and Angola.

Meanwhile, the author of an article of MINJU CHOSON says: Believing that the relations between the two countries will develop still further under the banner of sovereignty, independence and non-alignment, the Korean people wish the Angolan people greater success in their efforts for the prosperity and development of the country.

JAPANESE VISITORS PRAISE KIM CHONG-IL

SK092222 Pyongyang KCNA in English 2201 GMT 9 Nov 81

[Text] Pyongyang, 9 Nov (KCNA)--The delegation of the Japan-Korea Cultural Interchange Association headed by critic Yoshihisa Kajitani, its representative director, which had been visiting Korea, was interviewed by KCNA reporters before leaving for home on November 6.

The members of the delegation, to begin with, gave the impressions they had got while going round many parts of Pyongyang and local areas during their stay in Korea.

The head of the delegation said: President Kim Il-song and dear leader Kim Chong-il not only guide all work in Pyongyang but give on-the-spot guidance, personally making trips all over the country.

And they go among the people and work out policies and shape them into lines after hearing the opinions of the people.

Deputy head of the delegation Jun Tadara said: While inspecting the Korean film studio, the Pyongyang maternity hospital, the Taean general heavy machine works, and other places here, we could see that Korea is developed in all domains and here the chuche idea is fully embodied in all fields.

Noting that arts serve the people and production does the same in Korea, he said: We could clearly see how dearly President Kim Il-song holds people.

Member of the delegation Sumie Kajitani said: What we felt while touring various places of your country is that, if there is an earthly paradise, it indicates the Democratic Peoples Republic of Korea. Korea where the people are treated most dearly is a land where socialism has been realised in all respects.

Member of the delegation Haruo Asakawa said: Korea is a land where the voice of the people is reflected, a most democratic land and most bountiful land, I think.

Inspecting various parts of Korea, I learned, to my deep emotion, that President Kim Il-song and the dear leader are men of extraordinary calibre who organize work boldly, with keen insight in all domains.

I pay regards to them.

Then the members of the delegation referred to the question of Korean reunification.

The head of the delegation pointed out that the U.S. troops occupied the southern half of liberated Korea in 1945, started a war against the Korean people in 1950 and, far from withdrawing from South Korea, have turned that part of Korea into an anti-communist military base, staying on there under the mask of the United Nations. What is most important in reunifying North and South Korea is to reject outside forces and especially, to wage a struggle for forcing the U.S. troops to withdraw from South Korea, he said. He stressed that the U.S. troops present in South Korea are not only the enemy of Korean reunification, but also the enemy of peace.

Deputy head of the delegation Jun Tadara said: There cannot be peace in Korea or in Japan without the reunification of Korea. And he expressed his resolution to strive for the founding of the Democratic Confederal Republic of Koryo.

General secretary Jun Shimizu said while inspecting Panmunjom that the U.S. troops and the South Korean puppet army men subordinate to them stand guard in the south while the Korean peoples army soldiers do so in the north. This fact, he said, patently proves that there is not a single foreign troop in the north while the south is dominated by the U.S. forces.

At the news conference, the members of the delegation loudly sang "The Song of Founding of the Democratic Confederal Republic of Koryo" the poem and music of which they had written in support of the proposal for founding the DCRK put forward by the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song.

INDIAN VISITOR NOTES WORK OF KIM CHONG-IL

SK092308 Pyongyang KCNA in English 2212 GMT 9 Nov 81

[Excerpts] Pyongyang, 9 Nov (KCNA)--Omprakash Mantri, secretary general of the All India Indo-Korean Friendship Association, recently published his impressions of Korea under the headline "In the Land of Chuche," according to a report.

He said that he had come to this great Asian country of the great leader President Kim Il-song and the dear leader Comrade Kim Chong-il not only to attend the 33rd anniversary of the founding of the Democratic People's Republic of Korea, but also to see the latest developments and achievements for writing a book on Korea on the occasion of the 70th birthday of the great leader, and to get first-hand knowledge of the activities of the dear leader Comrade Kim Chong-il.

He emphasized: The dear leader Comrade Kim Chong-il is not only an outstanding thinker and theoretician but also a genius of revolution and construction who brings about great changes and miracles by mobilizing and organizing the popular masses to the revolution and construction.

The dear leader Kim Chong-il is working hard for modelling the whole of society on the chuche idea. He has illuminated the most correct way to thoroughly embody the chuche idea in all spheres of social life.

He said that through his visit to Mangyongdae where the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song was born he could be well informed of the history of the revolutionary activities of his revolutionary family.

Noting that the grand mass gymnastic display on the occasion of the 33rd anniversary of the DPRK founding was a unique show of the most disciplined children and youth of the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song and the dear leader Comrade Kim Chong-il, he remarked that he had never seen such a show anywhere.

He also said that it was the happiest moment in his life when he was invited to attend the banquet hosted by the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song on the occasion of the 33rd anniversary of the DPRK founding.

Saying that the DPRK is a complete peoples state whose 33rd anniversary we are celebrating today, he continued:

Under the wise leadership of Marshal Kim Il-song the DPRK has become an independent, strong socialist state with an advanced socialist system and the firm basis of an independent national economy, a powerful all-people defense system and a brilliant culture.

Working people are ensured with stable jobs according to their ability and aptitude with sufficient rest.

In brief, the Korean people under the fatherly care of the great leader are the happiest people in the world.

This rapid development of the DPRK is due to the outstanding leadership and the great chuche idea of Comrade Kim Il-song.

Pointing out that this tremendous progress in all fronts at Chollima speed and a new revolutionary upsurge in socialist construction has not been possible without the active guidance and participation of the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song and the dear leader Comrade Kim Chong-il in every work and activity, he went on:

Their on-the-spot guidance has been a great encouragement and inspiration to the working people including workers, peasants and intellectuals. Whether it is a field, or factory or agriculture land or house building activity, or school we always find the great leader giving on-the-spot guidance.

The dear leader Kim Chong-il has taken great pains for building dwelling houses, Changgwang Street, maternity hospital and Changgwang health complex in Pyongyang.

Saying that the greatest and ardent desire of the Korean people to reunify their country has not yet been realized, he declared: President Kim Il-song of the Democratic Peoples Republic of Korea has been putting forward most fair proposals on many occasions for the independent, peaceful reunification of Korea. The three principles and five-point programme for reunification are well known to the world.

This is the fundamental policy put forward by the great leader that Korea must be reunified independently and peacefully without outside interference.

The latest proposal to establish a Democratic Confederal Republic of Koryo put forward by the great leader in the sixth party congress is completely in accordance with this fundamental policy.

The world peaceloving people have fully supported this most reasonable proposal.

The great leader loves his country so much and has a firm determination to reunify the country.

Noting that in the international affairs, the Democratic Peoples Republic of Korea under the wise leadership of President Kim Il-song has been consistently following an independent foreign policy--a policy of chuche, he said:

In consequences, the international prestige of the DPRK has incomparably risen.

The DPRK has established diplomatic relations with over one hundred countries and developed economic and cultural interchange and cooperation with a large number of countries throughout the world.

YUGOSLAV, POLISH MEDIA OBSERVE KWP ANNIVERSARY

SK090425 Pyongyang KCNA in English 0349 GMT 9 Nov 81

[Text] Pyongyang, 1 Nov (KCNA)--Yugoslav and Polish papers published articles on the occasion of the 36th anniversary of the founding of the Workers Party of Korea, according to reports.

A recent issue of the Yugoslav paper BORBA in an article titled "Along Ones Own Road" said:

The Korean people mark the founding anniversary of their party so significantly because over the past 36 years they under the leadership of President Kim Il-song have triumphantly covered the arduous road of converting their country which had been a colonial and semi-feudal society and, worse still, was razed to the ground in the period of the war into a new modern socialist state, one of the most developed countries in Asia.

Under the sub-title "Guiding Idea" the paper wrote: All the achievements made in the past period are the result of the embodiment of the chuche idea which the Workers Party of Korea takes as its guiding idea and whose vitality the people are firmly convinced of.

President Kim Il-song founded the chuche idea already in the period of his revolutionary activities against the Japanese imperialist aggressors.

The chuche idea is fully applied in all aspects of the revolution and construction in the Democratic Peoples Republic of Korea. This idea is embodied in independence in politics, self-support in economy and self-reliance in national defence.

In the Democratic People's Republic of Korea the chuche idea makes it possible to pull through all trials and difficulties and is a great motive force for new feats of labour and successes.

Under the sub-title "Question of Reunification" it remarked: The Democratic People's Republic of Korea enjoys the powerful support of the nonaligned movement in the struggle for the reunification of the country.

President Kim Il-song has already put forward many proposals for the reunification of the country.

The Democratic Peoples Republic of Korea has taken numerous initiatives for the country's reunification. But they have not been realised owing to the splittist machinations of the South Korean dictatorial "regime" and the policy of the United States trying to keep hold on South Korea as a stepping-stone of anti-communism in Asia.

President Kim Il-song set forth a new proposal for national reunification at the sixth congress of the Workers Party of Korea last year.

This proposal is a very comprehensive and democratic, most realistic and reasonable one.

A recent issue of the Polish paper KHLOPSKA DROGA carried an articlw which stressed that the Workers Party of Korea has inherited and developed the glorious revolutionary traditions established in the period of the anti-Japanese revolutionary struggle.

Noting that the Workers Party of Korea is pushing ahead with the ideological, technical and cultural revolutions, the paper emphasized that great are the achievements of the Workers Party of Korea.

'NODONG SINMUN' HAILS UNITY OF NONALIGNED MOVEMENT

SK080922 Pyongyang KCNA in English 0852 GMT 8 Nov 81

[Text] Pyongyang, 8 Nov (KCNA)--NODONG SINMUN Saturday came out with a signed article titled "Unity Is Source of Strength of Nonaligned Movement."

Stating that, if the nonaligned movement is to discharge its mission as the driving force of the times, it should, above all, tightly hold its powerful weapon of unity, the article says:

The most important task facing the nonaligned movement is firstly to unite and secondly, too, is to unite. Without unity, the nonaligned movement cannot discharge its noble mission or keep itself alive, still less can develop itself. Only unity can guarantee the strengthening and development of the movement, overcoming difficulties lying in its way of advance.

Dismayed at the influence of the nonaligned movement, the imperialists desperately attempt to bar its advancement.

If the nonaligned movement is to frustrate aggression and intervention and the splitting and disorganizing manoeuvres of the imperialists and realize its noble mission and goal at the present juncture, it should more closely unite under the banner of nonalignment.

In order to strengthen the unity of the nonaligned movement, it is important, first of all, for its member nations to maintain the principle of independence.

The nonaligned countries should strictly maintain the principle of independence in their external activities proceeding from the common stand for independence, thereby making active efforts for the unity and solidarity of the nonaligned movement. It is important for the nonaligned countries to refrain from such act as dancing to others tune, acting agents for others, interfering in others internal affairs or infringing upon others interests.

Only then no force would set foot in the nonaligned movement and the unity of nonaligned movement would be truly mighty.

To strictly adhere to the stand against the imperialist domination force while maintaining independence, is essential for the unity of the nonaligned movement.

The nonaligned countries must neither be duped by the change of aggressive methods of imperialism nor harbour illusion as to it.

And they must not make an unprincipled compromise with the imperialist reactionary forces nor seek their own interests at the expense of others interests nor bargain about matters of principle.

It is necessary for the nonaligned countries to thoroughly expose and denounce the imperialists policies of aggression and war on a staunch anti-imperialist stand, support the struggle of peoples fighting for independence and liberation and to take concerted action in it.

For the unity of the nonaligned movement, it is important for all the nonaligned countries to treasure the overall interests of the movement and maintain the stand of giving priority to them.

As differences and disputes between nonaligned countries are internal problems among brothers who are advancing hand in hand for a common goal, they can be settled in a peaceful way through negotiation in the national interests and in the interests of the nonaligned movement as a whole between the parties to the disputes.

Today when the question of strengthening unity of the nonaligned movement carries greater importance than ever before, the nonaligned countries must closely unite with each other, shelving differences, and frustrate the imperialists manoeuvres of division, estrangement and scramble with a united action, and thus vigorously hew a new road for the nonaligned movement.

Our people will, in the future, too, firmly join hands with the peoples of other nonaligned countries and fight staunchly for the victory of the common cause of anti-imperialism and independence holding high the banner of nonalignment and the banner of independence.

NEW ISRAELI SETTLEMENT PLAN DENOUNCED

SK130434 Pyongyang KCNA in English 0401 GMT 13 Nov 81

[Text] Pyongyang, 13 Nov (KCNA)--The Zionists recently decided to build more than 20 "settlements" in Golan Height, Gaza area, West Bank area and Negev Desert which they had illegally occupied.

Commenting on this, NODONG SINMUN today notes that the reckless move of the Israeli aggressors is a brigandish act trampling underfoot the sovereignty and territorial integrity of neighbouring countries and an unpardonable criminal act disturbing and wrecking peace and security in the Middle East area.

The signed commentary headed "Brigandish Ambition of Israeli Aggressors: says: The new "settlement" construction plan of the Zionists is an open manifestation of their wild ambition for aggression and territorial expansion.

The Israeli aggressors who occupied territories of Arab countries by force of arms through several wars are moving Jews there on a large scale, openly declaring the occupied areas their "territory." The Israeli expansionists have already built one hundred and scores of "settlements."

Israel is pursuing in an undisguised way the racial extermination policy against the Palestinian and other Arab peoples with the "settlements" as its foothold.

The Israeli aggressors are hastening preparations for another war of aggression against the Arab countries and ceaselessly committing military provocations with the "settlements" as a bridgehead.

The criminal move of the Begin clique to actively push ahead with the new "settlement" construction plan proceeds from the vicious aim of stifling the just cause of the people in this area, placing the illegally occupied Arab lands for ever under its control and building a "great "Israel empire" in the Middle East.

The United States is standing behind Israel in its aggressive manoeuvres.

The U.S. imperialists assistance to Israel fully shows their sinister attempt to stifle the cause of the Arab peoples and seize the Arab countries one by one by putting Israel to the fore.

With nothing can the reckless move of the Israeli aggressors be justified. It will meet bitterer denunciation of the broad public circles of the world.

If peace and security are to be ensured in the Middle East and the sovereignty and territorial integrity of the countries in this region to be achieved, the aggressive and provocative acts of the Zionists should be terminated and they be withdrawn without delay from all the Arab territories they occupied.

The Israeli aggressors must act with discretion, looking straight at the trend of the times.

Zeng Tao, director general of the XINHUA News Agency, made a speech at the meeting.

NAMPO MEETING FETES S. KOREAN ARMY DEFECTOR

SK091048 Pyongyang KCNA in English 1036 GMT 9 Nov 81

[Text] Pyongyang, 9 Nov (KCNA)--A Nampo mass meeting welcoming South Korean puppet army soldier Yi Sang-il who came over to the northern half of the DPRK was held at the Nampo Theatre on November 8.

Placed on the platform of the meeting hall was a portrait of the great leader of our party and our people Comrade Kim Il-song.

Pang Ung-ki, vice-chairman of the Nampo municipal peoples committee, made a welcome speech at the meeting.

He warmly welcomed in the name of the Nampo citizens Yi Sang-il who came over to the northern half of the DPRK not to serve in the puppet army which is used as a tool for the suppression of people by the Chon Tu-hwan group, and expressed the belief that Yi Sang-il would devote himself to the struggle for the building of socialism and the cause of national reunification, cherishing deep the honour of being embraced in the bosom of the socialist homeland.

Souvenirs were presented to Yi Sang-il at the meeting in the name of the Nampo municipal peoples committee.

In his reply speech Yi Sang-il extended the highest honour and warmest thanks to the respected and beloved leader Marshal Kim Il-song who bestowed the boundless happiness and joy of today upon him who had been subjected to all sorts of inhuman treatment and humiliation in the society of South Korea.

Yi Sang-il said: Touring Pyongyang and Nampo, I felt that the north is a society where everyone is well off without any worry.

The society of the south is a rotten ailing society where the overwhelming majority of working masses including workers and peasants hardly eke out though they work hard.

The people in the north have no worry about food, clothing and housing. They receive free medical treatment and send their children to school free of charge.

I clearly realized deep in my heart that it is entirely thanks to the wise leadership of the great leader Marshal Kim Il-song and the dear leader Kim Chong-il that the people in the north are living with nothing to desire more.

It is the highest honour and greatest happiness of the entire people in the north and south of Korea that they hold the great leader and the dear leader in high esteem as the leaders of the nation.

Ardent reverence for the great leader General Kim Il-song, the sun of the nation, and the dear leader Kim Chong-il is deeply cherished in the hearts of all people from little children to grey-haired old, and even the officers and men of the "ROK Army" in South Korea.

The people in the south and the soldiers of the "ROK Army" will never let the traitor Chon Tu-hwan opposing the reunification of the country and seeking only the division go unpunished and our country will certainly be reunified, Yi Sang-il declared.

Expressing his determination to devote his all to the struggle for bringing earlier the day of the reunification of the country, he said:

I wholeheartedly wish good health and a long life to the respected and beloved leader Marshal Kim Il-song and the dear leader Kim Chong-il for the reunification of the country and the propserity of the generations to come.

Long live the great leader President Kim Il-song!

Long live the dear leader Kim Chong-il!

SOGANG UNIVERSITY STUDENTS SCORE CHON 'CLIQUE'

SK090410 Pyongyang KCNA in English 0336 GMT 9 Nov 81

[Text] Pyongyang, 9 Nov (KCNA)--Students of the Sogang University in Seoul held an anti-"government" demonstration for four hours on October 7, denouncing the anti-national fascist crimes of the Chon Tu-hwan clique, according to a KNS report from Tokyo quoting the November 1 issue of MINJOK SIBO, a newspaper of Korean residents under the influence of the "ROK Residents Association in Japan" ("MINDAN").

That day the students published a declaration titled "Strike hard at the undemocratic dictatorial regime."

Noting that it is the duty of university men pursuing truth and valuing freedom to face the outrages of the Chon Tu-hwan dictatorial group squarely, expose them to the whole world and become the vanguard in the movement for democracy, the declaration says:

After staging a coup and usurping "power" at the point of the bayonet, Chon Tu-hwan arrested, jailed or expelled a large number of democratic figures and students and committed the violent, murderous atrocity of brutally slaughtering Kwangju citizens with bayonets. Under the name of "national defence" he stifled the movement for democracy by force of arms and, fearful of the just demand of established politicans and democratic-minded people, trumped up unheard-of draconic laws, especially the "law on assembly and demonstration," discarded direct elections and set up an institutional apparatus called "electoral college" to become a "king."

He also controlled all the suppressive machines, created a terror-ridden atmosphere, cooked up a marionette political party and resorted to a deceptive trick to give a semblance of democracy to it. Furthermore, he trampled underfoot the elementary rights to speech, the press, assembly and association by enacting the "basic law of speech," amalgamating or abolishing press organs, abolishing educational and critical publications and forcibly unifying news agencies and forces all the press and radios to be a parrot of his dictatorial group.

Referring to the economic situation and the peoples living in South Korea, the declaration says that they are characterised by foreign debts surpassing 30,000 million dollars, the deterioration of the peasants living and their lack of zeal for production due to the low rice price policy, a large army of the unemployed and the miserable lives of workers and homeless families accounting for 48 per cent of the entire households. This notwithstanding, it notes, the Chon Tu-hwan clique is "making a false propaganda" about "economic development."

Exposing the reactionary educational policy and suppressive schemes of the Chon Tu-hwan clique of traitors, the declaration points out that it stations intelligence officers in the campus to suppress the students activities, abolished SOGANG HAKBO, a newspaper of the university speaking for students, and deprived students of their autonomous organisation.

For all these crimes we brand the Chon Tu-hwan clique as an "undemocratic dictatorial group," the declaration stresses.

Calling upon all the students and people of all strata to turn out to the movement against dictatorship and for democracy, the declaration demands as follows:

Away with Chon Tu-hwan.
Guarantee freedom of speech.
Abolish the "law on assembly and demonstration."
Guarantee the three rights of labour.
Away with Yi Kyu-ho.
Release the arrested students.

Reinstate the dismissed professors.
Away with intelligence officers.
Rehabilitate SOGANG HAKBO.
Rehabilitate the students council.

DPRK DAILY HITS S. KOREAN TRIAL OF 'CHINDO CASE'

SK090427 Pyongyang KCNA in English 0358 GMT 9 Nov 81

[Text] Pyongyang, 9 Nov (KCNA)--MINJU CHOSON November 8 printed a signed commentary titled "Despicable Trick for Security of Power" lashing out at the Chon Tu-hwan clique for inflicting capital punishment and heavy penalties upon guiltless people at the final trial of the so-called "Chindo case" on November 4 at the puppet Seoul District Criminal Court.

Noting that it was already exposed at the time when the Chon Tu-hwan clique rigged up the "Chindo case" on July 31 with the mobilization of the "Security Planning Agency" that the "case" had nothing to do with us, the commentary says:

Nevertheless, the puppets detained guiltless people, persecuted them and imposed harsh penalties upon them at the final trial and are now raising an anti-communist row, connecting the "case" again with us. Lurking behind this is a sinister political aim.

It is a habitual tactic of the puppets to cook up a shocking case each time they face a crisis to divert elsewhere the attention of the people from them, threaten and browbeat students and take the edge off their anti-"government" struggle and thus bolster up the shaking "power". It is precisely for this purpose that they held the final trial of the "Chindo case" and passed a death sentence and heavy penalties upon guiltless people.

This glaringly shows once again that Chon Tu-hwan the gangster is an unpardonable murderer and traitor to the nation who rigs up a bogus case, arrests and murders guiltless people at will for the "security of his power", and uses the "case" in inciting north-south confrontation.

The Chon Tu-Hwan clique must clearly realise that anti-communist confrontation and the suppression of the people lead it to destruction, give up the despicable trick, discontinue the brutal suppression and step down from power.

There is no other way for the traitor Chon Tu-hwan.

'VRPR' CALLS DCRK PROPOSAL 'PERFECT PROGRAM'

SK091112 (Clandestine) Voice of the Revolutionary Party for Reunification in Korean to South Korea 1000 GMT 4 Nov 81

[Dialogue between station commentator Yun and announcer Kim Chan-mi]

[Text] Yun: The 10-point policy of the Democratic Confederal Republic of Koryo [DCRK], which the great leader President Kim Il-song advanced a year ago in his proposal for founding the DCRK--a proposal to end the deadlock on the reunification question, is an absolutely perfect pan-national political program. It is supported by many people. What do you think?

Kim: The 10-point policy is a perfect charter for the DCRK, evincing a common political ideal regarding differences in ideologies and systems in the north and south. The proposal embodies the nation's basic interests and common aspirations. The 10-point policy is in the nation's interest and affords a bright future for our people, who will enjoy prosperity in the DCRK--a reunified state, by suggesting basic principles of state activities. It ensures the nation's development and prosperity through a common political ideal and through unity and cooperation between the north and south, guarantees peace on the Korean peninsula and the security of the nation and provides principles for the confederal state's foreign policy.

Yun: What do you think makes the 10-point policy an absolutely perfect pan-national political program?

Kim: I think it is because the 10-point policy suggests as a basic principle that the DCRK shall carry out an independent policy. Independence is a symbol of a sovereign state and a basic means to ensure the nation's survival and prosperity. A state can be called a state when it is independent, not when it has a title and a government. This is why independence is a basic symbol of a sovereign state, the life of the nation and the point from which all human and national activities begin. A state without independence is a colony, and a government without independence is a puppet regime. The independence of a state or nation should be expressed in the form of the total rejection of foreign interference. Accordingly, the DCRK opposes any foreign interference and any dependence on foreign countries. It is an independent, nonaligned state which exercises independence and solves all the problems arising in state affairs independently in accordance with the nation's basic interests. This is clearly stated in the 10-point policy.

Yun: The 10-point policy makes democracy the confederal state's common political ideal which will be embodied in the north and south and in all spheres of society. This also makes it a pan-national political program.

Kim: Democracy is what the nation demands and aspires. It is a common political ideal which is acceptable to those with differences in ideologies. It is natural that democracy is a common political ideal of the DCRK, which tolerates differences in ideologies and systems. The 10-point policy states that the DCRK, based on a democratic political ideal, shall oppose dictatorship and suppressive politics, guarantee the people's basic rights and develop a democratic social and political system.

Yun: I understand the 10-point policy also suggests plans to promote collaboration and unity between the north and south and ensure the nation's development and prosperity on the principle of great national unity.

Kim: The 10-point policy states the DCRK shall achieve economic exchanges between the north and south to promote the development of the national economy, promote cooperation between the north and south in the fields of science and technology, culture and education to ensure the development of science and technology, national culture and arts and national education, rejoin the transportation and communications links that were severed between the north and south so the people can use them any place throughout the north and south, stabilize the people's livelihood, including that of working people, and promote a social welfare system.

Yun: If potentialities and experiences are fully tapped and exchanged between the north and south while enacting these plans, a material foundation for the nation's independent development will be strengthened, the development of the nation's economy and culture precipitated and the people's livelihood and social welfare system promoted--a turn for national prosperity. I think it is obvious that our fatherland will have a new look.

Kim: The 10-point policy also suggests plans for peace on the Korean peninsula and the security of the nation. For instance, it says that to end military confrontation between the north and south and to see no more fraticidal war between the two sides, the DCRK shall have the armies of both sides reduced to 100,000 to 150,000 each, the armistice line dividing them abolished and the military facilities along the armistice line eliminated. It also says that the armies of the north and south shall be organized into a single national army under the command of the confederal government and will serve for the defense of the reunited fatherland and the nation's security.

The 10-point policy also says that the DCRK shall put a total ban on keeping foreign troops, setting up foreign military bases and producing, introducing and using nuclear warheads. This means that the 10-point policy is a constructive peace-loving program to transform the Korean peninsula into a peace zone or a non-nuclear zone free of the danger of war.

When the 10-point policy is implemented, it is obvious the source of the danger of war and military tensions will be rid of once and for all and that the defense of the reunified state will be concentrated on the security of the nation.

Yun: The 10-point policy also mentions the confederal state's responsibilities and obligations to defend the national rights and interests of the compatriots overseas. For instance, it says that overseas residents shall enjoy, without limit, internationally recognized rights and freedoms as citizens of the DCRK and shall have the right to visit their fatherland anytime they want and to live and move freely anywhere in the nation.

Kim: The 10-point policy suggests the principles the confederal state should maintain in conducting external affairs. The 10-point policy notes how correctly the reunified state, on the principle of guaranteeing the interests of the nation as a whole and those of the two systems in the state, should deal with foreign relations that both the north and south had maintained before reunification; who it should coordinate the external affairs of the two regional governments of the north and south while allowing them to maintain bilateral relations with foreign countries; how it should send a single delegation representing the nation to the United Nations and other international organs; and how it should maintain a neutral line and a nonaligned policy in conducting its foreign policy and enforce a peace-loving foreign policy while developing friendly relations with neighboring countries.

Yun: Indeed, the 10-point policy is a grand political program which illuminates the future of a reunified fatherland and is a great charter.

Kim: Yes, it is. It is based on chuche, the life of the nation, and on democracy, a common political ideal of the nation; all the people in the north and south, regardless of their ideologies and political views, support it. This is why the 10-point policy is a pan-national political program which appeals to anyone with a national conscience and patriotism, whether he lives in the north or south; it is a great program for national salvation, for it makes national reunification the utmost national task and maintains the will to achieve reunification at an early date.

Yun: This notwithstanding, there is a group--the Chon Tu-hwan clique--which shuns the DCRK proposal and its 10-point policy--running counter to the development of history and the will of the nation. This means that the Chon Tu-hwan clique is a cancerous entity and an enemy to our nation which seeks permanent division.

Kim: Anyone with a national conscience cannot disregard this program. Only the splittist Chon Tu-hwan clique, which acts against the nation, rejects this patriotic charter. By doing so, the traitor Chon Tu-hwan has revealed his dirty nature as the traitor to the nation, and the deceptiveness of the 12 January and 5 June proposals, about which Chon babbles, has been exposed to the world.

Holding high the revolutionary banner of democracy and national reunification, our people will liquidate the fascist Chon Tu-hwan military clique, establish the DCRK and implement the 10-point policy.

PYONGYANG REPORTS ON SEOUL STUDENT DEMONSTRATIONS

SK301224 Pyongyang Domestic Service in Korean 1131 GMT 30 Oct 81

[Text] According to 30 October Japanese newspaper reports relayed by the KOREA NEWS SERVICE from Tokyo, students at Seoul's Korea University staged a demonstration to overthrow the Chon Tu-hwan fascist military clique on 29 October.

About 300 students at this university began a demonstration at noon, spreading antigovernment leaflets. For an hour they displayed their resolve by shouting such slogans as "Chon Tu-hwan, step down from power." They stubbornly battled the puppet police, who tried to disperse the demonstrators. At the end of their frenzied suppression, the puppet police committed the barbarous act of arresting seven or eight students.

At Seoul National University, first fights took place between students who recently participated in a campus function and plainclothes policemen. The puppet police reportedly arrested students at this university, too.

Reporting on a struggle staged by Korea University students, the Japanese newspapers noted that struggle erupted at many universities in Seoul and Kwangju. Students there demonstrated and spread antigovernment leaflets, and Seoul National University students staged a violent struggle on 23 October, shouting slogans such as "The Chon Tu-hwan regime must step down from power" and "Freedom on campus."

According to foreign news reports, students at Ehwa Women's University in Seoul spread antigovernment leaflets and appealed to their fellow students to join in the struggle to overthrow the fascist military clique of Chon Tu-hwan on 27 October. The news reports said that the 500 sheets of leaflets they disseminated contained antigovernment slogans.

Embarrassed by the flames of struggle that erupted at Ehwa Women's University following the 23 October Seoul National University students' violent antigovernment struggle, the fascist clique arrested a student at this school and charged that she had instigated an antigovernment demonstration.

MINDAN GROUPS SUPPORT SEOUL STUDENT 'STRUGGLE'

SK300818 Pyongyang KCNA in English 0810 GMT 30 Oct 81

[Text] Pyongyang, 30 Oct (KCNA)--The "Liaison Council of Korean Youth and Students in Japan for Supporting the Struggle for Democracy in South Korea" and the "Society for Defending the Human Rights of South Korean Women," Korean organisations under the influence of "The ROK Residents Association in Japan" ("MINDAN"), on October 24 made public in joint name a statement in active support of the just patriotic struggle valiantly waged by the students of the Seoul University against fascism and for democracy.

Recalling that on October 23, more than 1,000 students of the Seoul University set a period from October 26 to 31 as a "period of struggle for democracy" and called for rising in the anti-"government" struggle, holding a demonstration under the slogan "Down with Chon Tu-hwan", the statement said: The action of the Seoul University students is a manifestation of the firm will of the South Korean people to reject the Chon Tu-hwan clique and achieve democracy and a demonstration of the staunchness of the South Korean student movement defying any suppression.

It further said: We fervently support the just patriotic struggle of the Seoul University students who have valiantly come out to make a breakthrough in the struggle for democracy in defiance of the Chon Tu-hwan cliques naked fascist suppression and express warm solidarity with them in setting a "period of struggle for democracy."

The Chon Tu-hwan puppet clique must unconditionally release all the illegally arrested students of the Seoul University and Kim Tae-chung and all other political prisoners and step down from "power" at once, as demanded by the South Korean people.

The U.S. and Japanese ruling quarters must stop encouraging Chon Tu-Hwan and discontinue interfering in the internal affairs of South Korea.

Determined to struggle jointly with the South Korean students, we appeal to all the compatriots at home and abroad to rise in the struggle against Chon Tu-hwan and for democracy.

S. KOREAN STUDENTS WAGE FIGHT DESPITE REPRESSION

SK070356 Pyongyang KCNA in English 0342 GMT 7 Nov 81

[Text] Pyongyang, 7 Nov (KCNA)--The struggle of South Korean students to topple the Chon Tu-hwan military fascist clique is going on vigorously in the teeth of its harsh suppression.

During recent one month or so anti-"government" demonstrations and handbill scatterings took place one after another in many universities including Seoul University, Koryo University, University of Foreign Studies, Kyonghui University, Songgyungwan University, Sogang University, Ehwa Womens University and Sejong College.

Students of Seoul and Koryo universities fought under the slogans "Down with Chon Tu-hwan!" and "Away with Chon Tu-hwan regime!" Meanwhile, students of Sogang University scattered leaflets demanding the resignation of traitor Chon Tu-hwan and held a demonstration shouting anti-"government" slogans.

Students of all other universities and colleges which joined the struggle including Kyonghui University and Ehwa Womens University cried for the overthrow of the Chon Tu-hwan "regime," holding anti-"government" slogans.

South Korean students also came out with slogans denouncing the treacherous and fascist crimes of the Chon Tu-hwan clique and opposing its anti-popular policy and demanding the improvement of the peoples living such as "liberalization of campus," "opposition to humiliating diplomacy" and "wage raise and stability of commodity prices."

What draws particular attention in the recent struggle of South Korean students is the fact that it assumed a very fierce nature in the teeth of the fascist gangsters harsh suppression.

The students of Seoul University who have already waged struggles on a number of occasions since the Kwangju popular uprising held a "fierce demonstration largest in scale" since the appearance of the Chon Tu-hwan "regime" under anti-"government" slogans on October 23.

When the puppet riot police desperately attempted to check the demonstration, firing tear gas bombs, the students fought it persistently for three hours, throwing stones at it to wound more than 20 policemen.

Their struggle continued afterwards and grew fiercer on October 29 and 30.

What is also noteworthy in the recent struggle of South Korean students is that they took an organized action, while strengthening links among universities and colleges under the rigorous circumstances in which they were subjected to watch and suppression by the military fascist clique.

Students of Seoul University in their struggle on the lapse of two years since the assassination of traitor Pak Chong-hui set a "period of struggle for democracy" and called for an anti-"government" demonostration, and students of Ehwa Womens University, Koryo University and Sogang University, in their wake, scattered anti-"government" leaflets and held demonstrations in succession to throw the puppets into utter confusion.

Students of University of Foreign Studies and Kyonghui University in Seoul made public in joint name a declaration in struggle against fascism and turned out in a demonstration to be followed by students of Sejong College and Songgyungwan University, which clearly demonstrated the organized nature of the struggle.

All this patently showed that with no intensified suppress could the military fascist clique break the fighting spirit of the South Korean students to destroy the fascist ruling system and win freedom and democracy.

DPRK STUDENTS HIT CHON'S SUPPRESSION OF STUDENTS

SK110441 Pyongyang KCNA in English 0346 GMT 11 Nov 81

[Text] Pyongyang, 11 Nov (KCNA)--The Korean students committee in a statement issued on November 10 in connection with the fact that these days the Chon Tu-hwan group is brutally cracking down upon the righteous struggle of South Korean students for campus freedom and democracy in society, strongly demanded the Chon Tu-hwan group to discontinue the suppression of students and unconditionally set free the arrested and jailed students.

The statement pointed out that from late October to early November the Chon Tu-hwan group walked to the police and detained more than 50 students of the Seoul University, expelled or suspended from school more than 70 other guiltless students, arrested and penalised six students of the Koryo University and many students of other universities in Seoul and local areas.

Noting that on November 5 the South Korean military fascist clique passed prison terms upon 8 students of the Seoul University, the statement said:

The Chon Tu-hwan groups suppression of the campus is an open challenge to the South Korean students demanding campus freedom and democracy and an unpardonable criminal act trampling underfoot the nation's intellectuality and future.

It stressed:

In the name of the entire Korean students who love justice and truth, the Korean students committee vehemently denounces the suppressive outrages of the Chon Tu-hwan group against South Korean students.

The Chon Tu-hwan group must be mindful that the fascist suppression leads it to destruction, discontinue the suppression of students, unconditionally and immediately release the illegally arrested and detained students and revoke groundless penalties inflicted upon students and step down from "power" without delay, as unanimously demanded by them.

The entire students in the northern half of the republic firmly believe that the South Korean students will undauntedly struggle till they smash the citadel of dictatorship and hoist the flag of democracy on it and discharge the lofty mission they assumed before history on the road of sacred struggle for democarcy and independence against the U.S. imperialists and the traitor Chon Tu-hwan.

Taking this opportunity, the Korean students committee expresses the belief that the international student organisations, student organisations in various countries of the world and the progressive students who love justice will wage a vigorous struggle to check the Chon Tu-hwan military fascist cliques brutal oppression of South Korean students and extend more active support to and solidarity with their just patriotic struggle.

SUKMYONG UNIVERSITY DEMONSTRATION--Pyongyang, 7 Nov (KCNA)--Students of Sukmyong Womens University in Seoul on November 3 held a demonstration against the military fascist clique, according to a report. At around 11:30 a.m. some students scattered more than 50 copies of anti-"government" leaflets from the roof of a four-storied building and earnestly appealed to the students to rise up in a demonstration to overthrow the Chon Tu-hwan clique of traitors. The students who came out in response to this held a campus demonstration, shouting slogans denouncing the traitorous fascist clique and calling for democratic liberties and rights. Frightened by the continued anti-"government" demonstrations among students of a number of universities, the military fascist clique detained Pak Chong-pin, Jong Bin, a third-year student of the political and diplomatic course of the university, on charges of violation of the "law on assembly and demonstration" on November 6 for having agitated the demonstration, scattering leaflets. UNIVERSITY STUDENTS ARRESTS--Pyongyang, 7 Nov (KCNA)--The South Korean military fascist clique on November 5 arrested Pak Sang-yong, a student of Seoul University, on charges of violation of the fascist "law on assembly and demonstration", according to a report. They scheme to penalize him for the reason that he participated in an anti-"government" demonstration held by students of the university on October 23. Already on the day of the demonstration the military fascist clique arrested a number of students on the spot, who are now subjected to persecution. According to another report, the fascist clique arrested six students of Sogang University in Seoul on October 15, charging them with involvement in an anti-"government" demonstration at the university. With continued arrest and punishment of students by dint of fascist evil laws the traitorous Chon Tu-hwan clique seeks to crush the students anti-"government" struggle and bolster up its fascist ruling system. STUDENTS ILLEGALLY PUNISHED--Pyongyang, 7 Nov (KCNA)--The Koryo University authorities in Seoul on the instructions of the Chon Tu-hwan fascist clique took an illegal step of expelling two students and suspending four others from classes on charges of involvement in an anti-"government" demonstration held by students of the university last month, according to a report. This is heinous reprisals on the anti-fascist resistance which more than 300 students of this university waged on October 29, distributing anti-"government" leaflets and shouting "away with Chon Tu-hwan regime!" In this connection the fascist blackguards arrested six students to subject them to persecution. On the other hand, they put pressure on the university authorities to remove from the campus register Cho Sok-hyon, a third-year student of the law course, and Kwak Nae-hyok, a third-year student of the philosophy course, of the university, among those in prison. The fascist bandits resort to all manner of brutal suppression against the patriotic students in an effort to arrest their anti-"government" action, but it will only stir their spirit of resistance. SOUTH'S FOREIGN DEBTS--Pyongyang, 28 Oct (KCNA)--A South Korean paper denounced the Chon Tu-hwan puppet clique for its treacherous crime in inducing rapacious foreign capital to saddle South Korea with foreign debts. Noting that "the United States high interest policy" has increased burdens of foreign currency upon many countries of the world and posed a grave problem affecting the economy as a whole especially for South Korea which has the greatest amount of foreign debts, the paper said: South Korea's balance of long- and short-term foreign loans this year amounts to 30,500 million dollars and, as a result, it has to pay as much as 3,600 million dollars this year as principal and interest. The amount of the principal and interest sharply increases year after year to reach 4,260 million dollars next year and 7,030 million dollars in 1985, according to an estimate of the authorities concerned. Yet, the authorities plan to induce 46,500 million dollars of foreign capital in a few years to come, the paper noted, and said: "How long will they continue recklessly inducing foreign capital to bequeath only the burden of paying back foreign loans to the coming generations?"
